Chap. III.

[1] He giveth the Iews ſome [2] preferment, for the covenants ſake, [4] but yet ſuch, as wholly dependeth on Gods mercie. [9] That both Iews and Gentiles are ſinners, [11] he prooveth by Scripture: [19] and ſhewing the uſe of the Law, [28] he concludeth that we are juſtified by faith.

What [1] is then the preferment of the Jew? or what is the profit of circumciſion?

[1] The firſt meeting with, or preventing an objection of the Iews: what then have ẏ Iews no more preferment then the Gentiles? yes, that have they, ſaith the Apoſtle on Gods behalf, for he committed the tables of the covenant to them, ſo that the unbelief of a few, cannot cauſe the whole nation without exception to be caſt away of God, who is true, and who alſo uſeth their unworthineſſe to commend and ſet forth his goodneſſe.

2 Much every manner of way: for [a] chiefly, becauſe unto them were of credit committed the [b] oracles of God.

3 For what, though ſome did not [c] beleeve? ſhall their unbeliefe make the [d] faith of God without effect?

4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, and every man a lyar, as it is written, That thou mighteſt be [e] juſtified in thy words, and overcome, [f] when thou art judged.

5 [2] Now if our [g] unrighteouſneſſe commend the righteouſneſſe of God, what ſhal we ſay? Is God unrighteous which puniſheth? (I ſpeak as [h] a man.)

6 God forbid: elſe how ſhall God judge the world?

7 [3] For if the [i] veritie of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory, why am I yet condemned as a ſinner?

8 And (as we are blamed, and as ſome affirm, that we ſay) why doe we not evill, that good may come thereof? whoſe damnation is juſt.

9 [4] What then? are we more excellent? No, in no wiſe: for we have already proved, that all, both Jews and Gentiles are [k] under ſin, 10 As it is written, * There is none righteous, no not one.

11 There is none that underſtandeth: there is none that ſeeketh God.

12 They have all gone out of the way: they have been made altogether unprofitable: there is none that doeth good, no not one.

13 * Their throat is an open ſepulchre: they have uſed their tongues to deceit: * the poiſon of aſpes is under their lips.

14 * Whoſe mouth is full of curſing and bitterneſſe.

15 * Their feet are ſwift to ſhed blood.

16 Deſtruction and calamitie are in their wayes.

17 And the [l] way of peace they have not knowen.

18 * The fear of God is not before their eyes.

19 [5] Now we know that whatſoever the [m] Law ſayeth, it ſaith it [6] to them which are under the Law, that, every mouth may be ſtopped, and all the world be [n] ſubiect to the iudgement of God.

20 Therefore by the [o] works of the Law ſhal no [p] fleſh be [q] iuſtified in his [r] ſight: for by the Law commeth the knowledge of ſin.

21 [7] But now is the righteouſnes of God

[a] The Iews ſtate condition was the ſeſt.

[b] Words.

[d] The faith that G gave.

[f] Foraſmuch as th ſhewedſt forth a evident token of th righteouſneſſe, conſtancie, and faith, preſerving him w had broken his cov nant.

[2] An other preven tion iſſuing out o ẏ former anſwer that the juſtice o God is in ſuch fo commended & ſe forth by our unrighteouſneſſe, ẏ therefore God fo getteth not ẏ he i the Iudge of th world, and therefore a moſt ſever revenger of unrighteouſneſſe.

[g] Trecherie, & a the fruits thereof.

[h] Therefore I ſpea not theſe words in mine own perſon, as though I thought ſ but this is the talke o mans wiſdome, whic is not ſubiect to the will of God.

[3] A third objection, which addeth ſomewhat to the former, If ſins do turn to ẏ glory o God, they are no only, not to be pu niſhed, but we ought rather to give our ſelves t them: which blaſ phemie Paul contenting himſelf t curſe and deteſt, pronounceth juſt puniſhment againſ ſuch blaſphemers

[i] The trueth and conſtancie.

[4] Another anſwer to ẏ firſt objectiō that the Iews, if they be conſidere in themſelves, ar no better then other men are: as i hath been long ſince pronounced by the mouth of the Prophets.

[k] Are guiltie of ſin.

* Pſal.14.1,3. and 53.1,3.

* Pſal.5.10.

* Pſal.143.3.

* Pſal.10.7.

* Eſai.55.7.

* Pſal.36.1.

[5] He proveth that this grievous accuſation which is uttered by David and Eſaias, doth properly concern the Iews.

[m] The Law of Moſes.

[6] A concluſion of all the former diſputation, from the 18 ver. of the firſt chapter. Therefore ſaith the Apoſtle, No man can hope to be juſtified by any Law, whether it be that general Law, or the particular Law of Moſes, and therefore to be ſaved, ſeeing it appeareth (as we have already proved) by comparing the Law and mans life together, that all men are ſinners, and therefore worthy of condemnation in the ſight of God.

[n] Be found guiltie before God. [o] By that, that the Law can by us be performed. [p] Fleſh is here taken for man, as in many other places, & furthermore hath here greater force: for it is put to ſhew the contrarietie betwixt God and man: as if you would ſay, Man who is nothing elſe but a piece of fleſh defiled with ſin, and God who is moſt pure and moſt perfect in himſelf. [q] Abſolved before the iudgement ſeat of God. [r] A ſecret ſetting of the righteouſneſſe which is before men, be they never ſo iuſt, againſt the iuſtice which can ſtand before God: now there is no righteouſneſſe can ſtand before God, but the righteouſneſſe of Chriſt onely. [7] Therefore ſaith the Apoſtle, Leſt that men ſhould periſh, God doeth now exhibit that which he promiſed of old, that is to ſay, a way whereby we may be juſtified and ſaved before him without the Law.

made manifeſt without the Law, having witneſſe of the Law and of the Prophets, 22 [8] To wit, the righteouſneſſe of God by the faith of [f] Ieſus Chriſt unto all, and upon all that beleeve.

23 For there is no difference: for all have ſinned, and are deprived of the [t] glory of God:

24 [9] And are juſtified [v] freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Chriſt Jeſus,

25 [10] Whom God hath ſet forth to be a reconciliation through faith in his [x] blood, to declare his righteouſneſſe, by the forgiveneſſe of the ſinnes that [y] are paſſed,

26 Through the [z] patience of God, to ſhew at [a] this time his righteouſneſſe, that he might be [b] juſt, and a [c] juſtifier of him which is of the [d] faith of Jeſus.

27 [11] Where is then the rejoycing? It is excluded. By what [e] Law? of works? Nay: but by the Law of faith.

28 Therefore we conclude, that a man is juſtified by faith, without the works of the Law.

29 [12] God, is he the God of the [f] Jewes only, and not of the Gentiles alſo? Yes, even of the Gentiles alſo:

30 For it is one God, who ſhall juſtifie [g] circumciſion of faith, and uncircumciſion through faith.

31 [13] Doe we then make the law of [h] none effect through faith? God forbid: yea, we [i] eſtabliſh the Law.

[8] The matter, as it were, of this righteouſneſſe is Chriſt Ieſus, apprehended by faith, and for this ende offered to all people, as without him all people are ſhut out from the kingdome of God.

[f] Which we give to Ieſus Chriſt, or which reſteth upon him.

[t] By the glory of God, is meant that marke which we all ſhoot at, that is, everlaſting life, which ſtandeth in that we are made partakers of the glory of God.

[9] Therefore this righteouſneſſe touching us, is altogether freely given, for it ſtandeth upon thoſe things which we have not done our ſelves, but ſuch as Chriſt hath ſuffered for our ſakes, to deliver us from ſinne.

[v] Of his free gift, & meere liberality.

[10] God then is the authour of that free juſtification, becauſe it pleaſed him: and Chriſt is he, which ſuffered puniſhment for our ſinnes, and in whom we have remiſſion of them: and the meane whereby we apprehend Chriſt, is faith. To be ſhort, the ende is the ſetting forth of the goodneſſe of God, that by this meanes it may appeare, that he is mercifull in deed, and conſtant in his promiſes, as he that freely, and of meere grace, juſtifieth the beleevers. [x] This name of blood, calleth us backe to the figure of the old ſacrifices, the truth and ſubſtance of which ſacrifice is in Chriſt. [y] Of thoſe ſinnes which we have committed, when we were his enemies. [z] Through his patience, and ſuffering nature. [a] To wit, when Paul wrote this. [b] That he might be found exceeding true and faithfull. [c] Making him juſt, & without blame, by imputing Chriſts righteouſneſſe unto him. [d] Of the number of them which by faith lay hold upon Chriſt: contrary to whom are they, which looke to be ſaved by circumciſion, that is, by the Law. [11] An argument to prove this concluſion, that we are juſtified by faith, without works, taken from the end of juſtification. The end of juſtification is the glory of God alone: therefore we are juſtified by faith without works: for if we were alone juſtified, either by our own works only, or partly by faith, and partly by works, the glory of this juſtification ſhould not be wholly given to God. [e] By what doctrine? now the doctrine of works hath this condition joyned with it, if thou doeſt: and the doctrine of faith, hath this condition, if thou beleeveſt. [12] Another argument of an abſurditie: if juſtification depended upon the law of Moſes, then ſhould God be a Saviour to the Iewes onely. Again, if he ſhould ſave the Iewes after one ſort, and the Gentiles after another, he ſhould not be one, and like himſelfe. Therefore he will juſtifie both of them, after one ſelfe ſame manner, that is to ſay, by faith. Moreover, this argument muſt be joyned to that which followeth next, that his concluſion may be firme and evident. [f] God is ſaid to be their God, after the manner of the Scripture, whom he loveth and tendreth. [g] The uncircumciſed. [13] The taking away of an objection: yet is not the Law taken away therefore, but is rather eſtabliſhed, as it ſhall be declared in his proper place. [h] Vaine, void, to no purpoſe, and of no force. [i] We make it effectuall and ſtrong.

Chap. IV.

1 He proveth that which he ſaid before of faith, by the example of Abraham, 3. 6. and the teſtimony of the Scripture: and ten times in this chapter he beateth upon this word Imputation.

WHat [1] ſhal we ſay then, that Abraham our father hath found concerning the [a] fleſh?

2 [2] For if Abraham were juſtified by works, he hath wherein to rejoyce, but not with God.

3 [3] For what ſaith the Scripture? Abraham beleeved God, and it was counted to him for righteouſneſſe.

[1] A new argument of great weight, taken from the example of Abraham, the father of all beleevers: And this is the propoſition, If Abraham be conſidered in himſelfe, by his works, he hath deſerved nothing wherein to rejoyce with God.

[2] A preventing of an objection. Abraham may well rejoyce, and extoll himſelfe amongſt men, but not with God. [3] A confirmation of the propoſition: Abraham was juſtified by imputation of faith: therefore freely without any reſpect of his works.

4 [4] Now to him that [b] worketh, the wages is not [c] counted by favour, but by debt:

5 But to him that worketh not, but beleeveth in him that [d] juſtifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteouſneſſe.

6 [5] Even as David declareth the bleſſednes of the man, unto whom God imputeth righteouſnes without works, ſaying,

7 Bleſſed are they, whoſe iniquities are forgiven, and whoſe ſinnes are covered.

8 Bleſſed is the man, to whom the Lord imputeth not ſinne.

9 [6] Came this [e] bleſſedneſſe then upon the circumciſion onely, or upon the uncircumciſion alſo? For we ſay, that faith was imputed unto Abraham for righteouſnes.

10 [7] How was it then imputed? when he was circumciſed, or uncircumciſed? not when he was circumciſed, but when he was uncircumciſed.

11 [8] After he received the [f] ſigne of circumciſion, as the [g] ſeale of the righteouſneſſe of the faith which he had, when he was uncircumciſed, [9] that he ſhould be the father of all them that beleeve, not being circumciſed, that righteouſneſſe might be imputed to them alſo,

12 [10] And the father of circumciſion, not unto them onely which are of the circumciſion, but unto them alſo that walke in the ſteps of the faith of our father Abraham, which he had when he was uncircumciſed.

13 [11] For the promiſe that he ſhould be the [h] heir of the world, was not given to Abraham, or to his ſeed, through the [i] Law, but through the righteouſnes of faith.

14 [12] For if they which are of the [k] Law, be heires, faith is made void, and the promiſe is made of none effect.

15 [13] For the law cauſeth wrath: for where no Law is, there is no tranſgreſſion.

16 [14] Therefore it is by faith, that it might come by grace, and the promiſe might be ſure to all the [l] ſeed, [15] not to that only which is of the Law: but alſo to that which is of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all,

17 (As it is written, I have made thee a [16] father of many nations) even before [m] God whom he beleeved, who [n] quicneth the dead,

[4] The firſt proof of the confirmation, taken of contraries: to him that deſerveth any thing by his labour, the wages is not counted by favour, but by debt: but to him that hath done nothing but beleeveth in him which promiſeth freely, faith is imputed.

[b] To him that hath deſerved any thing by his work.

[5] Another proof of the ſame confirmation: David putteth bleſſedneſſe in free pardon of ſinnes: therefore juſtification alſo.

[6] A new propoſition: that this maner of juſtification belongeth both to the uncircumciſed, & alſo to the circumciſed: as is declared in the perſon of Abraham.

[7] He proveth that it belongeth to the uncircumciſed (for there was no doubt of the circumciſed) in this ſort: Abraham was juſtified in circumciſion, therefore this juſtification belongeth alſo to the uncircumciſed. Nay it doth not appertein to the circumciſed, in reſpect of their circumciſion, much leſſe are the uncircumciſed ſhut out for their uncircumciſion.

[8] A preventing of an objection. Why then was Abraham circumciſed, if he were already juſtified? That the gift of righteouſneſſe (ſaith he) might be confirmed in him.

[f] Circumciſion, which is a ſigne: as we ſay, the Sacrament of baptiſme, for baptiſme which is a Sacrament.

[g] Circumciſion was called before, a ſigne, in reſpect of the outward ceremony: now Paul ſheweth the force and ſubſtance of that ſigne, that is, to what end it is uſed, to wit, not only to ſignifie, but alſo to ſeale up the righteouſneſſe of faith, whereby we come to poſſeſſe Chriſt himſelfe: for the holy Ghoſt worketh that inwardly in deed, which the Sacraments being joyned with the word, doe repreſent. [9] An applying of the example of Abraham to the uncircumciſed beleevers, whoſe father alſo he maketh Abraham. [10] An applying of the ſame example, to the circumciſed beleevers, whoſe father Abraham is, but yet by faith. [11] A reaſon why the ſeed of Abraham is to be eſteemed by faith, becauſe that Abraham himſelfe through faith was made partaker of that promiſe, whereby he was made the father of all nations. [h] That all the nations of the world ſhould be his children: or by the world, may be underſtood the land of Canaan. [i] For works that he had done, or upon this condition that he ſhould fulfill the law. [12] A double confirmation of that reaſon: the one is that the promiſe cannot be apprehended by the law, and therefore it ſhould be fruſtrate: the other, that the condition of faith ſhould be joyned in vaine to that promiſe which ſhould be apprehended by works. [k] If they be heires which have fulfilled the Law. [13] A reaſon of the firſt confirmation, why the promiſe cannot be apprehended by the law: becauſe that the Law doth not reconcile God and us, but rather denounceth his anger againſt us, for ſo much as no man can obſerve it. [14] The concluſion of this argument: The ſalvation and juſtification of the poſterity of Abraham (that is, of the Church which is gathered together of all people) proceedeth of faith, which laieth hold on the promiſe made unto Abraham, and which promiſe Abraham himſelfe firſt of all laid hold on. [l] To all the beleevers. [15] That is to ſay not onely of them which beleeve and are alſo circumciſed according to the Law, but, of them alſo which without circumciſion, and in reſpect of faith onely, are counted amongſt the Children of Abraham. [16] This fatherhood is ſpirituall, depending onely upon the vertue of God, who made the promiſe. [m] Before God, that is, by a ſpirituall kindred which hath place before God, and maketh us acceptable to God. [n] Who reſtoreth to life.

and [o] calleth those things which be not, as though they were:

18 [17] Which Abraham above hope, beleeved under hope, that he should be the father of many nations: according to that which was spoken to him, So shall thy seed be.

19 And he [p] not weake in the faith, considered not his own body, which was now [q] dead, being almost an hundred yeare old, neither the deadnesse of Saras wombe:

20 Neither did he doubt of the promise of God through unbeliefe, But was strengthned in the faith, and gave [r] glory to God, 21 Being [s] fully assured that he which had promised, was also able to doe it.

22 And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousnesse.

23 [18] Now it is not written for him onely, that it was imputed to him for righteousnesse,

24 But also for us, to whom it shalbe imputed for righteousnesse, which beleeve in him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead,

25 Who was delivered to death for our [t] sinnes, and is risen again for our justification.

CHAP. V.

1 He amplifieth 2 Christs righteousnesse, which is layd hold on by faith, 5 who was given for the weake, 8 and sinfull. 14 He compareth Christ with Adam, 17 Death with life, 20 and the Law with Grace.

THen being [1] justified by faith, we have peace toward God through our Lord Jesus Christ:

2 *[2] By whom also through faith, we have [a] had this accesse into this grace, [b] wherein we [c] stand, [3] and [d] rejoyce under the hope of the glory of God.

3 [4] Neither that onely, but also we * rejoyce in tribulations, [5] knowing that tribulation bringeth forth patience,

4 And patience experience, and experience hope,

5 [6] And hope maketh not ashamed, because the [e] love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the holy Ghost, which is given unto us.

6 [7] For Christ, when we were yet of no strength, at his [f] time died for the * ungodly.

7 [8] Doubtlesse one will scarce die [g] for a righteous man: but yet for a good man it may be that one dare die.

8 But God [h] setteth out his love towards us, seeing that while we were yet [i] sinners, Christ died for us.

9 Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from [k] wrath through him.

10 For if when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Sonne, much more being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life, 11 [9] And not onely so, but we also rejoyce in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

12 [10] Wherefore, as by [l] one man [m] sinne entred into the world, and death by sinne, and so death went over all men, [n] in whom all men have sinned.

13 [11] For unto the time [o] of the Law was sinne in the world, but sinne is not [p] imputed, while there is no law.

14 [12] But death reigned from Adam to Moses, even [q] over them also that sinned not after the like [r] maner of the transgression of Adam, [13] which was that figure of him that was to come.

15 [14] But yet the gift is not so, as is the offence: for if through the offence of [s] that one, many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many.

16 [15] Neither is the gift so as that which entred in by one that sinned: for the fault came of one offence unto condemnation: but the gift is of many offences to [t] justification.

17 [16] For if by the offence of one, death reigned through one, much more shall they which receive that abundance of grace, and of that gift of that righteousnesse, [v] reigne in life through one, that is, Jesus Christ.

18 [17] Likewise then as by the offence of one, the fault came on all men to condemnation, so by the justifying of one, the benefit abounded toward all men to the [x] justification of life.

[o] With whom those things are already, which as yet are not indeed, as he that can with a word make what he will of nothing.

17 A description of true faith, wholly resting in the power of God, and his good will, set forth in the example of Abraham.

18 The rule of justification is alwaies one, both in Abraham, and in all the faithfull: that is to say, faith in God, who after that there was made a full satisfaction for our sins in Christ our mediatour, raised him from the dead, that we also being justified, might be saved in him.

[t] To pay the ransome for our sinnes.

1 Another argument taken of the effects: we are justified with that which truely appeaseth our conscience before God: but faith in Christ doth appease our conscience & not the Law, as it was before said, therefore by faith we are justified and not by the law.

* Ephes.2.18.

2 Whereas quietnesse of conscience is attributed to faith, it is to be referred to Christ, who is the giver of faith it selfe, and in whom faith it selfe is effectuall.

[a] We must heere know, that we have yet still the same effect of faith.

[b] By which grace, that is, by which gracious love and good will, or that state whereinto we are graciously taken. [c] We stand stedfast. 3 A preventing of an objection against them, which beholding the daily miseries and calamities of the Church, thinke that the Christians dreame, when they brag of their felicitie: to whom the Apostle answereth, that their felicity is laid up under hope in another place: which hope is so certain and sure, that they doe no lesse rejoyce for that happinesse then if they did presently enjoy it. [d] Our mindes are not only quiet and setled, but also we are marveilously glad, and conceive great joy for that heavenly inheritance, which waiteth for us. 4 Tribulation it selfe giveth us divers, and sundry wayes, occasion to rejoyce, much lesse doth it make us miserable. * Iam.1.2. 5 Afflictions accustome us to patience, and patience assureth us of the goodnesse of God, and this experience confirmeth and fostereth our hope, which never deceiveth us. 6 The ground of hope is an assured testimony of the conscience, by the gift of the holy Ghost, that we are beloved of God, and this is nothing else but that which we call faith, whereof it followeth, that through faith our consciences are quieted. [e] Wherewith he loveth us. 7 A sure comfort in adversitie, that our peace and quietnesse of conscience be not troubled: for he that so loved them that were of no strength, and while they were yet sinners, that he died for them, how can he neglect them being now sanctified and living in him? [f] In time fit and convenient which the Father had appointed. * Heb.9.15. 1 Pet.3.18.

so that in Christ
we do not only

but we begin also to be just.

10 From Adam in whome all have sinned, both guiltinesse and death (which is the punishment of the guiltinesse) came upon all.

[l] By Adam, who is compared with Christ, like to him in this, that both of them make those which are theirs, partakers of that they have: but they are unlike in this, that Adam deriveth sinne into them that are his, even of nature, and that to death: but Christ maketh them that are his, partakers of his righteousnesse by grace, and that unto life.

[m] By sinne, is meant that disease which is ours by inheritance, and men commonly call it originall sinne: for so he useth to call that sinne in the singular number, whereas if he spake of the fruits of it, he useth the plurall number, calling them sinnes. [n] That is, in Adam. 11 That this is so, that both guiltinesse and death began not after the giving and transgressing of Moses Law, it appeareth manifestly by that, that men died before that Law was given for in that they died, sinne which is the cause of death, was then: and in such sort, that it was also imputed: whereupon it followeth that there was then some Law, the breach wereof was the cause of death. [o] Even from Adam to Moses. [p] Where there is no Law made, no man is punished as faulty, and guilty. 12 But that this Law was not that universall law, and that that death did not proceed from any actual sinne of every one particularly, it appeareth hereby, that the very infants which neither could ever know or transgresse that naturall Law, are notwithstanding dead as well as Adam. [q] Our infants. [r] Nor after that sort as they sinne that are of moe yeares, following their lusts: but yet the whole posterity was corrupted in Adam, when as he wittingly & willingly sinned. 13 Now that first Adam answereth the latter, who is Christ, as it is afterward declared. 14 Adam and Christ are compared together in this respect, that both of them doe give and yeeld to theirs, that which is their owne: but herein first they differ, that Adam by nature hath spread his fault to the destruction of many, but Christs obedience hath by grace overflowed many. [s] That is, Adam. 15 Another inequality consisteth in this, that by Adams one offence men are made guilty, but the righteousnesse of Christ imputed to us freely, doth not only absolve us from that one fault, but from all other. [t] To the sentence of absolution, whereby we are quit and pronounced righteous. 16 The third difference is, that the righteousnesse of Christ being imputed unto us by grace, is of greater power to bring life, then the offence of Adam is to addict his posterity to death. [v] Be partakers of true & everlasting life. 17 Therfore to be short, as by one mans offence, the guiltinesse came on all men, to make them subject to death: so on the contrary side, the righteousnesse of Christ, which by Gods mercy is imputed to all beleevers, justified them, that they may become partakers of everlasting life. [x] Not onely because our sins are forgiven us, but also because the righteousnes of Christ is imputed unto us.

19 [18] For as by one mans [y] diſobedience [z] many were made ſinners, ſo by that obedience of that one ſhall many alſo by made righteous.

20 [19] Moreover the Law [a] entred thereupon, that the offence ſhould abound: neverthéleſſe, where ſinne abounded, there grace [b] abounded much more:

21 That as ſinne had reigned unto death, ſo might grace alſo reigne by righteouſneſſe unto eternall life through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord.

18 The ground of this whole compariſon is this, that theſe two men are ſet as two ſtocks, or rootes, ſo that out of the one, ſinne by nature, out of the other, righteouſneſſe by grace, doth ſpring forth upon others.

y So then, ſin entred not into us onely by following the ſteps of our forefather, but we take corruption of him by inheritance.

z This word, Many, is ſet againſt this word, a few.

19 A preventing of an objection: why then did the Law of Moſes enter thereupon? that men might be ſo much the more guilty, and the benefit of God in Chriſt Ieſus be ſo much the more glorious.

a Beſides that diſeaſe, which all men were infected withall by being defiled with one mans ſinne, the Law entred. b Grace was powred ſo plentifull from heaven, that it did not onely countervaile ſinne, but above meaſure paſſed it.

Chap. VI.

1 He commeth to ſanctification, without which, that no man putteth on Chriſts righteouſneſſe, hee proveth, 4 by argument taken of Baptiſme, 12 and thereupon exhorteth to holines of life, 16 briefly making mention of the Law tranſgreſſed.

What [1] ſhall we ſay then? Shall we continue ſtill in [a] ſinne, that grace may abound? God forbid.

2 [2] How ſhall we, that are [b] dead to ſinne, live yet therein?

3 [3] Know ye not, that * all we which have been baptized into [c] Ieſus Chriſt, have bin baptized into his death?

4 * We are buried then with him by baptiſme into his death, that like as Chriſt was raiſed up from the dead [d] to the glory of the father, ſo [e] we alſo ſhould * walke in newneſſe of life.

5 [4] * For if we be planted with him to the [f] ſimilitude of his death, even ſo ſhall we [g] be to the ſimilitude of his reſurrection.

6 Knowing this, that our [h] old man is crucified with [i] him, that the [k] body of ſinne might be deſtroyed, that henceforth we ſhould not [l] ſerve ſinne.

7 [5] For he that is dead, is freed from ſinne.

8 Wherefore, if we be dead with Chriſt, we beleeve that we ſhall live alſo with him.

9 Knowing that Chriſt being raiſed from the dead, dieth no more: death hath no more dominion over him.

10 For in that he died, he died [m] once to ſinne: but in that he liveth, he liveth to [n] God.

11 Likewiſe thinke ye alſo, that ye are dead to ſinne, but are alive to God in Ieſus Chriſt our Lord.

1 He paſſeth now to another benefit of Chriſt, which is called ſanctification or regeneration.

a In that corruption, for though the guiltineſſe of ſinne, be not imputed to us, yet the corruption remaineth ſtill in us: the which Sanctification, that followeth Iuſtification, killeth by little and little.

2 The benefite of Iuſtification, and ſanctification, are alwayes joyned together inſeparably, and both of them proceede from Chriſt by the grace of God: Now ſanctification is the aboliſhing of ſinne, that is, of our naturall corruption, into whoſe place ſucceedeth the cleanneſſe and purenes of nature reformed.

b They are ſaid of Paul to be dead to ſin, which are in ſuch ſort made partakers of the vertue of Chriſt, that that naturall corruption is dead in them, that is, the force of it is put out, and it bringeth not forth his bitter fruits: And on the other ſide they are ſaid to live to ſinne which are in the fleſh, that is, whom the Spirit of God hath not delivered from the ſlavery of the corruption of nature.

3 There are three parts of this Sanctification: to wit, the death of the old man, or ſin, his burial, and the reſurrection of the new man, deſcending into us from the vertue of the death, buriall, and reſurrection of Chriſt, of which benefit our baptiſme is a ſigne and pledge. * Gal.3.27. c To the end that growing up in one with him, we ſhould receive his ſtrength, to quench ſin in us and to make us new men. * Col.2.12. d That Chriſt himſelfe being diſcharged of his infirmitie and weakeneſſe, might live in glory with God for ever. e And we which are his members riſe for this end, that being made partakers of the ſelfe ſame vertue, we ſhould beginne to leade a new life, as though we were already in heaven. * Ephes.4.23.coloſ.13.8.heb.12.1.1 Pet.2.1. 4 The death of ſinne and the life of righteouſneſſe, or our ingraffing into Chriſt, and growing up into one with him, cannot be ſeparated by any meanes, neither in death nor life: whereby it followeth, that no man is ſanctified, which liveth ſtill to ſinne, and therefore is no man made partaker of Chriſt by faith, which repenteth not and turneth not from his wickednes: for as he ſaid before, the Law is not ſubverted but eſtabliſhed by faith. * 1.Cor.6.14.2 tim.2 11. f Inſomuch as by meanes of the ſtrength which commeth from him to us, we ſo die to ſinne, as he is dead. g For we become every day more perfite then other: for we ſhall never be perfectly ſanctified, as long as we live here h All our whole nature, as we are conceived and borne into this world with ſin, which is called old, partly by comparing that old Adam with Chriſt, and partly alſo in reſpect of the deformation of our corrupt nature, which we change with a new. i Our corrupt nature is attributed to Chriſt, not indeed, but by imputation. k That naughtineſſe which ſticketh faſt in us. l The end of ſanctification which we ſhoot at, and ſhall at length come to, to wit, when God ſhall be all in all. 5 He proveth it by the effects of death, uſing a compariſon of Chriſt the head with his members. m Once for all. n With God.

12 [6] Let not [o] ſinne reigne therefore in your mortall body, that ye ſhould obey it in the luſts thereof:

13 Neither [p] give ye your [q] members as [r] weapons of unrighteouſnes unto ſinne: but give your ſelves unto God, as they that are alive from the dead, and give your members as weapons of righteouſneſſe unto God.

14 [7] For ſinne ſhall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the Law, but under grace.

15 [8] What then? ſhall we ſinne, becauſe we are not under the Law, but under grace? God forbid.

16 * Know ye not, that to whomſoever ye give your ſelves as ſervants to obey, his ſervants ye are, to whom ye obey, whether it be of ſinne unto death, or of obedience unto righteouſneſſe?

17 [9] But God be thanked, that ye have been the ſervants of ſinne, but ye have obeyed from the heart unto the [ſ] forme of the doctrine, whereunto ye were delivered.

18 Being then made free from ſinne, ye are made the ſervants of righteouſnes.

19 I ſpeak after the maner of man, becauſe of the infirmity of your fleſh: for as ye have given your members ſervants to uncleanneſſe and to iniquitie, to commit iniquitie, ſo now give your members ſervants unto righteouſneſſe in holineſſe.

20 For when ye were the ſervants of ſinne, ye were [t] freed from righteouſnes.

21 [10] What fruit had ye then in thoſe things, whereof ye are now aſhamed? For the [v] end of thoſe things is death.

22 But now being freed from ſinne, and made ſervants unto God, ye have your fruit in holineſſe, and the end, everlaſting life.

23 [11] For the wages of ſinne is death: but the gift of God is eternall life, through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord.

6 An exhortation to contend and ſtrive with corruption and all the effects thereof.

o By reigning, S. Paul meaneth that chiefeſt and high rule, which no man ſtriveth againſt, and if any doe, yet it is in vain.

p To ſinne, as to a Lord or tyrant.

q Your mind and all the powers of it.

r As inſtruments to commit wickednes withall.

7 He granteth, that ſinne is not yet ſo dead in us that it is utterly extinct: but he promiſeth victory to them that contend manfully, becauſe we have the grace of God given us, which worketh ſo that the Law is not now in us the power & inſtrument of ſinne.

8 To be under the Law and under ſinne, ſignifie all one, in reſpect of them which are not ſanctified, as on the contrary ſide, to be under grace and righteouſneſſe, agree to them that are regenerate. Now theſe are contraries, ſo that one cannot agree with the other: Therefore let righteouſnes expell ſinne.

* Iohn 8.34.
2 Pet.2.19.

9 By nature we are ſlaves to ſinne and free from righteouſneſſe, but by the grace of God we are made ſervants to righteouſnes, and therefore free from ſinne.

ſ This kind of ſpeach hath a force in it: for he meaneth thereby that the doctrine of the Goſpel is like unto a certain mould which we are caſt into, to be framed & faſhioned like unto it.

t Righteouſneſſe had no rule over you.

10 An exhortation to the ſtudie of righteouſneſſe and hatred of ſinne, the contrary ends of both being ſet down before us. u The reward or payment. 11 Death is the puniſhment due to ſinne, but we are ſanctified freely, unto life everlaſting.

Chap. VII.

1 He declareth what it is, to be no more under the Law, 2 by an example taken of the Law of marriage: 7.12 And leſt the Law ſhould ſeeme faulty, 14 he proveth, that our ſinne is the cauſe, 13 that the ſame is an occaſion of death. 17 which was given us unto life: 21 He ſetteth out the battell betweene the fleſh and the ſpirit.

Know [1] ye not, brethren, (for I ſpeak to them that know the Law) that the Law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth?

2 * For the woman which is in ſubjection to a man, is bound by the Law to the man, while he liveth: but if the man be dead, ſhe is delivered from the Law of the man.

3 So then, if while the man liveth, ſhee taketh another man, ſhee ſhall be [a] called an * adultereſſe: but if the man be dead, ſhee is free from the Law, ſo that ſhe is not an adultereſſe, though ſhe take another man.

1 By propounding the ſimilitude of mariage, he compareth the ſtate of man, both before, and after regeneration, together. The law of matrimonie, ſaith he, is this, that ſo long as the husband liveth, the marriage abideth in force, but if he be dead, the woman may marry again.

* 1 Cor.7.39.

a That is, ſhee ſhall be an adultreſſe, by the conſent & judgement of all men.

* Matth.5.32.

4 [2] So ye, my brethren, are dead alſo to the Law by the [b] body of Chriſt, that ye ſhould be unto another, even unto him that is raiſed up from the dead, that we ſhould bring forth [c] fruit unto [d] God.

5 [3] For when we [e] were in the fleſh, the [f] affections of ſinnes, which were by the [g] Law, had [h] force in our members, to bring forth fruit unto death.

6 But now we are delivered from the Law, he [i] being dead [k] in whom we were [l] holden, that we ſhould ſerve in [m] newnes of Spirit, and not in the oldneſſe of the [n] letter.

7 [4] What ſhall we ſay then? is the Law ſinne? God forbid. Nay, I knew not ſin, but by the Law: for I had not knowen [o] luſt, except the Law had ſaid, * Thou ſhalt not luſt.

8 But ſinne took an occaſion by the commandement, and wrought in me all manner of concupiſcence: for without the Law ſinne is [p] dead.

9 [5] For I once was alive, without the [q] Law: but when the commandement [r] came, ſinne revived,

10 But I [ſ] died: and the ſame commandement which was ordeined unto life, was found to be unto me unto death.

11 For ſinne took occaſion by the commandement, and deceived me, and thereby ſlew me.

12 [6] Wherefore the Law is * holy, and that [t] commandement is holy, and juſt, and good.

13 [7] Was that then which is good, [v] made death unto me? God forbid: but ſinne, that it might [x] appeare ſinne, wrought death in me by that which is good, that ſinne might be [y] out of meaſure ſinfull by the commandement.

14 [8] For we know that the Law is ſpirituall, but I am carnall, ſold under ſinne.

15 [9] For I [10] allow not that which I doe: for what I [11] would, that I doe not: but what I hate, that doe I.

16 If I doe then that which I would not, I conſent to the Law that it is good.

17 Now then, it is no more I, that doe it, but [z] ſinne that dwelleth in me.

18 [12] For I know, that in me, that is, in my fleſh, dwelleth no good thing: for to will is preſent with me: but I finde [a] no meanes to performe that which is good.

19 For I doe not the good thing, which I would, but the evill, which I would not, that doe I.

20 Now if I doe that I would not, it is no more I that doe it, but the ſinne that dwelleth in me.

21 [13] I find then, that when I would doe good, I am thus yoked, that evill is preſent with me.

22 For I delight in the Law of God concerning the [b] inner man:

23 But I ſee another Law in my members, rebelling againſt the Law of my [c] mind, and leading me captive unto the Law of ſinne, which is in my members.

24 [14] O [d] wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death!

25 I [e] thank God through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord. Then I [f] my ſelfe in my minde ſerve the Law of God, but in my fleſh the law of ſinne.

2 An application of the ſimilitude thus. So, ſaith he, doth it fare with us: for now we are joyned to the Spirit, as it were to the ſecond husband, by whom we muſt bring forth new children: we are dead in reſpect of the firſt husband, but in reſpect of the latter, we are as it were raiſed from the dead.

b That is, in the body of Chriſt, to give us to underſtand, how ſtraite & neer that fellowſhip is betwixt Chriſt and his members.

d Which are acceptable to God.

3 A declaration of the former ſaying: for the concupiſcences (ſaith he) which the Law ſtirred up in us, were in us, as it were an husband, of whom we brought forth very deadly and curſed children: But now ſince that husband is dead, and ſo conſequently being delivered from the force of that killing Law, we have paſſed into the governance of the Spirit, ſo that we bring forth now, not thoſe rotten & dead, but lively children.

e When we were in the ſtate of the firſt mariage, which he calleth in the next verſe following, the oldneſſe of the letter.

f The motions that egged us to ſinne, which ſhew their force even in our minds.

g He ſaith not, of the Law, but by the Law, becauſe they ſpring of ſinne, which dwelleth within us, & taketh occaſion to work thus in us, by reaſon of the reſtraint that the Law maketh, not that the fault is in the Law, but in our ſelves. h Wrought their ſtrength. i As if he ſayd, The bond which bound us, is dead, and vaniſhed away, inſomuch that ſinne which held us, hath not now wherewith to hold us. k For this husband is within us. l Satan is an unjuſt poſſeſſor, for he brought us in bondage of ſinne and himſelfe, deceitfully: and yet notwithſtanding ſo long as we are ſinners, we ſinne willingly. m As becommeth them, which after the death of their old husband, are joyned to the Spirit: as whom the Spirit of God hath made new men. n By the letter, he meaneth the Law, in reſpect of that old condition: for before that our will be framed by the holy Ghoſt, the Law ſpeaketh but to deafe men, and therefore it is dumbe and dead to us, as touching the fulfilling of it. 4 An objection, What then? are the Law and ſinne all one, and doe they agree together? nay, ſaith he: Sinne is reproved and condemned by the Law. But becauſe ſinne cannot abide to be reproved, and was not in a maner felt, untill it was provoked and ſtirred up by the Law, it taketh occaſion thereby to be more outragious, and yet by no fault of the Law. o By the word, Luſt, in this place he meaneth not evill luſts themſelves, but the fountaine from whence they ſpring, for the very heathen Philoſopers themſelves condemned wicked luſts, though ſomewhat darkely. But as for this fountaine of them, they could not ſo much as ſuſpect it, and yet it is the very ſeat of that naturall and unclean ſpot and filth. * Exod. 20. 17. Deut. 5. 21. p Though ſinne be in us, yet it is not knowen for ſinne, neither doth it ſo rage, as it rageth after that the Law is knowen. 5 He ſetteth himſelfe before us for an example, in whom all men may behold, firſt, what they are by nature before they earneſtly thinke upon the Law of God: to wit, blockiſh, and heady to ſinne and wickednes, without all true ſenſe and feeling of ſinne, then what manner of perſons they become, when their conſcience is reproved by the teſtimony of the Law, to wit, ſtubburne and more inflamed with the deſire of ſinne, then ever they were before. q When I knew not the Law, then me thought I lived in deed: for my conſcience never troubled me, becauſe I knew not my deſeaſe. r When I beganne to underſtand the commandement. ſ In ſinne, or by ſinne. 6 The concluſion: That the Law of it ſelfe is holy, but all the fault is in us which abuſe the Law. * 1 Tim. 1. 8. t Touching not coveting. 7 The propoſition: that the Law is not the cauſe of death, but our corrupt nature being therewith not onely diſcovered, but alſo ſtirred up: and took occaſion thereby to rebel, as which the more that things are forbidden it, the more it deſireth them, & from hence commeth the guiltineſſe, and occaſion of death. v Beareth it the blame of my death? x That ſinne might ſhew it ſelfe to be ſinne, and bewray it ſelfe to be that, which it is in deede. y As evill as it could, ſhewing all the venome it could. 8 The cauſe of this matter, is this, becauſe that the Law requireth a heavenly purenes, but men ſuch as they be born, are bondſlaves of corruption, which they willingly ſerve.

But becauſe the part which is regenerate, at length be commeth conquerour, therefore Paul ſuſteyning the part of the regenerate, ſpeaketh in ſuc ſort as if the corruption which ſinneth willingly, were ſomething without a man: althoug afterward he granteth that this evill is in his fleſh, or in his members. z That natura corruption, which cleaveth faſt even to them that are regenerate, and not clean conquered. 12 Thi vice, or ſinne, or Law of ſinne, doth wholly poſſeſſe thoſe men which are not regenerate and hindreth them or holdeth them backe that are regenerate. a This doth indeede agr to that man, whom the grace of God hath made a new man: for where the ſpirit is not, how can the be any ſtriſe there? 13 The concluſion: As the Law of God exhorteth to goodneſſe, doth the Law of ſinne (that is, the corruption wherein we are born) force us to wicked neſſe: but the Spirit, that is, our mind, in that that it is regenerate, conſenteth with the La of God: but the fleſh, that is, the whole naturall man, is bondſlave to the Law of ſinn Therefore to be ſhort, wickedneſſe and death are not of the Law, but of ſinne, which reig neth in them that are not regenerate: for they neither will, nor doe good: but will, and do evill: but in them that are regenerate, it ſtriveth againſt the Spirit or law of the mind, that they cannot neither live ſo well as they would, or be ſo voide of ſinne as they woul b The inner man, and the new man are all one, and are anſwerable and ſet as contrary to the old ma neither doth this word, Inner man, ſignifie mans minde and reaſon, and the old man, the powers tha are under them, as the Philoſophers imagine, but by the outward man is meant whatſoever is eithe without or within a man from top to toe, ſo long as that man is not born a new by the grace of Go c The Law of the mind in this place, is not to be underſtood of the mind as it is naturally, and as ou mind is from our birth, but of the mind which is renewed by the Spirit of God. 14 It is a miſerabl thing to be yet in part ſubject to ſinne, which of it own nature maketh us guilty of death but we muſt crie to the Lord, who will by death it ſelfe at length make us conquerours, we are already conquerous in Chriſt. d Wearied with miſerable and continuall conflict e Hee recovereth himſelfe, and ſheweth us that he reſteth onely in Chriſt. f This is the true pe fection of them that are born anew, to confeſſe that they are imperfect.

CHAP. VIII.

1 He concludeth that there is no condemnation to them, who are grafted in Chriſt through his Spirit, 3 howſoever they be as yet burdened with ſinnes: 9 For they live through that Spirit, 14 whoſe teſtimonie 15 driveth away all feare, 18 and relieveth our preſent miſeries.

NOw [1] then there is no condemnation to them that are in Chriſt Ieſus, which [2] walke not after the [a] fleſh, but after the ſpirit.

Seeing that w
faith in Chriſt, do obtaine remiſſion of ſins, and imputation of righteouſneſſe, and are al ſanctified, it followeth hereof, that they ÿ are grafted into Chriſt by faith, are out of all fea of condemnation. 2 The fruits of the Spirit, or effects of ſanctification which is begu in us, doe not ingraft us into Chriſt, but doe declare that we are grafted into hi a Follow not the fleſh for their guide: for he is not ſaid to live after the fleſh, that hath the holy Gh for his guide, though ſometimes he ſtep awry.

2 [3] For the [b] Law of the Spirit of [c] life, which is in [d] Chriſt Jeſus, hath [e] freed me from the Law of ſinne and of death.

3 [4] For, (that that was [f] impoſſible to the Law, in as much as it was weake, becauſe of the [g] fleſh) God ſending his own Sonne, in the ſimilitude of [h] ſinfull fleſh, and for [i] ſin, [k] condemned ſinne in the fleſh,

4 That that [l] righteouſneſſe of the Law might be fulfilled [5] in us, which walk not after the fleſh, but after the Spirit.

5 [6] For they that are after the [m] fleſh, ſavour the things of the fleſh: but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit.

6 [7] For the wiſdome of the fleſh is death: but the wiſdome of the Spirit is life and peace.

7 [8] Becauſe the wiſdome of the fleſh is enmitie againſt God: [9] for it is not ſubject to the law of God, neither indeed can be.

8 [10] So then they that are in the fleſh, cannot pleaſe God.

9 [11] Now ye are not in the fleſh, but in the Spirit, becauſe the Spirit of God dwelleth in you: but if any man hath not the Spirit of Chriſt, the ſame is not his.

10 [12] And if Chriſt be in you, the [n] body is dead, becauſe of ſinne: but the Spirit is life for righteouſneſſe ſake.

11 [13] But if the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead, dwell in you, he that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortall bodies, by his Spirit that [o] dwelleth in you.

12 [14] Therefore brethren, we are debtors not to the fleſh, to live after the fleſh:

13 [15] For if ye live after the fleſh, ye ſhall die: but if ye mortifie the deeds of the body by the Spirit ye ſhall live.

14 [16] For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the ſonnes of God.

15 [17] For ye have not received the [p] Spirit of bondage, to [q] feare again: but ye have received the Spirit of [r] adoption, whereby we crie, Abba, Father.

16 The ſame Spirit beareth witneſſe with our ſpirit, that we are the children of God.

17 [18] If we be children, we are alſo [ſ] heires, even the heires of God, and heirs annexed with Chriſt: [19] if ſo be that we ſuffer with him, that we may alſo be glorified with him

18 [20] For I [t] count that the afflictions of this preſent time are not worthy of the glory, which ſhall be ſhewed unto us.

19 [21] For the fervent deſire of the [v] creature waiteth, when the ſonnes of God ſhall be revealed.

20 Becauſe the creature is ſubject to [x] vanitie, not of its [y] own will, but by reaſon [z] of him, which hath ſubdued it under [a] hope.

21 Becauſe the creature alſo ſhall be delivered from the [b] bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the ſonnes of God.

22 For we know that every creature groneth with us alſo, and [c] travaileth in pain together unto this preſent.

23 [22] And not onely the creature, but we alſo which have the firſt fruits of the Spirit, even we do ſigh in our [d] ſelves, waiting for the adoption, even * [e] the redemption of our body.

24 [23] For we are ſaved by hope: but [f] hope that is ſeen is not hope: for how can a man hope for that which he ſeeth?

25 But if we hope for that we ſee not, we do with patience abide for it.

3 A preventing of an objection: ſeeing that the vertue of the Spirit which is in us, is ſo weak, how may we gather thereby, that there is no condemnation to them that have that vertue? Becauſe ſaith he, that vertue of the quickening ſpirit which is ſo weake in us, is moſt perfect and moſt mighty in Chriſt, and being imputed unto us which beleeve, cauſeth us to be ſo accompted of, as though there were no reliques of corruption and death in us. Therefore hitherto, Paul diſputed of remiſſion of ſinnes, and imputation of fulfilling the law, and alſo of ſanctification which is begun in us: but now he ſpeaketh of the perfit imputation of Chriſts manhood, which part was neceſſarily required to the full appeaſing of our conſciences. For our ſinnes are defaced by the blood of Chriſt, and the guiltineſſe of our corruption is covered with the imputation of Chriſts obedience, and the corruption it ſelf (which the Apoſtle calleth ſinfull ſinne) is healed in us by little and little by the gift of ſanctification: but yet lacketh beſide that, another remedy, to wit, the perfit ſanctification of Chriſts own fleſh, which alſo is to us imputed.

o By the vertue and power of it, which ſhewed the ſame might, firſt in our head, and daily worketh in his members.

14 An exhortation to oppreſſe yͤ fleſh daily more and more by the vertue of the ſpirit of regeneration, becauſe (ſaith he) you are debters unto God, forſomuch as you have received ſo many benefits of him.

15 Another reaſon of the profit that enſueth: for ſuch as ſtrive and fight valiantly, ſhal have everlaſting life.

16 A confirmation of this reaſon: for they be the children of God, which are governed by his Spirit, therefore ſhal they have life everlaſting.

17 He declareth and expoundeth by the way in theſe two verſes, by what right this name, to be called the children of God, is given to the beleevers, becauſe ſaith he, they have received the grace of the Goſpel, wherein God ſheweth himſelf, not (as before in the publiſhing of the Law) terrible and fearfull, but a moſt benigne and loving Father in Chriſt, ſo that with great boldnes we call him Father, the holy Ghoſt ſealing this adoption in our hearts by faith.

p By the Spirit, is meant the holy Ghoſt whom we are ſaid to receive, when he worketh in our minds q Which feare is ſtirred up in our mindes by the preaching of the law.

r Which ſealeth our adoption in our minds, and therefore openeth our mouthes.

18 A proof of the conſequent of the confirmation: becauſe yͤ he which is the ſon of God, doth enjoy God with Chriſt.

ſ Partakers of our fathers goods, and that freely, becauſe we are children by adoption.

19 Now Paul teacheth by what way the ſonnes of God do come to that felicitie, to wit, by the croſſe, as Chriſt himſelf did: and therewithall openeth unto them fountaines of comfort: as firſt that we have Chriſt a companion and fellow of our afflictions: ſecondly, that we ſhall be alſo his fellows in that everlaſting glory. 20 Thirdly, that this glory which we look for, doth a thouſand parts ſurmount the miſerie of our afflictions.

4 He uſeth no argument heere, but expoundeth the myſterie of ſanctification, which is imputed unto us: for becauſe, ſaith he, that the vertue of the Law was not ſuch (and that by reaſon of the corruption of our nature) that it could make man pure and perfit, and for that it rather kindled the diſeaſe of ſinne, then did put it out or extinguiſh it, therefore God clothed his Sonne with fleſh like unto our ſinfull fleſh, wherein he utterly aboliſhed our corruption, that being accompted throughly pure and without fault in him, apprehended and laid hold on by faith, we might be found to have fully that ſingular perfection which the Law requireth, and therefore that there might be no condemnation in us, [f] Which is not proper to the Law, but cometh by our fault.

[g] In man not born a new, whoſe diſeaſe the Law could point out, but it could not heale it.

[h] Of mans nature which is corrupt through ſinne, untill he ſanctified it.

[l] The very ſubſtance of the Law of God might be fulfilled, or that ſame which the law requireth, that we may be found juſt before God: for if with our iuſtification there be ioyned that ſanctification which is imputed to us, we are iuſt, according to that perfit forme which the Law requireth.

5 He returneth to that which he ſaid: that the ſanctification which is begun in us, is a ſure teſtimony of our ingrafting into Chriſt, which is a moſt plentifull fruit of a godly and honeſt life.

6 A reaſon why to walke after the fleſh, agreeth not to them which are grafted in Chriſt, but to walke after the ſpirit, agreeth and is meet for them: Becauſe ſaith he, that they which are after the fleſh ſavour the things of the fleſh, but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit.

[m] They that live as the fleſh leadeth them.

7 He proveth the conſequent, becauſe that whatſoever the fleſh ſavoureth, that engendereth death: and whatſoever the Spirit ſavoureth, that tendeth to ioy and life everlaſting.

8 A reaſon and proofe why the wiſedome of the fleſh is death, becauſe ſaith he, it is the enemy of God.

9 A reaſon why the fleſh is enemie to God, becauſe it neither will, neither can, be ſubiect to him, and by fleſh he meaneth a man not regenerate.

10 The concluſion. Therefore they that walke after the fleſh, cannot pleaſe God: whereby it followeth, that they are not graffed into Chriſt.

11 He commeth to the others, to wit, to them which walke after the Spirit, of whom we haue to underſtand contrary things to the former: and firſt of all, he defineth what it is to be in the Spirit, or to be ſanctified: to wit, to have the Spirit of God dwelling in us. Then he declareth that ſanctification is ſo ioyned and knit to our graffing in Chriſt, that it can by no meanes be ſeparated, 12 He confirmeth the faithfull againſt the reliques of fleſh and ſinne, granting that they are yet (as appeareth by the corruption which is in them) touching one of their parts (which he calleth the body, that is to ſay, a lump) which is not yet purged from this earthly filthines, in death: but therewithall willing them to doubt nothing of the happy ſucceſſe of this combate, becauſe that even this little ſparke of the Spirit, (that is, of the grace of regeneration) which appeareth to be in them by the fruits of righteouſneſſe, is the ſeed of life.

[n] The fleſh, or all that, which as yet ſticketh faſt in the clefts of ſinne and death.

13 A confirmation of the former ſentence. You have the ſelfe ſame Spirit which Chriſt hath: Therefore at length it ſhall doe the ſame in you, that it did in Chriſt, to wit, when all infirmities being utterly laid aſide, and death overcome, it ſhall clothe you with heavenly glory.

21 Fourthly, he plainly teacheth us, that we ſhall certainly be renewed from that confuſion and horrible deformation of the whole world, which cannot be continuall, as it was not at the beginning. But as it had a beginning by the ſinne of man for whom it was made by the ordinance of God, ſo ſhall it at length be reſtored with the elect.

[z] That they ſhould obey the Creatours commandment, whom it pleaſed to ſhew by their fickle ſtate, how greatly he was diſpleaſed with man.

[a] God would not make the world ſubiect to everlaſting curſe, for the ſinne of man, but gave it in hope that it ſhould be reſtored.

[b] From the corruption which they are now ſubiect to, they ſhall be delivered and changed into that bleſſed ſtate of incorruption, which ſhall be revealed, when the ſonnes of God ſhall be advanced to glory.

[c] By this word is meant, not onely exceeding ſorrow, but alſo the fruit that followeth of it.

22 Fiftly, if the reſt of the world look for a reſtoring, groning as it were for it, and that not in vain, let it not grieve us alſo to ſigh, yea, let us be more certainly perſwaded of our redemption to come, foraſmuch as we have the firſt fruits of the Spirit.

[d] Even from the bottome of our hearts.

* Luke 21. 28.

23 Sixtly, hope is neceſſarily joyned with faith: ſeeing then that we beleeve thoſe things which we are not yet in poſſeſſion of, and hope reſpecteth not the thing that is preſent, we muſt therefore hope and patiently wait for that which we beleeve ſhall come to paſſe.

26 [24] Likewiſe the Spirit alſo [g] helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what to pray as we ought: but the Spirit it ſelf maketh [h] requeſt for us with ſighs, which cannot be expreſſed.

27 But he that ſearcheth the hearts, knoweth what is the [i] meaning of the Spirit: for he maketh requeſt for the Saints, [k] according to the will of God.

28 [25] Alſo we know that [l] all things work together for the beſt unto them that love God, even to them that are called of his [m] purpoſe.

29 For thoſe which he knew before, he alſo predeſtinate to be made like to the image of his Son, that he might be the firſtborn among many brethren.

30 Moreover, whom he [n] predeſtinate, them alſo he called, and whom he called, them alſo he juſtified, and whom he juſtified, them he alſo glorified.

31 [26] What ſhall we then ſay to theſe things? If God be on our ſide, who can be againſt us?

32 Who ſpared not his own Son, but gave him for us all to death, how ſhall he not with him [o] give us all things alſo?

33 [27] Who ſhal lay any thing to the charge of Gods choſen? it is [p] God that juſtifieth, 34 Who ſhal condemn? it is Chriſt which is dead, yea, or rather, which is riſen again, who is alſo at the right hand of God, and maketh requeſt alſo for us.

35 Who ſhall ſeparate us from the love of [q] Chriſt? ſhall tribulation, or anguiſh, or perſecution, or famine, or nakedneſſe, or perill, or ſword?

36 As it is written, * For thy ſake are we killed all day long: we are counted as ſheep for the ſlaughter.

37 [r] Nevertheleſſe, in all theſe things we are more then conquerours through him that loved us.

38 For I am perſwaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things preſent, nor things to come,

39 Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the love of God, which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

24 Seventhly, there is no cauſe why we ſhould faint under the burthen o afflictions, ſeeing that prayers miniſter unto us a moſt ſure help: which cannot be fruſtrate, ſeeing they proceed from the Spirit of God which dwelleth in us.

[g] Beareth our burden, as it were, that we faint not under it.

[h] Provoketh us to prayers, and telleth us, as it were, within, what we ſhall ſay, & how we ſhall grone.

[k] Becauſe he teacheth the godly to pray according to Gods will.

25 Eightly, we are not afflicted either by chance, or to our harme, but by Gods providēce, for our great profit: who as he choſe us from the beginning, ſo hath he predeſtinate us to be made like to the image of his Son: and therefore will bring us in his time, being called and juſtified, to glory, by ẏ croſſe.

[n] He uſeth the time paſt for the time preſent, as the Hebrews uſe, who ſometime ſet down the thing that is to come, by the time that is paſt, to ſignifie the certainty of it: & he hath alſo a regard to Gods continuall working.

26 Ninthly, we have no cauſe to feare ẏ the Lord will not give us whatſoever is profitable for us, ſeeing ẏ he hath not ſpared his own Son to ſave us.

27 A moſt glorious and comfortable concluſion of the whole ſecond part of this Epiſtle, ẏ is of the treatiſe of juſtification. There are no accuſers that we have need to be afraid of before God, ſeeing ẏ God himſelf abſolveth us as juſt: & therefore much leſſe need we to feare damnation, ſeeing that we reſt upon the death and reſurrection of the almighty power and defence of Jeſus Chriſt. Therefore what can there be ſo weighty in this life, or of ſo great force and power, that might feare us, as though we might fall from the love of God, wherewith he loveth us in Chriſt? Surely nothing, ſeeing that it is in it ſelf moſt conſtant and ſure, and alſo in us being confirmed by ſtedfaſt faith.

* Pſal. 44. 22.

[r] We are not onely not overcome with ſo great and many miſeries and calamities, but alſo more then conquerours in all of them.

CHAP. IX.

* Chap. 2. 28.

3 He entreth int the handling o predeſtination, by a kinde of prevent ing an objection How may it be that Iſrael is ca off, but that there withall we muſt al ſo make the cove nant which Go made with Abra ham and his ſeed fruſtrate and void He anſwereth ther fore, that God word is true, al though that Iſrae be caſt off, for the election of the people of Iſrael is ſo generall and common, that notwithſtanding the ſame God chuſeth by his ſecret counſell, ſuch as it pleaſeth him. So then, thi is the propoſition and ſtate of this treatiſe: The grace of ſalvation is offered generally i ſuch ſort, that notwithſtanding it, the efficacie thereof pertaineth onely to the elect.

[h] Iſrael in the firſt place, is taken for Iacob, and in the ſecond, for the Iſraelites.

* Gen. 21. 12. Heb 11. 18.

4 The firſt proof is taken from the example of Abrahams own houſe, wherein Iſaac onely was accounted the ſonne, and that by Gods ordinance: although that Iſmael alſo was born of Abraham, and circumciſed before Iſaac.

[i] Iſaac ſhall be thy true and naturall ſonne, and therefore heire of the bleſſing.

5 A generall application of the former proof o example.

[k] Which are born of Abraham by the courſe of nature.

* Gal. 4. 28.

6 A reaſon of that application: Becauſe that Iſaac wa born by the vertue of the promiſe, and therefore he was not choſen, nay, he was not at all but by the free will of God: whereby it followeth, that the promiſe is the fountain of predeſtination, and not the fleſh, from which promiſe the particular election proceedeth, that is that the elect be born elect, and not that they be firſt born, and then after elected in reſpec of God who doth predeſtinate.

* Gen. 18. 10.

7 Another forcible proof taken from the example of Eſau and Jacob, which were both born of the ſame Iſaac, which was the ſon of the promiſe, of one mother, and at one birth, and not at divers, as Iſmael and Iſaac were: and ye notwithſtanding, Eſau being caſt off onely, Jacob was choſen: and that before their birth that neither any goodneſſe of Jacobs, might be thought to be the cauſe of his election, neither any wickeddneſſe of Eſaus, of his caſting away.

* Gen. 25. 21.

[m] Gods decree whic proceedeth of his meere good will, whereby it pleaſeth him to chuſe one, and refuſe the other.

8 Pau ſaith not, might be made, but, being made might remain. Therefore they are deceived whic make foreſeen faith the cauſe of election, and foreknown infidelitie the cauſe of reprobati on.

9 He proveth the caſting away of Eſau by that, that he was made ſervan to his brother: and proveth the chuſing of Jacob, by that, that he was made lord of hi brother, although his brother was the firſt begotten. And leſt any man might take thi ſaying of God, and referre it to externall things, the Apoſtle ſheweth out of Malachi, who i a good interpreter of Moſes, that the ſervitude of Eſau was joyned with the hatred of God and the Lordſhip of Jacob, with the loue of God.

* Gen 25. 23. * Mal. 1. 2.

10 The fir objection, If God doth love or hate upon no conſideration of worthineſſe, or unworthines then is he unjuſt, becauſe he may love them which are unworthy, and hate them that ar worthy. The Apoſtle deteſteth this blaſphemie, and afterward anſwereth it ſeverally, poi by point.

[n] unrighteouſneſſe with God? God forbid.

15 [11] For he ſaith to Moſes, * I will [o] have mercy on him, on whom I will ſhew mercy: and will have [p] compaſſion on him, on whom I will have compaſſion.

16 [12] So then it is not in him that [q] willeth, nor in him that runneth, but in God that ſheweth mercie.

17 [13] For the [r] Scripture ſaith unto Pharaoh, * For this ſame purpoſe have I [ſ] ſtirred thee up, that I might [14] ſhew my power in thee, and that my Name might be declared throughout all the earth.

18 [15] Therefore he hath mercy on whom he [t] will, and whom he will he hardeneth.

19 [16] Thou wilt ſay then vnto me, Why doth he yet complain? for who hath reſiſted his will?

20 [17] But, O man, who art thou which pleadeſt againſt God? [18] ſhall the * thing [v] formed ſay to him that formed it, Why haſt thou made me thus?

21 * [19] Hath not the potter power of the clay to make of the ſame lump one [20] veſſell to [x] honour, and another unto [21] diſhonour?

22 [22] What and if God would, to ſhew his wrath, and to make his power known, ſuffer with long patience the [y] veſſels of wrath, prepared to [23] deſtruction?

23 And that he might declare the [z] riches of his glory upon the veſſels of mercie, which he hath prepared unto glory?

24 [24] Even us whom he hath called, not of the [a] Jewes onely, but alſo of the Gentiles, 25 [25] As he ſaith alſo in Oſee, * I will call them, My people, which were not my people: and her, Beloved, which was not beloved.

26 And it ſhall be in the place where it was ſaid unto them, * Ye are not my people, that there they ſhall be called, The children of the living God.

27 [26] Alſo Eſaias cryeth concerning Iſrael, * Though the number of the children of Iſrael, were as the ſand of the ſea, yet ſhall but a remnant be ſaved, 28 For he will make his account, and gather it into a [b] ſhort ſumme with righteouſneſſe: for the Lord will make a ſhort account in the earth.

29 * And as Eſaias ſaid before, Except the Lord of [c] hoſts had left us a [d] ſeed, we had been made as Sodom, and had been like to Gomorrha.

30 [27] What ſhall we ſay then? That the Gentiles which followed [e] not righteouſneſſe, have attained unto righteouſneſſe, even the righteouſneſſe which is of faith.

31 [28] But Iſrael which followed the law of righteouſneſſe, could not attain unto the law of righteouſneſſe.

32 Wherefore? Becauſe they ſought it not by faith, but as it were by the [f] works of the law: for they have ſtumbled at the ſtumbling-ſtone, 33 As it is written, * Behold, I lay in Sion a ſtumbling-ſtone, and a rock to make men fall: and every one that beleeveth in him, ſhall not be aſhamed.

[o] I will be mercifull d favourable to whom I liſt to be favourable. [p] I will have compaſſion on whomſoever I liſt have compaſſion. 12 The concluſion of the anſwer: therefore God is not unjuſt in ſing and ſaving of his free goodneſſe, ſuch as it pleaſeth him: as he alſo anſwered Moſes en he prayed for all the people. [q] By will, he meaneth the thought and endeavour of art, and by running, good works, to neither of which he giveth the praiſe, but onely to the ercie of God. 13 Now he anſwereth concerning the reprobate, or them whom God neth, being not yet born, and hath appointed to deſtruction, without any reſpect of worthineſſe. And firſt of all he proveth this to be true, by alledging the teſtimonie God himſelf, touching Pharaoh, whom he ſtirred up to this purpoſe, that he might e glorified in his hardening and juſt puniſhing. [r] God ſo ſpeaketh unto Pharaoh in the ripture, or, the Scripture bringeth in God, ſo ſpeaking to Pharaoh. * Exod. 9. 16. Brought thee into this world. 14 Secondly he bringeth the end of Gods counſell, o ſhew that there is no unrighteouſneſſe in him. Now this chiefeſt end is, not properly and ſimply the deſtruction of the wicked, but Gods glory which appeareth in eir rightfull puniſhment. 15 A concluſion of the full anſwer to the firſt objection: erefore ſeeing God doth not ſave them whom he freely choſe according to his good ill and pleaſure, but by juſtifying and ſanctifying them by his grace, his counſell in ving them cannot ſeem unjuſt. And again, there is no unjuſtice in the everlaſting Counell of God, touching the deſtruction of them whom he liſteth to deſtroy, for that he rdeneth before he deſtroyeth: Therefore the third anſwer for the maintenance of Gods ſtice in the everlaſting counſell of reprobation, conſiſteth in this word Hardening: hich notwithſtanding he concealed in the former verſe, becauſe the hiſtorie of Pharaoh was well known. But the force of the word is great, for hardning which is ſet ainſt Mercie, preſuppoſeth the ſame things that mercy did, to wit, a voluntarie corruption, wherein the reprobates are hardened: and again, corruption preſuppoſeth a perfect ſtate of Creation. Moreover, this hardening alſo is voluntary, for God ſo hardeneth being offended with corruption, that he uſeth their own will whom he hardeneth, to the executing of that judgement. Then follow the fruits of hardening, to wit, nbelief and ſinne, which are the true and proper cauſes of the condemnation of the reprobate. Why doeth he then appoint to deſtruction? Becauſe he will: Why doth he harden? Becauſe they are corrupt: Why doeth he condemn? Becauſe they are ſinners. Where is then unrighteouſneſſe? Nay, if he ſhould deſtroy all after this ſort, to whom ould he doe injurie? [t] Whom it pleaſed him to appoint to ſhew his favour upon. 16 Another objection, but onely for the reprobate, riſing upon the former anſwer. If God doe appoint to everlaſting deſtruction, ſuch as he liſteth, and if that cannot e hindered nor withſtanded, that he hath once decreed, how doeth he juſtly condemn them, which periſh by his will? 17 The Apoſtle doth not anſwer that it is not Gods will, for that God doth not either reject or elect according to his pleaſure, which thing the wicked call blaſphemie, but he rather granteth his adverſarie both the antecedents, to wit, that it is Gods will, and that it muſt of neceſſity ſo fall out, yet he denieth that God is therefore to be thought an unjuſt revenger of the wicked: for ſeeing it appeareth by manifeſt proof, that this is the will of God, and his oing, what impudencie is it for man, which is but duſt and aſhes, to diſpute with God, and as it were to call him into judgement? Now if any man ſay that the doubt is not ſo diſſolved and anſwered, I anſwer, that there is no ſurer demonſtration in any atter, becauſe it is grounded upon this principall, That the will of God is the rule of righteouſneſſe. 18 An amplification of the former anſwer, taken from a compariſon, whereby alſo it appeareth that Gods determinate counſell is ſet of Paul the higheſt of all cauſes: ſo that it dependeth not upon any reſpect of the ſecond cauſes, but doth rather frame and direct them. * Iſaiah 45. 9. [v] This ſimitude agreeth very fitly to the firſt creation of mankinde. * Ieremie 18. 6. 19 Alding to the creation of Adam, he compareth mankinde not yet made, (but in the Creatours minde) to a lump of clay: whereof afterward God made, and doth daily make according as he purpoſed from everlaſting, both ſuch as ſhould be elect, and ſuch ſhould be reprobate, as alſo this word, Making, declareth. 20 Whereas in the objection propounded, mention was onely made of veſſels to diſhonour, yet he ſpeaketh of the other alſo in this anſwer, for that he prooveth the Creatour to be juſt in either of them, as the rule of contraries requireth.

21 Seeing then, that in the name of diſhonour, the ignominy of everlaſting death is ſignified, they ſpeak with Paul, which ſay, that ſome are made of God to moſt juſt deſtruction, and they that are offended with this kinde of ſpeech bewray their own folly.

22 The ſecond anſwer is this, that God, moreover and beſides that he doth juſtly decree whatſoever he doth decree, uſeth ẏ moderation in executing of his decrees, as declareth his ſingular lenitie even in the reprobate, in that, that he ſuffereth them a long time, and permitteth them to enjoy many and ſingular benefits, untill at length he juſtly condemne them: and that to good end and purpoſe, to wit, to ſhew himſelf to be an enemie and revenger of wickedneſſe, that it may appeare what power he is of by theſe ſevere judgements, and finally by compariſon of contraries to ſet forth indeed, how great his mercy is towards the elect.

23 Therefore again, we may ſay with Paul that ſome men are made of God the Creatour to deſtruction.

[z] The unmeaſurable and marvellous greatneſſe.

24 Having eſtabliſhed the doctrine of the eternall predeſtination of God on both parts, that is, as well of the reprobate, as of the elect, he cometh now to ſhew the uſe of it, teaching us that we ought not to ſeek the teſtimonie of it in the ſecret counſel of God, but by the vocation which is made manifeſt, and ſet forth in the Church, propounding unto us the example of the Jewes and Gentiles, that the doctrine may be better perceived. [a] He ſayeth not that all and every one of the Iewes are called, but ſome of the Iewes, and ſome of the Gentiles. 25 Our vocation or calling, is free, and of grace, even as our predeſtination is: and therefore there is no cauſe why either our own unworthineſſe, or the unworthineſſe of our anceſters ſhould cauſe us to think that we are not the elect and choſen of God, if we be called of him, and to embrace through faith the ſalvation that is offered us. * Hoſe. 2. 23. 1 Pet. 2. 10. * Hoſe. 1 10. 26 Contrariwiſe, Neither any outward generall calling, neither any worthineſſe of our anceſters, is a ſufficient witneſſe of election, unleſſe by faith and belief we anſwer Gods calling: which thing came to paſſe in the Jewes, as the Lord had forewarned. * Iſa. 20. 21. [b] God purpoſeth to bring the unkinde and unthankfull people to an extreame fewneſſe. * Iſa. 1. 9. [c] Armies, by which word, the cheefeſt power that was given to God. [d] Even a very few. 27 The declaration and manifeſtation of our election, is our calling, apprehended by faith, as it came to paſſe in the Gentiles. [e] So then the Gentiles had no works to prepare and procure Gods mercy beforehand: and as for that that the Gentiles attained to that which they ſought not for, the mercy of God is to be thanked for it: and in that the Iewes attained not to that which they ſought after, they can thank none for it but themſelves, becauſe they ſought it not aright, 28 The pride of men is the cauſe that they contemn vocation, ſo that the cauſe of their damnation need not bee ſought for any other where but in themſelves. [f] Seeking to come by righteouſneſſe, they followed the Law of righteouſneſſe. * Pſal. 118. 22. Iſa. 8. 14. and 28. 16. 1 Pet. 2. 6.

CHAP. X.

1 He handleth the effects of election, 3 that ſom refuſe, and ſome embrace 4 Chriſt, who is the end of the Law, 15 He ſheweth that Moſes foretold the calling of the Gentiles, 20 and Eſaias the hardning of the Iewes.

BRethren, [1] mine hearts deſire and prayer to God for Iſrael is, that they might be ſaved.

2 For I beare them record, that they have the zeale of God, but not according to knowledge.

3 [2] For they, [a] being ignorant of the righteouſneſſe of God, and going about to [b] eſtabliſh their own righteouſneſſe, have not ſubmitted themſelves to the righteouſneſſe of God.

4 * [3] For Chriſt is the [c] end of the Law for righteouſneſſe unto [d] every one that beleeveth.

5 [4] For Moſes thus deſcribeth the righteouſneſſe which is of the Law, * That the man which doth theſe things, ſhall live thereby.

6 But the righteouſneſſe which is of faith, ſpeaketh on this wiſe, * [e] Say not in thine heart, Who ſhall aſcend into heaven? (that is to bring Chriſt from above:)

7 Or, Who shall deſcend into the deep? (that is to bring Chriſt again from the dead)

8 [5] But what ſaith it? * The [f] word is neere thee, even in thy mouth, and in thine heart. This is the word of faith which we preach.

9 [6] For if thou ſhalt [g] confeſſe with thy mouth the Lord Jeſus, and ſhalt beleeve in thine heart, that [h] God raiſed him up from the dead, thou ſhalt be ſaved:

10 For with the heart man [i] beleeveth unto righteouſneſſe, and with the mouth man confeſſeth to ſalvation.

11 [7] For the Scripture ſaith, * Whoſoever [k] beleeveth in him, ſhall not be aſhamed.

12 For there is no difference between the Jew and the Grecian: for he that is Lord over all, is rich unto all, that call on him.

13 * [8] For whoſoever ſhall call upon the name of the Lord, ſhall be ſaved.

14 But how ſhall they call on him, in whom they have not beleeved? [9] and how ſhall they beleeve in him, of whom they have not heard? and how ſhall they heare without a preacher?

15 And how ſhall they preach, except they be ſent? as it is written, * how beautifull are the feet of them which bring glad tidings of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!

16 [10] But they have not [l] all obeyed the Goſpel: for Eſaias ſayth, * Lord, who hath beleeved our report?

17 [11] Then faith is by hearing, and hearing by the [m] word of God.

18 [12] But I demand, Have they not heard? * No doubt their ſound went out through all the earth, and their words into the ends of the world.

19 [13] But I demand, did not Iſrael know God? Firſt Moſes ſaith, * I will provoke you to envie by a [n] nation that is not my nation, and by a fooliſh nation I will anger you.

20 * And Eſaias is [o] bold, and ſaith, I was found of them that ſought me not, and have been made manifeſt to them that asked not after me.

21 And unto Iſrael he ſaith, * All the day long have I ſtretched forth mine hand unto a diſobedient and gainſaying people.

CHAP. XI.

1 Leſt the caſting off the Iewes ſhould be limited according to the outward appearance, 4 he ſheweth that Elias was in times paſt deceived, 16 and that, ſeeing they have an holy root, 23 many of them likewiſe ſhall be holy. 18. 24 He exhorteth the Gentiles to be humble, 33 and cryeth out, that Gods judgements are unſearchable.

I Demand then, [1] Hath God caſt away his people? God forbid: for [2] I alſo am an Iſraelite, of the ſeed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

2 [3] God hath not caſt away his people, which he [a] knew before. [4] Know ye not what the Scripture ſaith of Elias, how he communeth with God againſt Iſrael, ſaying

3 * Lord, they have killed thy Prophets, and digged down thine altars: and I am left alone, and they ſeek my life?

4 But what ſaith the anſwer of God to him? * I have [b] reſerved unto my ſelfe

1 Purpoſing to ſet forth in the Jewes an example of marvellous obſtinacie, he uſeth an inſinuation.

2 The firſt entrãce into ẏ vocation unto ſalvatiõ, is to renounce our owne righteouſneſſe: the next is to embrace that righteouſneſſe by faith, which God freely offereth us in the Goſpel.

a The ignorance of the Law which we ought to know, excuſeth none before God, eſpecially it excuſeth not them that are of his houſhold.

b Ignorance hath alway pride ioyned with it.

3 The proof: The Law it ſelf hath reſpect unto Chriſt, ẏ ſuch as beleeve in him ſhould be ſaved. Therefore the calling to ſalvation by ẏ works of the Law, is vain and fooliſh: but Chriſt is offered for ſalvation to every beleever.

c The end of the law is, to iuſtifie them that keep the law: but ſeeing we do not obſerve the law, through the fault of our fleſh, we attain not unto this end: but Chriſt ſalveth this diſeaſe, for he fulfilled the law for us.

d Not onely to the Iewes, but alſo to the Gentiles.

4 That the law regardeth and tendeth to Chriſt, this is a manifeſt proof, for that it propoundeth ſuch a condition as can be and is fulfilled of none but of Chriſt onely: which being imputed unto us by faith, our conſcience is quieted, ſo that now no mã can ask, Who can aſcend up into heaven, or bring us from hell, ſeeing the Goſpel teacheth that both of theſe is done by Chriſt, and that for their ſakes, which with true faith embrace him which calleth them.

 Levit. 18. 5. Ezek. 20. 11. Galat. 3. 12.*  Deut. 30. 12.* e Think not with thy ſelf, as men that are ſtaggering uſe to doe. 5 Vocation cometh by the word preached.  Deut. 30. 14.* f By the Word, Moſes underſtood the Law which the Lord publiſhed with his own voice: and Paul applieth it to the preaching of the Goſpel, which was the perfection of the Law. 6 That is, indeed true faith which is ſetled not onely in the head, but alſo in the heart of man, whereof alſo we give teſtimonie by our outward life, and which tendeth to Chriſt as to our alone and onely Saviour, even as he ſetteth forth himſelf in his word. g If thou profeſſe plainly, ſincerely, and openly, that thou takeſt Ieſus onely to be thy Lord and Saviour. h The Father, who is ſaid to have raiſed the Sonne from the dead: and this is not ſpoken to ſhut out the divinitie of the Sonne: but to ſet forth the Fathers counſell touching our redemption in the reſurrection of the Sonne. i Faith is ſaid to iuſtifie, and furthermore ſeeing the confeſſion of the mouth is an effect of faith, and confeſſion is the way to come to ſalvation, it followeth that faith is alſo ſaid to ſave. 7 Now he proveth the other part which he propounded afore in the fourth verſe, to wit, that Chriſt calleth whomſoever he liſteth without any difference, and this he confirmeth by a double teſtimonie.  Iſai. 28. 16.* k To beleeve in God, is to yeeld and conſent to God his promiſe of our ſalvation by Chriſt, and that not onely in generall, but when we know that the promiſes pertain to us, whereupon riſeth a ſure truſt.  Ioel 1. 38.* 8 True calling upon the name of God is the teſtimonie of true faith, and true faith, of true vocation or calling, and true calling, of true election. 9 That is, true faith, which ſeeketh God in his word, and that preached: according as God hath appointed in the Church.

 Iſai. 52.7. Nah. 1. 15.*

10 Whereſoe faith is, there i ſo the word, not contrariwi whereſoever t word is, there faith alſo: for ny refuſe and ject the word.

l He ſpeaketh becauſe of the Iew

 Iſai. 53. 1. Iohn 12. 38.*

11 A conclu of the former dation: we ascend from f to our vocation by our vocat we came to the ſtimonie of our lection.

m By Gods comm dement.

12 An objectio If calling be a ſtimonie of ele on, were not Jewes called? should I not g that, ſaith the poſtle, ſeeing t there is no nati which hath n been called? m leſſe can I ſay, t the Jewes w not called.

 Pſal. 19. 3.*

13 The defen and maintainer the Jewes ca goeth on ſtill ask, whether Jewes alſo kn not God wh called them. E (ſaith the Apoſt denieth it: witneſſeth that the Goſpel was tranſlated from them to the Gentiles, becauſe the Jewes ne lected it. And therewithall the Apoſtle teacheth, that that outward and univerſall callin which is ſet forth by the creation of the world, ſufficeth not to the knowledge of God: y and that the particular alſo which is by the word of God, is of it ſelf of ſmall or no efficac unleſſe it be apprehended or laid hold on by faith, by the gift of God: otherwiſe by unb lief it is made unprofitable, and that by the onely fault of man, who can pretend no ign rance.

 Deut. 32. 21.* n He calleth all prophane people, a nation that is no nation, as th are not ſaid to live but to die, which are appointed for everlaſting condemnation.  Iſa. 65.* o Speaketh without feare.  Iſa. 65. 2.*

1 Now ẏ Apo ſheweth how th doctrine is to applyed to other abiding ſtill in h propounded cauſ Therefore he te cheth us, ẏ all t Jewes in partic lar, are not caſt way, and therefo we ought not pronounce raſh of private perſo whether they of the number the elect, or n

2 The firſt proo I am a Jew, and y elected, therefo we may, & oug fully to reſolve on our election, hath been before ſaid: but of another mans we cannot be ſo certainly reſolved, and yet o may cauſe us to hope well of others. 3 The ſecond proof: Becauſe that God is faith in his league or covenant, although men be unfaithfull: ſo then, ſeeing that God hath ſa that he will be the God of his unto a thouſand generations, we muſt take heed, that we th not that the whole race and of-ſpring is caſt off, by reaſon of the unbelief of a few, but rat that we hope well of every member of the Church, becauſe of Gods league and covena

a Which he loved and choſe from everlaſting. 4 The third proof taken from the anſwer t was made to Elias: even then alſo, when there appeared openly to the face of the world elect, yet God knew his elect and choſen, and of them alſo great ſtore and number. Whe upon this alſo is concluded that we ought not raſhly to pronounce of any man as of a rep bate, ſeeing that the Church is oftentimes brought to that ſtate, that even the moſt watch and ſharpe ſighted Paſtours, think it to be clean extinct and put out.  1 King. 19. 1*

 1 King. 19. 18.* b He ſpeaketh of remnants and reſerved people which were choſen from ev laſting, and not of remnants that ſhould be choſen afterward; for they are not choſen, becauſe they w not idolaters: but therefore they were not idolaters, becauſe they were choſen and elect.

ſeven thouſand men, which have not bowed the knee to [c] Baal.

5 Even ſo then at this preſent time is there a remnant according to the [d] election of grace.

6 [5] And if it be of grace, it is [e] no more of works: or elſe were grace no more grace: but if it be of works, it is no more grace: or elſe were work no more work.

7 What then? Iſrael hath not obtained that he ſought, but the election hath obtained it, and the reſt have been [f] hardned,

8 [6] According as it is written, * God hath given them the ſpirit of [g] ſlumber: eyes that they [h] ſhould not ſee, and ears that they ſhould not hear unto this day.

9 And David ſaith, * [i] Let their table be made a ſnare, and a net, and a ſtumbling block, even for a recompence unto them.

10 Let their eyes be darkened that they ſee not, and bow downe their back alwayes.

11 [7] I demand then, Have they ſtumbled, that they ſhould fall? God forbid: but through their fall, ſalvation commeth to the Gentiles, to provoke them to follow them.

12 Wherefore if the fall of them be the [k] riches of the world, and the diminiſhing of them the riches of the Gentiles, how much more ſhall their [l] abundance be?

13 [8] For in that I ſpeake to you Gentiles, in as much as I am the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, [m] I magnifie mine office, 14 To trie if by any meanes I might provoke them of my fleſh to follow them, and might ſave ſome of them.

15 For if the caſting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what ſhall the receiving be, [n] but life from the dead?

16 [9] For if the [o] firſt fruits be holy, ſo is the whole lumpe: and if the root [p] be holy, ſo are the branches.

17 * [10] And though ſome of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wild Olive tree, waſt graft in [q] for them, and made [r] partaker of the root and fatneſſe, of the Olive tree:

18 [ſ] Boaſt not thy ſelfe againſt the branches: and if thou boaſt thy ſelfe, thou beareſt not the root, but the root thee.

19 Thou wilt ſay then, The branches are broken off, that I might be graft in.

20 Well, through unbeliefe they are broken off, and thou ſtandeſt by faith: be not high minded, but [t] feare, 21 For if God ſpared not the [v] naturall branches, take heede leſt he alſo ſpare not thee.

22 [11] Behold therefore the [x] bountifulneſſe and ſeveritie of God: toward them which have fallen, ſeveritie: but toward thee bountifulnes, if thou continue in his [y] bountifulneſſe: or elſe thou ſhalt alſo be cut off.

23 [12] And they alſo, if they abid not ſtill in unbeliefe, ſhall be graffed in: For God is able to graffe them in againe.

24 For if thou waſt cut out of the Olive tree, which was wild by [z] nature, and waſt graffed contrary to nature in a [a] right Olive tree, how much more ſhall they that are by nature, be graffed in their owne Olive tree?

25 [13] For I would not, brethren, that ye ſhould be ignorant of this ſecret (leſt ye ſhould be arrogant in your [b] ſelves) that partly obſtinacie is come to Iſrael, untill the fulneſſe of the Gentiles be [c] come in.

26 And ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved, as it is written, * The deliverer ſhall come out of Sion, and ſhall turne away the ungodlines from Jacob.

27 And this is my covenant to them, * When I ſhall take away their ſinnes.

28 [14] As concerning the [d] Goſpel, they are enemies for your ſakes: but as touching the [e] election, they are beloved for the fathers ſake.

29 [15] For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

30 [16] For even as ye in times paſt have not beleeved God, yet have now obtained mercie through their unbeliefe:

31 Even ſo now have they not beleeved by the mercie ſhewed unto you, that they alſo may obtaine mercie.

call the Gentiles: and again, might turne this calling of the Gentiles, to be an occaſion to ſtore the Iewes, to wit, that they being inflamed and provoked by emulation of the Geniles, might themſelves at length imbrace the Goſpel. And heereby wee may arne, that the ſeveritie of God ſerveth as well to the ſetting forth of his glorie, as his ercy doth, and alſo that God prepareth himſelfe a way to mercie, by his ſeveritie: ſo at we ought not raſhly to deſpaire of any man, nor proudly triumph over other men, but ther provoke them to an holy emulation, that God may be glorified in them alſo. k By f the Iewes being conſidered in their ſtock, and root, that is, in Abraham, is holy, alhough that many of the branches be cut off. Therefore in judging of our brethren, we muſt ot ſtick in their unworthineſſe, to thinke that they are at once all caſt off, but we ought o conſider the root of the covenant, and rather goe back to their Anceſtors which were aithfull, that we may know that the bleſſing of the covenant reſteth in ſome of their poeritie, as we alſo find proofe heereof in our ſelves. o He alludeth to the firſt fruits of orthily condemned in the Iewes. And hereof alſo this generall doctine may be gathered nd taken, that we ought to be ſtudious of Gods glorie, even in reſpect of our neigh-ours: ſo far ought we to be from bragging and glorying, for that, that we are prefer-ed before other by a ſingular grace. q In place of theſe boughes which are broken

ſ We may reioyce in the Lord, but ſo that we deſpiſe not the Iewes, whom we ought rather to provoke to that good ſtriving with us.

t See that thou ſtand in awe of God modeſtly and carefully.

u He calleth them naturall, not becauſe they had any holineſſe of nature, but becauſe they were borne of them whom the Lord ſet apart for himſelfe from other nations, by his league and covenant, which he freely made with them.

11 Seeing the matter it ſelfe declareth that election commeth not by inheritance (although the fault be in men, and not in God, why the bleſſing of God is not perpetual) we muſt take good heed that that be not found in our ſelves, which we thinke blameworthy in others, for the election is ſure, but they that are truely elect and ingraffed, are not proud in themſelves with contempt of other, but with due revetence to God, and love towards their neighbour, runne to the marke which is ſet before them.

x The tender and loving heart.

y In that ſtate which God his bountifulneſſe hath advanced thee unto: and we muſt marke here, that he ſpeaketh not of the election of every privat man, which remaineth ſtedfaſt for ever, but of the election of the whole nation.

12 Many are now for a ſeaſon cut off, that is, are without the root, which in their time ſhall be graffed in: and againe there are a great ſort, which after a ſort, and touching the outward ſhew ſeeme to be jngraffed, which notwithſtanſting through their owne fault afrerward are cut off, and cleane caſt away: Which thing is eſpecially to be conſidered in nations and peoples, as in the Gentiles and Iewes. z Underſtand nature, not as it was firſt made, but as it was corrupted in Adam, and ſo derived from him to his poſteritie. a Into the people of the Iewes, which God had ſanctified of his meere grace: and he ſpeaketh of the whole nation not of every one a part. 13 The blindneſſe of the Iewes is neither ſo univerſall that the Lord hath no elect in that nation, neither ſhall it be continuall: for there ſhall be a time wherein they alſo (as the Prophets have fore-warned) ſhall effectually imbrace that, which they doe now ſo ſtubbornely, for the moſt part, reject and refuſe. b That yee be not proud within your ſelves. c Into the Church. * Eſai. 59.20. * Eſai. 27.9. 14 Againe, that he may joyne the Iewes and Gentiles together as it were in one body, and eſpecially may teach what duetie the Gentiles owe to the Iewes, he beateth this into their heads, that the nation of the Iewes is not utterly caſt off without hope of recoverie. d Foraſmuch as they receive it not. e In that that God reſpecteth not what they deſerve, but what he promiſed to Abraham. 15 The reaſon or proofe: becauſe the covenant made with that nation of life everlaſting, cannot be fruſtrate and vaine. 16 Another reaſon: Becauſe that although they which are hardened, are worthily puniſhed, yet hath not this ſtubbornneſſe of the Iewes ſo come to paſſe properly for an hatred to that nation, but that an entrie might be, as it were, opened to bring in the Gentiles, and afterward the Iewes, being inflamed with emulation of that mercie which is ſhewed to the Gentiles, might themſelves alſo be partakers of the ſame benefit, and ſo it might appeare that both Iewes and Gentiles are ſaved onely by the free mercy and grace of God, which could not have beene ſo manifeſt, if at the beginning God had brought altogether into the Church, or if he had ſaved the nation of the Iewes without this interruption.

32 For God hath ſhut up[f] all in unbeliefe, that he might have mercie on all.

33 [17]O the deepneſſe of the riches, both of the wiſdome, and knowledge of God! how unſearchable are his [g] judgments, and his[h] wayes paſt finding out!

34 *[18] For who hath knowen the minde of the Lord? or who was his counſeller?

35 Or who hath given unto him [i] firſt, and he ſhall be recompenſed?

Moreover, becauſe he is debtor to no man, and therefore no man can complaine of injurie done unto him. Thirdly, becauſe all things are made for his glory, and therefore we muſt referre all things to his glorie, much leſſe may we contend and debate the matter with him. i This ſaying overthroweth the doctrine of foreſeene works and merits. k To wit, for God, to whoſe glorie all things are referred, not onely things that were made, but eſpecially his new works which he worketh in his elect.

CHAP. XII.

1 He exhorteth 2 to that worſhip which is acceptable to God: 9 to love unfained, 14, 20 even toward our enemies.

I Beſeech [1] you therefore brethren,[a] by the mercies of God, that ye [b] give up your [c]bodies a [d] living ſacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your [e] reaſonable ſerving of God.

2 [2] And faſhion not your ſelves like unto this world, but be ye changed by the renewing of your [f]minde, that ye may *prove what that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God is.

3 [3] For I [g] ſay through the grace that is given unto me, to every one that is among you, that no man [h] preſume to underſtand above that which is meet to underſtand, but that he underſtand according to [i]ſobrietie, as God hath dealt to every man the * meaſure of [k] faith.

4 [4] For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not one office,

5 So we being many, are one body in Chriſt, and every one, one anothers members.

6 *[5] Seeing then that we have gifts that are divers, according to the grace that is given unto vs, whether we have propheſie, let us propheſie according to the [l] portion of faith:

7 Or an office, let us waite on the office: or he that [m] teacheth, on teaching:

8 Or he that [n] exhorteth, on exhortation: he that [o] diſtributeth, *let him doe it with ſimplicitie: he that [p] ruleth, with diligence: he that [q] ſheweth mercie, with chearefulnes.

9 [6] Let love be without diſſimulation: * abhorre that which is evill, and cleave unto that which is good.

10 * Be affectioned to love one another with brotherly love. In giving honour goe one before another,

11 Not ſlouthfull to doe ſervice: fervent in ſpirit, [r] ſerving the Lord,

12 [7]Reioycing in hope, patient in tribulation, * continuing in prayer,

13 * [ſ] Diſtributing unto the [t] neceſsities of the Saints: * giving your ſelves to hoſpitalitie.

14 * Bleſſe them which perſecute you: bleſſe, I ſay, and curſe not.

15 Reioyce with them that reioyce, and weepe with them that weepe.

16 Be of like affection one towards another: * be not high minded, but make your ſelves equall to them of the [v] lower ſort: be not [x] wiſe in your ſelves.

17 * Recompenſe to no man evill for evill: procure things honeſt in the ſight of all men.

18 * If it be poſſible, as much as in you is, have peace with all men.

19 Dearely beloved, * avenge not your ſelves, but give place unto wrath: for it is written, * Vengeance is mine: I will repay, ſaith the Lord.

20 * Therefore, if thine enemy hunger, feed him: if he thirſt, give him drinke: for in ſo doing, thou ſhalt heape [y] coles of fire on his head.

21 Be not overcome of evill, but overcome evill with goodneſſe.

1 The fourth part of this Epiſtle, which after the finiſhing of the chiefe points of Chriſtian doctrine, conſiſteth in declaring of preceprs of Chriſtian life. And firſt of all he giveth generall preceprs and grounds: the chiefeſt whereof is this, that every man conſecrate himſelfe wholly to the ſpirituall ſervice of God, & do as it were ſacrifice himſelfe, truſting to the grace of God.

a By this preface he ſheweth that Gods glory is the utmoſt end of all our doings.

b In times paſt the ſacrifices were preſented before the altar: but now the altar is every where.

c Your ſelves: in times paſt, other bodies then our owne, now our owne muſt be offered.

d In time paſt, dead ſacrifices were offered, but now we moſt offer ſuch as have the ſpirit of life in them.

e Spirituall. 2 The ſecond precept is this, That we take not other mens opinions or manners for a rule of life, but that we wholly renouncing this world, ſet before us as a marke, the will of God, as it is manifeſted and opened unto us in his word. f Why then there is no place left for reaſon, which the heathen Philoſophers place as a Queen in a Caſtell, nor for mans free will, which the Popiſh Schoolemen dreame on, if the minde muſt be renewed, Looke Epheſ.1.18.and2.3.and 4.17 and Coloſ.1.21. * *Epheſ.*5.17 1.*theſ.*4.3. 3 Thirdly, he admoniſheth us very earneſtly, that every man keepe himſelſe within the bounds of his vocation, and that every man be wiſe according to the meaſure of grace that God hath given him. g I charge. h That he pleaſe not himſelfe too much, as they doe, which perſwade themſelves they know more then indeede they doe. i We ſhall be ſober, if we take not that upon us, which we have not, and if we bragge not of that we have. * 1 *Cor.*12.11. *epheſ.*4.7. k By faith he meaneth the knowledge of God in Chriſt, and the gifts which the holy Ghoſt powreth upon the faithfull. 4 There is a double reaſon of the precept going afore: the one is, becauſe God hath not committed every thing to be done of every man: and therefore he doth backwardly, and not onely unprofitably, but alſo to the great diſprofit of others, wearieth himſelfe and others, which paſſeth the bounds of his vocation: the other is, for that this diverſitie and inequalitie of vocations and gifts, redoundeth to our commodity: ſeeing that the ſame is therefore inſtituted and appointed, that we ſhould be bound one to another. Whereupon it followeth, that no man ought to be grieved thereat, ſeeing that the uſe of every private gift is common. * 1 *Pet.*4.10. 5 That which he ſpake before in generall, he applieth particularly to the holy functions, wherein men offend with great danger. And he divideth them into two ſorts: to wit, into Prophets and Deacons: and againe, he devideth the Prophets into Doctors and Paſtours. And of Deacons he maketh three ſorts: to wit, the one to be ſuch as are (as it were) treaſurers of the Church coſers, whom he calleth properly Deacons: the other to be the governours of the diſcipline, who are called Seniours, or Elders: the third, to be ſuch as properly ſerved in the helpe of the poore, of which ſort the company of widowes were.

CHAP. XIII.

1 He willeth that we ſubmit our ſelves to Magiſtrates: 8 To love our neighbours; 13 To live uprightly, 14 and to put on Chriſt.

LEt * [1] every [a] ſoule be ſubject unto the higher[2]powers: [3]for there is no power

* Titus 3.1. 1.*pet.*2.13.

1 Now he ſhe eth ſeverally, wh ſubiects owe to their magiſtrates, to wit, obedience: from which he ſheweth that no m is free: and in ſuch ſort, that it is not onely due to the higheſt Magiſtrate himſelfe, but a even to the baſeſt, which hath any office under him. a Yea though an Apoſtle, though Evangeliſt, though a Prophet: Chryſoſtome. Therefore the tyrannie of the Pope over all kingdomes, m downe to the ground. 2 A reaſon taken of the nature of the thing it ſelfe: For to what purp are they placed in higher degree, but that the inferiours ſhould be ſubiect unto them? 3 A other argument of great force: Becauſe God is author of this order: ſo that ſuch as are r bels, ought to know, that they make warre with God himſelfe: wherefore they cannot b purchaſe to themſelves great miſerie and calamity.

but of God: and the powers that be, are[b] ordained of God.

2 Whoſoever therefore reſiſteth the power, reſiſteth the ordinance of God: and they that reſiſt, ſhall receive to themſelves condemnation.

3 [4] For Magiſtrates are not to be feared for good works, but for evill. [5] Wilt thou then be without feare of the power? doe well: ſo ſhalt thou have praiſe of the ſame.

4 For he is the miniſter of God for thy wealth: [6] but if thou doe evill, feare: for he beareth not the ſword for nought: for he is the miniſter of God to [c] take vengeance on him that doeth evill.

5 [7] Wherefore ye muſt be ſubject, not becauſe of wrath onely, but [d] alſo for conſcience ſake.

6 [8] For, for this cauſe ye pay alſo tribute: for they are Gods miniſters, applying themſelves for the ſame thing.

7 *Give to all men therefore their duetie: tribute, to whom ye owe tribute: cuſtome, to whom cuſtome: feare, to whom [e] feare: honour, to whom ye owe [f] honour.

8 [9] Owe nothing to any man, but to love one another: [10] for he that loveth another, hath fulfilled the [g] Law.

9 For this, *Thou ſhalt not commit adultery, Thou ſhalt not kill, Thou ſhalt not ſteal, Thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſſe, Thou ſhalt not covet: and if there be any other commandement, it is [h] briefly comprehended in this ſaying, even in this, * Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thy ſelfe.

10 Love doeth not evill to his neighbour: therefore is love the *fulfilling of the Law.

11 [11] And that, conſidering the ſeaſon, that it is now time that we ſhould ariſe from ſleep: for now is our ſalvation neerer, then when we beleeved it.

12 The night is paſt, and the day is [i] at hand, let us therefore caſt away the works of [k] darkneſſe, and let us put on the armour of light,

13 So that we walk honeſtly, as in the day: not in *gluttonie, and drunkenneſſe, neither in chambering and wantonneſſe, nor in ſtrife and envying:

14 *But [l] put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and take no thought for the fleſh, to fulſill the luſts of it.

b Be diſtributed: for ſome are greater, ſome ſmaller.

4 The third argument, taken from the end wherefore they were made, which is moſt profitable: for that God by this meanes preſerveth the good, and bridleth the wicked: by which words, the Magiſtrates themſelves are put in minde of that duetie which they owe to their ſubjects.

5 An excellent way to beare this yoke, not onely without griefe, but alſo with great profit.

6 God hath armed the Magiſtrat even with a revenging ſword.

c By whom God revengeth the wicked.

7 The concluſion: We muſt obey the Magiſtrate, not onely for feare of puniſhment, but much more becauſe that (although the Magiſtrate hath no power over the conſcience of mã, yet ſeeing he is Gods miniſter) he cannot be reſiſted by any good conſcience.

d So farre as lawfully we may: for if unlawfull things be commanded us, we muſt anſwere as Peter teacheth us, It is better to obey God then men.

8 He reckoneth up the chiefeſt things wherein conſiſteth the obedience of ſubjects.

* Matth.22. 11.

f Reverence, which (as reaſon is) we muſt give to the Magiſtrate.

9 He ſheweth how very few judgements need to be executed, to wit, if we ſo order our life as no man may juſtly require any thing of us, beſides that only, that we owe one to another, by the perpetuall law of charitie.

10 He commendeth charitie, as an abridgement of the whole Law.

CHAP. XIV.

1 He willeth that we ſo deale with the weak in faith, 15 that through our fault they be not offended. 10 And on the other ſide he commandeth them not raſhly to judge of the ſtranger: 19 That within the bounds of edification, 20 and charitie, 22 Chriſtian libertie may conſiſt.

Him [1] that is weak in the faith, [a] receive unto you, but not for [b] controverſies of diſputations.

2 [2] One [c] beleeveth that he may eate of all things: and another, which is weak, eateth herbs.

3 [3] Let not him that eateth, deſpiſe him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, condemne him that eateth: for [4] God hath received him.

4 *[5] Who art thou that condemneſt another mans ſervant? he ſtandeth or falleth to his owne maſter: yea, he ſhall be eſtabliſhed: for God is able to make him ſtand.

5 [6] This man eſteemeth one day above another day, and another man counteth every day alike: [7] let [d] every man be fully perſwaded in his mind.

6 [8] He that [e] obſerveth the day, obſerveth it to the Lord: and he that obſerveth not the day, obſerveth it not to the [f] Lord. He that [g] eateth, eateth to the Lord, [9] for he giveth God thanks: and he that eateth [h] not, eateth not to the Lord, and giveth God thanks.

7 [10] For none of us liveth to [i] himſelf, neither doeth any die to himſelf:

8 For whether we live, we live unto the Lord: or whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lords.

1 Now he ſheweth how we ought to behave our ſelves toward our brethren in matters and things indifferent, offending in the uſe of them, not of malice, or damnable ſuperſtition, but for lack of knowledge of the benefit of Chriſt. And thus he teacheth that they are to be inſtructed gently, and patiently, and ſo that we apply our ſelves to their ignorance in ſuch matters, according to the rule of charitie.

a Doe not for a matter or thing that is indifferent, and ſuch as you may doe or not doe, ſhun his company, but take him to you.

b To make him by your doubtfull and uncertaine diſputations, goe away more in doubt then he came, or ſtart backe with a troubled conſcience.

2 He propoundeth for an example the difference of meats, which ſome thought was neceſſarily to be obſerved, as a thing preſcribed by the Law (not knowing that it was taken away) whereas on the contrary ſide, ſuch as had profited in the knoweledg of the Goſpel, knew well that this ſchoolemaſterſhip of the Law was aboliſhed. c Knoweth by faith. 3 In ſuch a matter, ſayth the Apoſtle, let neither them which know their libertie, proudely deſpiſe their weak brother, neither let the unlearned crabbedly or frowardly condemne that, that they underſtand not. 4 The firſt reaſon: Becauſe that ſeeing both he that eateth and he that eateth not, is notwithſtanding the member of Chriſt, neither he which eateth not, can juſtly be contemned, neither he which eateth, be juſtly comdemned: Now the firſt propoſition is declared in the ſixt verſe following. * James 4.12. 5 Another reaſon which hangeth upon the former: why the ruder and more unlearned ought not to be condemned of the more skilfull, as men without hope of ſalvation: becauſe ſaith the Apoſtle, he that is ignorant to day, may be indued to morrow with further knowledge, ſo that he may alſo ſtand ſure: Therefore it belongeth to God and not unto man, to pronounce that ſentence of condemnation. 6 Another example of the difference of dayes according to the Law. 7 He ſetteth againſt this contempt, and haſtie or raſh judgements, a continuall deſire to profit, that the ſtrong may be certainely perſwaded of their libertie of what manner and ſort it is, and how they ought to uſe it: and againe the weake may daily profite, leaſt either they abuſe the gift of God, or theſe pleaſe themſelves in their infirmitie. d That he may ſay in his conſcience, that he knoweth and is perſwaded by Jeſus Chriſt, that nothing is unclean of it ſelfe, and this perſwaſion muſt be grounded upon the word of God. 8 A reaſon taken from the nature of indifferent things, which a man may with a good conſcience doe, and omit: for ſeeing that the difference of dayes and meates was appointed by God, how could they which as yet underſtood not the abrogating of the Law, and yet otherwiſe acknowledged Chriſt as their Saviour, with good conſcience neglect that which they knew was commanded of God? And on the contrarie ſide, they that knew the benefit of Chriſt in this behalfe, did with good conſcience neither obſerve dayes nor meates: Therefore ſaith the Apoſtle, verſ. 10. Let not the ſtrong condemne the weake for theſe things, ſeeing that the weake brethren are brethren notwithſtanding. Now if any man would draw this doctrine to theſe our times and ages, let him know that the Apoſtle ſpeaketh of ſuch things indifferent, as they which thought them not to be indifferent, had a ground in the Law, and were deceived by ſimple ignorance, and not of malice, (for to ſuch the Apoſtle yeelded not, no not for a moment) nor ſuperſtition, but of a religious feare of God. e Obſerveth preciſely. f God ſhall judge whether hee doe well or no: And therefore you ſhould rather ſtrive about this, how everie one of you may be allowed of God, then to thinke upon other mens doings. g He that maketh no difference of meates. 9 So the Apoſtle ſheweth that he ſpeaketh of the faithfull, both ſtrong and weake: But what if we have to doe with infidels? Then muſt we here take heede of two things, as alſo is declared in the Epiſtle to the Corinthians. The one is, that we count not their ſuperſtition among things indifferent, as they did which ſate downe to meate in Idoles Temples: the other is, that then alſo when the matter is indifferent (as to buy a thing offered to Idoles, in the butchers ſhambles, and to eate it at home, or in a private banquet) we wound not the conſcience of our weake brother. h He that toucheth not meates which he taketh to be unclean by the Law. 10 We muſt not ſtick, ſaith he, in the meate it ſelfe, but in the uſe of the meate, ſo that he is juſtly to be reprehended that liveth ſo, that he caſteth not his eyes upon God, for both our life, and our death is dedicated to him: and for this cauſe Chriſt hath properly died, and not ſimply, that we might eate this meat or that. i Hath reſpect to himſelfe onely, which the Hebrewes utter after this ſort, Doeth well to his own ſoule.

9 For Chriſt therefore died and roſe againe, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and the quick.

10 [11] But why doeſt thou condemme thy brother? or why doeſt thou deſpiſe thy brother? * for we ſhall all appeare before the judgement ſeat of Chriſt.

11 For it is written, * I [k] live, ſaith the Lord, and every knee ſhall bow to me, and all tongues ſhall [l] confeſſe unto God.

12 So then every one of us ſhall give accounts of himſelfe to God.

13 [12] Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but uſe your iudgement rather in [m] this, that no man put an occaſion to fall, or a ſtumbling block before his brother.

14 [13] I know, and am perſwaded through the [n] Lord Jeſus, that there is nothing uncleane of it [o] ſelfe: but unto him that judgeth any thing to be uncleane, to him it is uncleane.

15 But if thy brother be grieved for the meat, now walkeſt thou not charitably: * [14] Deſtroy not him with thy meat, for whom [15] Chriſt died.

16 [16] Cauſe not your commoditie to be evill ſpoken of.

17 [17] For the kingdome of God is not meat nor drink, but righteouſneſſe, and peace, and joy in the holy Ghoſt.

18 For whoſoever in [p] theſe things ſerveth Chriſt, is acceptable unto God, and is approved of men.

19 [18] Let us then follow thoſe things which concerne peace, and wherewith one may edifie another.

20 Deſtroy not the work of God for meats ſake: * all things indeed are pure: but it is evill for the man which eateth with offence.

21 * It is good neither to eate fleſh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother ſtumbleth, or is offended, or made weake:

22 [19] Haſt thou [q] faith? have it with thy ſelfe before God: bleſſed is he that condemneth not himſelfe in that thing which he [r] alloweth.

11 The concluſion: we moſt leave to God his right, and therefore in matters, which according as the conſcience is affected, are either good or evil, the ſtrong muſt not deſpiſe their weake bretheren, much leſſe condemne them. But this conſequent cannot be taken of equall force in the contrary, to wit, that the weak ſhould not judge the ſtrong becauſe the weake doe not know, that they which do not obſerve a day and eate, obſerue it not to the Lord, and eate to the Lord, as the ſtrong men know that the weake which obſerue a day and eate not, obſerue the day to the Lord, and eate not to the Lord.

* 2 Cor.1.10.

* Iſa.45.23. phil.2.10.

[k] This is a forme of an othe, proper to God onely, for he and none but he liveth, and hath his being of himſelfe.

12 After that he hath concluded what is not to be done, he ſheweth what is to be done: to wit, we muſt take heede that we doe not utterly caſt downe with abuſing our liberty, our brother which is not yet ſtrong.

13 The preventing of an objection: It is true that the Schoolemaſterſhip of the Law is taken away by the benefit of Chriſt, to ſuch as know it, but yet notwithſtanding we have to conſider in the uſe of this libertie, what is expedient, that we may haue regard of our weake brother, ſeeing that our libertie is not loſt thereby. [n] By the Spirit of the Lord Ieſus, or by the Lord Ieſus, who I am ſure brake downe the wall at his comming. [o] By nature. * 1 Cor.8.11. 14 It is the part of a cruell minde to make more account of meat, then of our brothers ſalvation. Which thing they doe, that preſume to eate with the offence of any brother, and ſo giue him occaſion to goe backe from the Goſpel. 15 Another argument: We muſt follow Chriſts example: who was ſo farre from deſtroying the weake with meat, that he gaue his life for them. 16 Another argument: For that by this meanes the libertie of the Goſpel is evill ſpoken of, as though it openeth the way to attempt any thing whatſoever, and boldeneth us to all things. 17 A generall reaſon, and the ground of all the other arguments: The kingdome of heaven conſiſteth not in theſe outward things, but in the ſtudy of righteouſneſſe and peace, and comfort of the holy Ghoſt. [p] He that liveth peaceably, and dieth righteouſly, through the holy Ghoſt. 18 A generall concluſion: The uſe of this libertie, yea, and our whole life, ought to be referred to the edifying one of another, in ſo much that we eſteeme that thing unlawfull by reaſon of the offence of our brother, which is of it ſelfe pure and lawfull. * Titus 1.15. * 2 Cor.8.13. 19 He giveth a double warning in theſe matters: one, which pertaineth to the ſtrong, that he which hath obtained a ſure knowledge of this libertie, keepe that treaſure, to the end he may uſe it wiſely and profitably, as hath beene ſaid: the other which reſpecteth the weake, that they doe nothing raſhly by other mens example with a wavering conſcience, for that cannot be done without ſin, whereof we are not perſwaded by the word of God, that he liketh and approveth it. [q] He ſhewed before, verſe 14. what he meaneth by faith, to wit, for a man to be certaine and out of doubt in matters and things indifferent. [r] Embraceth.

23 For he that [ſ] doubteth, is condemned if he eate, becauſe he eateth not of faith: and whatſoever is not of faith, is ſinne.

CHAP. XV:

1 The ſtronger muſt employ their ſtrength to ſtrengthen the weake, 3 by Chriſts example, 7 who receiveth 8 not onely the Iewes, 10 but alſo the Gentiles. 15 The cauſe why he wrote this Epiſtle.

WEe [1] which are ſtrong, ought to beare the infirmities of the weake, and not to [a] pleaſe our ſelves.

2 Therefore let every man pleaſe his neighbour in that that is [b] good to edification.

3 [2] For Chriſt alſo would not pleaſe himſelfe, but as it is written, * The rebukes of them which rebuke thee, fell on me.

4 [3] For whatſoever things are written [c] aforetime, are written for our learning, that we through patience, and comfort of the [d] Scriptures might have hope.

5 [4] Now the God of patience and conſolation, giue you that ye be * like minded one towards another, according to Chriſt Jeſus,

6 That ye with one minde, and with one mouth may prayſe God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

7 Wherefore receive ye one another, as Chriſt alſo [e] received us to the glory of God.

8 [5] Now I ſay, that Jeſus Chriſt was a miniſter of the [f] circumciſion, for the [g] trueth of God, to confirme the promiſes made vnto the Fathers.

9 [6] And let the Gentiles praiſe God for his mercy, as it is written, * For this cauſe I will [h] confeſſe thee among the Gentiles, and ſing unto thy Name.

10 And againe he ſaith, * Reioyce, ye Gentiles with his people.

11 And againe, * Praiſe the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and laud ye him, all people together.

12 And againe Eſaias ſayth, * There ſhall be a root of Ieſſe, and he that ſhall riſe to reigne over the Gentiles, in him ſhall the Gentiles truſt.

13 [7] Now the God of [i] hope fill you with [k] all ioy, and peace in beleeving, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the holy Ghoſt.

14 [8] And I my ſelfe alſo am perſwaded of you, my brethren, that [l] ye alſo are full of goodneſſe, and filled with all knowledge, and are able to admoniſh one another.

as one that putteth you in remembrance, through the grace that is given me of God, 16 That I ſhould be the miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt toward the Gentiles, miniſtring the Goſpel of God, that the [m] offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being ſanctified by the holy Ghoſt.

17 [9] I have therefore whereof I may rejoyce in Chriſt Jeſus in thoſe things which pertain to God:

18 For I dare not ſpeak of any thing. which [n] Chriſt hath not wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient in word and deed,

19 With the [o] power of ſignes and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God: ſo that from Hieruſalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have cauſed to abound the Goſpel of Chriſt.

20 Yea, ſo I enforced my ſelf to preach the Goſpel, not where Chriſt was named, leſt I ſhould have built on another mans foundation, 21 But as it is written, * To whom he was not ſpoken of, they ſhall ſee him, and they that heard not, ſhall underſtand him.

22 * [10] Therefore alſo I have been oft let to come unto you:

23 But now ſeeing I have no more place in theſe quarters, and alſo have * been deſirous many years agone to come unto you,

24 When I ſhall take my journey into Spain, I will come to you: for I truſt to ſee you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, after that I have been ſomewhat filled with your company.

25 But now go I to Hieruſalem, to [p] miniſter unto the Saints.

26 For it hath pleaſed them of Macedonia and Achaia, to make a certain diſtribution unto the poore Saints which are at Hieruſalem.

27 [11] For it hath pleaſed them, and their debters are they: * for if the Gentiles be made partakers of their ſpirituall things, their duety is alſo to [q] miniſter unto them in carnall things.

28 When I have therefore performed this, and have [r] ſealed them this [ſ] fruit, I will paſſe by you into Spain.

29 [12] And I know when I come, that I ſhall come to you with abundance of the bleſſing of the Goſpel of Chriſt.

30 Alſo brethren, I beſeech you for our Lord Jeſus Chriſts ſake, and for the [t] love of the ſpirit, that ye would ſtrive with me by prayers to God for me,

31 That I may be delivered from them which are diſobedient in Iudea, and that my ſervice which I have to doe at Hieruſalem, may be accepted of the Saints, 32 That I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, and may with you be refreſhed.

33 Thus the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

1 He commendeth Phebe. 3 He ſendeth greeting to many, 17 and warneth to beware of them which are the cauſes of diviſion.

I [1] Commend unto you Phebe our ſiſter, which is a ſervant of the Church of Cenchrea:

2 That ye receive her in the [a] Lord, as it becommeth Saints, and that ye aſſiſt her in whatſoever buſineſſe ſhee needeth of your aid: for ſhe hath given hoſpitalitie unto many, and to me alſo.

3 Greet * Priſcilla, and Aquila my fellow helpers in Chriſt Jeſus,

4 (Which have for my life layd down their own neck: Unto whom not I onely give thanks, but alſo all the Churches of the Gentiles.)

5 Likewiſe greet the [b] Church that is in their houſe. Salute my beloved Epenetus, which is the [c] firſt fruits of Achaia in Chriſt.

6 Greet Mary which beſtowed much labour upon us.

7 Salute Andronicus and Junia my couſins and fellow priſoners, which are notable among the Apoſtles, and were in [d] Chriſt before me.

8 Greet Amplias my beloved in the Lord.

9 Salute Urbanus our fellow helper in Chriſt, and Stachys my beloved.

10 Salute Apelles approved in Chriſt. Salute them which are of Ariſtobulus friends.

11 Salute Herodian my kinſman. Greet them which are of the friends of Narciſſus, which are in the Lord.

12 Salute Tryphena and Tryphoſa, which women labour in the Lord. Salute the beloved Perſis, which woman hath laboured much in the Lord.

13 Salute Rufus choſen in the Lord, and his mother and mine.

14 Greet Aſyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Mercurius, and the brethren which are with them.

15 Salute Philologus and Julias, Nereas and his ſiſter, and Olympas, and all the Saints which are with them.

16 Salute one another with an * holy [e] kiſſe. The Churches of Chriſt ſalute you.

17 ¶ [2] Now I beſeech you, brethren, [f] marke them diligently which cauſe diviſion and offences, contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned, and * avoid them.

18 For they that are ſuch, ſerve not the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, but their own bellies, and with [g] fair ſpeech and flattering deceive the hearts of the ſimple.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 After the ſalutation, 10 Which in effect is an exhortation, 12 he reprehendeth the Corinthians ſects and diviſions, 17 and calleth them from pride to humilitie: 20 For, overthrowing all worldly wiſedom, 23.25 he advanceth onely the preaching of the croſſe.

PAUL [1] called to be an [2] Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, through the wil of God, and our brother [3] Soſthenes,

2 [4]. Unto the Church of God, which is at Corinthus, to them that are [5] ſanctified in [a] Chriſt Jeſus, Saints by [b] calling, * with all that [c] call on the Name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in every place, both their Lord, and ours :

3 [6] Grace be with you, & peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

4 [7] I thank my God alwayes on your behalf for the grace of God, which is given you in Jeſus Chriſt,

5 That in all things ye are made rich in him, [8] in [d] all kind of ſpeech, and in all knowledge :

6 [9] As the teſtimonie of Jeſus Chriſt hath been [e] confirmed in you :

7 So that ye are not deſtitute of any gift: *[10] waiting for the [f] appearing of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

8 *[11] Who ſhall alſo confirm you unto the end, that ye may be [g] blameleſſe in the day of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

9 * God is [h] faithfull, by whom ye are called unto the fellowſhip of his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

10 [12] Now I beſeech you, brethren, by the Name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that [13] ye all ſpeak one thing, and that there be no diſſentions among you : but be ye [i] knit together in one mind, and in one judgment.

11 [14] For it hath been declared unto me, my brethren, of you by them that are of the houſe of Cloe, that there are contentions among you.

12 Now [k] this I ſay, that every one of you ſaith, I am Pauls, and I am * Apollos, and I am Cephas, and I am Chriſts.

13 [15] Is Chriſt divided? was [16] Paul crucified for you? either were ye [17] baptized into the Name of Paul?

14 [18] I thank God, that I baptized none of you, but * Criſpus and Gaius, 15 Leſt any ſhould ſay, that I had baptized into mine own name.

16 I baptized alſo the houſhold of Stephanas: furthermore know I not, whether I baptized any other.

17 [19] For Chriſt ſent me not to baptize,

1 The inſcription of the epiſtle, wherein he chiefly goeth about to procure the good will of the Corinthians towards him, yet notwithſtanding, ſo that alwayes he letteth them to wit, that he is the ſervant of God, & not of men 2 If he be an Apoſtle, then he muſt be heard, although he ſometime reprehend them ſharply, ſeeing he hath not his own cauſe in hand, but is a meſſenger that bringeth the commandements of Chriſt. 3 He joyneth Soſthenes with himſelf, that this doctrine might be confirmed by two witneſſes. 4 It is a Church of God, although it hath great faults in it, ſo yͭ it obey them which admoniſh it. * Acts 15.9. 1 Theſſ. 4.7. 5 A true definition of the Catholique Church which is one. a The father ſanctifieth us, that is to ſay, ſeparateth us from the wicked, in giving us to his Son, that he may be in us, and we in him. * Rom. 1.7. Epheſ. 1.1. Coloſſ. 1.22. 1 Tim. 1.9. Titus 2.13. b Whom God of his gracious goodneſſe and meer love hath ſeparated for himſelf: or whom God hath called to holineſſe: the firſt of theſe two expoſitions, ſheweth from whence our ſanctification commeth: and the ſecond ſheweth to what end it tendeth. * 2 Timoth. 2.22. c He is ſayd properly to call on God, who cryeth unto the Lord when he is in danger, and craveth help at his hands, and by the figure Synecdoche it is taken for all the ſervice of God: and therefore to call upon Chriſts Name, is to acknowledge, and take him for very God. 6 The foundation and the life of the Church, is Chriſt Ieſus, given of the Father. 7 Going about to condemne many vices, he beginneth with a true commendation of their vertues, leſt he might ſeem after to deſcend to chiding, being moved with malice or envie: yet ſo, yͭ he referreth all to God, as the authour of them, & that in Chriſt, yͭ the Corinthians might be more aſhamed to prophane & abuſe yͤ holy gifts of God. 8 He toucheth yͭ by name, which they moſt abuſed. d Seeing that whiles we live heer, we know but in part, and prophecie in part, this word (All) muſt be reſtrained to the preſent ſtate of the faithfull: but by (Speech) he meaneth not a vain kind of babling, but the gift of holy eloquence, which the Corinthians abuſed. 9 He ſheweth that the true uſe of theſe gifts conſiſteth heerin, yͭ the mighty power of Chriſt might thereby be ſet forth in them, that heerafter it might evidently appear, how wickedly they abuſed them to glory and ambition. e By thoſe excellent gifts of the holy Ghoſt. * Titus 2.11. Phil. 3.20. 10 He ſayeth by the way, that there is no cauſe why they ſhould pleaſe themſelves ſo much in thoſe gifts which they had received, ſeeing yͭ thoſe were nothing in compariſon of them which are to be looked for. f He ſpeaketh of the laſt comming of Chriſt. * 1 Theſſ. 3.13. & 5.23. 11 He teſtifieth yͭ he hopeth well of them heerafter, that they may more patiently abide his reprehenſion afterward. And yet together therewithall ſheweth that as well the beginning as the accompliſhing of our ſalvation, is onely the work of God. g He calleth them blameleſſe, not whom man never found fault with, but with whom no man can iuſtly find fault, that is to ſay, them which are in Chriſt Ieſus, in whom there is no condemnation. See Luke 1.6.

* 1 Theſſ. 5.24. h True & conſtan who doeth not onely call us, but giveth the gift of perſeverance alſo. 12 Having made an end of the pre face, he commet to the matter it ſelf, beginning with a moſt grav obteſtation, as though they ſhould hear Chri himſelf ſpeaking and not Paul. 13 The firſt part of this Epiſtle, wherein his purpoſe is, to call bac the Corinthians to brotherly concord, & to tak away all occaſion of diſcord. So the this firſt part concerneth yͤ taking away of ſchiſmes. Now a ſchiſme is when men whic otherwiſe agree and conſent together in doctrine do yet ſeparate themſelves one from another. i Knit together, as body that conſiſteth of all his parts fitly knit together. 14 He beginneth his reprehenſion and chiding by taking away of an objection: for that he underſtood by good witneſſes, that there were many factions among them. And therewithall he openeth the cauſe of diſſentions, becauſe that ſome did hang on one doctour, ſome on another, and ſome were ſo addicted to themſelves, that they neglected all doctours and teachers, calling themſelves the diſciples of Chriſt onely, ſhutting forth their teachers. k The matter I would ſay to you, is this. * Acts 18.24. 15 The firſt reaſon why ſchiſmes ought to be eſchewed: becauſe Chriſt ſeemeth by that means, to be divided and torn in pieces, who cannot be the head of two divers and diſagreeing bodies, being himſelf one. 16 Another reaſon: becauſe they cannot without great injurie to God, ſo hang of men as of Chriſt: which thing no doubt they do, which allow whatſoever ſome man ſpeaketh, even for his perſons ſake: as theſe men allowed one ſelfſame Goſpel being uttered of one man, and did lothe it being uttered of another man. So that theſe factions were called by the names of their teachers. Now Paul ſetteth down his own name, not onely to grieve no man, but alſo to ſhew that he pleadeth not his own cauſe. 17 The third reaſon taken of the forme and end of Baptiſme, wherein we make a promiſe to Chriſt, calling alſo on the Name of the Father, and the holy Ghoſt. Therefore although a man doe not fall from the doctrine of Chriſt, yet if he hang upon ſome certain teachers, and deſpiſe others, he forſaketh Chriſt: for if he hold Chriſt his onely maſter, he would hear him, teaching by whomſoever. 18 He proteſteth that he ſpeaketh ſo much the more boldly of theſe things, becauſe that through Gods providence, he is void of all ſuſpition of chalenging diſciples unto himſelf, & taking them from others. Whereby we may underſtand, that not the ſchollars onely, but the teachers alſo are heer reprehended, which gather themſelves flocks apart. * Acts 18.8. 19 The taking away of an objection: that he gave not himſelf to baptize many amongſt them: not for the contempt of baptiſme but becauſe he was chiefly occupied in delivering the doctrine, and committed them that received his doctrine to others to be baptized, whereof he had ſtore. And ſo he declared ſufficiently how far he was from all ambition: whereas on the other ſide, they whom he reprehendeth, as though they gathered diſciples unto themſelves and not unto Chriſt, bragged moſt ambitiouſly of numbers, which they had baptized.

but to preach the Goſpel,[20] not with *[l] wiſdome of words, leſt the [21] croſſe of Chriſt ſhould be made of none effect.

18 For that [m] preaching of the croſſe is to them that periſh, fooliſhneſſe: but unto us, which are ſaved, it is the *[n] power of God.

19 [22] For it is written, * I will deſtroy the wiſdome of the wiſe, and will caſt away the underſtanding of the prudent.

20 Where is the wiſe? where is the [o] Scribe? where is the [p] diſputer of this world? hath not God made the wiſdome of this world fooliſhneſſe?

21 [23] For ſeeing the [q] world by wiſdome knew not God in the [r] wiſdome of God, [24] it pleaſed God by the [ſ] fooliſhneſſe of preaching to ſave them that beleeve:

22 * [25] Seeing alſo that the Jewes require a ſigne, and the Grecians ſeeke after wiſdome.

23 But we preach Chriſt crucified: unto the Jewes, even a ſtumbling block, and unto the Grecians, fooliſhneſſe:

24 But unto them which are called, both of the Jewes and Grecians, we preach Chriſt, the power of God, and the wiſdome of God:

25 For the fooliſhneſſe of God is wiſer then men, and the weakeneſſe of God is ſtronger then men.

26 [26] For brethren, you ſee your [t] calling, how that not many wiſe men [v] after the fleſh, not many mighty, not many noble are called.

20 Now he turneth himſelfe to the doctors themſelves, which pleaſed themſelves in brave and ambitious eloquence, to the end that they might draw more diſciples after them. He confeſſeth plainely that he was unlike unto them, oppoſing gravely, as it became an Apoſtle, his example againſt their perverſe judgements: So that this is another place of this Epiſtle, touching the obſerving of a godly ſimplicity both in words and ſentences, in teaching of the Goſpel.

* Chap.2.13. 1 pet. 1.16.

l With eloquence which Paul caſteth off from him, not only, as not neceſſarie, but alſo as flat contrarie to the office of his Apoſtleſhip: and yet had Paul his kinde of eloquence, but it was heavenly, not of man, and void of painted words.

21 The reaſon why he uſeth not the pomp of words & painted ſpeach: becauſe it was Gods will to bring the world to his obedience by that way, wherby the moſt ideots amongſt men might underſtand that this work was done of God himſelfe, without the art of man. Therefore as ſalvation is ſet forth unto us in the Goſpel by the croſſe of Chriſt, then which nothing is more contempible, and more farre from life, ſo God would have the manner of the preaching of the croſſe, moſt different from thoſe meanes, which men doe uſe to draw and entiſe other, either to heare or beleeve: therefore it pleaſed him by a certain kind of moſt wiſe folly, to triumph over the moſt fooliſh wiſdome of the world, as he had ſaid before by Eſay, that he would. And hereby we may gather, that both theſe doctors which where puffed up with ambitious eloquence, and alſo their hearers, ſtrayed farre away from the end and mark of their vocation. m The preaching of Chriſt crucified, or the kind of ſpeach which we uſe. * Roman.1.16. n It is that wherein he declareth his marveilous power in ſaving his elect, which would not ſo evidently appeare, if it hanged upon any helpe of man, for ſo man might attribute that to himſelfe, which is proper onely to the croſſe of Chriſt. 22 The Apoſtle proveth, that this ought not onely not to ſeem ſtrange, ſeeing that it was foretold ſo long before, but declareth further, that God is wont to puniſh the pride of the world in ſuch ſort, which ſo pleaſeth it ſelfe in it own wiſdome: and therefore that that is vain, yea a thing of nothing, and ſuch as God rejecteth as unprofitable, which they ſo carefully laboured for, and made ſo great accompt of. * Iſay 29.14. o Where art thou, O thou learned fellow, and thou that ſpendeſt thy dayes in turning thy bookes? p Thou that ſpendeſt all thy time in ſeeking out the ſecret things of this world, and in expounding all hard queſtions: and thus tryumpheth he againſt all the men of this world, for there was not one of them that could ſo much as dreame upon this ſecret and hidden myſterie. 23 He ſheweth that the pride of men was worthily puniſhed of God, becauſe they would not behold God, as meet was they ſhould, in the moſt cleare glaſſe of the wiſdome of the world, which is the workemanſhip of the world. q By the world he meaneth all men which are not borne anew, but remaine as they were, when they were firſt borne. r In the workemanſhip of this world, which hath the marveilous wiſdome of God engraved in it, ſo that every man may behold it. 24 The goodneſſe of God is wonderfull, for while he goeth about to puniſh the pride of this world, he is very provident and carefull for the ſalvation of it, and teacheth men to become fooles, that they may be wiſe to God. ſ So he calleth the preaching of the Goſpel, as the enemies ſuppoſed it: but in the mean ſeaſon he taunteth them very ſharpely, who had rather charge God with folly, then acknowledge their owne, and crave pardon for it. * Matth.12.38. 25 A declaration of that which he ſaid: that the preaching of the Goſpel, is fooliſh. It is fooliſh, ſayth he, to them whom God hath not endued with new light, that is to ſay, to all men being conſidered in themſelves: for the Iewes require miracles, and the Grecians arguments, which they may comprehend by their wits and wiſdome: and therefore they doe not onely not beleeve the Goſpel, but alſo they mock at it. Notwithſtanding in this fooliſh preaching, there is the great vertue and wiſedome of God, but ſuch as thoſe onely which are called doe perceive: God ſhewing moſt plainely, that even then when madde men thinke him moſt fooliſh, he is farre wiſer then they are: and that he ſurmounteth all their might and power, when, he uſeth moſt vile and abject things, as it hath appeared in the fruit of the preaching of the Goſpel, 26 A confirmation taken of thoſe things which came to paſſe at Corinth, where the Church eſpecially conſiſted of the baſeſt and common people, inſomuch that the Philoſophers of Greece were driven to ſhame when they ſaw that they could doe nothing with their wiſdome and eloquence, in compariſon of the Apoſtles, whom notwithſtanding they called idiots and unlearned. And herewithall doeth he beat downe their pride: for God did not preferre them before thoſe noble and wiſe men becauſe they ſhould be proud, but that they might be conſtrained, even whether they would or not, to rejoyce in the Lord, by whoſe mercy, although they were the moſt abiects of all, they had obtained in Chriſt, both this wiſdome, and all things neceſſarie to ſalvation. t What way the Lord hath taken in calling you. u After that kind of wiſdome which men make accompt of, as though there were none elſe: who becauſe they are carnall, know not ſpirituall wiſdome.

27 But God hath choſen the fooliſh things of the world to confound the wiſe, and God hath choſen the weake things of the world, to confound the mightie things,

28 And vile things of the world, and things which are deſpiſed, hath God choſen, and things which [x] are not, to bring to [y] nought things that are,

29 That no [z] fleſh ſhould rejoyce in his preſence.

30 But ye are [a] of him in Chriſt Jeſus, [27] who of God is made unto us wiſdome, and righteouſnes, and ſanctification, and redemption, 31 That, according as it is written, *[b] He that rejoyceth, let him rejoyce in the Lord.

x Which in mens iudgement are almoſt nothing.

y To ſhew that they are vaine and unprofitable, and nothing worth. See Rom.3.31.

z Fleſh, is oft, as we ſee, taken for the whole man: and he uſeth this word, Fleſh, very fitly, to ſet the weake and miſerable condition of man, and the maieſtie of God, one againſt the other.

a Whom he caſt downe before, now he lifteth up, yea, higher then all men: yet ſo, that he ſheweth them, that all their worthineſſe is without themſelves, that is, ſtandeth in Chriſt, and that of God.

27 He teacheth that eſpecially and above all things the Goſpel ought not to be contemned, ſeeing it conteineth the chiefeſt things that are to be deſired, to wit, true wiſdome, the true way to obtaine righteouſneſſe, the true way to live honeſtly and godly, the true deliverance from all miſeries and calamites. * Ierem.9.24.2 corinth.10.17. b Let him yeeld all to God, and give him thankes: and ſo by this place is mans free will beaten downe, which the Papiſts ſo dreame of.

CHAP. II.

1 He ſetteth downe a platform of his preaching, 4 which was baſe in reſpect of mans wiſdome, 7. 13 but noble in reſpect of the ſpirituall power and efficacie: 14 and ſo concludeth, that fleſh and blood cannot rightly judge thereof.

AND [1] I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with * excellencie of words, or of wiſdome, ſhewing unto you the [a] teſtimonie of God.

2 For I [b] eſteemed not to know any thing among you, ſave Jeſus Chriſt, and him crucified.

3 *And I was among you in [c] weaknes, and in feare, and in much trembling.

4 Neither ſtood my word, and my preaching in the * entiſing ſpeach of mans wiſdome, [2] but in plaine [d] evidence of the Spirit and of power,

5 [3] That your faith ſhould not be in the wiſedom of men, but in the power of God.

6 [4] And we ſpeak wiſdome among them that are [e] perfect: not the wiſdome of this world, neither of the [f] princes of this world, which come to nought:

7 [5] But we ſpeak the wiſdome of God in a [g] myſterie, even the hid wiſdome, [6] which God had determined before the world, unto our glory:

8 [7] Which none of the princes of this world hath knowen: for had they knowen it, they would not have crucified the [h] Lord of glory.

1 He returneth to the 17. verſe of the former chapter, that is to ſay, to his owne example: confeſſing that he uſed not among them either excellencie of words or intiſing ſpeach of mans wiſedome, but with great ſimplicitie of ſpeach both knew and preached Jeſus Chriſt crucified, humble, and abiect as touching the fleſh,

* Chap.1.17.

b I purpoſed not to profeſſe any knowledg but the knowledg of Chriſt and him crucified.

c He ſetteth weakneſſe, againſt excellencie of words, and therefore ioyneth with it feare and trembling, which are companions of true modeſtie, not ſuch feare and trembling as terrifie the conſcience, but ſuch as are contrarie to vanitie and pride.

* Chap.1.17. 2 pet.1.16.

2 He turneth that now, to the commendation of his miniſtery, which he had granted to his adverſaries: for his vertue and power, which they knew well enough, was ſo much the more excellent, becauſe it had no worldly helpe joyned with it. d By plain evidence he meaneth ſuch a proofe, as is made by certaine and neceſſarie reaſons. 3 And he telleth the Corinthians that he did it for their great profit, becauſe they might thereby know manifeſtly that the Goſpel was from heaven. Therefore he privily rebuketh them, becauſe that in ſeeking vaine oſtentation, they willingly deprived themſelves of the greateſt helpe of their faith. 4 Another argument taken of the nature of the thing, that is, of the Goſpel, which is true wiſdome, but knowen to them onely which are deſirous of perfection: and is unſavorie to them which otherwiſe excell in the world, but yet vainely and frailly. e Thoſe are called perfect heer, not which had gotten perfection alreadie, but ſuch as tend to it, as Phil.3.15. ſo that perfect, is ſet againſt weake. f They that are wiſer, richer, or mightier then other men are. 5 He ſheweth the cauſe why this wiſdome cannot be perceived of thoſe excellent worldly wits, to wit, becauſe indeed it is ſo deepe, that they cannot attaine unto it. g Which men could not ſo much as dreame of. 6 He taketh away an obiection: If it be ſo hard, when, and how is it knowen? God ſaith he, determined with himſelfe from the beginning, that which his purpoſe was to bring forth at this time out of his ſecrets, for the ſalvation of men. 7 He taketh away another objection: why then, how commeth it to paſſe, that this wiſdome was ſo rejected of men of higheſt authoritie, that they crucified Chriſt himſelfe? Paul anſwereth: becauſe they knew not Chriſt ſuch as he was. h That mightie God, full of true maieſtie and glory: Now this place hath in it a moſt evident proofe of the Divinitie of Chriſt, and of his ioyning of the two natures in one, which hath this in it, that that which is proper to the manhood alone, is vouched of the Godhead ioyned with the manhood: which kind of ſpeach, is called of the old Fathers, A making common of things belonging to ſome one, with other to whom they doe not belong.

8 Another objection : But how could it be that thoſe wittie men could not perceiue this wiſedome? Paul anſwereth: Becauſe we preach thoſe things which paſſe all mens underſtanding.

i Man cannot ſo much as thinke on them, much leſſe conceive of them with his ſenſes.

9 A queſtion: If it ſurmount the capacitie of men, how can it be underſtood of any man, or how can you declare and preach it ? by a peculiar lightning by Gods Spirit, wherewith whoſoever is inſpired, he can enter even into the very ſecrets of God.

k There is nothing ſo ſecret and hidden in God, but the Spirit of God pearceth into it.

10 He ſetteth that forth by a ſimilitude, which he ſpake of the inſpiration of the Spirit. As the force of mans wit ſearcheth out things pertaining to man, ſo doeth our mind by that power of the holy Ghoſt underſtand heavenly things, l The minde of man which is endued with the ableneſſe to underſtand and iudge.

9 [8] But as it is written, *The things which eye hath not ſeene, neither eare hath heard, neither came into [i] mans heart, are, which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 [9] But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit : for the ſpirit [k] ſearcheth all things, yea, the deepe things of God.

11 [10] For what man knoweth the things of a man, ſave the [l] ſpirit of a man, which is in him? even ſo the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received not the [m] ſpirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God, [11] that we might [n] know the things that are given to us of God,

13 [12] Which things alſo we ſpeake, not in the * words which mans wiſdome teacheth, but which the holy Ghoſt teacheth, [o] comparing ſpirituall things with ſpirituall things.

14 [13] But the [p] naturall man perceiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are fooliſhneſſe unto him : neither can he know them, becauſe they are [q] ſpiritually diſcerned.

15 [14] But he that is ſpirituall, [r] diſcerneth all things : yet [15] he himſelfe is judged of [ſ] no man.

16 * [16] For who hath knowen the minde of the Lord, that he might [t] inſtruct him ? But we have [v] the mind of Chriſt.

m The Spirit which we have received, doeth not teach us things of this world, but lifteth us up to God, and this place teacheth us againſt the Papiſts, what faith is, from whence it cometh, and what force it is of. 11 That which he ſpake generally he reſtraineth now to thoſe things which God hath opened unto us of our ſalvation in Chriſt : leſt that any man ſhould ſeparate the Spirit from the preaching of the word and Chriſt : or ſhould thinke that thoſe fantaſticall men are governed by the Spirit of God, which wandering beſides the word, thruſt upon us their vaine imaginations for the ſecrets of God. n This word (know) is taken here in his proper ſenſe, for true knowledge, which the Spirit of God worketh in us. 12 Now he returneth to his purpoſe, and concludeth the argument which he beganne verſe 6. and it is thus : The words muſt be applyed to the matter, and the matter muſt be ſet forth with words which are meete and convenient for it : now this wiſedome is ſpirituall and not of man, and therefore it muſt be delivered by a ſpirituall kind of teaching, and not by entiſing words of mans eloquence, that the ſimple, and yet wonderfull maieſtie of the holy Ghoſt may therein appeare. * Chap.1.17.2.pet.1.16. o Applying the words unto the matter, to wit, that as we teach ſpirituall things, ſo muſt our kind of teaching be ſpirituall. 13 Againe he preventeth an offence or ſtumbling blocke: How commeth it to paſſe, that ſo few allow theſe things ? This is not to be marveiled at, ſayth the Apoſtle, ſeeing that men in their naturall powers (as they tearme them) are not endued with that facultie whereby ſpirituall things are diſcerned (which facultie commeth another way) and therefore they account ſpirituall wiſedome as folly : and it is as if he ſhould ſay, It is no marvaile that blind men cannot judge of colours, ſeeing that they lack the ſight of their eyes, and therefore light is to them as darkeneſſe. p The man that hath no further light of underſtanding, then that which he brought with him, even from his mothers wombe as Iude defineth it, Iude 19. q By the vertue of the holy Ghoſt. 14 He amplifieth the matter by contraries. r Underſtandeth and diſcerneth. 15 The wiſedome of the fleſh, ſayth Paul, determineth nothing certainely, no not in it owne affaires, much leſſe can it diſcerne ſtrange, that is, ſpirituall things. But the Spririt of God, wherewith ſpirituall men are endued, can be deceived by no meanes, and therefore be reproved of no man, ſ Of no man : for when the Prophets are iudged of the Prophets, it is the Spirit that iudgeth, and not the man. * Eſai 40.13.rom.11.34. 16 A reaſon of the former ſaying : for he is called ſpirituall, which hath learned that by the vertue of the Spirit, which Chriſt hath taught us, Now if that which we have learned of that Maſter, could be reproved of any man, he muſt needs be wiſer then God: whereupon it followeth, that they are not onely fooliſh, but alſo wicked, which thinke that they can deviſe ſomething that is either more perfect, or that they can teach the wiſedome of God a better way then they knew ot taught, which undoubtedly were indued with Gods Spirit. t Lay his head to his, and teach him what ye ſhould do u We are endued with the Spirit of Chriſt, who openeth unto us thoſe ſecrets, which by all other meanes are unſearchable, and alſo all trueth whatſoever.

CHAP. III.

1 He yeeldeth a reaſon why he preached ſmall matters unto them: 4 He ſheweth how they ought to eſteem of miniſters. 6 The miniſters office. 10 A true forme of edifying. 16 He warneth the Corinthians, that they be not drawen away to profane things, 18 through the proud wiſdome of the fleſh.

ANd[1] I could not ſpeake unto you brethren, as unto ſpirituall men, but as unto [a] carnall, even as unto babes in Chriſt.

2 I gave you milk to drink, and not [b] meat : for ye were not yet [c] able to beare it, neither yet now are ye able:

3 For ye are yet carnall : for where as there is among you envying, and ſtrife, and diviſions, are ye not carnall, and walk as [d] men ?

4 For when one ſayth, I am Pauls, and another, I am Apollos, are ye not carnall ?

5 [2] Who is Paul then? and who is Apollos, but the miniſters by whom ye beleeved, and as the Lord gave to every man ?

6 [3] I have planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the increaſe.

7 So then, neither is he that planteth, any thing, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increaſe.

8 And he that planteth, and he that watereth, are one : * and every man ſhall receive his wages according to his labour.

9 For we together are Gods [e] labourers, ye are Gods huſbandrie, and Gods building.

10 According to the grace of God given to me, as a skilfull maſter builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon : [4] but let every man take heed how he buildeth upon it.

11 [5] For other foundation can no man lay, then that which is laid, which is Jeſus Chriſt.

12 [6] And if any man build on this foundation, gold, ſilver, precions ſtones, timber, hay, or ſtubble, 13 [7] Every mans work ſhal be made manifeſt : for the day ſhall declare it, becauſe it ſhal be revealed by the fire: and the fire ſhall trie every mans work of what ſort it is.

14 If any mans work, that he hath built upon, abide, he ſhall receive wages.

1 Having declared the worthines of heavenly wiſdome, and of the Goſpel, and having generally condemned, the blindnes of mans minde, now at length he applyeth it particularly to the Corinthians, calling them carnall, that is, ſuch in whom as yet the fleſh prevaileth againſt the Spirit. And he bringeth a double teſtimonie of it : firſt, for that he had proved them to be ſuch, in ſo much that he dealt with them no otherwiſe then with ignorant men, and ſuch as are almoſt babes in the doctrine of godlineſſe, and ſecondly, becauſe they ſhewed in deed by theſe diſſentions, which ſprang up by reaſon of the ignorance of the vertue of the Spirit, and heavenly wiſedome, that they had profited very litle or nothing.

a He calleth th carnall, which as yet ignorant, therefore to expr it the better, he meth them babes.

b Subſtantiall me or ſtrong meat.

c To be fed by with ſubſtantia meat: therfore as Corinthians grew in age, ſo the Apo nouriſhed them b teaching, firſt w milke, then with ſtrong meat, whi difference was on but in the manner teaching.

d By the ſquare a compaſſe of ma wit and iudgement.

2 After that h hath ſufficientl reprehended ambitious teachers and their fooliſ eſteemers, now h ſheweth how th true miniſters a to be eſteemed, that we attribut not unto the more or leſſe then w ought to do. Therfore he teacheth us, that they are they by whom we are brought to faith and ſalvation but yet as the miniſters of God, and ſuch as doe nothing of them ſelves, but God ſ working by them as it pleaſeth him to furniſh them with his gifts. Therfore we have not to marke o conſider what miniſter it is tha ſpeaketh, but wha is ſpoken : and we muſt depend only upon him which ſpeaketh by his ſervants.

3 He beautifieth ÿ former ſentence with two ſimilitudes : firſt comparing the company of the faithfull to a field which God maketh fruitful, when it is ſowed and watered through the labo of his ſervants: next, by comparing it to an houſe which indeed the Lord buildeth, but by the hands of his workemen, ſome of whom he uſeth in laying th foundation, others in building of it up. Now, both theſe ſimilitudes tend to this purpoſe to ſhew that all things are wholly accompliſhed by Gods onely authoritie and might, ſo that we muſt onely have an eie to him. Moreover, although that God uſeth ſome in th better part of the worke, we muſt not therefore contemne other, in reſpect of them, and much leſſe may we divide or ſet them apart, (as theſe factious men did) ſeeing that all o them labor in Gods buſineſſe, and in ſuch ſort, that they ſerve to finiſh one ſelfe ſame worke, although by a divers maner of working, inſomuch that they need one anothers helpe. * Pſal.62.12.gal.6.5. e Serving under him : Now they which ſerve under another, doe nothing of their owne ſtrength, but as it is given them by grace, which grace maketh them fit to that ſervice. Looke Chap.15,10.and 2.Cor 3.6.and all the increaſe that commeth b their labour, doth ſo proceed from God, that no part of the praiſe of it may be given to the under ſervant. 4 Now he ſpeaketh to the teachers themſelves, which ſucceeded him in the Church of Corinth, and in their perſon to all that were after, or ſhalbe Paſtors of Congregations, ſeeing that they ſucceed into the labor of the Apoſtles, which were planters and chiſe builders. Therefore he warneth them firſt, that they perſwade not themſelves that they may build after their owne fantaſie, that is, that they may propound and ſet foorth any thing in the Church, either in matter, or in kind of teaching, different from the Apoſtles which were the chieſe builders. 5 Moreover, he ſheweth what this foundation is, to wit, Chriſt Jeſus, from whence they may not turne away one iote in the building up of this building. 6 Thirdly, he ſheweth, that they muſt take heed that the upper part of the building be anſwerable to the foundation, that is, that admonitions, exhortations, and whatſoever pertaineth to the edifying of the flock, be anſwerable to the doctrin of Chriſt, as well in matter as in forme: which doctrin is compared to gold, ſilver, and precious ſtones: of which matter, Eſaias alſo and Iohn in the Revelation build the heavenly citie. And to theſe are oppoſite, wood, hay, ſtubble, that is to ſay, curions and vain queſtions or decrees: and beſides, to be ſhort, all that kind of teaching which ſerveth to oſtentation. For falſe doctrines, wherof he ſpeaketh not here, are not ſaid properly to be built upon this fonndation, unleſſe peradventure in ſhew onely. 7 He teſtifieth, as indeed the trueth is, that all are not good builders, no not ſome of them which ſtand upon this one and onely foundation : but howſoever this worke of evill builders, ſaith he, ſtand for a ſeaſon, yet ſhall it not alwayes deceive, becauſe that the light of the trueth appearing at length as day, ſhall diſſolue this darkeneſſe, and ſhew what it is. And as that ſtuffe is tryed by the fire, whether it be good or not, ſo will God in his time, by the touch of his Spirit and word, trie all buildings, and ſo ſhall it come to paſſe, that ſuch as be found pure and ſound, ſhall ſtill continue ſo, to the praiſe of the workeman : but they that are otherwiſe, ſhall be conſumed and vaniſh away, and ſo ſhall the workeman be fruſtrate of the hope of his labour, which pleaſed himſelfe in a thing of naught.

15 If any mans work burn, he ſhal loſe, but[s] he ſhall be ſaved himſelfe: nevertheleſſe yet as it were by the fire.

16 *[9] Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God, and that the ſpirit of God dwelleth in you?

17 If any man [f] deſtroy the Temple of God, him ſhall God deſtroy: for the Temple of God is holy, which ye are.

18 [10] Let no man deceive himſelfe: If any man amongſt you ſeeme to be wiſe in this world, let him be a foole, that he may be wiſe.

19 For the wiſedome of this world is fooliſhneſſe with God: for it is written, *He [g] catcheth the wiſe in their own craftineſſe.

20 *And againe, the Lord knoweth that the thoughts of the wiſe be vaine.

21 [11] Therefore let no man [h] rejoyce in men: for all things are [i] yours.

22 Whether it be Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the [12] world, or life, or death: whether they be things preſent, or things to come, even all are yours, e taketh not hope of fal- on from the ilfull & fool- builders, ich holde faſt foundation, of ch ſort were Rhetoricians er then Pa- rs, of Corinth: he addeth an eption, that y muſt not- hſtanding ſuffer is tryall of their rke, and alſo de the loſſe of ir vaine la- urs.

23 And ye Chriſts, and Chriſt Gods.

* Chap.6.19. orinth.6.16.

Continuing l in the meta- ore of a build- g, he teacheth that this am- ion is not one- vaine, but alſo rilegious: for faith that the urch is, as it re, the Temple God, which d hath, as it re, conſecrated himſelfe by s Spirit. Then ming himſelfe theſe ambitious n, he ſheweth t they profane Temple of od, becauſe oſe vaine artes herein they pleaſe themſelves ſo much, are as he teacheth, ſo many pollutions of the ho- doctrine of God, and the puritie of the Church. Which wickedneſſe ſhall not be ſuffered puniſhed. f Defileth it and maketh it uncleane, being holy: and ſurely they doe defile it, by l his judgement, which by fleſhly eloquence defile the puritie of the Goſpel. 10 He concludeth the contrary, that they profeſſe pure wiſedome in the Church of God, which refuſe and away all thoſe vanities of men: and if they be mocked of the world, it is ſufficient for em that they be wiſe according to the wiſedome of God, and as he will have them to be iſe. * Iob 5.13. g Be they never ſo craftie, yet the Lord will take them when he ſhall diſco- their trecherie. * Pſal.44.11. 11 He returneth to the propoſition of the 2. verſe, firſt rning the hearers, that henceforward they eſteeme not as lords, thoſe whom God hath pointed to be miniſters, and not lords of their ſalvation: which thing they doe, that depend upon men, and not upon God that ſpeaketh by them. h Pleaſe himſelfe. i Helpes pointed for your benefit. 12 He paſſeth from the perſons to the things themſelves, that is argument may be more forcible: yea, he aſcendeth from Chriſt to the Father, to ſhew at we reſt our ſelves, no not in Chriſt himſelfe, in that that he is man, but becauſe he carieth us up even to the Father, as Chriſt witneſſeth of himſelfe every where, that he was t of his Father, that by this band we may be all knit with God himſelfe.

Chap. IV.

1 Bringing in the definition of a true Apoſtle, 7 he ſheweth that humility ought rather to be an honour then a ſhame unto him. 9 He bringeth in a proofe, whereby it may evidently appeare, 10 that he neither had care of glory, 11 nor of his belly. 17 He commendeth Timothy.

Let[1] a[a] man ſo thinke of us, as of the Miniſters of Chriſt, and diſpoſers of the ſecrets of God:

2 [2] And as for the reſt, it is required of the diſpoſers, that every man be found faithfull.

3 [3] As touching me, I paſſe very little to be judged of you,[4] or of mans [b] judgement: no,[5] I judge not mine own ſelfe.

4 For I know nothing by my ſelfe, yet am I not thereby juſtified: but he that judgeth me, is the [c] Lord.

1 He concludeth the duety of the hearers towards their Miniſters: that they eſteeme them not as lords: and yet notwithſtanding, that they give eare unto them, as to them that are ſent from Chriſt, ſent, I ſay, to this end and purpoſe, that they may receive as it were at their hands, the treaſure of ſalvation which is drawen out of the ſecrets of God.

a Every man.

2 Laſt of all, he warneth the miniſters, that they alſo behave themſelves not as lords, but as faithfull ſervants, becauſe they muſt render an accompt of their ſtewardſhip unto God. 3 Becauſe in reprehending others, he ſet himſelfe for an example, he uſeth a preoccupation or preventing of an objection, and uſing the gravitie of an Apoſtle, he ſheweth that he careth not for the contrary judgements that they have of him, in that they eſteemed him as a vile perſon, becauſe he did not ſet forth himſelfe as they did. And he bringeth good reaſons why he was nothing moved with the judgements which they had of him. 4 Firſt, becauſe that that which men judge in theſe caſes of their own braines, is no more to be accompted of, then when the unlearned doe judge of wiſedome. b Word for word, Day; after the manner of the ſpeech of the Cilicians. 5 Secondly, ſayth he, how can ye judge how much or how little I am to be accompted of, ſeeing that I my ſelfe which know my ſelfe better then you doe, and which dare profeſſe that I have walked in my vocation with a good conſcience, dare not yet notwithſtanding challenge any thing to my ſelfe: for I know that I am not unblameable, all this notwithſtanding: much leſſe therefore ſhould I pleaſe my ſelfe as you doe. c I permit my ſelfe to the Lords judgement.

5 [6] Therefore *judge nothing before the time, untill the Lord come, who will lighten things that are hid in darkneſſe, and make the counſels of the hearts manifeſt: & then ſhall every man have [d] praiſe of God.

6 [7] Now theſe things, brethren, I have figuratively applyed unto mine owne ſelfe, and Apollos, for your ſakes, that ye might learne [e] by us, that no man preſume above that which is written, that one ſwell not againſt another for any mans cauſe.

7 [8] For who ſeparateth thee? and what haſt thou, that thou haſt not received? if thou haſt received it, why rejoyceſt thou, as though [f] thou hadſt not received it?

8 [9] Now ye are full: now ye are made rich: ye reigne as Kings without us: and would to God ye did reigne, that we alſo might reigne with you.

9 For I thinke that God hath ſet forth us the laſt Apoſtles, as men appointed to death: for we are made a [g] gaſing ſtock unto the world, and to the Angels, and to men.

10 We are fooles for Chriſts ſake, and ye are wiſe in Chriſt: we are weake, and ye are ſtrong: ye are honourable, and we are deſpiſed.

11 Unto this houre we both hunger and thirſt, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certaine dwelling place,

12 *And labour, working with our own hands: we are reviled, and yet we bleſſe: we are perſecuted, and ſuffer it:

13 *We are evill ſpoken of, and we pray: we are made as the [h] filth of the world, the offſcowring of all things unto this time.

14 [10] I write not theſe things to ſhame you, but as my beloved children I admoniſh you.

15 For though ye have ten thouſand inſtructours in Chriſt, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Chriſt Ieſus I have begotten you through the Goſpel.

16 Wherefore, I pray you, be ye followers of me.

17 For this cauſe have I ſent unto you Timotheus, which is my beloved ſonne, and faithfull in the Lord, which ſhall put you in remembrance of my [i] wayes in Chriſt, as I teach every where in every Church.

18 [11] Some are puffed up as though I would not come unto you.

19 But I will come to you ſhortly, *if the Lord will, and will know, not the [k] words of them which are puffed up, but the power.

6 A third reaſon proceeding of a concluſion, as it were, out of the former reaſons. It is Gods office to eſteeme every man according to his value, becauſe he knoweth the ſecrets of the heart, which men, for the moſt part are ignorant of. Therefore this judgement pertaineth not to you.

d One could not be praiſed above the reſt, but the other ſhould be blamed: and he mentioneth praiſe rather then diſpraiſe, for that the beginning of this ſore was this, that they gave more to ſome men, then meet was.

7 Having rejected their judgement, he ſetteth forth himſelfe againe as a ſingular example of modeſtie, as one which concealing in this Epiſtle thoſe factious teachers names, doubted not to put down, his own name and Apollos in their place, and tooke upon him as it were their ſhame: ſo farre was hee from preferring himſelfe to any.

e By our example, which choſe rather to take other mens faults upon us, then to carpe any by name.

8 He ſheweth a good meanes to bridle pride: firſt if thou conſider how rightly thou exempteſt thy ſelfe out of the number of others, ſeeing thou art a man thy ſelfe: againe, if thou conſider that although thou have ſome thing more then other men have, yet thou haſt it not but by Gods bountifulneſſe. And what wiſe man is hee that will bragge of anothers goodnes, and that againſt God?

f There is nothing then in us of nature, that is worthy of commendation: but all that we have, we have it of grace, which the Pelagians and halfe Pelagians will not confeſſe.

9 He deſcendeth to a moſt grave mocke, to cauſe thoſe ambitious men to bluſh, even againſt their wills.

g He that will take a right view how like Paul and the Pope are, who lyingly boaſteth that hee is his Succeſſour, let him compare the delicates of the Popiſh court, with Saint Pauls ſtate, as we ſee it heere. * Acts 20.34. 1 Theſſ. 2. 9. 2 Theſſ. 3.8. * Matth.5. 44. Luke 23.34. Acts 7.60. h Such as by ſweeping is gathered together. 10 Moderating the ſharpeneſſe of his mock, he putteth them in mind to remember of whom they were begotten in Chriſt, and that they ſhould not doubt to follow him for an example, although he ſeeme vile, according to the outward ſhew in reſpect of others, yet mighty by the efficacie of Gods Spirit, as they had triall thereof in themſelves. i What way and rule I follow every were in teaching the Churches. 11 Laſt of all he deſcendeth alſo to Apoſtolique threatnings, but yet chiding them as a father, leſt by their diſorder he be conſtrained to come to puniſh ſome amongſt them. * Acts 19 21. Iames 4.15. k By words, he meaneth their painted and coloured kinde of eloquence, againſt which he ſetteth the vertue of the Spirit.

20 For the kingdome of God is not in word, but in power.

21 [12] What will ye? ſhall I come unto you with a rod, or in love, and in the [l] ſpirit of meekeneſſe?

Chap. V.

1 That they have winked at him who committed inceſt with his mother in law, 2. 6 he ſheweth, ſhould cauſe them rather to be aſhamed, then to rejoyce. 10 Such kind of wickedneſſe is to be puniſhed with excommunication, 12 leſt others be infected with it.

It is [1] heard certainely that there is fornication among you: and ſuch fornication as is not once named among the Gentiles, that one ſhould have his fathers wife.

2 [2] And ye are puffed up, and have not rather ſorrowed, that hee which hath done this deed, might be put from among you.

3 [3] For I verely as abſent in body, but preſent in [a] ſpirit, have determined already as though I were preſent, that he that hath thus done this thing,

4 When ye are gathered together, and my ſpirit, in the [b] Name of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, that ſuch one, I ſay, [4] by the power of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

5 [5] Be [c] delivered unto Satan, for the [6] deſtruction of the fleſh, that the ſpirit may be ſaved in the day of the Lord Jeſus.

6 [7] Your rejoycing [d] is not good: know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lumpe?

7 [8] Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new [e] lumpe, as ye are unleavened: for Chriſt our [f] Paſſeover is ſacrificed for us.

8 Therefore let us keep the [g] feaſt, not with old leaven, neither in the leaven of maliciouſneſſe and wickedneſſe: but with the unleavened bread of ſinceritie and trueth.

9 [9] I wrote unto you in an Epiſtle, that ye ſhould not companie together with fornicatours.

10 And not [h] altogether with the fornicatours of this world, or with the covetous, or with extortioners, or with idolaters: for then ye muſt goe out of the world.

11 But now I have written unto you, that ye company not together: if any that is called a brother, be a fornicatour, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with ſuch one eat not.

12 [10] For what have I to doe, to judge them alſo which are without? doe ye not judge them which are within?

13 But God judgeth them that are without. Put away therefore from among your ſelves that wicked man.

Chap. VI.

1 He inveyeth againſt their contentions in law matters, 6 wherewith they vexed one another under judges that were infidels, to the reproch of the Goſpel, 9 and then ſharpely threatneth fornicatours.

Dare [1] [a] any of you, having buſines againſt another, be judged [b] under the unjuſt, [2] and not under the Saints?

2 [3] Doe ye not know, that the Saints ſhal judge the world? If the world then ſhal be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the ſmalleſt matters?

3 Know ye not that we ſhall judge the Angels? how much more things that pertaine to this life?

4 [4] If then ye have [c] judgement of things perteining to this life, ſet up them which are [d] leaſt eſteemed in the Church.

5 [5] I ſpeake it to your ſhame. Is it ſo that there is not a wiſe man among you? no not one, that can judge betweene his brethren?

6 But a brother goeth to law with a brother, and that under the infidels.

7 [6] Now therefore there is altogether [e] infirmitie in you, in that ye go to law one with another: [7] * why rather ſuffer ye not wrong? why rather ſuſtaine ye not harme?

8 * Nay, ye your ſelves doe wrong, and doe harme, and that to your brethren.

9 Know ye not that the unrighteous ſhall not inherite the kingdome of God? [8] Be not deceived: neither fornicatours, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor wantons, nor buggerers,

10 Nor theeves, nor covetous, nor drun-

[12] A paſſing over to another part of this Epiſtle, wherein hee reprehendeth moſt ſharpely a very hainous offence, ſhewing the uſe of Eccleſiaſtical correction.

[1] They are greatly to be reprehended which by ſuffering of wickedneſſe, ſet forth the Church of God to be mocked and ſcorned of infidels.

[2] There are none more proud then they that leaſt know themſelves.

[3] Excommunication ought not to be committed to one mans power, but muſt be done by the authoritie of the whole Congregation, after yͤ the matter is diligently examined.

[a] In mind, thought and will.

[b] Calling upon Chriſt his Name.

[4] There is no doubt but that judgement is ratified in heaven, wherein Chriſt himſelfe ſitteth as Judge.

[5] The excommunicate is delivered to the power of Satan, in that, that he is caſt out of the houſe of God.

[c] What it is to be delivered to Satan, the Lord himſelfe declareth, when he ſaith, Let him bee unto thee as an Heathen and Publicane, Matth.18.17. that is to ſay, to be diſfranchiſed and put out of the right and libertie of the Citie of Chriſt, which is the Church, without which, Satan is Lord and maſter.

[6] The end of excommunication is not to caſt away the excommunicate, that he ſhould utterly periſh, but that he may be ſaved, to wit, that by this meanes his fleſh may be tamed, that he may learne to live to the Spirit.

[7] Another end of excommunication is, that other be not infected, and therfore it muſt of neceſſitie be reteined in the Church, that the one be not infected by the other. [d] Is naught, and not grounded upon good reaſon, as though you were excellent, and yet there is ſuch wickedneſſe found amongſt you. [8] By alluding to the ceremonie of the Paſſeover, he exhorteth them to caſt out that unclean perſon from among them. In times paſt, ſaith he, it was not lawfull for them which did celebrate the Paſſeover to eate leavened bread: inſomuch that he was holden as uncleane and unworthy to eat the Paſſeover, whoſoever had but taſted of leaven. Now all our whole life muſt be as it were the feaſt of unleavened bread, wherein all they that are partakers of that immaculate Lambe which is ſlaine, muſt caſt out both of themſelves, and alſo out of their houſes, and Congregation all impuritie. [e] By lumpe, he meaneth the whole body of the Church, every member whereof muſt be unleavened bread, that is, be renewed in Spirit, by plucking away the old corruption. [f] The Lambe of our Paſſeover. [g] Let us leade our whole life, as it were, a continuall feaſt, honeſtly, and uprightly. [9] Now he ſpeaketh more generally: and that which he ſpake before of the inceſtuous perſon, he ſheweth that it pertaineth to others, which are knowen to be wicked, and ſuch as through their naughty life are a ſlander to the Church, which ought alſo by lawfull order be caſt out of the communitie of the Church. And making mention of eating of meat, either he meaneth thoſe feaſts of love whereat the Supper of the Lord was received, or elſe their common uſage & maner of life: which is rightly to be taken, leſt any man ſhould thinke that either Matrimonie were broken by excommunication, or ſuch dueties hindred and cut off thereby, as we owe one to another: children to their parents, ſubjects to their rulers, ſervants to their maſters, and neighbour to neighbour, to win one another unto God. [h] If you ſhould utterly abſtaine from ſuch mens company, you ſhould go out of the world: therefore I ſpeake of them which are in the very boſome of the Church, which muſt be called home by diſcipline, and not of them which are without: with whom you muſt labour by all meanes poſsible, to bring them to Chriſt.

henſion, to wit, that they went to law even under infidels, whereas they ſhould rather hav ſuffred any loſſe, then to have given that offence. But yet this is generally true, that we oug rather to depart from our right, then trie the uttermoſt of the law haſtily, and upon an affe ction to revenge an injurie. But yet the Corinthians cared for neither, and therefore he ſaith that they muſt repent, unles they will be ſhut out from the inheritance of God. * Matt. 5 39. Luke 6.29. Rom. 12.19. * 1.Theſ. 4.6. [8] Now he prepareth himſelf to paſſe over to th fourth Treatiſe of this Epiſtle, which concerneth matters indifferent, debating this matte firſt, how men may well uſe women or not: which queſtion hath three branches, fornicatio matrimonie, & a ſingle life. As for fornication, he utterly condemneth it. And mariage he com mandeth to ſome, as a good and neceſſary remedie for them, to other he leaveth it free: An other ſome he diſſuadeth from it, not as unlawful, but as diſcommodious, & that not withou exception. As for the ſinglenes of life (under which alſo I comprehend virginitie) he enjoy neth it to no man: yet he perſwadeth men unto it, but not for it ſelfe, but for another reſpec neither all men, nor without exception. And being about to ſpeake againſt fornication, h beginneth with a generall reprehenſion of thoſe vices, wherewith that rich and riotous C tie moſt abounded: warning and teaching them earneſtly, that repentance is unſeparabl joyned with forgivenes of ſins, and ſanctification with juſtification.

kards, nor railers, nor extortioners ſhall inherit the kingdome of God.

11 And ſuch were * ſome of you: but ye are waſhed, but ye are ſanctified, but ye are juſtified in the [f] Name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 ¶ *[9] [g] All things are lawfull unto me, but all things are not profitable. I may do all things, but I will not be brought under the [h] power of any thing.

13 [10] Meats are ordained for the belly, and the bellie for the meats: but God ſhall deſtroy both it, and them. Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body.

14 And God hath alſo raiſed up the Lord, and * ſhall raiſe us up by his power.

15 [11] Know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Chriſt? ſhal I then take the members of Chriſt, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 [12] Doe ye not know, that he which coupleth himſelf with an harlot, is one body? * for [i] two, ſaith he, ſhalbe one fleſh.

17 But he that is joyned unto the Lord, is one ſpirit.

18 [13] Flee fornication: every ſin that a man doeth, is without the body: but he that committeth fornication, ſinneth againſt his own body.

19 [14] Know ye not, that * your body is the Temple of the Holy Ghoſt, which is in you, whom ye have of God? and [15] ye are not your own.

20 * For yee are bought for a price: therefore glorifie God in your body, and in your ſpirit: for they are Gods.

* Titus 3.3.

* Chap. 10.23.

9 Secondly, he ſheweth that the Corinthians doe ſimply offend in matters indifferent: Firſt, becauſe they abuſed them: next, becauſe they uſed indifferent things, without any diſcretion, ſeeing the uſe of them ought to be brought to the rule of charitie: and that hee doth not uſe them aright, which immoderately abuſeth them, and ſo becommeth a ſlave unto them.

g Whatſoever: but this generall word muſt be reſtrained to things that are indifferent.

h He is in ſubiection to things that are indifferent, whatſoever hee be that thinketh he may not be without them: which is a flattering kind of ſlavery under a colour of libertie, which ſeiſeth upon ſuch men.

10 Secondarily, becauſe they counted many things for indifferent, which were of themſelves unlawfull, as fornication, which they numbred amongſt meere naturall and lawfull deſires, aſwel as meat and drinke: Therfore the Apoſtle ſheweth, that they are utterly unlike: for meats, ſaith hee, were made for the neceſſary uſe of mans life, which is not perpetuall: For both meats, and all this manner of nouriſhing, are quickly aboliſhed. But we muſt not ſo thinke of the uncleanneſſe of fornication, for which the bodie is not made, but on the contrary ſide is ordained to pureneſſe, as appeareth by this, that it is conſecrated to Chriſt, even as Chriſt alſo is given us of his Father, to quicken our bodies with that vertue, wherewith he alſo roſe againe. * *Rom.*6.5. 11 A declaration of the former argument by contraries, and the applying of it. 12 A proofe of the ſame argument: A harlot and Chriſt are cleane contrary, ſo are the fleſh and the Spirit: therefore he that is one with an harlot, (which is done by carnall copulation of their bodies) cannot be one with Chriſt, which unitie is pure and ſpirituall. * *Gen.*2.24. Matt. 19.5. Marke 10.8. *Epheſ.*5.31. i Moſes doeth not ſpeake theſe words of fornication, but of marriage: but ſeeing that fornication is the corruption of marriage, and both of them is a carnall and fleſhly copulation, wee cannot ſay that the Apoſtle abuſeth his teſtimonie. Againe, Moſes hath not this word (Two) but it is very well expreſſed both here and in Matthew 19.5. becauſe he ſpeaketh onely but of man and wife: whereupon the opinion of them that vouch it to be lawfull to have many wives, is beaten down: for he that companieth with many, is ſundred as it were into many parts. 13 Another argument why fornication is to be eſchewed, becauſe it defileth the body with a peculiar kinde of filthineſſe. 14 The third argument: Becauſe a fornicatour is ſacrilegious, for that our bodies are conſecrate to God. * *Chap.*3.17. 2.*Cor.*6.16. 15 The fourth Argument: Becauſe we are not our own men, to give our ſelves to any other, much leſſe to Satan and the fleſh, ſeeing that God himſelfe hath bought us, and that with a great price, to the end that both in body and ſoule, we ſhould ſerve to his glorie. * Chap. 7.23. 1 Pet. 1.18.

CHAP. VII.

1 Entreating here of Marriage, 4 which is a remedie againſt fornication, 10 And may not be broken, 18. 20 he willeth every man to live contented with his own lot. 25 He ſheweth what the end of virginitie ſhould be, 35 And who ought to marrie.

NOw [1] concerning the things [a] whereof ye wrote unto me, It were [b] good for a man not to touch a woman.

2 Nevertheleſſe, to avoyd fornication, let every man have his wife, and let every woman have her own husband.

3 * [2] Let the husband give unto the wife [c] due benevolence, and likewiſe alſo the wife unto the husband.

4 [3] The wife hath not the power of her own body, but the husband: and likewiſe alſo the husband hath not the power of his own body, but the wife.

5 Defraud not one another, [4] except it be with conſent for a time, that ye may [d] give your ſelves to faſting and prayer, and again come together, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinencie.

6 [5] But I ſpeake this by permiſſion, not by commandement.

7 For I [e] would that all men were even as I my ſelfe am: but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that.

8 [6] Therefore I ſay unto the [f] unmarried, and unto the widowes, It is good for them if they abide even as I doe.

9 But if they cannot abſtaine, let them marrie: for it is better to marrie then to [g] burn.

10 * [7] And unto the married, I command, not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her husband.

11 But and if ſhee depart, let her remaine unmarried, or be reconciled unto her husband, and let not the husband put away his wife.

12 [8] But to the remnant I ſpeake, and not the Lord, If any brother have a wife, that beleeveth not, if ſhee be content to dwell with him, let him not forſake her.

13 And the woman which hath an husband that beleeveth not, if hee be content to dwell with her, let her not forſake him, 14 [9] For the unbeleeving husband is [h] ſanctified to the [i] wife, and the unbeleeving wife is ſanctified to the [k] husband, elſe were your children uncleane: but now are they [l] holy.

15 [10] But if the unbeleeving depart, let him depart: a brother or a ſiſter is not in ſubjection in [m] ſuch things: [11] but God hath called us in peace.

16 For what knoweſt thou, O wife,

1 He teacheth concerning marriage, that although a ſingle life hath his commodities, which he will declare afterwards, yet that marriage is neceſſary for the avoiding of fornication: but ſo that neither one man may have many wives, nor any wife many husbands. a Touching thoſe matters whereof you wrote unto me. b Commodious, and (as we ſay) expedient. For marriage bringeth many griefes with it, and that by reaſon of the corruption of our firſt eſtate.

* 1.*Pet.*3.7.

2 Secondly, hee ſheweth that the parties married muſt with ſingular affection, entirely love one the other.

c This word (due) containeth all kinde of benevolence, though he ſpeake more of one ſort then of the other, in that that followeth.

3 Thirdly, he warneth them, that they are each in others power, as touching the bodie, ſo that they may not defraud one another.

4 He addeth an exception, unleſſe the one abſtaine from the other by mutuall conſent, that they may the better give themſelves to prayer, wherein notwithſtanding, he warneth them to conſider what is expedient, leſt by this long breaking off, as it were from marriage, they be ſtirred up to incontinencie.

5 Fifthly, he teacheth that marriage is not ſimply neceſſary for all men, but for them which have not the gift of continencie, and this gift is by a peculiar grace of God.

e I wiſh.

6 Sixtly, he giveth the ſelf ſame admonition touching the ſecond marriage, to wit, that a ſingle life is to be allowed but for ſuch as have the gift of continencie: otherwiſe they ought to marry again, that their conſcience may be at peace.

f This whole place is flat againſt them which condemne ſecond marriages.

g So to burn with luſt, that either the will yeeldeth to the temptation, or els wee cannot call upon God with a quiet conſcience.

* *Matt.*5.32. and 19.9. Marke 10.11.12. Luke 16.18.

7 Seventhly, he forbiddeth contentions and publiſhing of divorces, (for hee ſpeaketh not here of the fault of whoredome, which was then death even by the law of the Romanes alſo) whereby he affirmeth that the band of marriage it not diſſolved, and that from Chriſt his month. 8 Eightly, he affirmeth, that thoſe marriages which are alreadie contracted between a faithfull, and an unfaithfull, or infidel, are firme: ſo that the faithfull may nor forſake the unfaithfull. 9 He anſwereth an objection: But the faithfull is defiled by the ſocietie of the unfaithfull. The Apoſtle denieth that, and proveth, that the faithfull man with good conſcience may uſe the veſſel of his unfaithfull wife, by this, that their children which are born of them, are accounted holy (that is, conteined within the promiſe) for it is ſaid to all the faithfull, I will be thy God, and the God of thy ſeed. h The godlineſſe of the wife is of more force, to cauſe their coupling together to be accounted holy, then the infidelitie of the husband is, to prophane the marriage. i The infidell is not ſanctified or made holy in his own perſon, but in reſpect of his wife hee is ſanctified to her. k To the faithfull husband. l This place deſtroyeth the opinion of them, that would not have children to be baptized, and their opinion alſo, that make Baptiſme the very cauſe of ſalvation. For the children of the faithfull are holy, by vertue of the covenant, even before Baptiſme, and Baptiſme is added as the ſeale of that holineſſe. 10 He anſwereth to a queſtion: What if the unfaithfull forſake the faithfull? then is the faithfull free, ſaith he, becauſe he is forſaken of the unfaithfull. m When any ſuch thing falleth out. 11 Leſt any man upon pretence of this libertie ſhould give an occaſion to the unfaithfull to depart, he giveth to underſtand, that marriage contracted with an infidel, ought peaceably to be kept, that if it be poſſible, the infidel may be won to the faith.

whether thou ſhalt ſave thine husband? Or what knoweſt thou, O man, whether thou ſhalt ſave thy wife?

17 [12] But as God hath diſtributed to every man, as the Lord hath [n] called every one, ſo let him walke: and ſo ordaine I in all Churches.

18 [13] Is any man called being circumciſed? let him not [o] gather his uncircumciſion: is any called uncircumciſed? let him not be circumciſed.

19 Circumciſion is nothing, and uncircumciſion is nothing, but the keeping of the commandements of God.

20 * Let every man abide in the ſame vocation wherein he was called.

21 Art thou called being a ſervant? [p] care nor for it: but yet if thou mayeſt be free, uſe it rather.

22 For he that is called in the [q] Lord, being a ſervant, is the Lords free man: likewiſe alſo, he that is called being free, is Chriſts ſervant.

23 * [14] Ye are bought with a price: be not the ſervants of men.

24 [15] Brethren, let every man, wherein he was called, therein abide with [r] God.

25 [16] Now concerning virgins, I have no commandement of the Lord: but I give mine [ſ] adviſe, as [t] one that hath obtained mercie of the Lord to be faithfull.

26 I ſuppoſe then [v] this to be good for the [x] preſent neceſsitie: I meane that it is good for a man ſo to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? ſeek not to be looſed: art thou looſed from a wife? ſeek not a wife.

28 But if thou takeſt a wife, thou ſinneſt not: and if a virgine marrie, ſhe ſinneth not: nevertheleſſe, ſuch ſhall have trouble in the [y] fleſh: but I [z] ſpare you.

29 And this I ſay, brethren, becauſe the time is [a] ſhort, hereafter, that both they which have wives, be as though they had none:

30 And they that [b] weepe, as though they wept not: and they that rejoyce, as though they rejoyced not: and they that buy, as though they poſſeſſed not:

31 And they that uſe this [c] world, as though they uſed it not: for the [d] faſhion of this world goeth away.

12 Taking occaſion by that which he ſaid of the bondage and libertie of matrimonie, he digreſſeth to a generall doctrine concerning the outward ſtate and condition of mans life, as Circumciſion and uncircumciſion, ſervitude and libertie: warning every man generally to live with a contented minde in the Lord, what ſtate or condition ſoever he be in, becauſe, that thoſe outward things, as to be circumciſed or uncircumciſed, to be bond or free, are not of the ſubſtance (as they terme it) of the kingdome of heaven.

n Hath bound him to a certain kind of life.

13 Notwithſtanding he giveth us to underſtand, that in theſe examples all are not of like ſort: becauſe that Circumciſion not ſimply of it ſelfe is to be deſired, but ſuch as are bound may deſire to be free. Therefore heerein onely they are equall, that the kingdome of God conſiſteth not in them, and therefore theſe are no hinderances to obey God.

o He is ſaid to gather his uncircumciſion, who by the helpe of a Chirurgian, recovereth an upper skinne: which is done by drawing the skin with an inſtrument, to make it to cover the nut. Celſus in his 7. Booke and 25 Chapter.

q He that is in ſtate of a ſervant, and is called to be a Chriſtian.

* Chap.6.20. 1 Pet.1. 18.19.

14 He ſheweth the reaſon of the unlikeneſſe, becauſe that hee that deſireth to be circumciſed, maketh himſelfe ſubject to mans tradition, and not to God. And this may bee much more underſtood of ſuperſtitions, which ſome doe fooliſhly account for things indifferent. 15 A repetition of the generall doctrine. r So purely and from the heart, that your doings may be approved before God. 16 Hee enjoyneth virginitie to no man, yet he perſwadeth and praiſeth it for another reſpect, to wit, both for the neceſſitie of the preſent time, becauſe the faithfull could ſcarce abide in any place, and uſe the commodities of this preſent life, & therefore ſuch as were not troubled with families, might bee the readier, and alſo for the cares of this life, which marriage draweth with it of neceſſitie, ſo that they cannot but have their minds diſtracted: and this hath place in women eſpecially. ſ The circumſtances conſidered, this I counſell you. t It is I that ſpeake this which I am minded to ſpeake: and the trueth is, I am a man, but yet worthy credit, for I have obtained of the Lord to be ſuch an one. u To remaine a virgine. x For the neceſsitie which the Saints are daily ſubject unto, who are continually toſſed up and down, ſo that their eſtate may ſeeme moſt unfit for marriage, were it not that the weakeneſſe of the fleſh inforced them to it. y By the (Fleſh) he underſtandeth what things ſoever belong to this preſent life, for marriage bringeth with it many diſcommodities: ſo that he bendeth more to a ſole life, not becauſe it is a ſervice more agreable to God then marriage is, but for thoſe diſcommodities, which (if it were poſsible) hee would wiſh all men to be voide of, that they might give themſelves to God onely. z I would your weaknes were provided for. a For we are now in the latter end of the world. b By weeping the Hebrewes underſtand all adverſitie, and by ioy, all proſperitie. c Theſe things which God giveth us here. d The guiſe, and ſhape, and faſhion: whereby he ſheweth us, that there is nothing in this world that continueth.

32 And I would have you without care. The unmaried careth for the things of the Lord, how he may pleaſe the Lord:

33 But he that is married, [e] careth for the things of the world, how he may pleaſe his wife.

34 There is difference alſo between a virgine and a wife: the unmaried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that ſhee may be holy, both in bodie, and in [f] ſpirit: but ſhee that is married, careth for the things of the world, how ſhe may pleaſe her husband.

35 And this I ſpeake for your own [g] commoditie, not to tangle you in a ſnare, but that ye follow that, which is honeſt, and that ye may cleave faſt unto the Lord without ſeparation.

36 [17] But if any man think that it is uncomely for his virgine, if ſhe paſſe the floure of her age, and need ſo require, let him doe what he will, he [h] ſinneth not: let them be married.

37 Nevertheleſſe, he that ſtandeth firme in his [i] heart, that he hath no [k] need, but hath power over his own will, and hath ſo decreed in his heart, that he will keep his virgine, he doeth well.

38 So then he that giveth her to marriage, doth well, but he that giveth her not to marriage, doth [l] better.

39 [18] The wife is bound by the [m] Law, as long as her husband * liveth: but if her husband be dead, ſhe is at libertie to marrie with whom ſhe wil, onely in the [n] Lord.

40 But ſhe is more bleſſed, if ſhe ſo abide, in my judgement: * and I think that I have alſo the Spirit of God.

CHAP. VIII.

1 From this place unto the end of the tenth Chapter, he willeth them not to be at the Gentiles prophane banquets. 10 He reſtraineth the abuſe of Chriſtian liberty, 11 and ſheweth that knowledge muſt be tempered with charitie.

AND [1] as touching things ſacrificed unto idoles: we know that we [a] all have knowledge: knowledge [b] puffeth up, but love [c] edifieth.

2 Now if any man thinke that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know.

3 But if any man love God, the ſame is knowen of him.

1 He entreth to intreat of anothe kinde of things indifferent, to wit, of things offred
to idoles, or the uſe of fleſh ſo offered and ſacrificed. And firſt of all he removeth
all thoſe things which the Corinthians pretended in uſing things offered to idoles without any reſpect. Firſt of al they affirmed, that this difference of meats was for the unskilfull men, but as for them they knew well enough the benefit of Chriſt, which cauſeth all theſe things to be cleane to them that are cleane. Be it ſo ſaith Paul: be it that we are all ſufficiently inſtru-cted in the knowledge of Chriſt, I ſay notwithſtanding that we muſt not ſimply reſt in this knowledge. The reaſon is, that unleſſe our knowledge be tempered with charity, it doeth not onely not availe, but alſo doth much hurt, becauſe it is the miſtreſſe of pride:
nay, it doth not ſo much as deſerve the name of godly knowledge, if it be ſeparat from the love of God, and therefore from the love of our neighbour. a This generall word is to be abriged as appeareth, verſ.7. for there is a kinde of taunt in it, as we may perceive by the next verſe.
b Miniſtreth occaſion of vanitie and pride: becauſe it is void of charitie. c Inſtructeth our neigh- bour.

4 [2] Concerning therefore the eating of things ſacrificed unto [d] idols, we know that an idole is [e] nothing in the world, and that there is none other God but one.

5 For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven, or in earth (as there be many gods, and many lords)

6 Yet unto us there is but one God, which is that father, [f] of whom are all things, and we [g] in him: and * [h] one Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [i] by whom are all things, and we by him.

7 [3] But every man hath not that knowledge: for [4] many having [k] conſcience of the idol, untill this houre, eat as a thing ſacrificed unto the idol, and ſo their conſcience being weak, is defiled.

8 [5] But meat maketh us not acceptable to God, for neither if we eat, we have the more: neither if we eat not, have we the leſſe.

9 But take heed, leſt by any meanes this power of yours be an occaſion of falling, to them that are weak.

10 [6] For if any man ſee thee which haſt knowledge, ſit at meat in the idols temple, ſhall not the conſcience of him which is weak, be boldened to eat thoſe things which are ſacrificed to idols?

11 [7] And through thy knowledge ſhall the * weak brother periſh, for whom Chriſt died.

12 [8] Now when ye ſinne ſo againſt the brethren, and wound their weak conſcience, ye ſinne againſt Chriſt.

13 * [9] Wherefore if meat offend my brother, I will eat no fleſh while the world ſtandeth, that I may not offend my brother.

[2] The application of that anſwer to things offered to idols: I grant, ſaith he, that an idol is indeed a vain imagination, and that there is but one God and Lord, and therefore that meat cannot be made either holy or profane by the idol: but it followeth not therefore that a man may without reſpect uſe thoſe meats as any other.

[d] This word (Idol) in this place is taken for an image which is made to repreſent ſome godhead, that worſhip might be given unto it: whereupon came the word (Idolatry) that is to ſay, Image ſervice.

[f] When the Father is diſtinguiſhed from the Sonne, he is named the beginning of all things.

[g] We have our being in him.

* Iohn 13.13. Chap. 12.3.

[h] But as the Father is called Lord, ſo is the Sonne, God: therefore this word (One) doth not reſpect the perſons, but the nature.

[i] This word (By) doth not ſignifie the inſtrumentall cauſe, but the efficient: for the Father and the Sonne work together, which is not ſo to be taken, that we make two cauſes, ſeeing they have both but one nature, though they be diſtinct perſons.

[3] The reaſon why that followeth not, is this: becauſe there are many men which do not know that which you know. Now the judgement of outward things depend not onely upon your conſcience, but upon the conſcience of them that behold you, and therefore your actions muſt be applyed not onely to your knowledge, but alſo to the ignorance of your brethren. [4] An applying of the reaſon: There are many which cannot eat of things offered to idoles, but with a wavering conſcience, becauſe they thinke them to be unclean: therefore if by thy example they enterpriſe to do that which inwardly they think diſpleaſeth God, their conſcience is defiled with their eating, and thou haſt been the occaſion of this miſchief. [k] By conſcience of the idol, he meaneth the ſecret judgement that they had within themſelves, whereby they thought all things unclean, that were offered to idols, and therefore they could not uſe them with good conſcience. For this force hath conſcience, that if it be good, it maketh things indifferent good, and if it be evill, it maketh them evill. [5] A preventing of an objection: Why then, ſhall we therefore be deprived of our liberty? Nay, ſaith the Apoſtle, you ſhall loſe no part of Chriſtianitie although you abſtain for your brethrens ſake, as alſo if ye receive the meat, it maketh you no whit the more holy: for our commendation before God conſiſteth not in meats: but to uſe our liberty with offence of our brethren, is an abuſe of liberty, the true uſe thereof is clean contrary, to wit, ſo to uſe it, as in uſing of it we have conſideration of our weake brethren. [6] Another plain explication of the ſame reaſon, propounding the example of the ſitting down at the table in the idols temple, which thing the Corinthians did evill account of among things indifferent, becauſe it is ſimply forbidden for the circumſtance of the place, although offence do ceaſe, as it ſhall be declared in his place. [7] An amplification of the argument taken both of compariſon and contraries: Thou wretched man, ſaith he, pleaſing thy ſelf with thy knowledge, which indeed is none, (for if thou hadſt true knowledge, thou wouldeſt not ſit down to meat in an idoles temple) wilt thou deſtroy thy brother, hardening his weake conſcience by thine example to do evill, for whoſe ſalvation Chriſt himſelf hath died? * Rom. 14. 15. [8] Another amplification: Such offending of our weake brethren, redoundeth unto Chriſt, and therefore let not theſe men think that they have to do onely with their brethren. * Rom. 14. 21. [9] The concluſion, which Paul conceiveth in his own perſon, that he might not ſeem to exact that of other, which he will not be firſt ſubject to himſelf, I had rather (ſaith he) abſtain for ever from all kind of fleſh, then give occaſion of ſinne to any of my brethren, much leſſe would I refuſe in any certain place or time for my brothers ſake not to eat fleſh offered to idols.

CHAP. IX.

1 He declareth, that from the libertie which the Lord gave him, 15 he willingly abſtained, 18. 22 leſt in things indifferent he ſhould offend any. 24 He ſheweth that our life is like unto a race.

AM [1] I not an Apoſtle? Am I not free? [2] have I not ſeen Jeſus Chriſt our Lord? are ye not [a] my work in the Lord?

2 If I be not an Apoſtle unto other, yet doubtleſſe I am unto you: for ye are the [b] ſeale of mine Apoſtleſhip in the Lord.

3 [3] My defence to them that [c] examine me, is this,

4 [4] Have we not power to [d] eat and to drink?

5 Or have we not power to leade about a wife being a [e] ſiſter, as well as the reſt of the Apoſtles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I onely and Barnabas, have not we power [f] not to work?

7 [5] Who [g] goeth a warfare at any time at his own coſt? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 [6] Say I theſe things [h] according to man? ſaith not the law the ſame alſo?

9 For it is written in the law of Moſes, * Thou ſhalt not muzzle the mouth of the oxe that treadeth out the corn: doth God take care for [i] Oxen?

10 Either ſaith he it not altogether for our ſakes? For our ſakes no doubt it is written, that he which eareth, ſhould eare in hope, and that he that threſheth in hope, ſhould be partaker of his hope.

11 * [7] If we have ſowen unto you ſpirituall things, is it a great thing if we reap your carnall things?

12 [8] If others with you be partakers of this [k] power, are not we rather? neverthelesſe, we have not uſed this power, but ſuffer all things, that we ſhould not hinder the Goſpel of Chriſt.

13 [9] Do ye not know, that they which miniſter about the * holy things, eat of the [l] things of the Temple? and they which wait at the Altar, are [m] partakers with the Altar?

14 So alſo hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the Goſpel, ſhould live [n] of the Goſpel.

[1] Before he proceedeth any further in his propoſed matter of things offered to idols, he would ſhew the cauſe of all this miſchief, and alſo take it away: to wit, that the Corinthians thought themſelves not bound to depart from a jot of their liberty for any mans pleaſure. Therefore he propoundeth himſelf for an example, and that in a matter moſt neceſſary. And yet he ſpeaketh ſeverally of both, but firſt of his own perſon. If (ſaith he) you alledge for your ſelves, that you are free, and therefore will uſe your liberty, am not I alſo free, ſeeing I am an Apoſtle?

[2] He proveth his Apoſtleſhip by the effects, in that he was appointed of Chriſt himſelf, & the authority of his function was ſufficiently confirmed to him amongſt them by their converſion. And all theſe things he ſetteth before their eyes, to make them aſhamed, for that they would not in the leaſt wiſe that might be, debaſe themſelves for the weaks ſake, whereas ye Apoſtle himſelf did all that he could to win them to God, when they were utterly reprobate and without God.

[a] By the Lord.

[b] As a ſeale, whereby it appeareth ſufficiently that God is the authour of mine Apoſtleſhip.

[3] He addeth this by the way, as if he would ſay, So far it is off, that you may doubt of my Apoſtleſhip, that I uſe to refute them which call it into controverſie, by oppoſing thoſe things which the Lord hath done by me amongſt you.

[c] Which like judges examin me, and my doings.

[4] Now touching the matter it ſelf, he ſaith, Seeing that I am free, and truly an Apoſtle, why may not I (I ſay not, eat of all things offered to idols, but) be maintained by my labours, yea, and keep my wife alſo, as the reſidue of the Apoſtles lawfully do, as by name, John and James, the Lords couſins, and Peter himſelf? [d] Upon the expence of the Church? [e] One that is a Chriſtian and a true beleever? [f] Not live by the works of our hands. [5] That he may not ſeem to burden the Apoſtles, he ſheweth that it is juſt that they do, by an argument of compariſon, ſeeing that ſouldiers live by their wages, and husbandmen by the fruits of their labours, and ſhepheards by that that cometh of their flocks. [g] Uſeth to go a warfare. [6] Secondly, he bringeth forth the authority of Gods inſtitution by an argument of compariſon. [h] Have I no better ground then the common cuſtome of men? * Deut. 25. 4. 1 Tim. 5. 18. [i] Was it Gods proper drift to provide for Oxen when he made this Law? for otherwiſe there is not the ſmalleſt thing in the world, but God hath a care of it. * Rom. 15.27. [7] An aſſumption of the arguments with an amplification, for neither in ſo doing doe we require a reward meet for our deſerts. [8] Another argument of great force: Other are nouriſhed amongſt you, therefore it was lawfull for me, yea, rather for me then any other: and yet I refuſed it, and had rather ſtill ſuffer any diſcommoditie, then the Goſpel of Chriſt ſhould be hindered. [k] The word ſignifieth, a right and intereſt, whereby he giveth us to underſtand that the miniſters of the word muſt of right and duty be found of the Church. [9] Laſt of all, he bringeth forth the expreſſe Law concerning the nouriſhing of the Levites: which priviledge notwithſtanding he will not uſe. * Deut. 18. 1. [l] This is ſpoken by the figure Metonymia, for, of thoſe things that are offered in the Temple. [m] Are partakers with the Altar in dividing the ſacrifice. [n] Becauſe they preach the Goſpel. It followeth by this place, that Paul gat no living, neither would have any other man get, by any commodities of Maſſes, or any other ſuch ſuperſtitious trumperies.

15 But I have uſed none of theſe things: [10] neither wrote I theſe things, that it ſhould be ſo done unto me: for it were better for me to die, then that any man ſhould make my rejoycing vain.

16 For though I preach the Goſpel, I have nothing to rejoyce of: for neceſſity is laid upon me, and wo is unto me, If I preach not the Goſpel.

17 For if I do it willingly, I have a reward, but if I do it againſt my will, notwithſtanding the diſpenſation is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? verely that when I preach the Goſpel, I make the Goſpel of Chriſt [o] free, that I abuſe not my authority in the Goſpel.

19 For though I be free from all men, yet have I made my ſelf ſervant unto all men, that I might win the moe.

20 * And unto the Jewes, I become as a Jew, that I may win the Jewes: to them that are under the [p] Law, as though I were under the law, that I may win them that are under the law:

21 To them that are without law, as though I were without law, (when I am not without law as pertaining to God, but am in the law through Chriſt) that I may win them that are without law.

22 To the weak I become as weak, that I may win the weak: I am made all things to [q] all men, that I might by all meanes ſave ſome.

23 And this I do for the Goſpels ſake, that I might be partaker thereof with [r] you.

24 [11] Know ye not, that they which run in a race, run all, yet one receiveth the price? ſo run that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that proveth maſteries, [ſ] abſtaineth from all things: and they do it to obtain a corruptible crown: but we for an uncorruptible.

26 I therefore ſo run, not as uncertainly: ſo fight I, not as one that beateth the aire.

27 But I beat down my [t] body, and bring it into ſubjection, leſt by any meanes after that I have preached to other, I my ſelf ſhould be [v] reproved.

[10] He taketh away occaſion of ſuſpition by the way, that it might not be thought that he wrote this as though he challenged his wages that was not paid him. Nay, ſaith he, I had rather die, then not to continue in this purpoſe to preach the Goſpel freely. For I am bound to preach the Goſpel, ſeeing that the Lord hath enjoyned me this office: but unleſſe I do it willingly, and for the love of God, nothing is to be allowed that I do. If I had rather that the Goſpel ſhould be evill ſpoken of, then that I ſhould not require my wages, then would it appeare that I took theſe paines not ſo much for the Goſpels ſake, as for my gaines and advantages. But I ſay, this were not to uſe, but abuſe my right, and libertie: Therefore not onlyin this thing, but alſo in all other (as much as I could) I am made all things to all men, that I might win them to Chriſt, and might together with them be wonne to Chriſt.

* Acts 16. 3. Gal. 2. 3.

[q] In matters that are indifferent, which may be done or not done with a good conſcience: as if he ſaid, I changed my ſelf into all faſhions, that by all meanes I might ſave ſome.

[r] That both I and they to whõ I preach the Goſpel, may receive fruit by the Goſpel.

[11] He bringeth in another cauſe of this miſchief, to wit, that they were given to gluttony, for there were ſolemn banquets of ſacrifices, and the riot of the Prieſts was alwayes too much celebrated and kept. Therefore it was hard for them which were accuſtomed to riotuouſneſſe, eſpecially when they pretended the liberty of the Goſpel, to be reſtrained from theſe banquets: but contrariwiſe the Apoſtle calleth them by a pleaſant ſimilitude, and alſo by his own example, to ſobriety and mortification of the fleſh, ſhewing that they cannot be fit to run or wreſtle (as then the games of Iſthmies were) which pamper up their bodies: and therefore affirming that they can have no reward, unleſſe they take another courſe and trade of life.

[v] This word (Reproved) is not ſet as contrary to the word (Elect) but as contrary to the word (Approved) when we ſee one by experience not to be ſuch an one as he ought to be.

Chap. X.

1 If God ſpared not the Iewes, neither will he ſpare thoſe who are of like condition, 3. 4 touching the outward ſignes of his grace. 14 That it is abſurd, that ſuch ſhould be partakers of the table of the devils, who are partakers of the Lords Supper. 24 To have conſideration of our neighbour in things indifferent.

MOreover, [1] brethren, I would not that ye ſhould be ignorant, that all our [a] fathers were under * that cloude, and all paſſed thorow that * ſea.

2 [2] And were all [b] baptized unto [c] Moſes, in that cloud, and in that ſea,

3 * And did all eate the [d] ſame ſpirituall [e] meat.

4 * And did all drinke the ſame ſpirituall drinke (for they dranke of the ſpirituall Rock that [f] followed them: and the Rock was [g] Chriſt.)

5 But with many of them God was not pleaſed: for they were * overthrowen in the wilderneſſe.

6 [3] Now theſe things are our [h] enſamples, to the intent that we ſhould not luſt after evill things, * as they alſo luſted.

7 Neither be ye idolaters, as were ſome of them, as it is written, * The people ſate down to eat and drink, and roſe up to play.

8 Neither let us commit fornication, as ſome of them committed fornication, and fell in one * day three and twenty thouſand.

9 Neither let us tempt [i] Chriſt, as ſome of them alſo tempted him, and * were deſtoryed of Serpents.

10 Neither murmure ye, as ſome of them * alſo murmured, and were deſtroyed of the deſtroyer.

11 Now all theſe things came vnto them for enſamples, and were written to admoniſh us, upon whom the [k] ends of the world are come.

12 [4] Wherefore, let him that thinketh he ſtandeth, take heed leſt he fall.

13 There hath no tentation taken you, but ſuch as appertaineth to [l] man: and God is faithfull, which will not ſuffer you to be tempted above that you be able, but will even [m] give the iſſue with the tentation, that ye may be able to beare it.

14 Wherefore my beloved, flee from idolatrie.

[4] In conluſion, he deſcendeth to the Corinthians themſelves, warning them that they pleaſe not themſelves, but rather that they prevent the ſubtilties of Satan. Yet he uſeth an inſinuation, and comforteth them, that he may not ſeem to make them altogether like to thoſe wicked idolaters and contemners of Chriſt, which periſhed in the wilderneſſe.

[m] He that would have you tempted for your profits ſake, will give you an iſſue to eſcape out of the tentation

[5] Now returning to thoſe idoles feaſts, that he may not ſeeme to dally at all, firſt he promiſeth that he will uſe no other reaſons then ſuch as they knew very well themſelves. And he uſeth an induction borowed from the agreement that is in the things themſelves. The holy bankets of the Chriſtians are pledges, firſt of all, of the communitie that they haue with Chriſt, and next, one with another. The Iſraelites alſo doe ratifie in their ſacrifices, their mutuall conjunction in one ſelfe ſame Religion: therefore ſo doe the idolaters alſo ioyne themſelves with their Idoles, or devils rather, (for idoles are nothing) in thoſe ſolemne banquets, whereupon it followeth, that that table is a table of divels, and therefore you muſt eſchew it: For you cannot be partakers of the Lord and of idoles together, much leſſe may ſuch banquets be accounted for things indifferent. Will ye then ſtrive with God? and if ye doe, thinke you that you ſhall get the upper hand?

understanding: judge ye what I ſay.

16 The cup of [n]bleſſing which we bleſſe, is it not the [o]communion of the blood of Chriſt? The bread which we breake, is it not the communion of the body of Chriſt?

17 For we that are many, are one bread and one body, becauſe we are all partakers of one bread.

18 Behold Iſrael, which is after the [p]fleſh: are not they which eat of the ſacrifices, [q]partakers of the altar?

19 What ſay I then? that the idol is any thing? or that which is ſacrificed to idols, is any thing?

20 Nay, but that theſe things which the Gentiles ſacrifice, they ſacrifice to devils, and not unto God: and I would not that ye ſhould have [r]fellowſhip with the devils.

21 Ye cannot drink of the cup of the Lord, and the [ſ]cup of the devils. Ye cannot be partakers of the Lords table, and of the table of the devils.

22 Do we provoke the Lord to anger? are we ſtronger then he?

23 * [6] [t]All things are lawfull for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawfull for me, but all things edifie not.

24 Let no man ſeek his own, but every man anothers wealth.

25 [7] Whatſoever is ſold in the [v]ſhambles, eat ye, and ask no queſtion for conſcience ſake.

26 *For the earth is the Lords, and [x]all that therein is.

27 For if any of them which beleeve not, call you to a feaſt, and if ye will go, whatſoever is ſet before you, eat, aſking no queſtion for conſcience ſake.

28 But if any man ſay unto you, This is ſacrificed unto idols, eat it not, becauſe of him that ſhewed it, and for the conſcience (for the earth is the Lords, and all that therin is)

29 And the conſcience, I ſay, not thine, but of that other: [8] for why ſhould my liberty be condemned of another mans conſcience?

30 For if I through Gods [y]benefit be partaker, why am I evill ſpoken of, for that wherefore I give thanks?

31 * [9] Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatſoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

32 Give none offence, neither to the Jewes, nor to the Grecians, nor to the Church of God:

33 Even as I pleaſe all men in all things, not ſeeking mine owne profit, but the profit of many, that they might be ſaved.

CHAP. XI.

1 He blameth the Corinthians for that in their holy aſſemblies, 4 men doe pray having their heads covered, 6 and women bare headed, and becauſe their meetings tended to evill, 21 who mingled prophane banquets with the holy Supper of the Lord, 23 which he requireth to be celebrated according to Chriſts inſtitution.

BE * ye followers of me, even as I am of Chriſt.

2 [1]Now brethren, I commend you, that ye remember all my things, and keepe the ordinances, as I delivered them to you.

3 [2] But I will that ye know, that Chriſt is the * head of every man: and the man is the womans head: and God is [a]Chriſts head.

4 [3] Every [b]man praying or propheſying having any thing on his head, diſhonoureth his head:

5 [4] But every woman that prayeth or propheſieth bare headed, diſhonoureth her head, [5]for it is even one very thing, as though ſhe were ſhaven.

6 Therefore if the woman be not covered, let her alſo be ſhorne: and if it be ſhame for a woman to be ſhorne or ſhaven, let her be covered.

7 [6]For a man ought not to cover his head: for as much as he is the * image and glorie of God: but the woman is the glorie of the man.

8 [7]For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man.

9 * [8] For the man was not created for the womans ſake, but the woman for the mans ſake.

10 [9] Therefore ought the woman to have [c]power on her head, becauſe of the [10] Angels.

11 [11] Neverthelesse, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man [d]in the Lord.

12 For as the woman is of the man, ſo is the man alſo by the woman: but all things are of God.

13 [12] Iudge

[n] Of thankſgiving: whereupon that holy banquet was called Euchariſt, that is, a thankſgiving.

[o] A moſt effectuall pledge and note of our knitting together with Chriſt, and ingraffing to him.

[p] That is, as yet obſerve their ceremonies.

[q] Are conſenting & guilty both of that worſhip and ſacrifice.

[r] Have any thing to do with the devils, or enter into that ſocietie which is begun in the devils name.

[ſ] The heathen and prophane people were wont to ſhut up and make an end of their feaſts which they kept to the honour of their gods, in offering meat offerings and drinke offerings to them, with banquets and feaſtings.

* Chap. 6.12.

6 Coming to another kind of things offered to idols, he repeateth that generall rule, that in the uſe of things indifferent, we ought to have conſideration not of our ſelves onely, but of our neighbours, and therefore there are many things which of themſelves are lawfull, which may be evil done of us, becauſe of offence to our neighbour.

7 An applying of the rule to ỹ preſēt matter: Whatſoever is ſold in the ſhambles, you may indifferently buy it, as it were at the Lords hand, and eat it either at hom with the faithfull, or being called home to the unfaithfull, to wit, in a private banket: but yet with this exception, unleſſe any man be preſent which is weake, whoſe conſcience may be offended by ſetting meats offered to idols before them: for then you ought to have conſideration of their weakneſſe.

[u] The fleſh that was ſacrificed, was uſed to be ſold in the ſhābles, and the price returned to the Prieſts.

* Pſal. 24. 1.

8 A reaſon: For we muſt take heed that our liberty be not evill ſpoken of, and that the benefit of God which we ought to uſe with thankſgiving be not changed into impietie, & that through our fault, if we chuſe rather to offend the conſcience of ỹ weak, then to yeeld a little of our liberty in a matter of no importance, and ſo give occaſion to the weake to judge in ſuch ſort of us and of Chriſtian liberty. And the Apoſtle taketh theſe things upon his own perſon, that the Corinthians may have ſo much the leſſe occaſion to oppoſe any thing againſt him.

[y] If I may, through Gods benefit, eat this meat or that meat, why ſhould I through my fault, cauſe that benefit of God to turn to my blame?

* Col. 3. 17.

9 The concluſion: We muſt order our lives in ſuch ſort, that we ſeek not our ſelves, but Gods glory, and to the ſalvation of as many as we may: wherein the Apoſtle ſticketh not to propound himſelf to the Corinthians (even his own flock) as an example, but ſo that he calleth them back to Chriſt, unto whom he himſelf hath regard,

* 2. Theſ. 3 9.

1 The fifth treatiſe of this Epiſtle concerning the right ordering of publik aſſemblies, conteining three points, to wit, of the comely apparell of men and women, of the order of the Lords Supper, and of the right uſe of ſpirituall gifts. But going about to reprehend certaine things, he beginneth notwithſtanding with a generall praiſe of them, calling thoſe particular lawes of comelineſſe and honeſty, which belong to the Eccleſiaſticall policy, traditions: which afterward, they called Canous.

2 He ſetteth down God, in Chriſt our Mediatour, for the ende and mark not onely of the doctrine, but alſo of Eccleſiaſticall comelines. Then applying it to the queſtion propoſed, touching ỹ comely apparell both of men and women in publike aſſemblies, he declareth that the woman is one degree beneath the man by the ordinance of God, and that the man is ſo ſubiect to Chriſt, that the glory of God ought to appeare in him for the preeminence of the ſex.

* Epheſians 5.23.

3 Hereof he gathereth, that if men do either pray or preach in publick aſſemblies, having their heads covered (which was then a ſign of ſubjection) they did, as it were, ſpoile themſelves of their dignity againſt Gods ordinance.

[b] It appeareth, that this was a politique Law ſerving onely for the circumſtances of the time that Paul lived in, by this reaſon, because in theſe our dayes for a man to ſpeake bare headed in an aſſembly, is a ſigne of ſubiection.

4 And in like ſort he concludeth, that women which ſhew themſelves in publike and Eccleſiaſticall aſſemblies without the ſigne and token of their ſubiection, that is to ſay, uncovered, ſhame themſelves.

5 The firſt argument taken from the common ſenſe of man, for ſo much as nature teacheth women, that it is diſhoneſt for them to come abroad bare headed, ſeeing that ſhee hath given them thicke and long haire, which they doe ſo diligently trimme and deck, that they can in no wiſe abide to haue it ſhaven,

6 The taking away of an obiection: Haue not men alſo haire given them? I graunt, ſaith the Apoſtle, but there is another matter in it: For man was made to this end and purpoſe, that the glory of God ſhould appeare in his rule and authority: but the woman was made, that by profeſſion of her obedience, ſhe might more honour her husband.

* Geneſis 1, 26. and 5.1. and 9.6. coloſſians 3.10.

7 He proveth the inequalitie of the woman, by that, that the man is the matter whereof woman was firſt made.

* Geneſis 2.22.

8 Secondly, by that, that the woman was made for man, and not the man for the womans ſake,

9 The concluſion: women muſt be covered, to ſhew by this externall ſigne, their ſubjection.

10 What this meaneth, I doe not yet underſtand.

11 A digreſſion which the Apoſtle uſeth, leſt that which he ſpake of the ſuperiority of men, and lower degree of women, in conſideration of the policie of the Church, ſhould be ſo taken as though there were no meaſure of this inequalitie. Therefore he teacheth that men have in ſuch ſort the preeminence, that God made them not alone, but women alſo: and woman was ſo made of man; that men alſo are borne by the meanes of women, and this ought to put them in minde to obſerve the degree of every ſex in ſuch ſort, that mutuall conjunction may be cheriſhed.

13 [12] Judge in your ſelves, Is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered?

14 Doeth not nature it ſelf teach you, that if a man hath long haire, it is a ſhame unto him?

15 But if a woman have long haire, it is a praiſe unto her: for her haire is given her for a [e] covering.

16 [13] But if any man luſt to be contentious, we have no ſuch cuſtome, neither the Churches of God.

17 ¶ [14] Now in this that I declare, I praiſe you not, that ye come together, not with profit, but with hurt.

18 [15] For firſt of all, when ye come together in the Church, I heare that there are diſſentions among you: and I beleeve it to be true in ſome part.

19 [16] For there muſt be hereſies even among you, that they which are [f] approved among you, might be known.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is [g] not to eat the Lords Supper.

21 For every man when they ſhould eat, taketh his own ſupper [h] afore, and one is hungrie, and another is drunken.

22 [17] Have ye not houſes to eat and to drink in? deſpiſe ye the Church of God, and ſhame them that have not? what ſhall I ſay to you? ſhall I praiſe you in this? I praiſe you not.

23 [18] For I have received of the Lord that which I alſo have delivered unto you, to wit, That the Lord Jeſus in the night when he was betrayed, took bread:

24 * And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and ſaid, Take, eat: This is my body, which is [i] broken for you: this do ye in remembrance of me.

25 After the ſame manner alſo he took the cup, when he had ſupped, ſaying, This cup is the New Teſtament in my blood: this doe as oft as ye drinke it, in remembrance of me.

26 For as often as ye ſhal eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye ſhew the Lords death till he come.

27 [19] Wherefore, whoſoever, ſhall eat this bread, and drink the cup of the Lord [k] unworthily, ſhall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

28 * [20] Let [l] every man therefore examine himſelf, and ſo let him eat of this bread, and drink of this cup.

29 For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh his own damnation, becauſe he [m] diſcerneth not the Lords body.

30 [21] For this cauſe many are weake, and ſick among you, and many ſleep.

31 For if we would [n] judge our ſelves, we ſhould not be judged.

32 But when we are judged, we are chaſtened of the Lord, becauſe we ſhould not be condemned with the world.

33 [22] Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tary one for another.

34 [23] And if any man be hungry, let him eat at home, that ye come not together unto condemnation. [24] Other things will I ſet in order when I come.

12 He urgeth the argument taken from the common ſenſe of nature.

e To be a covering for her, and ſuch a covering, as ſhould procure another.

13 Againſt ſuch as are ſtubbornly contentious, we have to oppoſe this, that the Churches of God are not contentious.

14 He paſſeth now to the next Treatiſe, concerning the right adminiſtration of the Lords Supper. And the Apoſtle uſeth this ſharper preface, yͤ the Corinthians might underſtand, that whereas they obſerved generally the Apoſtles commandements, yet they foully neglected them in a matter of greateſt importance.

15 To celebrate the Lords Supper aright, it is requiſite that there be not onely conſent of doctrine, but alſo of affections, that it be not prophaned.

16 Although that ſchiſmes aud hereſies proceed from the devill and are evill, yet they come not by chance, nor without cauſe, and they turn to the profit of the elect.

f Whom experience hath taught to be of ſound religion & godlineſſe.

g This is an uſuall kind of ſpeech whereby the Apoſtle denieth that flatly, which many did not well.

h Eateth his meate and tarrieth not till other come.

17 The Apoſtle thinketh it good to take away the love feaſts, for their abuſe, although they had been a long time, and with commendation uſed in Churches, & were appointed & inſtituted by the Apoſtles.

18 We muſt take a true form of keeping the Lords Supper, out of the inſtitution of it, the parts whereof are theſe, touching yͤ Paſtours, to ſhew forth the Lords death by preaching his word: to bleſſe the bread and the wine by calling upon the name of God, and together with prayers to declare the inſtitution thereof: and finally, to deliver the bread broken to be eaten, and the cup received to be drunken with thankſgiving. And touching the flock, that every man examine himſelf, that is to ſay, to prove both his knowledge, and alſo faith, and repentance: to ſhew forth the Lords death, that is, in true faith to yeeld unto his word and inſtitution: and laſt of all, to take the bread at the Miniſters hand, and to eat it and to drinke the wine, and give God thanks: This was Pauls and the Apoſtles manner of miniſtring.

* Matth. 26.16. Marke. 14. 22. Luke 22. 19.

i This word (Broken) noteth out unto us Chriſt his manner of death, for although his legs were not broken, as the theeves legs were, yet was his body very ſore tormented, and torn, and bruiſed.

19 Whoſoever contemn the holy Sacraments, that is, uſe them not aright, are guilty not of the bread and wine, but of the thing it ſelfe, that is, of Chriſt, and ſhall be grievouſly puniſhed for it.

k Otherwiſe then meet is, ſuch myſteries ſhould be handled.

* 2 Cor. 13. 5.

20 The examination of a mans ſelf, is of neceſſitie required in the Supper, and therefore they ought not to be admitted unto it, which cannot examine themſelves: as children, furious and mad men, alſo ſuch as either have no knowledge of Chriſt, or not ſufficient, although they profeſſe Chriſtian religion and other ſuch like.

l This place beateth down the faith of credite, or unwrapped faith, which the Papiſts maintain.

CHAP. XII.

1 To draw away the Corinthians from contention and pride, he ſheweth that ſpirituall gifts are therefore diverſly beſtowed, 7 that the ſame being joyntly to each other imployed, 12 we may grow up together into one body of Chriſt in ſuch equall proportion and meaſure, 20 as the members of mans body doe.

NOw [1] concerning ſpirituall gifts, brethren, I would not have you [a] ignorant.

2 [2] Ye know that ye were [b] Gentiles, and were caried away unto the dumb idols, as ye were led.

3 [3] Wherefore, I declare unto you, that no man * ſpeaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jeſus * [c] execrable: alſo no man can ſay that Jeſus is the Lord, but by the holy Ghoſt.

4 [4] Now there are diverſities of gifts, but the [d] ſame Spirit.

5 And there are diverſities of adminiſtrations, but the ſame Lord.

6 And there are diverſities of [e] operations, but God is the ſame which worketh all in all.

7 But the manifeſtation of the Spirit is [f] given to every man, to [g] profit withall.

8 [5] For to one is given by the Spirit the word of [h] wiſdome: and to another the word of knowledge, by the ſame Spirit:

9 And to another is given faith by the ſame Spirit: and to another the gifts of healing, by the ſame ſpirit:

1 Now he entreth into the third part of this treatiſe touching the right uſe of ſpirituall gifts, wherein he giveth the Corinthians plainly to underſtand that they abuſed them: for they that excelled, bragged ambitiouſly of them, and ſo robbed God of the praiſe of his gifts: & having no conſideration of their bretheren, abuſed them to a vaine oſtentation, and ſo robbed yͤ Church of the vſe of thoſe gifts. On the other ſide, the inferiour ſort envied the better, and, went about to make a departure, ſo yͤ all that body was as it were ſcattered and rent in pieces. So then going about to remedie theſe abuſes willeth them firſt to conſider diligently, that they have not theſe gifts of themſelves, but from yͤ free grace and liberalitie of God, to whoſe glory they ought to beſtow them all.

a Ignorant to what purpoſe theſe gifts are given you.

2 He reproveth the ſame, by comparing their former ſtate with that wherein they were at this time indued, with thoſe excellent gifts.

b As touching Gods ſervice and the covenant, meere ſtrangers.

3 The concluſion: Know you therefore that you cannot ſo much as move your lips to honour Chriſt withall, but by the grace of the holy Ghoſt.

* Marke 9. 39. * Iohn 13. 13. Chap. 8. 6. Phil. 2. 11.

c Doth curſe him, or by any meanes whatſoever diminiſh his glorie.

4 In the ſecond place, he layeth another foundation, to wit, that theſe gifts are divers, as the functions alſo are divers, and their offices divers, but that one ſelfe ſame Spirit, Lord and God is the giver of all theſe gifts, and that to one end, to wit, for the profit of all.

d The Spirit is plainely diſtinguiſhed from the gifts.

e So Paul calleth that inward force which cometh from the holy Ghoſt, and maketh men fit to wonderfull things.

f The holy Ghoſt openeth and ſheweth himſelf freely in giving of theſe gifts.

g To the uſe and benefit of the Church.

5 He declareth this manifold diverſitie, and reckoneth up the chiefeſt gifts, beating that into their heads, which he ſaid before, to wit, that all theſe things proceeded from one ſelf ſame Spirit.

h Wiſedome is a moſt excellent gift, very requiſite, not onely for them which teach, but alſo for them that exhort and comfort, which thing is proper to the Paſtours office: as the word of knowledge agreeth to the Doctours.

10 And to another the [i] operations of great works: and to another, [k] propheſie: and to another the [l] diſcerning of ſpirits: and to another diverſities of tongues: and to another the interpretation of tongues.

11 * And all theſe things worketh one and the ſelfe ſame Spirit, diſtributing to every man ſeverally[6] as he will.

12 [7] For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of the body, which is one, though they be many, yet are but one body: [8] even ſo is [m] Chriſt.

13 For by one ſpirit are we all baptized into [n] one body, whether we be Jewes, or Grecians, whether we be bond or free, and have beene all made to [o] drinke into one Spirit.

14[9] For the body alſo is not one member, but many.

15 [10] If the foot would ſay, Becauſe I am not the hand, I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body?

16 And if the eare would ſay, Becauſe I am not the eye, I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body?

17 [11] If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the ſmelling?

18 But now hath God diſpoſed the members every one of them in the body at his own pleaſure.

19 For if they were all one member, where were the body?

20 But now are there many members, yet but one body.

21 [12] And the eye cannot ſay unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor the head againe to the feet, I have no neede of you.

22 Yea, much rather thoſe members of the body, which ſeeme to be [p] more feeble, are neceſſarie.

23 And upon thoſe members of the body, which we thinke moſt unhoneſt, put we more [q] honeſtie on: and our uncomely parts have more comelineſſe on.

24 For our comely parts neede it not: but God hath tempered the body together, and hath given the more honour to that part which lacked,

25 Leſt there ſhould be any diviſion in the body: but that the members ſhould have the ſame [r] care one for another.

26 [13] Therefore if one member ſuffer, all ſuffer with it: if one member be had in honour, all the members rejoyce with it.

27 Now ye are the body of Chriſt, and members for your [s] part.

28 * And God hath ordained ſome in the Church: as firſt Apoſtles, ſecondly Prophets, thirdly teachers, then them that do miracles: after that, the gifts of healing, [t] helpers, [v] governours, diverſitie of tongues.

29 Are all Apoſtles? are all Prophets? are all teachers?

30 Are all doers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? doe all ſpeake with tongues? do all interpret?

31 [14] But deſire you the beſt gifts, and I will yet ſhew you a more excellent way.

---

[i] By operation he meaneth thoſe great workings of Gods mighty power, which paſſe and excell amongſt his miracles, as the delivery of his people Iſrael by the hand of Moſes: that which hee did by Elias againſt the Prieſts of Baal, in ſending downe fire from heaven to conſume his ſacrifice: and that which he did by Peter, in the matter of Ananias and Saphyra.

[k] Foretelling of things to come.

* Rom. 12.3. Epheſians 4.7.

[6] He addeth moreover ſomething elſe, to wit, that although that theſe gifts are unequall, yet they are moſt wiſely divided, becauſe the will of the Spirit of God is the rule of this diſtribution.

[7] Hee ſetteth forth his former ſaying by a ſimilitude taken from the body: This ſaith he, is manifeſtly ſeene in the body, whoſe members are divers, but yet ſo knit together, that they make but one body.

[8] The applying of the ſimilitude. So muſt we alſo thinke, ſaith hee, of the myſticall body of Chriſt: for all wee that beleeve, whether we be Iewes or Gentiles, are by one ſelfe ſame Baptiſme, joyned together with our head, that by that meanes, there may bee framed one body, compact of many members: and we have drunke one ſelfe ſame ſpirit, that is to ſay, a ſpirituall feeling, perceiverance, and motion common to us all out of one cup.

[9] Hee amplifieth that which followed of the ſimilitude, as if hee ſhould ſay, The unity of the body is not onely, not let by this diverſitie of members, but alſo it could not be a body, if it did not conſiſt of many, and thoſe divers members.

[11] Againe ſpeaking to them, he ſheweth them that if that ſhould come to paſſe which they deſire, to wit, that all ſhould be equall one to another, there would follow a deſtruction of the whole body, yea and of themſelves: for it could not be a body, unleſſe it were made of many members knit together, and divers one from the other. And that no man might finde fault with this diviſion as unequall, he addeth that God himſelfe hath coupled all theſe together. Therefore all muſt remaine coupled together, that the body may remaine in ſafetie.

[12] Now on the other ſide, he ſpeaketh unto them which were indued with more excellent gifts, willing them not to deſpiſe the inferiours as unprofitable, and as though they ſerved to no uſe: for God ſaith hee, hath in ſuch ſort tempered this inequality, that the more excellent and beautifull members can in no wiſe lacke the more abiect, and ſuch as we are aſhamed of, and that they ſhould have more care to ſee unto them and to cover them: that by this meanes the neceſſitie which is on both parts, might keep the whole body in peace and concord: that although if each part be conſidered apart, they are of divers degrees and conditions, yet becauſe they are joyned together, they have a communitie both in commodities and diſcommodities.

[13] Now he applieth this ſame doctrine to the Corinthians without any allegory, warning them that ſeeing there are divers functions and divers gifts, it is their duetie, not to offend one againſt another, either by envy or ambition, but rather that they being joyned together in love and charity one with another, every one of them beſtow to the profit of all, that which he hath received according as his miniſterie doth require.

* Epheſ. 4.11.

[u] He ſetteth forth the order of Elders, which were the maintainers of the Churches diſcipline.

[14] He teacheth them that are ambitious and envious, a certaine holy ambition and envy, to wit, if they give themſelves to the beſt gifts, and ſuch as are moſt profitable to the Church, and ſo if they content to excell one another in love, which farre paſſeth all other gifts.

CHAP. XIII.

1 He ſheweth that there are no gifts ſo excellent, which in Gods ſight are not corrupt, if Charity be away. 4 And therefore he digreſſeth unto the commendation of it.

THough[1] I ſpeake with the tongues of men & [a] Angels, & have not love, I am as ſounding braſſe, or a [b] tinckling cymball.

2 And though I had the gift of propheſie, and knew all ſecrets, and all knowledge, yea if I had all [c] faith, ſo that I could remove * mountaines, and had not love, I were nothing.

3 And though I feed the poore with all my goods, and though I give my body, that I be burned, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing.

4[2] Love [d] ſuffereth long: it is bountiful: love envieth not: love doeth not boaſt it ſelfe: it is not puffed up:

5 It doeth [e] no uncomely thing: it ſeeketh nor her own things: it is not provoked to anger: it thinketh not evill:

6 It rejoyceth not in iniquitie, but [f] rejoyceth in the trueth:

7 It ſuffereth all things: it beleeveth all things: it hopeth all things: it endureth all things.

8 [3] Love doth never fall away, though

[1] He reaſoneth firſt of Charity, the excellencie whereof he firſt ſheweth by this, that without it, all other gifts are as nothing before God: which thing he proveth partly by an induction, and partly alſo by an argument taken of the end, wherefore thoſe gifts are given. For to what purpoſe are thoſe gifts but to Gods glory, and the profit of the Church, as is before proved? ſo that thoſe gifts without charity, have no right uſe.

[a] A very earneſt kinde of amplifying a matter, as if he ſaid, If there were any tongues of Angels, and I had them, and did not uſe them to the benefite of my neighbour, it were nothing elſe but a vaine and pratling kinde of babbling.

[b] That giveth a rude and no certaine ſound.

[c] By faith, he meaneth the gift of doing miracles, and not that faith which iuſtifieth, which cannot be voide of Charitie as the other may.

* Matth. 17.20.

[2] Hee deſcribeth the force and nature of charitie partly by a compariſon of contraries, and partly by the effects of it ſelfe: wherby the Corinthians may underſtand, both how profitable it is in the Church, and how neceſſarie: and alſo how farre they are from it, and therefore how vainely and without cauſe they are proud.

[3] Againe he commendeth the excellencie of charitie in that, that it ſhall never be aboliſhed in the Saints, whereas the other gifts which are neceſſary for the building up of the Church, ſo long as we live here, ſhall have no place in the world to come.

that propheſyings be aboliſhed, or the tongues ceaſe, or [g] knowledge vaniſh away.

9 [4] For we know in [h] part, and we propheſie in part.

10 But when that which is perfect, is come, then that which is in part, ſhall be aboliſhed.

11 [5] When I was a child, I ſpake as a child, I underſtood as a childe, I thought as a childe: but when I became a man, I put away childiſh things.

12 [6] For [i] now we ſee through a glaſſe darkly: but then ſhall we ſee face to face. Now I know in part: but then ſhall I know even as I am knowen.

13 [7] And now abideth faith, hope, and love, even theſe three: but the chiefeſt of theſe is love.

g The way to get knowledge by propheſying.

4 The reaſon: Becauſe we are now in that ſtate that we have need to learn daily, and therfore we have neede of thoſe helps, to wit, of the gift of tongues, and knowledge, and alſo of them that teach them. But to what purpoſe ſerve they then, when we have obtained and gotten the full knowledge of God which ſerveth now but for them, which are imperfit and go by degrees to perfection?

h We learn imperfectly.

5 He ſetteth forth that, that he ſaid, by an excellent ſimilitude, comparing this life to our infancie, or childhood, wherein we ſtagger and ſtammer rather then ſpeake, and thinke and underſtand childiſh things, and therefore have need of ſuch things as may forme and frame our tongue and minde: but when we become men, to what purpoſe ſhould we deſire that ſtammering, thoſe childiſh toyes, and ſuch like things, whereby our childhood is framed by little and little. 6 The applying of the ſimilitude of our childhood to this preſent life, wherein we darkly behold heavenly things, according to the ſmall meaſure of light which is given us, through the underſtanding of tongues, and hearing the teachers and miniſters of the Church: of our mans age and ſtrength, to that heavenly and eternall life, wherein when we behold God himſelfe preſent, and are lightened with his full and perfect light, to what purpoſe ſhould we deſire the voice of man, and thoſe worldly things which are moſt imperfect? But yet then, ſhall all the Saints bee knit both with God, and betweene themſelves with moſt fervent love, and therefore Charitie ſhall not be aboliſhed but perfected, although it ſhall not be ſhewed forth, & entertained by ſuch manner of dueties as peculiarly and onely belong to the infirmitie of this life. i All this muſt be underſtood by compariſon. 7 The concluſion: As if the Apoſtle ſhould ſay, Such therefore ſhall be our condition then: but now we have three things, and they remaine ſure if we be Chriſts, as without which, true religion cannot conſiſt, to wit, faith, hope, and charitie. And among theſe, Charitie is the chiefeſt, becauſe it ceaſeth not in the life to come as the reſt doe, but is perfected and accompliſhed. Forſeeing that faith and hope tend to things which are promiſed and are to come, when wee have preſently gotten them, to what purpoſe ſhould we have faith and hope? but yet there at length ſhall we truely and perfectly love both God, and one another.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Hee commendeth the gift of propheſying: 7 and by a ſimilitude taken of the muſicall inſtruments, 12 he teacheth the true uſe of interpreting the Scriptures: 17 He taketh away the abuſe: 34 and forbiddeth women to ſpeake in the Congregation.

Follow [1] after love, and covet ſpiritual gifts, & rather that ye may [a] propheſie.

2 [2] For he that ſpeaketh a ſtrange [b] tongue, ſpeaketh not unto men, but unto God: for no man heareth him: howbeit in the [c] ſpirit he ſpeaketh ſecret things.

3 But he that propheſieth, ſpeaketh unto men to [d] edifying, and to exhortation, and to comfort.

4 He that ſpeaketh ſtrange language, edifieth himſelfe: but he that propheſieth, edifieth the [e] Church.

5 I would that ye all ſpake ſtrange languages, but rather that ye propheſied: for greater is he that propheſieth, then he that ſpeaketh divers tongues, except he expound it, that the Church may receive edification.

6 And now, brethren, If I come unto you ſpeaking divers tongues, what ſhall I profit you, except I ſpeake to you, either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by propheſying, or by doctrine?

7 [3] Moreover, things without life which give a ſound, whether it be a pipe or an harpe, except they make a diſtinction in the ſounds, how ſhall it be knowen what is piped or harped?

8 And alſo if the trumpet give an uncertaine ſound, who ſhall prepare himſelfe to battel?

9 So likewiſe you, by the tongue, except ye utter words that have [f] ſignification, how ſhall it be underſtood what is ſpoken? for ye ſhall ſpeake in the ayre.

10 [4] There are ſo many kinds of voices (as it commeth to paſſe) in the world, and none of them is dumb.

11 Except I know then the power of the voice, I ſhall be unto him that ſpeaketh a barbarian, and he that [g] ſpeaketh ſhall be a barbarian unto me.

12 [5] Even ſo, foraſmuch as ye covet ſpirituall gifts, ſeeke that ye may excell unto the edifying of the Church.

13 Wherefore let him that ſpeaketh a ſtrange tongue, [h] pray that he may interprete.

14 [6] For [i] if I pray in a ſtrange tongue, my [k] ſpirit prayeth: but mine underſtanding is [l] without fruit.

15 What is it then? I will pray with the ſpirit, but I will pray with the [m] underſtanding alſo: I will ſing with the ſpirit, but I will ſing with the underſtanding alſo.

16 [7] Elſe, when thou bleſſeſt with the [n] ſpirit, how ſhall he that [o] occupieth the roome of the unlearned, ſay [p] Amen, at thy giving of thanks, ſeeing he knoweth not what thou ſayeſt?

17 For thou verely giveſt thanks well, but the other is not edified.

18 [8] I thanke my God, I ſpeake languages more then ye all.

19 Yet had I rather in the Church to ſpeake [q] five words with mine underſtanding, that I might alſo inſtruct others, then ten thouſand words in a ſtrange tongue.

20 [9] Brethren, be not [*] children in underſtanding, but as concerning maliciouſneſſe, be children, but in underſtanding be of a ripe age.

21 In the [r] Law it is written, [*] By men of other tongues, and by other languages will I ſpeake unto this people: yet ſo ſhall they not heare me, ſaith the Lord.

22 [10] Where-

1 He inferreth now of that he ſpake before: Therefore ſeeing charitie is the chiefeſt of all, before all things ſet it before you as chiefe and principall: and to eſteem thoſe things as moſt excellent, which profit the greater part of men: (as propheſie that is to ſay, the gift of teaching and applying the doctrine: which was contemned in reſpect of other gifts, although it bee the chiefeſt & moſt neceſſarie for the Church) and not thoſe which for a ſhew ſeeme to be marveilous, as the gifts of tongues, when a man was ſuddenly indued with the knowledge of many tongues, which made men greatly amazed, and yet of it ſelfe was not greatly to any uſe, unleſſe there were an interpreter. a What propheſie is, he ſheweth in the third verſe. 2 He reprehendeth their perverſe judgement touching the gift of tongues. For why was it given? to wit, to the intent that the myſteries of God might be the better knowen to a greater ſort, Thereby it is evident that propheſie, whereunto the gift of tongues ought to ſerve, is better then this: and therefore the Corinthians did judge amiſſe, in that they made more accompt of the gift of tongues then of propheſying: becauſe forſooth the gift of tongues was a thing more to be bragged of. And hereupon followed another abuſe of the gift of tongues, in that the Corinthians uſed tongues in the congregation without an interpreter. Which thing although it might be done to ſome profit of him that ſpake them, yet he corrupted the right uſe of that gift, becauſe there came thereby no profit to the hearers: and common aſſemblies were inſtituted and appointed not for any private mans commoditie, but for the profit of the whole company. b A ſtrange language which no man can underſtand without an interpreter. c By that inſpiration which he hath received of the Spirit, which notwithſtanding he abuſeth, when he ſpeaketh myſteries which none of the companie can underſtand. d Which may further men in the ſtudy of godlineſſe. e The companie.

m So that I ma

7 Another reaſon: ſeeing that the whole congregation muſt agree to him that ſpeaketh and alſo witneſſe this agreement, How ſhal they give their aſſent or agreement which know not what is ſpoken? n Onely, without all conſideration of the hearers. o He that ſitte as a private man. p So then one uttered the prayers, and all the company anſwered, Ame 8 He propoundeth himſelfe for an example, both that they may be aſhamed of their foo liſh ambition, and alſo that he may eſchew all ſuſpition of envy. q A very few wor 9 Now he reproveth them freely for their childiſh folly, which ſee not how this gift o tongues which was given to the profit of the Church, is turned by their ambition into an in ſtrument of curſing, ſeeing that the ſame alſo is contained among the puniſhments wherwi God puniſhed the ſtubbornneſſe of his people, that he diſperſed them amongſt ſtrange whole language they underſtood not.  Matt.18.3. r By the law he underſtandeth all t whole Scripture. * Iſa.28.11.*

22 [10] Wherefore ſtrange tongues are for a ſigne, not to them that beleeve, but to them that beleeve not: but propheſying ſerveth not for them that beleeve not, but for them which beleeve.

23 [11] If therefore when the whole Church is come together in one, and all ſpeake ſtrange tongues, there come in they that are [ſ] unlearned, or they which beleeve not, will they not ſay, that ye are out of your wits?

24 But if all propheſie, and there come in one that beleeveth not, or one unlearned, he is rebuked of all men, & is judged of all.

25 And ſo are the ſecrets of his heart made manifeſt, and ſo he will fall down on his face and worſhip God, and ſay plainely that God is in you indeed.

26 [12] What is to be done then, brethren? when ye come together, according as every one of you hath a Pſalme, or hath doctrine, or hath a tongue, or hath revelation, or hath interpretation, let all things be done unto edifying.

27 [13] If any man ſpeake a ſtrange tongue, let it be by two, or at the moſt by three, and that by courſe, and let one interprete.

28 But if there be no interpreter, let him keepe ſilence in the Church, which ſpeaketh languages, and let him ſpeake to himſelfe, and to God.

29 [14] Let the Prophets ſpeake, two or three, and let the other judge.

30 And if any thing be reveiled to another that ſitteth by, let the firſt hold his peace.

31 For ye may all propheſie one by one, that all may learn, & all may have comfort.

32 And the [t] ſpirits of the Prophets are ſubject to the Prophets.

33 For God is not the authour of confuſion, but of peace, as we ſee in all the Churches of the Saints.

34 [15] * Let your women keepe ſilence in the Churches: for it is not permitted unto them to ſpeake, but they ought to be ſubject, as alſo * the Law ſaith.

35 And if they wil learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a ſhame for a woman to ſpeake in the Church.

36 [16] Came the word of God out from you? either came it unto you onely?

37 If any man thinke himſelfe to be a Prophet, or [v] ſpirituall, let him acknowledge, that the things that I write unto you, are the commandements of the Lord.

38 [17] And if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant.

39 [18] Wherefore, brethren, covet to propheſie, and forbid not to ſpeake languages.

40 Let all things be done honeſtly, and by order.

[10] The concluſion: Therefore the gift of tongues ſerveth to puniſh the unfaithfull and unbeleevers, unleſſe it be referred to propheſie (that is to ſay, to the interpretation of Scripture) & that, that which is ſpoken be by that meanes underſtood of the hearers.

[11] Another argument: the gift of tongues without prophecie is not onely unprofitable to the faithful, but alſo doth very much hurt: as wel to them, as to the unfaithfull, which ſhould he won in the publike aſſemblies. For by this meanes it commeth to paſſe, that the faithful ſeeme to other to be mad, much leſſe can the unfaithful be inſtructed thereby.

[ſ] Looke Acts 4.13.

[12] The concluſion. The edifying of the congregation is a rule and ſquare of the right uſe of all ſpirituall gifts.

[13] The manner how to uſe the gift of tongues. It may be lawfull for one or two, or at the moſt for three, to uſe the gift of tongues, one after another, in an aſſembly, ſo that there be ſome to expound the ſame: but if there be none to expound, let him that hath that gift ſpeake to himſelfe alone.

[14] The manner of propheſying: Let two or three propound, and let the other judge of that ỷ is propounded, whether it be agreable to the word of God or no: If in this examination the Lord give any man ought to ſpeake, let them give him leave to ſpeake. Let every man be admitted to propheſie, ſeverally, and in his order, ſo far forth as it is requiſite for the edifying of the Church: Let them be content to be ſubject each to others judgement.

[15] Women are commanded to be ſilent in publike aſſemblies, and they are commanded to aske of their husbands at home.

* 1 *Tim.*2.12.

* *Gen.*3.16.

[16] A generall concluſion of the treatiſe of the right uſe of ſpirituall gifts in aſſemblies: with a ſharpe reprehenſion, leſt the Corinthians might alone ſeeme to themſelves to be wiſe.

[u] Skilfull in knowing and judging ſpirituall things.

[17] The Church ought not to care for ſuch as be ſtubburnly ignorant, and will not abide to be taught, but to go forward notwithſtanding, in thoſe things which are right.

[18] Propheſie ought ſimply to be retained & kept in Congregations, the gift of tongues is not to be forbidden; but all things muſt be done orderly.

CHAP. XV.

1 The Goſpel that Paul preached. 3 The death & reſurrection of Chriſt. 8 Paul ſaw Chriſt. 9 He had perſecuted that Church, wherof afterward he was made a miniſter. 12 Chriſt firſt roſe again, and we all ſhall riſe by him. 26 The laſt enemie, death. 29 To be baptized for dead. 32 At Epheſus Paul fought with beaſts. 35 How the dead are raiſed. 45 The firſt Adam. The laſt Adam. 47 The firſt and ſecond man. 51 We ſhall all be changed, we ſhall not all ſleep. 55 Deaths ſting, 57 victorie. 58 Conſtancie and ſtedfaſtneſſe.

Moreover [1] * brethren, I declare unto you the Goſpel, which I preached unto you, which ye have alſo received, and wherein ye [a] continue,

2 And whereby ye are ſaved, if ye keep in memory, after what maner I preached it unto you, [b] except ye have beleeved in vaine.

3 For firſt of all, I delivered unto you that which I received, how that Chriſt died for our ſins, according to the * Scriptures,

4 And that he was buried, and that he aroſe the third day, according to the * Scriptures,

5 * And that he was ſeene of Cephas, then of the [c] twelve.

6 After that, he was ſeene of moe then five hundred brethren at [d] once: whereof many remaine unto this preſent, and ſome alſo are aſleep.

7 After that, he was ſeene of James: then of all the Apoſtles.

8 * [2] And laſt of all, he was ſeene alſo of me, as of one born out of due time.

9 * For I am the leaſt of the Apoſtles, which am not meet to be called an Apoſtle, becauſe I perſecuted the Church of God.

10 * But by the grace of God, I am that I am: and his grace which is in me, was not in vaine: but I laboured more aboundantly then they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which is with me.

11 Wherefore, whether it were I, or they, ſo we preach, and ſo have ye beleeved.

12 ¶ [3] Now if it be preached, that Chriſt is riſen from the dead, how ſay ſome among you, that there is no reſurrection of the dead?

13 [4] For if there be no reſurrection of the dead, then is Chriſt not riſen:

14 [5] And if Chriſt be not riſen, then is our preaching vaine, and your faith is alſo vaine:

15 And we are found alſo falſe witneſſes of God: for we have teſtified of God, that he hath raiſed up Chriſt: whom he hath not raiſed up, if ſo be the dead be not raiſed.

16 [6] For if the dead be not raiſed, then is Chriſt not raiſed.

[1] The ſixt treatiſe of this Epiſtle, concerning the reſurrection: and he uſeth a tranſition, or paſſing over from one matter to another, ſhewing firſt, that he bringeth no new thing, to the end that the Corinthians might underſtand that they had begun to ſwarve from the right courſe: and next, that he goeth not about to intreat of a trifling matter, but of another chiefe point of the Goſpel, which if it be taken away, their faith muſt needs come to nought. And ſo at the length he beginneth this treatiſe at Chriſts reſurrection, which is the ground and foundation of ours, and confirmeth it, firſt, by the teſtimony of the Scriptures, and by the witneſſe of the Apoſtles, and of more then five hundred brethren, and laſt of all by his own.

* *Gal.*1.11.

[a] In the profeſſion whereof you continue yet.

[b] Which is very abſurd, and cannot bee, but that they that beleeve muſt reap the fruit of faith.

* *Iſa.*53.5.

1 *Pet.*2.24.

* Ionas 2.1.

* Iohn 20.19.

[c] Of thoſe twelve picked and choſen Apoſtles, which were commonly called twelve, though Iudas was put out of the number.

* Acts 9.5.

[2] He maintaineth by the way, the authoritie of his Apoſtleſhip, which was requiſite to be in good credite among the Corinthians, that this Epiſtle might bee of force and waight amongſt them. In the meane ſeaſon, hee compareth himſelfe in ſuch ſort after a certaine divine art, with certaine other, that he maketh himſelfe inferiour to them all.

* *Ephe.*3.8.

* *Ephe.*3.7.

[3] The firſt argument, to prove that there is a reſurrection from the dead: Chriſt is riſen againe, therefore the dead, ſhall riſe againe.

[4] The ſecond, by an abſurditie, if there be no reſurrection of the dead, then is not Chriſt riſen againe.

[5] The proofe of that abſurditie, by other abſurdities: If Chriſt be not riſen againe, the preaching of the Goſpel is in vaine, & the credite that you gave unto it, is vaine, and we are lyars.

[6] He repeateth the ſame argument taken of an abſurditie, purpoſing to ſhew how faith is in vaine, if the reſurrection of Chriſt be taken away.

17 And if Chriſt be not raiſed, your faith is vaine: [7] ye are [e] yet in your ſins.

18 [8] And ſo they which are aſleep in Chriſt, are periſhed.

19 [9] If in this life onely we have hope in Chriſt, we are of all men the moſt miſerable.

20 [10] But now is Chriſt riſen from the dead, [11] and was made the * [f] firſt fruits of them that ſlept.

21 [12] For ſince by man came death, by man came alſo the reſurrection of the dead.

22 For as in Adam all die, even ſo in Chriſt ſhall all be [g] made alive, 23 [13] But every man in his * own order: the firſt fruits is Chriſt, afterward, they that are of Chriſt, at his comming ſhall riſe againe.

24 [14] Then ſhall be the [h] end, when he hath delivered up the kingdome to God, even the Father, when he hath put down [i] all rule, and all authoritie and power.

25 For he muſt reigne, * till he hath put all his enemies [k] under his feet.

26 The [l] laſt enemie that ſhall be deſtroyed, is death.

27 * For hee hath put down all things under his feet. (And when he ſaith that all things are ſubdued to him, it is manifeſt that he is excepted, which did put down all things under him.)

28 And when all things ſhall be ſubdued unto him, [m] then ſhall the Sonne alſo himſelfe be ſubject unto him, that did ſubdue all things under him, that [n] God may be all in all.

29 [15] Elſe what ſhall they doe which are baptized [o] for dead? if the dead riſe not at all, why are they then baptized for dead?

30 [16] Why are wee alſo in jeopardie every houre?

31 By our [p] rejoycing which I have in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, I die daily.

32 [17] If I have fought with beaſts at Epheſus [q] after the manner of men, what advantageth it me, if the dead be not raiſed up? * [18] let us [r] eate and drink: for to morrow we ſhall die.

33 [19] Be not deceived: evil ſpeakings corrupt good manners.

34 Awake to live righteouſly, and ſinne not: for ſome have not the knowledge of God, I ſpeake this to your ſhame.

35 [20] But ſome man will ſay, How are the dead raiſed up? and with what body come they forth?

36 [21] O foole, that which thou ſoweſt, is not quickened, except it die.

37 And that which thou ſoweſt, thou ſoweſt not that body that ſhall be, but bare corn, as it falleth, of wheat, or of ſome other.

38 [22] But God giveth it a body at his pleaſure, even to every ſeed his own body.

39 All fleſh is not the ſame fleſh, but there is one fleſh of men, & another fleſh of beaſts: & another of fiſhes, and another of birds.

40 There are alſo heavenly bodies, and earthly bodies: but the glory of the heavenly is one, and the glory of the earthly is another.

41 There is another glory of the Sun, another glory of the Moone, and another glory of the ſtarres: for one ſtarre differeth from another ſtarre in glory.

42 [23] So alſo is the reſurrection of the dead. The body is [ſ] ſowen in corruption, and is raiſed in incorruption.

43 It is ſowen in [t] diſhonour, and is raiſed in glory: it is ſowen in weakeneſſe, and is raiſed in [v] power.

44 [24] It is ſowen a naturall body, and is raiſed a ſpirituall body: [25] there is a naturall body, and there is a ſpirituall body.

45 As it is alſo written, The [x] firſt

[7] Firſt, ſeeing death is the puniſhment of ſin, in vaine ſhould we beleeve that our ſins were forgiven us, if they remaine: but they doe remaine, if Chriſt roſe not from death.

[e] They are yet in their ſins, which are not ſanctified, nor have obtained remiſſion of their ſins.

[8] Secondly, unleſſe that this be certain that Chriſt roſe againe, all they which died in Chriſt are periſhed. So then what profit commeth of faith?

[9] The third argument, which is alſo taken from an abſurditie: for unleſſe there be another life, wherein ſuch as truſt and beleeve in Chriſt ſhall be bleſſed, they were the moſt miſerable of all creatures, becauſe in this life they are the moſt miſerable.

[11] He putteth the laſt concluſion for the firſt propoſition of the argument that followeth. Chriſt is riſen againe: Therefore ſhall we, the faithfull, (for of them he ſpeaketh) riſe againe. Then followeth the firſt reaſon of this conſequent: for Chriſt it ſet forth unto us to be conſidered of, not as a private man a part and by himſelfe, but as the firſt fruits: And he taketh that which was knowen to all men, to wit, that the whole heape is ſanctified in the firſt fruits. * *Coloſſ.*1.18.*revelat.*1.5.

[f] He alludeth to the firſt fruits of corn, the offring whereof ſanctified the reſt of the fruits.

[12] Another confirmation of the ſame conſequent: for Chriſt is to be conſidered as oppoſite to Adam, that as from one man Adam, ſinne came over all, ſo from one man Chriſt, life commeth unto all: that is to ſay, that all the faithfull, as they die, becauſe by nature they were born of Adam, ſo becauſe in Chriſt they are made the children of God by grace, they are quickened and reſtored to life by him.

[13] Hee doeth two things together: for he ſheweth that the reſurrection is in ſuch ſort common to Chriſt with all his members, that notwithſtanding he farre paſſeth them, both in time (for he was the firſt that roſe againe from the dead) and alſo in honour, becauſe that from him and in him is all our life and glory. Then by this occaſion hee paſſeth to the next argument. * 1. *Theſſ.*4.13.

[14] The fourth argument, wherwith alſo he confirmeth the other, hath a moſt ſure ground, to wit, becauſe that God muſt reigne, And this is the manner of his reigne, that the Father will be ſhewed to be King of his Sonne who was made man, to whom all things are made ſubject (the promiſes onely except) to the end that the Father may afterward triumph in his Sonne the conquerour. And he maketh two parts of this reigne and dominion of the Son: wherein the Fathers glorie conſiſteth, to wit, the overcomming of his enemies (whereof ſome muſt bee deprived of all power, as Satan and all the wicked, be they never ſo proud and mightie, and other muſt be utterly aboliſhed, as death) and a plaine & full deliverie of the godly from all enemies, that by this meanes God may fully ſet forth in the body of the Church cleaving faſt unto their head Chriſt, his kingdome and glory, as a King in his ſubjects. Moreover he putteth the firſt degree of this kingdome in the reſurrection of his Son, who is the head: and the perfection, in the full conjunction of the members with the head which ſhalbe in the latter day. Now all theſe tend to this purpoſe, to ſhew that unleſſe the dead doe riſe againe, neither the Father can bee King above all, neither Chriſt be the Lord of all: for neither ſhould the power of Satan and death be overcome, nor the glory of God be full in his Sonne, nor his Sons in his members.

[i] All his enemies which ſhalbe ſpoiled of all the power they have. Pſal. 110.1. Acts 2.34. *Heb.*1.13 and 10.13.

[k] Chriſt is conſidered here, as he appeared in the forme of a ſervant, in which reſpect he ruleth the Church as head, and that becauſe this power was given him of his Father.

[l] The ſhutting up of the argument, which is taken from the whole to the part: for if all his enemies ſhall be put under his feet, then muſt it needs be that death alſo ſhall be ſubdued under him. * Pſal. 8.6.Heb. 2.8.

[m] Not becauſe the Son was not ſubject to his Father before, but becauſe his body, that is to ſay, the Church which is here in diſtreſſe, and not yet wholly partaker of his glory, is not yet fully perfect, and alſo becauſe the bodies of the Saints which be in the graves, ſhall not be glorified untill the reſurrection: but Chriſt as he is God, hath us ſubiect to him as his Father hath, but as he is Prieſt, he is ſubiect to his Father together with us. Auguſt. booke 1. *chap.*8. of the Trinitie.

[n] By this high kind of ſpeech, is ſet forth an incomprehenſible glory which floweth from God, and ſhall fill all of us, as we are ioyned together with our head, but yet ſo, that our head ſhall alwayes reſerve his preeminence.

[15] The fift argument is taken of the end of Baptiſme, to wit, becauſe that they which are baptized, are baptized for dead: that is to ſay, that they may have a remedy againſt death, becauſe that baptiſme is a token of regeneration.

[o] They that are baptized to this end and purpoſe, that death may be put out in them, or to riſe againe from the dead, whereof baptiſme is a ſeale.

[16] The ſixt argument: Unleſſe there be a reſurrection of the dead, why ſhould the Apoſtles ſo daily caſt themſelves into danger of ſo many deaths?

[p] As though he ſaid, I die daily, as all the miſeries I ſuffer can well witneſſe, which I may truely boaſt of that I have ſuffered amongſt you.

[17] The taking away of an objection: But thou Paul didſt ambitiouſly, as commonly men are wont to doe, when thou didſt fight with beaſts at Epheſus: that is very like, ſaith Paul: for what could that advantage me, were it not for the glory of eternall life which I hope for?

[q] Not upon any godly motion, nor caſting mine eyes upon God, but caried away with vaine glory, or a certaine headineſſe.

* *Iſa.*22.13.

[18] The ſeventh argument which dependeth upon the laſt: if there be no reſurrection of the dead, why doe we give our ſelves to any thing elſe, ſave to eating and drinking?

[r] Theſe are ſpeaches that Epicures uſe.

[19] The concluſion with a ſharpe exhortation, that they take heed of the naughtie companie of certain: from whence he ſheweth that this miſchiefe ſprang: warning them to be wiſe with ſobrietie unto righteouſneſſe.

[20] Now that he hath proved the reſurrection, he diſcovereth their doltiſhneſſe, in that they ſcoffingly demaunded, how it could be that the dead could riſe againe, and if they did riſe againe, they asked mockingly, what manner of bodies they ſhould have. Therfore he ſendeth theſe fellowes, which ſeemed to themſelves to be marveilous wiſe & wittie, to be inſtructed of poore rude husbandmen.

[21] Thou mighteſt have learned either of theſe, ſaith Paul, by daily experience: for ſeedes are ſowen, and rot, and yet notwithſtanding ſo farre it is off that they periſh, that contrariwiſe they grow up farre more beautifull: and whereas they are ſowen naked & drie, they ſpring up greene from death by the vertue of God: and doth it ſeeme incredible to thee that our bodies ſhould riſe from corruption, and that indued with a farre more excellent quality?

[22] We ſee a diverſitie both in one and the ſelfe ſame thing which hath now one forme and then another, and yet keepeth it own kinde: as it is evident in a graine which is ſowen bare, but ſpringeth up farre after another ſort: and alſo in divers kinds of one ſelfe ſame ſort, as amongſt beaſts: and alſo among things of divers ſorts, as the heavenly bodies and the earthly bodies: which alſo differ very much one from another. Therefore there is no cauſe why we ſhould reject either the reſurrection of the bodies, or the changing of them into a better ſtate, as a thing impoſſible, or ſtrange.

[23] Hee maketh three manner of qualities of the bodies being raiſed: Incorruption, to wit, becauſe they ſhall bee ſound and altogether of a nature that cannot be corrupt: Glory, becauſe they ſhall bee adorned with beauty and honour: Power, becauſe they ſhall continue everlaſting, without meat, drinke, and all other helpes, without which this fraile life cannot keep it ſelfe from corruption.

[v] Freed from the former weakeneſſe, whereas it is ſubiect to ſuch alteration and change, that it cannot maintaine it ſelfe without meat and drink and ſuch other like helpes.

[24] He ſheweth perfectly in one word this change of the qualitie of the body by the reſurrection, when he ſaith, that of a naturall body, it ſhall become a ſpirituall body: which two qualities being cleane different the one from the other he ſtraightway expoundeth, & ſetteth forth diligently.

[25] That is called a naturall body which is quickened and maintained by a living ſoule onely, ſuch as Adam was, of whom all we are born naturally: and that is ſaid to be a ſpirituall, which together with the ſoule is quickened with a farre more excellent vertue, to wit, with the Spirit of God, which deſcendeth from Chriſt the ſecond Adam unto us.

[x] Adam is called the firſt man: becauſe hee is the root, as it were, from whence we ſpring, and Chriſt is the latter man: becauſe he is the beginning of all them that are ſpirituall, and in him we are all comprehended.

man * Adam was made a living ſoul: and the laſt Adam was made a [y] quickning Spirit.

46 [26] Howbeit that was not firſt which is ſpirituall, but that which is naturall, and afterward that which is ſpirituall.

47 The firſt man is of the earth, [z] earthly: the ſecond man is the Lord from [a] heaven.

48 [27] As is the earthly, ſuch are they that are earthly: and as is the heavenly, ſuch are they alſo that are heavenly.

49 And as we have born the [b] image of the earthly, ſo ſhall we beare the image of the heavenly.

50 [28] This I ſay, brethren, that [c] fleſh and blood cannot inherit the kingdome of God, neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.

51 [29] Behold, I ſhew you a [d] ſecret thing, We ſhall not all ſleep, but we ſhall all be changed, 52 In [e] a moment, in the twinkling of an eye at the laſt * trumpet: for the trumpet ſhall blow, and the dead ſhall be raiſed up incorruptible, and we ſhall be changed.

53 For this corruptible muſt put on incorruption, and this mortall muſt put on immortalitie.

54 So when this corruptible hath put on incorruption, and this mortall hath put on immortalitie, then ſhall be brought to paſſe the ſaying that is written, * Death is ſwallowed up into victorie.

55 O death where is thy ſting? O grave where is thy victorie?

56 The ſting of death is ſinne: and the ſtrength of ſinne is the law.

57 * But thanks be unto God, which hath given us victorie through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

58 [30] Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye ſtedfaſt, unmoveable, abundant alwayes in the work of the Lord, foraſmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the [f] Lord.

* Gen. 2. 7.

y Chriſt is called a Spirit, by reaſon of that moſt excellent nature, that is to ſay, God who dwelleth in him bodily, as Adam is called a living ſoul, by reaſon of the ſoul which is the beſt part in him.

26 Secondly, he willeth the order of this double ſtate or qualitie to be obſerved, that the naturall was firſt, Adam being created of the clay of the earth: and the ſpirituall followed and came upon it, to wit, when as the Lord being ſent from heaven, indued our fleſh, which was prepared and made fit for him, with the fulneſſe of the Godhead.

z Wallowing in durt, and wholly given to an earthly nature.

a The Lord is ſaid to come down from heaven by that kinde of ſpeech, whereby that which is proper to one is vouched of another.

27 He applieth both the earthly naturalneſſe of Adam (If I may ſo ſay) to our bodies, ſo long as they are naturally converſant upon earth, to wit, in this life & in the grave: and alſo the Spiritualitie of Chriſt to the ſame our bodies, after they are riſen again: and he ſaith that that goeth before, and this ſhall follow.

b Not a vain and falſe image, but ſuch a one as had the truth with it indeed.

28 The concluſion: We cannot be partakers of yͤ glory of God, unleſſe we put off all that groſſe and filthy nature of our bodies, ſubject to corruption, that the ſame body may be adorned with incorruptible glory.

c Fleſh and blood are taken here for a living body, which cannot attain to incorruption, unleſſe it put off corruption.

29 He goeth further, declaring that it ſhall come to paſſe, that they which ſhall be found alive in the latter day, ſhall not deſcend into that corruption of the grave, but ſhall be renewed with a ſudden change, which change is very requiſite: and that the certain enjoying of the benefit and victory of Chriſt, is deferred unto that latter time. d A thing that hath been hid, and never known hitherto, and therefore worthy that you give good eare unto it. e He ſheweth us that the time ſhall be very ſhort. * Mat. 24. 31. 1 Theſſ. 4. 16. * Oſe. 13. 14. Heb. 2. 14. * 1 Iohn 5. 5. 30 An exhortation taken of the profit that enſueth, that ſeeing they underſtand that the glory of the other life is laid up for faithfull workmen, they continue and ſtand faſt in the truth of the doctrine of the reſurrection of the dead. f Through the Lords help and goodneſſe working in us.

CHAP. XVI.

1 He exhorteth them to help the poore brethren of Ieruſalem: 10 Then he commendeth Timothie, 13 and ſoweth a friendly exhortation, 19 and commendations, endeth the Epiſtle.

COncerning [1] the gathering for the Saints, as I have ordained in the Churches of Galatia, ſo do ye alſo.

1 Collections in old time were made by the Apoſtles appointment the firſt day of the weeke, on which day the manner was then to aſſemble themſelves.

2 Every [a] firſt day of the week, let every one of you put aſide by himſelf, and lay up as God hath [b] proſpered him, that then there be no gatherings when I come.

3 And when I am come, whomſoever ye ſhall allow by [c] letters, them will I ſend to bring your liberalitie unto Jeruſalem.

4 [2] And if it be meet that I go alſo, they ſhall go with me.

5 Now I will come unto you, after I have gone through Macedonia (for I will paſſe through Macedonia)

6 And it may be that I will abide, yea, or winter with you, that ye may bring me on my way, whitherſoever I go.

7 For I will not ſee you now in my paſſage, but I truſt to abide a while with you, if the Lord permit.

8 And I will tarie at Epheſus untill Pentecoſt:

9 For a great doore and [d] effectuall is opened unto me: and there are many adverſaries.

10 ¶ Now if Timotheus come, ſee that he be [e] without feare with you: for he worketh the work of the Lord, even as I do.

11 Let no man therefore deſpiſe him: but convey him forth [f] in peace, that he may come unto me, for I look for him with the brethren.

12 As touching our brother Apollos, I greatly deſired him, to come unto you with the brethren: but his minde was not at all to come at this time: howbeit he will come when he ſhall have convenient time.

13 ¶ Watch ye: ſtand faſt in the faith: quit you like men, and be ſtrong.

14 Let all your things be done in love.

15 Now brethren, I beſeech you (ye know the houſe of [g] Stephanas, that it is the firſt fruits of Achaia, and that they have [h] given themſelves to miniſter unto the Saints:)

16 That ye [i] be obedient even unto ſuch, and to all that help with us and labour.

17 I am glad of the coming of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for they have ſupplied the want of you.

18 For they have comforted my [k] ſpirit and yours: [l] acknowledge therefore ſuch men.

19 The Churches of Aſia ſalute you: Aquila and Priſcilla with the Church that is in their houſe, ſalute you greatly in the Lord.

20 All the brethren greet you. Greet ye one another with an * holy kiſſe.

21 The ſalutation of me Paul with mine own hand.

22 If any man love not the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, let him be had in execration [m] maran-atha.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 He beginneth with the praiſe of affliction, 8 declaring what he hath ſuffered in Aſia, 10 and how happily God aſſiſted him. 17 He ſaith it was not upon any lightneſſe that he came not according to his Promiſe.

Paul [1] an Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by the will of God, and our brother Timotheus, to the Church of God, which is at Corinthus, with all the Saints, which are in all Achaia:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 [*] [2] [a] Bleſſed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of [b] mercies, and the God of all comfort,

4 Which comforteth us in all our tribulation, [3] that we may be able to comfort them which are in any affliction by the comfort wherewith we our ſelves are comforted of God.

5 For as the [c] ſufferings of Chriſt abound in us, ſo our conſolation aboundeth through Chriſt.

6 [4] And whether we be afflicted, it is for your conſolation and ſalvation, which is [d] wrought in the induring of the ſame ſufferings, which we alſo ſuffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your conſolation and ſalvation.

7 And our hope is ſtedfaſt concerning you, in as much as we know that as ye are partakers of the ſufferings, ſo ſhall ye be alſo of the conſolation.

8 [5] For, brethren, we would not have you ignorant of our affliction, which came unto us in Aſia, how we were preſſed out of meaſure paſſing ſtrength, ſo that we altogether [e] doubted even of life:

9 Yea, we received the ſentence of death in [f] our ſelves, becauſe we ſhould not truſt in our ſelves, but in God, wch raiſeth the dead:

10 Who delivered us from ſo [g] great a death, and doth deliver us: in whom we truſt, that yet hereafter he will deliver us,

11 [*] [6] So that ye labour together in prayer for us, [7] that for the gift beſtowed upon us for many, thanks may be given by many perſons for us.

12 [8] For our rejoycing is this, the teſtimonie of our conſcience, that in ſimplicity and godly [h] pureneſſe, and not in fleſhly wiſedome, but by the [i] grace of God we have had our converſation in the world, and moſt of all to you-wards.

13 For we write [k] none other things unto you, then that ye reade, or elſe that ye acknowledge, and I truſt ye ſhall acknowledge unto the [l] end.

14 Even as ye have acknowledged us partly, that we are your [m] rejoycing, even as ye are ours, in the [n] day of our Lord Jeſus.

15 And in this confidence was I minded firſt to come unto you, that ye might have had a [o] double grace,

16 And to paſſe by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia unto you, & to be led forth toward Judea of you.

17 [9] When I therefore was thus minded, did I uſe lightneſſe? or minde I thoſe things which I minde, according to the [p] fleſh, that with me ſhould be, [q] Yea, yea, and Nay, nay?

18 [10] Yea, God is [r] faithfull, that our word toward you, was not yea, and Nay.

19 [11] For the Son of God Jeſus Chriſt,

---

[1] See the declaration of ſuch ſalutation, in the former Epiſtles.

[*] Epheſ. 1. 3. 1 Pet. 1. 3.

[2] He beginneth after this manner with thankſgiving which notwithſtanding (otherwiſe then he was wont) he applieth to himſelf: beginning his Epiſtle, with the ſetting forth of the dignitie of his Apoſtleſhip, conſtrained (as it ſhould ſeem) by their importunity which took an occaſion to deſpiſe him, by reaſon of his miſeries But he anſwereth, that he is not ſo afflicted, but that his comforts do exceed his afflictions, ſhewing ye ground of them, even the mercy of God the Father in Jeſus Chriſt.

[a] To him be praiſe and glory given.

[3] The Lord doth comfort us to this end and purpoſe, that we may ſo much the more ſurely comfort others.

[c] The miſeries which we ſuffer for Chriſt, or which Chriſt ſuffereth in us.

[4] He denieth that either his afflictions, wherewith he was often afflicted, or the conſolations which he received of God, may juſtly be deſpiſed, ſeeing that the Corinthians both ought and might take great occaſion to be confirmed by either of them.

[d] Although ſalvation be given us freely, yet becauſe there is a way appointed us whereby we muſt come to it, which is, the race of an innocent and upright life, which we muſt run, therefore we are ſaid to work out our ſalvation, Phil. 2. 12. And becauſe it is God onely that of his free good will worketh all things in us, therefore is he ſaid to work the ſalvation in us by thoſe ſelf ſame things by which we muſt paſſe to everlaſting life, after that we have once overcome all incumbrances.

[5] He witneſſeth that he is not onely not aſhamed of his afflictions, but that he deſireth alſo to have all men know the greatneſſe of them, and alſo his delivery from them, although it be not yet perfect.

one ſelf ſame thing, to wit, one ſelf ſame Chriſt.

who was preached among you by us, that is, by me, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, [f] was not Yea, and Nay: but in [t] him it was Yea.

20 [12] For all the promiſes of God in him are Yea, and are in [v] him Amen, unto the glory of God through [x] us.

21 [13] And it is God which ſtabliſheth us with you in Chriſt, & hath anointed us.

22 Who hath alſo ſealed us, and hath given the [y] earneſt of the ſpirit in our hearts.

23 [14] Now, I call God for a record unto my [z] ſoul, that to ſpare you, I came not as yet unto Corinthus:

24 [15] Not that we have dominion over your faith, but we are helpers of your [a] joy: for by faith ye ſtand.

[f] Was not divers & wavering.

[t] That is, in God.

[12] Laſt of all, he declareth the ſum of his doctrine, to wit, that all the promiſes of ſalvation are ſure and ratified in Chriſt.

[v] Chriſt is ſet forth to exhibit and fulfill them alſo moſt aſſuredly, and without all doubt.

[13] He attributeth the praiſe of this conſtancie, onely to the grace of God, through the holy Ghoſt, and therewithall concludeth, that they cannot doubt of his faith and his fellows, without doing injury to the Spirit of God, ſeeing that they themſelves do know all this to be true.

[14] Now comming to the matter, he ſweareth that he did not onely not lightly alter his purpoſe of comming to them, but rather that he came not unto them for this cauſe, that he might not be conſtrained to deale more ſharply with them being preſent, then he would.

[z] Againſt my ſelf, and to the danger of mine own life.

[15] He removeth all ſuſpition of arrogancie, declaring that he ſpeaketh not as a Lord unto them, but as a ſervant, appointed of God to comfort them.

[a] He ſetteth the ioy and peace of conſcience, which God is author of, againſt tyrrannous feare, and therewithall ſheweth the end of the Goſpel.

CHAP. II.

1 He excuſeth his not comming unto them, 2 and privily reprehendeth them. 4 He ſheweth that ſuch is his affection toward them, 5 that he never rejoyceth but when they are merrie. 6 Perceiving the adulterer (whom he commandeth to be delivered up to Satan) to repent, he requeſteth that they forgive him. 13 He mentioneth his going into Macedonia.

BUt I determined thus in my ſelf, that I would not come again to you in [a] heavineſſe,

2 For if I make you ſorrie, who is he then that ſhould make me glad, but the ſame which is made ſory by me?

3 And I wrote the ſame thing unto you, leſt when I came, I ſhould take heavines of them, of whom I ought to rejoyce: this [b] confidence have I in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all:

4 For in great affliction, and anguiſh of heart I wrote unto you with many teares: not that ye ſhould be made ſory, but that ye might perceive the love which I have, eſpecially unto you.

5 [1] And if any have cauſed ſorrow, the ſame hath not made [c] me ſory, but [d] partly (leſt I ſhould more [e] charge him) you all.

6 It is ſufficient unto the ſame man, that he was rebuked of many.

7 So that now contrariwiſe ye ought rather to [f] forgive him, and comfort him, leſt the ſame ſhould be ſwallowed up with over much heavineſſe.

8 Wherefore, I pray you, that you would [g] confirm your love towards him.

9 For this cauſe alſo did I write, that I might know the proof of you, whether ye would be obedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive alſo: for verely if I forgave any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your ſakes forgave I it in the [h] ſight of Chriſt, 11 Leſt Satan ſhould circumvent us: for we are not ignorant of his [i] enterpriſes.

12 ¶ [2] Furthermore, when I came to Troas to preach Chriſts Goſpel, and a doore was opened unto me of the Lord, 13 I had no reſt in my Spirit, becauſe I found not Titus my brother, but took my leave of them, and went away into Macedonia.

14 Now thanks be unto God, which alwayes maketh us to triumph in Chriſt, and maketh manifeſt the [k] ſavour of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 [3] For we are unto God the ſweet ſavour of Chriſt, in them that are ſaved, and in them which periſh.

16 To the one we are the ſavour of death, unto death: and to the other the ſavour of life, unto life: [4] and who is ſufficient for theſe things?

17 * For we are not as many, which make [l] merchandiſe of the word of God: but as of ſinceritie, but as of God in the ſight of God ſpeake we in Chriſt.

[a] Cauſing grief amongſt you, which he ſhould have done, if he had come to them before they had repented them.

[b] For I truſted that you would take that out of the way forthwith which you knew I was diſcontented with, conſidering how you are perſwaded that my ioy is your joy.

[1] He paſſeth to another part of this Epiſtle: which notwithſtanding is put amongſt the firſt, whereunto he returneth afterward: and he handleth the releaſing and unlooſing of the inceſtuous perſon, becauſe he ſeemed to have given ſufficient teſtimony of his repentance: ſhewing the true uſe of excommunication, to wit, that it proceed not of hatred, but of love, and ſo end, leſt if we keep no meaſure, we ſerve Satan the devill.

[c] As if he ſaid, All that ſorrow is ſo clean wiped away, as though he had never felt it.

[d] As for me (ſaith Paul) I have no more to do with him.

[e] Leaſt I ſhould overcharge him, who is burdened enough of himſelf, which I would be glad were taken from him.

[f] That whereas before you puniſhed him ſharply, you would now forgive him.

[g] That at my entreaty, you would declare by the conſent of the whole Church, that you take him again for a brother.

[h] Truly, and from the heart.

[i] Of his miſchievous counſels and develiſh will.

[2] He returneth to the confirmation of his Apoſtleſhip, and bringeth forth the teſtimonies, both of his labour, and alſo of Gods bleſſing.

[k] He alludeth to the ointing of the Prieſts, and the incenſe of the ſacrifices.

[3] He denieth that ought ſhould be taken away from the dignitie of his Apoſtleſhip, becauſe they ſaw evidently that it was not received with like ſucceſſe in every place, nay rather very many rejected and deteſted him, ſeeing that he preached Chriſt not onely as a Saviour of them that beleeve, but alſo as a judge of them ye contemn him.

[4] Again, he putteth away all ſuſpition of arrogancy, attributing all things that he did, to the vertue of God, whom he ſerveth ſincerely, and without all diſhoneſt affection: whereof he maketh them witneſſes, even to the 6 verſ. of the next chapter.

* Chap.4.2.

[l] We do not handle it craftily and covetouſly, or leſſe ſincerely then we ought: and he uſeth a metaphor, which is taken from huckſters, which uſe to play the falſe harlots with whatſoever commeth into their hands.

CHAP. III.

1 He deſireth no other commendation, 3 then their continuing in the faith. 6 He is a Miniſter, not of the letter, but of the Spirit. 8 He ſheweth the difference of the law and the Goſpel. 13 That the brightneſſe of the law doth rather dim the ſight then lighten it: 18 But the Goſpel doth make manifeſt Gods countenance unto us.

DO we begin to praiſe our ſelves again, or need we, as ſome other, Epiſtles of recommendations unto you, or letters of recommendation from you?

2 Ye are our Epiſtle, written in our hearts, which is underſtood, and read of all men:

3 In that ye are [a] manifeſt, to be the Epiſtle of Chriſt, [b] miniſtered by us, and written, not with inke, but with the Spirit of the [c] living God, [1] not in tables of ſtone, but in fleſhly tables of the heart.

4 And ſuch [d] truſt have we through Chriſt to God:

5 Not that we are ſufficient of our ſelves, to think any thing, as of our ſelves: but our [e] ſufficiencie is of God,

6 [2] Who alſo hath made us able miniſters of the new Teſtament, not of the [f] letter, but of the Spirit: for the letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life.

[a] The Apoſtle frameth his ſpeech wiſely, that by little and little, he may come from the commendation of the perſon, to the matter it ſelf.

[b] Which I took pains to write as it were.

[c] By the way, he ſetteth the vertue of God againſt the inke wherewith Epiſtles are commonly written, to ſhew that it was wrought by God.

[1] He alludeth by the way, to the compariſon of the outward miniſtery of the prieſthood of Levi, with the miniſtery of ye Goſpel, and the Apoſtolicall miniſtery, which he handleth afterward more fully.

[d] This boldneſſe we ſhew, and thus glorionſly may we boaſt of the worthineſſe and fruit of our miniſtery.

[e] In that we are fit and meet to make other men partakers of ſo great a grace.

[2] He amplifieth his miniſterie and his fellows: that is to ſay, the miniſterie of the Goſpel, comparing it with the miniſterie of the law, which he conſidereth in the perſon of Moſes, by whom the law was given: againſt whom he ſetteth Chriſt the Authour of the Goſpel. Now this compariſon is taken from the very ſubſtance of the miniſtery. The law is as it were a writing of it ſelf, dead, and without efficacie: but the Goſpel, or new Covenant, is as it were the very vertue of God it ſelf in renewing, juſtifying, and ſaving of men. The law propoundeth death, accuſing all men of unrighteouſneſſe: The Goſpel offereth and giveth righteouſneſſe and life. The governance of the law ſerved for a time to the promiſe: the Goſpel remaineth to the end of the world. Therefore what is the glorie of that in compariſon of the majeſtie of this?

7 If then the miniſtration of death written with letters [g] and ingraven in ſtones, was [h] glorious, ſo that the children of Iſrael could not behold the face of Moſes, for the glory of his countenance (which glory is done away,)

8 How ſhall not the [i] miniſtration of the Spirit be more glorious?

9 For if the miniſtery of condemnation was glorious, much more doth the miniſtration of [k] righteouſneſſe exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was glorified, was not glorified in this point, that is, as touching the exceeding glory,

11 For if that which ſhould be [l] aboliſhed, was glorious, much more ſhall that which remaineth, be glorious:

12 [3] Seeing then that we have ſuch truſt, we uſe great boldneſſe of ſpeach.

13 *[4] And we are not as Moſes, which put a vail upon his face, that the children of Iſrael ſhould not look unto the [m] end of that which ſhould be aboliſhed.

14 Therefore their minds are hardened: for untill this day remaineth the ſame covering untaken away in the reading of the old Teſtament, which vail in Chriſt is put away.

15 But even unto this day, when Moſes is read, the vail is laid over their hearts.

16 Nevertheleſſe, when their heart ſhall be turned to the Lord, the vail ſhall be taken away.

17 Now the [n] Lord, is the * Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

18 [5] But we all behold as in a mirrour the glory of the Lord with open face, and are changed into the ſame image, from glory to glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord.

[g] Imprinted and ingraven: ſo that by this place we may plainly perceive, that the Apoſtle ſpeaketh not of the ceremonies of the law, but even of the ten commandements.

[h] This word, Glory, betokeneth a brightneſſe, and a maieſtie which was bodily in Moſes, but ſpiritually in Chriſt.

[i] Whereby God offereth, yea, and giveth the Spirit, not as a dead thing, but a quickening ſpirit, working life.

[k] To wit, of Chriſt, which being imputed to us as our own, we are not onely not condemned, but alſo we are crowned as righteous.

[l] The law, yea, and the ten commandements themſelves, together with Moſes, is aboliſhed, if we conſider the miniſtery of Moſes apart by it ſelf.

3 He ſheweth wherein ſtandeth this glory of the preaching of the Goſpel, to wit, in that, that it ſetteth forth plainly and evidently, ẙ which the law ſhewed darkly: for it ſent them that heard it to be healed of Chriſt, which was to come after that it had wounded them.

* Exod. 34. 34.

4 He expoundeth by the way the allegory of Moſes his covering, which was a token of the darkneſſe & weakeneſſe that is in men, which were rather dulled by the bright ſhining of the law then lightened: which covering was taken away by the comming of Chriſt, who lighteneth the hearts, and turneth them to the Lord, that we may be brought from the ſlavery of this blindneſſe, and ſet in the liberty of the light by the vertue of Chriſts Spirit.

[m] Into the very bottome of Moſes his Miniſtery.

[n] Chriſt is that Spirit, which taketh away that covering, by working in our hearts, whereunto alſo the law it ſelf called us, though in vain, becauſe it ſpeaketh to dead men, untill the Spirit quickeneth us.

* Iohn 4. 14.

5 Going forwards in the allegory of the covering, he compareth the Goſpel to a glaſſe, which although it be moſt bright and ſparkling, yet doth it not onely not dazel their eyes, which look in it as the law doth, but alſo transformeth them with its beames, ſo that they alſo be partakers of the glory and ſhining of it, to lighten others: as Chriſt ſaid unto his. You are the light of the world, whereas he himſelf was the onely light We are alſo commanded in another place, to ſhine as candles before the world, becauſe we are partakers of Gods Spirit. But Paul ſpeaketh here properly of the miniſters of the Goſpel, as it appeareth by that that goeth before, and that that cometh after, and that, ſetting them his own example and his fellowes.

CHAP. IV.

1 He ſheweth that he hath ſo laboured in preaching the Goſpel, 4 that ſuch as are even blinded of Satan, who do not perceive the brightneſſe thereof, 7 that the ſame is caried in earthen veſſels, 10 Who are ſubject to many miſeries, 16 and therefore he exhorteth them by his own example to be couragious, 17 and contemn this preſent life.

THerefore, [1] ſeeing that we have this miniſtery, as we have received mercy, we [a] faint not:

2 But have caſt from us the [b] cloaks of ſhame, and walk not in craftines, neither handle we the word of God [c] deceitfully: but in declaration of the truth we approve our ſelves to every mans conſcience in the ſight of God.

3 [2] If our Goſpel be then hid, it is hid to them that are loſt:

4 In whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds, that is, of the infidels, that the [d] light of the glorious Goſpel of Chriſt, which is the [e] image of God, ſhould not ſhine unto them.

5 [3] For we preach not our ſelves, but Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, and our ſelves your ſevants for [f] Jeſus ſake.

6 For God *[g] that commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſſe, is he, which hath ſhined in our hearts, to give the [h] light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jeſus Chriſt.

7 [4] But we have this treaſure in earthen veſſels, [5] that the excellency of that power might be of God, and not of us.

8 We are afflicted on every ſide, yet are we not in diſtreſſe: we are in doubt, but yet we deſpaire not.

9 We are perſecuted, but not forſaken: caſt down, but we periſh not.

10 [6] Every where we beare about in our body the [i] dying of the Lord Jeſus, that the life of Jeſus might be alſo made manifeſt in our bodies.

11 For we which [k] live are alwayes delivered unto death for Jeſus ſake, that the life alſo of Jeſus might be made manifeſt in our [l] mortall fleſh:

12 [7] So then death worketh in us, and life in you.

13 [8] And becauſe we have the ſame [m] ſpirit of faith, according as it is written, * I beleeved, and therefore have I ſpoken, we alſo beleeve, and therefore ſpeake, 14 Knowing that he which hath raiſed up the Lord Jeſus, ſhall raiſe us up alſo by Jeſus, and ſhall ſet us with you.

15 [9] For all things are for your ſakes, [n] that that moſt plenteous grace by the thankſgiving of many, may redound to the praiſe of God,

16 Therefore we faint not, [10] but though

1 Now he plainly witneſſeth that both he & his fellows (through the mercy of God) do their vocation and duty uprightly, and ſincerely, neglecting all dangers.

[a] Though we are broken in pieces with miſeries and calamities, yet we yeeld not.

[c] This is it that i former Chapte called, making m chandiſe of the of God.

2 An objectio Many heare ẙ G ſpel, and yet are more lightene thereby, then the preaching the law. He anſw eth, The fault i the men them ſelves, whoſe e Satan plucketh out, who ruleth this world. A yet notwithſtan ing doth he & fellowes ſet fo the moſt cle light of the G ſpel to be ſeen a beholden, ſeei that Chriſt who onely they preac is he in who onely God will known, and as were, ſeen.

3 He removeth according to h accuſtomed ma ner, all ſuſpitio of ambition, vouching that h teacheth faithfu ly, but as a ſervan and witneſſing th al this light whic he and his fellow give to other, pro ceedeth from th Lord.

[f] To preach this ſe ſame Ieſus to you.

* Gen. 1. 3.

[g] Which made it c ly with his word.

[h] That being lightne of God, we ſhould i like ſort give th light to others.

4 He taketh awa a ſtumbling block by which was darkened amongſ ſome the brigh ſhining of the mi niſtery of the Go ſpel, to wit, becauſ the Apoſtles were the moſt miſerabl of all men. Pau anſwereth, that h and his fellows ar as it were, earthe veſſels, but ye there is in them moſt precious treaſure.

5 He bringeth marvellous reaſons why the Lord doth ſo afflict his chiefeſt ſervants, to the end, ſaith he, tha all men may perceive that they ſtand not by an mans vertue, but by the ſingular vertue of God, in that they die a thouſand times, bu never periſh.

6 An amplification of the former ſentence, wherein he compareth his afflictions to a daily death, and the vertue of the Spirit of God in Chriſt, to life, which oppreſſeth that death.

[i] So Paul calleth that miſerable eſtate and condition, tha the faithfull, but eſpecially the miniſters are in.

[k] Which live that life, to wit, by the Spirit o Chriſt, among ſo many and ſo great miſeries.

7 A very cunning concluſion: as if he would ſay, Therefore to be ſhort, we die that you may live by our death, for that they ventured into all thoſe dangers for the building o the Churches ſake, and they ceaſed not to confirm all the faithfull with the examples o their patience.

8 He declareth the former ſentence, ſhewing that he and his fellows die in a ſort, to purchaſe life to others, but yet notwithſtanding they are partakers of the ſame life with them: becauſe they themſelves do firſt beleeve that, which they propounded to other to beleeve, to wit, that they alſo ſhall be ſaved together with them in Chriſt.

* Pſal. 116. 10.

9 He ſheweth how this conſtancie is preſerved in them, to wit, becauſe they reſpect Gods glory, and the ſalvation of the Church committed unto them.

[n] Whe it ſhall pleaſe God to deliver me, and reſtore me to you, that exceeding benefit which ſhall b powred upon me ſhall in like ſort redound to the glory of God, by the thankſgiving of many

10 He addeth as it were a triumphant ſong, how that he is outwardly afflicted but inwardly hee profiteth daily: and paſſeth not at all for all the miſeries th may be ſuſtained in this life, in compariſon of that moſt conſtant and eternal glory.

our outward man periſh, yet the inward man is [o] renewed dayly.

17 For our [p] light affliction which is but for a moment, cauſeth unto us a farre more excellent and an eternall weight of [q] glorie:

18 While we looke not on the things which are ſeene, but on the things which are not ſeene: for the things which are ſeen, are temporall: but the things which are not ſeene, are eternall.

o Gathereth new ſtrength that the outward man be not overcome with the miſeries which come freſhly, one upon the necke of another, being maintained and upholden with the ſtrength of the inward man. p Afflictions are accounted light, as though they were light of themſelves, but becauſe they paſſe away quickly, when as indeed our whole life is of no great long continuance. q Which remaineth for ever firme and ſtable, and can never be ſhaken.

Chap. V.

1 He continueth in the ſame argument, 6 touching the certain hope of ſalvation 8 through faith, 12 not to praiſe himſelfe, 14 ſeeing he hath God and his Church before his eyes, 17 and eſteemeth nothing, but newneſſe of life in Chriſt.

For [1] we know that if our earthly houſe of this tabernacle be deſtroyed, we have a building given of God, that is, an houſe not made with hands, but eternall in the heavens.

2 For therefore we ſigh, deſiring to be [a] clothed with our houſe, which is from [b] heaven.

3 [2] Becauſe that if we be clothed, we ſhall not be found * naked.

4 For indeede we that are in this tabernacle, ſigh and are burdened, becauſe we would not be unclothed, but would be clothed upon, that mortalitie might be ſwallowed up of life.

5 And he that hath [c] created us for this thing is God, who alſo hath given unto us the earneſt of the Spirit.

6 [3] Therefore we are alway [d] bold, though we know that whiles we are at home in the bodie, we are abſent from the Lord.

7 (For we walke by [e] faith, and not by ſight.)

8 Neverthelesse, we are [f] bold, and love rather to remove out of the body, and to dwell with the Lord.

9 Wherefore alſo we [g] covet, that both dwelling at home, and removing from home, we may be acceptable to him.

10 * [4] For we muſt all [h] appeare before the judgement ſeat of Chriſt, that every man may receive the things which are done in his bodie, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or evill.

1 Taking occaſion by the former compariſon, he compareth this miſerable bodie, as it is in this life, to a fraile and brittle tabernacle, againſt which he ſetteth the heavenly tabernacle, ſo terming that ſure and everlaſting condition of this ſame body glorified in heaven, inſomuch, ſaith he, that we are not only, not addicted to this tabernacle, but alſo doe with ſobs and ſighs deſire rather that tabernacle. And ſo this place alſo concerning the glory to come, is put within the treatiſe of the dignitie of the miniſterie as the other was, whereof we ſpake in the beginning of the ſecond chapter. a He calleth the glorie of immortalitie, which we ſhall be, as it were, clothed with, a garment. b Heavenly, not that the ſubſtance of it is heavenly, but for the glory of it. 2 An expoſition of the former ſaying: We doe not without cauſe deſire to be clade with the heavenly houſe, that is, with that everlaſting & immortall glory, as with a garment: for when we depart hence, we ſhall not remaine naked, having once caſt off the covering of this body, but we ſhall take our bodies againe, which ſhall put on, as it were, another garment beſides: & therefore we ſigh not for the wearineſſe of this life, but for the deſire of a beter life: Neither is this deſire in vaine, for we are made to that life, the pledge whereof we have, even the Spirit of adoption. * Revel.16.15. c He meaneth that firſt creation, to give us to underſtand, that our bodies were made to this end, that they ſhould be clothed with heavenly immortalitie. 3 He inferreth upon that ſentence that went next before, thus, Therefore ſeeing that we know by the Spirit, that we are ſtrangers ſo long as we are here, we patiently ſuffer this tariance (for we are now ſo with God, that we behold him but by faith, and are therefore now abſent from him) but ſo that we aſpire and have a longing alwayes to him: therefore alſo we behave our ſelves ſo, that we may be acceptable to him, both while we live here, and when we go from hence to him. d He calleth them (bold) which are alwayes reſolved with a quiet and ſetled minde to ſuffer what danger ſoever, nothing doubting but their end ſhall be happie. e Faith, of thoſe things which we hope for, and not having God preſently in our view. f And yet we are in ſuch ſort bolde, and doe ſo paſſe on our pilgrimage with a valiant and a quiet minde, that yet notwithſtanding we had rather depart hence to the Lord. g And ſeeing it is ſo, we ſtrive to live ſo, that both in this our pilgrimage here, we may pleaſe him, and that at length we may be received home to him. * Rom.14.10. 4 That no man might thinke it to pertaine to all, which he ſpake of that heavenly glorie, he addeth, that every one ſhall firſt render an account of his pilgrimage, after that he is departed from hence. h We muſt all appeare perſonally, and enquirie ſhall be made of us, that all may ſee how we have lived.

11 [5] Knowing therefore that [i] terrour of the Lord, we perſwade men, and we are made manifeſt unto God, and I truſt alſo that we are made manifeſt in your conſciences.

12 [6] For we praiſe not our ſelves againe unto you, but give you an occaſion to rejoyce of us, that ye may have to anſwere againſt them, which rejoyce in the [k] face, and not in the heart.

13 [7] For whether we be out of our wit, we are it to God: or whether we be in our right minde, we are it unto you.

14 [8] For that love of Chriſt [l] conſtraineth us,

15 Becauſe we thus judge, that if [m] one be dead for all, then were all dead, and he died for all, that they which live, ſhould not henceforth [n] live unto themſelves, but unto him which died for them, and roſe againe.

16 [9] Wherefore, henceforth know we no man after the fleſh, [10] yea though we had knowen Chriſt after the fleſh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

17 [11] Therefore if any man be in Chriſt, let him be a [o] new creature. * Olde things are paſſed away: behold, all things are become new.

18 [12] And all things are of God, which hath reconciled us unto himſelfe by Jeſus Chriſt, and hath given unto us the miniſterie of reconciliation.

19 For God was in Chriſt, and reconciled the world to himſelfe, not imputing their ſins unto them, and hath [p] committed to us the word of reconciliation.

20 Now then are we ambaſſadours for Chriſt: as though God did beſeech you through us, we pray you in Chriſts ſtead, that ye be reconciled to God.

21 For he hath made him to be [q] ſin for us, which [r] knew no ſin, that we ſhould be made the [ſ] righteouſneſſe of God in him.

5 Now he paſſeth over, and taking occaſion of the former ſentence, returneth to the former chap. verſe 16. confirming his own ſinceritie and his fellowes. i That terrible judgement. 6 He removeth all ſuſpition of pride, by a new reaſon, becauſe it is behoveable, not for his part, but for theirs, that his Apoſtleſhip be counted ſincere againſt the vaine oſtentation of a few others. k In outward diſguiſings, and that coulored ſhew of mans wiſedome and eloquence, and not in true godlines, which is ſealed in the heart. 7 The meaning is: Even when I am mad (as ſome men think of me) whileſt I ſeeme as a foole to boaſt my ſelfe, I doe it for your profit, no leſſe then when I preach the Goſpel ſimply unto you. 8 He goeth forward in putting away all ſuſpition of deſire of eſtimation and boaſting: for the love of Chriſt, ſaith he, compelleth us hereunto, that ſeeing he died for us all, which were dead when as we lived to our ſelves (that is, while we were yet given to theſe earthly affections) we in like ſort ſhould conſecrate our whole life, which we have received of him, to him (to wit) being indued with the holy Ghoſt, to this end and purpoſe, that we ſhould meditate upon nothing but that which is heavenly. l Poſſeſſeth us wholly. m He ſpeaketh here of ſanctification, whereby it commeth to paſſe that Chriſt liveth in us.

n Looke Romanes chap.6.and 7. 9 He ſheweth what it is, not to live to our ſelves but to Chriſt, to wit, to know no man according to the fleſh, that is to ſay, to be converſant amongſt men as not to care for thoſe worldly and carnall things, as they doe which reſpect a mans ſtock, his countrey, forme, glorie, riches and ſuch like, wherein men commonly dote and wearie themſelves. 10 An amplification, This is, ſayth he, ſo true, that we doe not now thinke carnally of Chriſt himſelfe, who hath now left the world, and therefore muſt be conſidered of us, ſpiritually. 11 An exhortation for every man which is renewed with the Spirit of Chriſt, to meditate heavenly things, and not earthly. o As a thing made a new of God, for though a man be not newly created when God giveth him the ſpirit of regeneration, but onely his qualities are changed, yet notwithſtanding it pleaſed the holy Ghoſt to ſpeake ſo, to teach us that we muſt attribute all things to the glory of God: not that we are ſtocks and blocks, but becauſe God createth in us, both the will to will well, and the power to doe well. * Eſai.43.19. revelat.21.5. 12 He commendeth the excellencie of the miniſterie of the Goſpel, both by the authoritie of God himſelfe, who is the authour of that miniſterie, and alſo by the excellencie of the doctrine of it: for it anounceth atonement with God, by free forgiveneſſe of our ſins, and juſtification offered unto us in Chriſt, and that ſo lovingly and liberally, that God himſelfe doth after a ſort pray men by the mouth of his miniſters to have conſideration of themſelves, and not to deſpiſe ſo great a benefit. And when he ſo ſaith, he plainely reprehendeth them which falſely challenged to themſelves the name of Paſtours. p Uſed our labour, and travaile. q A ſinner, not in himſelfe, but by imputation of the guilt of all our ſinnes to him. r Who was cleane void of ſinne. ſ Righteous before God, and that with a righteouſneſſe, which is not eſſentiall to us, but being eſſentiall in Chriſt, God imputeth it to us through faith.

Chap. VI.

1 He exhorteth them to lead their lives as it becommeth Chriſtians, 5 neither to be diſmayed in tribulation, 9 nor puffed up with vaine glory: 14 to avoide all uncleanneſſe, 16 conſidering that they are the temples of the living God.

SO[1] we therefore as workers together beſeech you, that ye receive not the grace of God in vaine.

2 [2] For he ſaith, * I have heard thee in a time [a] accepted, and in the day of ſalvation have I ſuccoured thee : behold now the accepted time, behold now the day of ſalvation.

3 [3] We give no occaſion of offence in any thing, that our miniſtery ſhould not be reprehended.

4 But in all things we [b] approve our ſelves as * the miniſters of God [4] in much patience, in afflictions, in neceſſities, in deſtreſſes,

5 In ſtripes, in priſons, in [c] tumults, in labours,

6 [5] By watchings, by faſtings, by purity, by knowledge, by long ſuffering, by kindneſſe, by the holy Ghoſt, by love unfained,

7 By the [d] word of trueth, by the [e] power of God, by the [f] armour of righteouſneſſe on the right hand, and on the left,

8 By honour and diſhonour, by evil report, and good report, as deceivers, and yet true:

9 As unknowen, and yet knowen: as dying, and behold, we live: as chaſtened, and yet not killed:

10 As ſorrowing, and yet alway rejoycing: as poore, and yet making many rich: as having nothing, and yet poſſeſing all things.

11 [6] O Corinthians, our mouth is [g] open unto you: our heart is made large.

12 Ye are not [h] kept ſtrait in us, but ye are kept ſtrait in your owne [i] bowels.

13 Now for the ſame recompenſe, I ſpeak as to my children, Be you alſo enlarged.

14 [7] Be not unequally yoked with the infidels: for * what fellowſhip hath righteouſnes with unrighteouſneſſe? and what communion hath light with darkeneſſe?

15 And what concord hath Chriſt with Belial? or what [k] part hath the beleever with the Infidell?

16 And what agreement hath the Temple of God with idols? * for ye are the Temple of the [l] living God: as God hath ſayd, * I will [m] dwell among them, and walke there: and I will be their God, and they ſhall be my people.

17 * Wherefore come out from among them, and ſeparate your ſelves, ſaith the Lord, and touch none uncleane thing, and I will receive you.

18 * And I will be a Father unto you, and ye ſhall be my ſons and daughters, ſaith the Lord Almightie.

CHAP. VII.

1 Leſt by overmuch urging them he ſhould diſmay their tender minds, 2 he proveth that all that he ſaid, 4 proceeded of the great good will he bare unto them: 8 and therefore they ſhould not be offended that he made them ſorie, 10 and brought them to repentance not to be repented of.

SEeing then we have theſe promiſes, dearely beloved, let us cleanſe our ſelves from all filthineſſe of the [a] fleſh and Spirit, & finiſh our ſanctification in the feare of God.

2 [1] [b] Receive us: we have done wrong to no man: we have corrupted no man: we have defrauded no man.

3 I ſpeake it not to your [c] condemnation: for I have ſaid before, that ye are in our hearts, to die and live together.

4 I uſe great boldneſſe of ſpeach toward you: I rejoyce greatly in you: I am filled with comfort, and am exceeding joyous in all our tribulation.

5 For when we were come into Macedonia, our fleſh had no reſt, but we were troubled on every ſide, fightings without, and terrours within.

6 But God, that comforteth the [d] abject, comforted us at the [e] comming of Titus:

7 And not by his comming onely, but alſo by the conſolation wherewith he was comforted of you, when he told us your great deſire, your mourning, your fervent minde to me ward, ſo that I rejoyced much more.

8 [2] For though I made you ſorie with a letter, I repent not, though I did repent: for I perceive that the ſame Epiſtle made you ſorie, though it were but for a ſeaſon.

9 I now rejoyce, not that ye were ſory, but that ye ſorrowed to [f] repentance: for ye ſorrowed godly, ſo that in nothing ye were hurt by us.

10 For [g] godly ſorrow cauſeth repentance unto ſalvation, not to be repented of: but the wordly ſorrow cauſeth death.

11 For behold, this thing that ye have beene godly ſory, what great care it hath wrought in you: yea, what clearing of your ſelves: yea, what indignation: yea, what feare: yea, how great deſire: yea, what a zeale: yea, what revenge: in all things ye have ſhewed your ſelves, that ye are pure in this matter.

12 Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, I did it not for his cauſe that had done the wrong, neither for his cauſe that had the injurie, but that our care toward you in the [h] ſight of God might appeare unto you.

13 Therefore we were comforted, becauſe ye were comforted: but rather we rejoyced much more for the joy of Titus, becauſe his ſpirit was refreſhed by you all.

14 For if that I have boaſted any thing to him of you, I have not beene aſhamed: but as I have ſpoken unto you al things in truth, even ſo our boaſting unto Titus was true.

[1] Men doe not onely need the miniſtery of the Goſpel, before they have received grace that they may be partakers of it, but alſo after they have received grace that they may continue in it.

[2] In that that grace is offered, it is of the grace of God, who hath appointed times and ſeaſons to all things, that we may take occaſion when it is offered.

* Eſai.49.8.

[a] Which I of my free mercy and love towards thee liked of and appointed: at which time God poured out that his marveilous love upon us.

[3] He ſheweth the Corinthians a patterne of a true miniſter in his own example, and Timotheus, and Sylvanus, to the end, that (as he purpoſed from the beginning) he might procure authoritie to himſelfe, and his like.

* 1 *Cor.*4.1.

[4] Hee firſt of all reckoneth up thoſe things, which are neither alwayes in the miniſters, nor without exception, unleſſe it be according to the affection of the minde, patience onely except, which alſo is one of the vertues which ought to be alwayes in a good miniſter.

[c] In toſsing to and fro, finding no place of reſt and quietnes.

[5] Secondly, he reckoneth up ſuch vertues as are neceſſarie, and ought alwayes to be in them, and whereby, as by good armour, all lets and hinderances may be overcome.

[6] Going about to rebuke them, he ſayth firſt, that he dealeth with them ſincerely, and with an open and plain heart, and therewithall complaineth that they doe not the like in loving againe their Father.

[g] The opening of the mouth and heart, betokeneth a moſt earneſt affection in him that ſpeaketh, as it fareth commonly with them that are in ſome great ioy.

[h] You are in my heart, as in an houſe, and that no narrow or ſtraite houſe, for I have opened my whole heart to you, but you are inwardly ſtrait laced to mee ward.

[i] After the manner of the Hebrewes, he calleth thoſe tender affections which reſt in the heart & bowels.

[7] Now he rebuketh them boldly, for that they became fellowes with infidels in outward idolatrie, as though it were a thing indifferenr. And this is the fourth part of this Epiſtle, the concluſion vhereof is, that ſuch as the Lord hath vouchſafed the name of his children, muſt keepe themſelves pure, not onely in minde, but alſo in body, that they may wholly be holy unto the Lord.

CHAP. VIII.

1 He exhorteth them, by the example of the Macedonians, 9 and alſo even of Chriſt himſelfe, 14 to be liberall towards the Saints. 16 For which purpoſe, he ſheweth that Titus, 18 and another brother came unto them.

WE [1] do you alſo to wit, brethren, of the [a] grace of God beſtowed upon the Churches of Macedonia,

2 Becauſe in [b] great triall of affliction their joy abounded and their moſt extreme poverty abounded unto their rich liberality.

5 For to their power, (I beare record) yea, and beyond their power, they were [c] willing,

4 And prayed us with great inſtance, that we would receive the [d] grace, and fellowſhip of the miniſtring which is toward the Saints.

5 [2] And this they did, not as we looked for: but gave their own ſelves, firſt to the Lord, and after unto us by the will of God,

6 That we ſhould exhort Titus, that as he had begun, ſo he would alſo accompliſh the ſame grace among you alſo.

7 Therefore, as ye abound in every thing, in faith and word, and knowledge, & in all diligence, & in your love towards us, even ſo ſee that ye abound in this grace alſo.

8 [3] This ſay I not by commandement, but becauſe of the [e] diligence of others: therefore prove I the [f] naturalneſſe of your love.

9 [4] For ye know the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that he being rich, for your ſakes became poore, that ye through his povertie might be made rich.

10 [5] And I ſhew my minde herein: for this is expedient for you, which have begun not to do onely, but alſo to [g] will, a yeare agoe.

11 Now therefore performe to doe it alſo, that as there was a readineſſe to will, even ſo ye may perform it of that which ye have.

12 [6] For if there be firſt a willing minde, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

13 [7] Neither is it that other men ſhould be eaſed, and you grieved: but upon [h] like condition, at this time your abundance ſupplyeth their lack:

14 That alſo their abundance may be for your lack, that there may be equalitie:

15 As it is written, * He that gathered much, had nothing over, and he that gathered little, had not the leſſe.

16 [8] And thanks be unto God, which hath put in the heart of Titus the ſame care for you.

17 Becauſe he accepted the exhortation, yea, he was ſo carefull that of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have ſent alſo with him the brother, whoſe praiſe is [i] in the Goſpel thorowout all the Churches.

19 (And not ſo onely, but is alſo choſen of the Churches to be a fellow in our journey, concerning this [k] grace that is miniſtered by us unto the glory of the ſame Lord, and declaration of your prompt minde.)

20 Avoyding this, that no man ſhould blame us in this [l] abundance that is miniſtred by us,

21 * Providing for honeſt things, not onely before the Lord, but alſo before men.

22 And we have ſent with them our brother, whom we have oft times proved to be diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, for the great confidence, which I have in you.

23 Whether any do inquire of Titus, he is my fellow and helper to you-ward: or of our [m] brethren, they are meſſengers of the Churches, and the [n] glory of Chriſt.

24 Wherefore ſhew toward them, & before the [o] Churches the proof of your love, and of the rejoycing that we have of you.

CHAP. IX.

1 Why, albeit he thinke well of their ready willes, 3 yet earneſtly exhorteth them: 4 he yeeldeth a reaſon. 6 He compareth almes to ſeede ſowing, 13 which God doth repay with great gaines.

FOr [1] as touching the miniſtring to the Saints, it is ſuperfluous for me to write unto you.

2 For I know your readineſſe of minde, whereof I boaſt my ſelfe of you unto them of Macedonia, and ſay, that Achaia was prepared a yeare ago, and your zeale hath provoked many.

3 Now have I ſent the brethren, leſt our rejoycing over you ſhould be in vaine in this behalfe, that ye (as I have ſaid) be ready:

4 Leſt if they of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we (that we may not ſay, you) ſhould be aſhamed in this my [a] conſtant boaſting.

5 Wherefore, I thought it neceſſarie to exhort the brethren to come before unto you, and to finiſh your benevolence appointed afore, that it might be readie, and come as of benevolence, and not as of [b] niggardlineſſe.

6 [2] This yet remember, that he which ſoweth ſparingly, ſhall reape alſo ſparingly, and he that ſoweth liberally, ſhall reape alſo liberally.

[1] The ſixt part of this Epiſtle conteining divers exhortations to ſtirre up the Corinthians to liberalitie, wherewith the povertie of the Church of Hieruſalem might be holpen in time convenient. And firſt of al, he ſetteth out before them the example of the Churches of Macedonia, which otherwiſe were brought by great miſery to extreme povertie, to the end that they ſhould follow them.

[a] The benefit that God beſtowed upon the Churches.

[b] For thoſe manifold afflictions wherewith the Lord tried them, did not onely not quaile their joyfull readineſſe, but alſo made it much more excellent and famous.

[c] Of their own accord they were liberall.

[d] He calleth that, Grace, that other men would have called a burden. And this verſe is to be expounded by the ſixt verſe.

[2] He applieth the forwardneſſe of the Macedonians, in this, that they alſo deſired Paul to ſtirre up the Corinthians to accompliſh the giving of almes, by ſending again of Titus unto them.

[3] Thirdly, he warneth them, that they deceive not their expectation which they have conceived of them.

[f] Then appeareth the naturalneſſe of our love, when as indeede, and that frankely and freely, we helpe our brethren even for Chriſt his ſake.

[4] The fourth argument, taken from the example of Chriſt.

[5] He taketh good heede that hee ſeeme not to wreſt it out of them by conſtraint, for unleſſe it be voluntarie, God doeth not accept it.

[g] Not onely to doe, but alſo to doe willingly: for he noteth a ready willingneſſe, without any inforcement by any other men, much leſſe came it of ambition and vaine glory.

[6] Againſt ſuch as uſe to excuſe themſelves becauſe they are not rich, as though it were onely proper to rich men to helpe the poore.

[7] Chriſtian liberalitie is mutuall, that proportion may be obſerved.

[h] That like as now in your abundance you helpe others, which are poore, with ſome part of your goods, ſo ſhould others in like ſort beſtow ſome of theirs upon you.

* Exod.16.18.

[8] He commendeth Titus and his two companions for many cauſes, both that their credite might not be ſuſpected, as though he had ſent them ſlily to ſpoile the Churches, & alſo that they might be ſo much the readier to contribute.

[i] In the preaching of the Goſpel.

[k] Theſe almes which are beſtowed for the releefe of the Church of Hieruſalem.

* Rom. 12. 17.

[m] Titus his two companions.

[n] By whom the glory of Chriſt is ſet forth.

[o] All Churches ſhall be witneſſes of this your godly dealing, in whoſe preſence you are, for ſo much as you ſee the meſſengers whom they have choſen by all their conſents, and ſent them unto you.

[1] He wiſely meeteth with the ſuſpition which the Corinthians might conceive: as though the Apoſtle, in urging them ſo carefully, ſhould doubt of their good will. Therefore he witneſſeth that he doeth it not to teach them that they ought to helpe the Saints, ſeeing that he had become ſuretie for them to the Macedonians, but only to ſtirre them up which were running of themſelves, to the end that all things might both be in a better readines, and alſo be more plentifull.

[a] The word which he uſeth, ſignifieth ſuch a ſtaiedneſſe & ſetledneſſe of mind as cannot be moved with any terrour or feare.

[b] As from covetous men.

[2] Almes muſt be given neither niggardly, nor with a loathfull mind, or hardly: but a franke and free almes is compared to a ſowing which hath a moſt plentifull harveſt of moſt abundant bleſſing following it.

7 As every man [c] wiſheth in his heart, ſo let him give, not *[d] grudgingly, or of [e] neceſſitie: * for God loveth a cheerefull giver.

8 And God is able to make [f] all grace to abound toward you, that ye alwayes having all ſufficiencie in al things, may abound in [g] every good worke.

9 (* As it is written, He hath ſparſed abroad and hath given to the poore: his benevolence remaineth for [h] ever.

10 Alſo he that findeth ſeed to the ſower, will miniſter likewiſe bread for food, and multiply your ſeed, and increaſe the [i] fruits of your benevolence,)

11 That on all parts ye may be made rich unto all liberalitie, which cauſeth through us thankſgiving unto God.

12 [3] For the miniſtration of this ſervice not only ſupplieth the neceſſities of the Saints, but alſo abundantly cauſeth many to give thanks to God,

13 (Which by the [k] experiment of this miniſtration praiſe God for your [l] voluntarie ſubmiſsion to the Goſpel of Chriſt, and for your liberall diſtribution to them, and to all men.)

14 And in their prayer for you, to long after you greatly, for the abundant grace of God in you.

15 [m] Thanks therefore be unto God for his unſpeakeable gift.

* Rom. 12.8.

[d] With a ſparing and niggardly heart.

* Eccleſ.35.10.

* Pſal.112.9.

[h] Is everlaſting: Now David ſpeaketh of a man that feareth God, and loveth his neighbour, who ſhall never want (ſayth he) to give to others.

[i] There is none ſo good an inheritance to the godly, as bountifulneſſe is.

[13] Another excellent and double fruit of liberalitie towards the Saints, is this: that it giveth occaſion to praiſe God, and that our faith alſo is thereby made manifeſt.

[k] By this proofe of your liberalitie in this helping and ſuccouring of them.

[l] In ſhewing with one conſent, that you acknowledge that onely Goſpel, which you have willingly ſubmitted your ſelves unto, declaring thereby, that you agree with the Church of Hieruſalem.

[m] Leſt by this great commendation and praiſe, the Corinthians ſhould be puffed up, hee ſhutteth up this exhortation, with this exclamation.

Chap. X.

2 He ſheweth with what confidence, 4 with what weapons, 6 and with what revenge he is armed againſt the cavillations of the wicked, 7 and that, when he is preſent, his deedes have no leſſe power, 11 then his words have force, when he is abſent.

NOw [1] I Paul my ſelfe beſeech you by the meekeneſſe, and [a] gentleneſſe of Chriſt, which when I am preſent among you, am baſe, but am bold toward you being abſent:

2 And this I require you, that I need not to be bold when I am preſent, with that ſame confidence, wherewith I thinke to be bold againſt ſome, which eſteeme us as though we walked [b] according to the fleſh.

3 [2] Neverthelſſe, though we walke in the fleſh, yet we doe not warre after the fleſh.

4 (For the weapons of our warfare are not [c] carnall, but mightie through [d] God, to caſt down holdes)

5 Caſting down the imaginations, and every high thing that is exalted againſt the knowledge of God, [3] and bringing into captivitie every thought to the obedience of Chriſt.

6 And having ready the vengeance againſt all diſobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled.

7 [4] Looke ye on things after the [e] appearance? If any man truſt in himſelfe that he is Chriſts, let him conſider this againe of [f] himſelfe, that as he is Chriſts, even ſo are we Chriſts.

8 For though I ſhould boaſt ſomewhat more of our authoritie, which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your deſtruction, I ſhould have no ſhame.

9 This I ſay, that I may not ſeeme as it were to feare you with letters.

10 For the letters, ſayth [g] he, are ſore and ſtrong, but his bodily preſence is weak, and his ſpeech is of no value.

11 Let ſuch one thinke this, that ſuch as we are in word by letters, when we are abſent, ſuch will we be alſo in deed, when we are preſent.

12 [5] For we [h] dare not make our ſelves of the number, or to compare our ſelves of them, which praiſe themſelves: but they underſtand not that they meaſure themſelves with [i] themſelves, and [k] compare themſelves with themſelves.

13 But we will not rejoyce of things, which are not within our [l] meaſure, * but according to the meaſure of the line, whereof God hath diſtributed unto us a meaſure to attaine even unto you.

14 For we ſtretch not our ſelves beyond our meaſure, as though we had not attained unto you: for even to you alſo have we come in preaching the Goſpel of Chriſt, 15 Not boaſting of things which are [m] without our meaſure: that is, of other mens labours: and we hope, when your faith ſhall increaſe, to be magnified by you according to our line abundantly.

16 And to preach the Goſpel in thoſe regions which are beyond you: not to rejoyce in [n] another mans line, that is, in the things that are prepared alreadie.

17 * [6] But let him that rejoyceth, rejoyce in the Lord.

18 For he that prayſeth himſelfe is not allowed, but he whom the Lord praiſeth.

[1] He returneth to the defence of his Apoſtleſhip, but ſo that he uſeth his authoritie therein: for he warneth them earneſtly and gravely, uſing alſo terrible threatnings, to ſhew themſelves ſuch as are apt to be inſtructed. And he refelleth certain proud men which made no better acount of him, then of a bragging Thraſo, in that he uſed to be ſharpe againſt them when he was abſent, becauſe they ſawe no great majeſtie in him after the manner of men, and beſides had proved his lenitie, notwithſtanding that in his abſence, he had written to them ſharpely. Therefore, firſt of all, he profeſſeth that he was gentle and moderate, but after the example of Chriſt: but if they continue ſtil to deſpiſe his gentleneſſe, he proteſteth unto them that he will ſhew indeede how farre they are deceived, which make that account of the office of an Apoſtle, that they doe of wordly offices, that is, according to the outward appearance.

[a] That nature which is inclined to mercie, rather then to rigour of iuſtice.

[b] As though I had no other aide and helpe then that which outwardly I ſeeme to have: and therefore Paul ſetteth his fleſh, that is, his weake condition and ſtate againſt his ſpirituall and Apoſtolicke dignitie.

[2] Secondly, he witneſſeth, that although he be like unto other men, yet hee commeth furniſhed with that ſtrength, which no holds of man can match, whether they reſiſt by craft and deceit, or by force and might, becauſe he warrefareth with divine weapons.

[c] Are not ſuch as men get them authoritie withall one of another, and do great acts.

[d] Stand upon that infinite power of God.

[3] An Amplification of this ſpirituall vertue, which in ſuch ſort conquereth the enemies, be they never ſo craftie, and mightie, that it bringeth ſome of them by repentance unto Chriſt, and juſtly revengeth others that are ſtubbornly obſtinate, ſeparating them from the other which ſuffer themſelves to be ruled.

[4] He beateth i to their heads th ſame matter, wi great weight o words and ſentences.

[e] Doe ye iudge things according t the outward ſhew

[f] Not being told o it by mee.

[g] He noteth out ſome one that w the ſeeds man of th ſpeach.

[5] Being conſtra ned to refel th fooliſh brags certain ambitio men: he witne ſeth, that they a able to bring n thing, but th they falſly perſwade themſelv of themſelves: an as for himſelfe, a though he brag excellent thing yet he will not paſſe the boun which God hat meaſured him o according wher unto he came even unto them in preaching t Goſpel of Chri and truſteth th he ſhall goe fu ther, when they have ſo profited that he ſhall n neede to tary a longer amongſ them to inſtru them. And here unto is added amplification, that he never ſu ceeded other m in their labours

[h] This is ſpoken a ter a taunting ſort

[i] Upon a vaine pe ſwaſion that th have of themſelve they take upon the they care not what.

[k] They contemne all other, and mea ſure all their doin onely by themſelve

* Epheſ.4.7.

[m] As though G had divided the whole world amo the Apoſtles, to b husbanded.

[n] In countreys which other men have prepared an husbanded with th preaching of the Goſpel.

* Iere.9.24. 1 Cor.1.31.

[6] He ſomewhat mitigateth that which he ſpake o himſelfe, and therewith alſo prepareth the Corinthians to heare other things, witneſſing that he ſeeketh nothing elſe, but to approve him ſelf to God, whoſe glory he onely ſeeketh.

Chap. XI.

2 He teſtifieth, that for the great loves ſake he beareth to the Corinthians, he is compelled 5 to utter his own praiſes: 9 And that he beſtowed his labour on them without any reward, 13 that the falſe apoſtles ſhould not ſurpaſſe him in any thing, 22 whom he farre excelled in thoſe things which are praiſeworthy indeede.

WOuld [1] to God, ye could ſuffer a little my fooliſhneſſe, and indeed, ye ſuffer me:

[1] He granteth that after a ſort h playeth the foo in this vaunting things, but he them deceived b deth that he doeth it againſt his will for their profit, becauſe he ſeeth certain vaine and craftie men, through the craft and ſubtiltie of Satan.

2 For I am jealous over you with [a] godly jealouſie: for I have prepared you for one husband, to [b] preſent you as a pure virgine to Chriſt:

3 But I feare leaſt as the *ſerpent beguiled Eve through his ſubtilty, ſo your minds ſhould be [c] corrupt from the ſimplicity that is in [d] Chriſt.

4 [2] For if he that cometh, preacheth [e] another Jeſus whom we have not preached: or if ye receive another ſpirit whom ye have not received: either another Goſpel, which ye have not received, ye might well have ſuffered him.

5 Verely I ſuppoſe that I was not inferiour to the very chief Apoſtles.

6 [3] And though I be [f] rude in ſpeaking, yet I am not ſo in knowledge, but among you we have been made manifeſt to the uttermoſt, in all things.

7 [4] Have I committed an offence, becauſe I abaſed my ſelf, that ye might be exalted, and becauſe I preached to you the Goſpel of God freely?

8 I robbed other Churches, and took wages of them to do you ſervice.

9 And when I was preſent with you, and had need, *I was not ſlothfull to the hinderance of any man: for that which was lacking unto me, the brethren which came from Macedonia ſupplied, and in all things I kept [5] and will keep my ſelf, that I ſhould not be grievous to you.

10 The [g] truth of Chriſt is in me, that this rejoycing ſhall not be [h] ſhut up againſt me in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? becauſe I love you not? God knoweth.

12 But what I do, that will I do: that I may cut away occaſion from them which deſire occaſion, that they may be found like unto us in that wherein they [i] rejoyce.

13 [6] For ſuch falſe apoſtles are deceitfull workers, and transform themſelves into the Apoſtles of Chriſt.

14 And no marvell: for Satan himſelf is transformed into an Angel of [k] light.

15 Therefore it is no great thing, though his miniſters transform themſelves, as though they were the miniſters of righteouſneſſe, whoſe end ſhall be according to their works.

16 [7] I ſay again, Let no man think that I am fooliſh, or elſe take me even as a ſool, that I alſo may boaſt my ſelf a little.

17 That I ſpeak, I ſpeak it not after the Lord: but as it were fooliſhly in this my great boaſting.

18 Seeing that many rejoyce after the fleſh, I will rejoyce alſo.

19 For ye ſuffer fooles gladly, becauſe that ye are wiſe.

20 [8] For ye ſuffer, even as if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devoure you, if a man take your goods, if a man exalt himſelf, if a man ſmite you on the face.

21 I ſpeak as concerning the [l] reproch, as though that we had been [m] weake: but wherein any man is bold (I ſpeak fooliſhly) I am bold alſo.

22 They are Hebrews, *ſo am I: they are Iſraelites, ſo am I: they are the ſeed of Abraham, ſo am I:

23 They are the miniſters of Chriſt (I ſpeak as a foole) I am [n] more: in labours more abundant: in ſtripes above meaſure: in priſon more plenteouſly: in [o] death oft.

24 Of the Jews [p] five times received I forty ſtripes ſave one.

25 I was [q] thrice *beaten with rods: I was *once ſtoned: I ſuffered thrice *ſhipwrack: night and day have I been in the deep Sea.

26 In journeying I was often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils of mine own nation, in perils among the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderneſſe, in perils in the Sea, in perils among falſe brethren.

27 In wearineſſe and [r] painfulneſſe, in watching often, in hunger and thirſt, in faſtings often, in cold and in nakedneſſe.

28 [9] Beſide the things which are outward, I am cumbred daily, and have the care of all the Churches.

29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? who is offended, and I burn not?

30 [10] If I muſt needs rejoyce, I will rejoyce of mine infirmities.

31 The God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is bleſſed for evermore, knoweth that I lie not.

32 In *Damaſcus the governour of the people under king Aretas, laid watch in the citie of the Damaſcens, and would have caught me, 33 But at a window was I let down in a basket through the wall, and eſcaped his hands.

CHAP. XII.

1 He doth even unwillingly make rehearſall 3 of the heavenly viſions, 4 that were revealed unto him, 6 for which, though he might indeed glory, yet he will not, 10 being privie of his own infirmities: 11 but they drive him to this kinde of folly, 20 in that they give eare to certain vain-glorious perſons, who draw them from Chriſt.

---

[a] He ſpeaketh as a wooer, but yet as one that ſeeketh them not for himſelf, but for God.

* Gen. 3. 4.

[c] This place is to be marked againſt them which loath that plain and pure ſimplicity of the Scriptures, in compariſon of the colours and paintings of mans eloquence.

[d] Which is meet for them that are in Chriſt.

[2] He ſheweth that they deceive themſelves, if they look to receive of any other man, either a more excellent Goſpel, or more excellent gifts of the holy Ghoſt.

[3] He refuteth the ſlanders of thoſe Thraſoes. I grant, ſaith he, that I am not ſo eloquent an Oratour, but yet they cannot take away the knowledge of the Goſpel from me, whereof you have had good proof, and that every manner of way.

[f] Paul lacked not of that kind of eloquence which is meet for a man, and fit for the Goſpel, but he willingly wanted that painted kinde of ſpeech, which too many now a dayes hunt after and follow.

[4] Another ſlander, to wit, that he was raſcall, and lived by the labour of his own hands. But herein ſaith the Apoſtle, what can you lay againſt me, but that I was content to take any paines for your ſakes, and when I lacked, to travail for my living with mine own hands in part, and partly alſo when poverty conſtrained me, I choſe rather otherwiſe to ſeek my ſuſtenance, then to be any burden to you, although I preached the Goſpel unto you?

* Chap. 12. 13.

[5] An amplification: So farre is he from being aſhamed of this act, that he hath alſo reſolved with himſelf to do no otherwiſe hereafter amongſt them, to the intent that it may alwayes be truly ſaid, that he taught in Achaia for nothing: not that he diſdaineth the Corinthians, but that theſe Thraſoes may never finde the occaſion which they have already ſought for, and he in the meane ſeaſon, may ſet ſomething before them to follow, that at length they may truly ſay, that they are like to Paul.

[g] This is a form of an oath, as if he ſaid, let me not be thought to have any truth in me.

[h] Shall be alwayes open to me.

[i] Pauls adverſaries ſought all occaſions they could to be equall to him. And therefore ſeeing they had rather eat up the Corinthians, then preach to them for nothing, they ſought another occaſion, to wit, to make Paul to take ſome thing: which thing if he had done, then hoped they by that meanes to be equall to him: for they made ſuch a ſhew of zeale and knowledge, and ſet it forth with ſuch a gloſſing kinde of eloquence, that ſome of them even diſpiſed Paul: but he ſheweth that all this is nothing but colours and painting.

[6] Now at length he painteth out theſe fellows in their colours, forewarning, that it will come to paſſe, that they will at length betray themſelves, what countenance ſoever they make of the zeale that they have of Gods glory.

[k] By light is meant the heavenly glory, whereof the Angels are partakers.

[7] He goeth forward boldly, and uſing a vehement Ironie or kinde of taunting, deſireth the Corinthians to pardon him, if for a time he contend as a fool before them being wiſe, with thoſe jolly fellowes touching thoſe externall things, to wit, touching his ſtock, his anceſtours and valiant Acts.

[8] Before he cometh to the matter, he toucheth ẏ corinthians, who perſwading themſelves to be very wiſe men, did not mark, in the meane ſeaſon, that thoſe falſe apoſtles abuſed their ſimplicity for advantage.

[l] As if he ſaid, In reſpect of that reproch which they do unto you (I ſpeak it) which ſurely is as evill, as if they did beate you.

[m] Paul is called weake, in that he ſeemeth to the Corinthians a vile and abject man, a beggerly artificer, a moſt wretched and miſerable idiot, whereas notwithſtanding, therein Gods mighty power was made manifeſt.

* Phil. 3. 5.

[o] In danger of preſent death.

[p] He alludeth, to that that is written, Deut. 25. 3. and moreover this place ſheweth us, that Paul ſuffered many things which Luke paſſed over.

* Acts 16. 23.

* Acts 14. 19.

* Acts 27. 14.

[r] Painfulneſſe is a troubleſome ſickneſſe, as when a man is wearie and would reſt, he is conſtrained to fall to new labour.

[9] He addeth this in concluſion further, that the Corinthians might be aſhamed to deſpiſe him, upon whoſe care, almoſt all Churches depended, as it was plainly ſeen by experience.

[10] He turneth that againſt the adverſaries, which they objected againſt him: as if he ſhould ſay, They alledged my calamities, to take away my authority from me: but if I would boaſt my ſelf, I would take no better argument: and God himſelf is my witneſſe that I deviſe and forge nothing

* Acts 9. 24.

IT[1] is not expedient for me no doubt to rejoyce: for I will come to viſions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I know a man [a] in Chriſt above fourteen years agone, (whether he were in the body, I cannot tell, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth) which was taken up into the [b] third heaven.

3 And I know ſuch a man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth)

4 How that he was taken up into [c] Paradiſe, and heard words which [d] cannot be ſpoken, which are not [e] poſſible for man to utter.

5 [2] Of ſuch a man will I rejoyce: of my ſelf will I not rejoyce, except it be of mine infirmities.

6 For though I would rejoyce, I ſhould not be a fool, for I will ſay the truth: but I refraine, leſt any man ſhould think of me above that he ſeeth in me, or that he heareth of me.

7 [3] And leſt I ſhould be exalted out of meaſure through the abundance of revelations, there was given unto me [f] a prick in the fleſh, the meſſenger of [g] Satan to buffet me, becauſe I ſhould not be exalted out of meaſure.

8 For this thing I beſought the Lord [h] thrice, that it might depart from me.

9 And he ſaid unto me, My grace is ſufficient for thee: for my power is made perfect through weakneſſe. [4] Very gladly therefore will I rejoyce rather in mine infirmities, that the power of Chriſt may [i] dwell in me.

10 Therefore I take [k] pleaſure in infirmities, in reproches, in neceſſities, in perſecutions, in anguiſh for Chriſts ſake: for when I am weake, then am I ſtrong.

11 I was a foole to boaſt my ſelf: ye have compelled me: [5] for I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing was I inferiour unto the very chief Apoſtles, though I be nothing.

12 The [l] ſignes of an Apoſtle were wrought among you with all patience, with ſignes, and wonders, and great works.

13 For what is it wherein ye were inferiours unto other Churches, * except that I have not been [m] ſlothfull to your hinderance? forgive me this wrong.

14 Behold, the third time I am ready to come unto you, and yet will I not be ſlothfull to your hinderance: for I ſeek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the fathers, but the fathers for the children.

15 And I will moſt gladly beſtow, and will be beſtowed for your ſouls: though the more I love you, the leſſe I am loved.

16 [6] But be it that I charged you not: yet foraſmuch as I was crafty, I took you with guile.

17 Did I pill you by any of them whom I ſent unto you?

18 I have deſired Titus, and with him I have ſent a brother: did Titus pill you of any thing? walked we not in the ſelf ſame ſpirit? walked we not in the ſame ſteps?

19 [7] Again, think ye that we excuſe our ſelves unto you? we ſpeake before God in [n] Chriſt, but we do all things, dearely beloved, for your edifying.

20 [8] For I feare leſt when I come, I ſhall not find you ſuch as I would: and that I ſhall be found unto you ſuch as ye would not, and leſt there be ſtrife, envying, wrath, contentions, backbitings, whiſperings, ſwellings, and diſcord.

21 I feare leſt when I come again, my God abaſe me among you, and I ſhall bewaile many of them which have ſinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanneſſe and fornication, and wantonnes which they have committed.

Chap. XIII.

1 Comming the third time, 2 he denounceth the ſharper vengeance towards them, 5 who have a perfect triall of the power of Chriſt in his Apoſtleſhip: 10 At length he prayeth for their repentance, 11 and wiſheth them proſperitie.

LO this is the third time that I come unto you. * In the mouth of two or three witneſſes ſhall every word ſtand.

2 I told you before, and tell you before: as though I had been preſent the ſecond time, ſo write I now being abſent to them which heretofore have ſinned, and to all others, that if I come again, I will not ſpare,

3 [1] Seeing that ye ſeeke experience of Chriſt, that ſpeaketh in me, which toward you is not weake, but is [a] mighty in you.

4 For though he was crucified concerning [b] his infirmity, yet liveth he through the power of God. And we no doubt are weak in him, but we ſhall live with him, through the power of God toward you.

5 * [2] Prove your ſelves whether ye are in the faith: examine your ſelves: know ye not your own ſelves, how that Jeſus Chriſt is in you, except ye be reprobates?

[1] He goeth forward in his purpoſe, and becauſe thoſe bragging mates boaſted of revelatiõs, he reckoneth up thoſe things which lift him up above the common capacitie of men: but he uſeth a preface, and excuſeth himſelf adviſedly.

[a] I ſpeake this in Chriſt, that is, be it ſpoken without vainglory, for I ſeek nothing but Chriſt Ieſus onely.

[b] Into the higheſt heaven: for we need not to diſpute ſubtilly upon the word (Third) but yet this place is to be marked againſt thẽ, which would have heaven to be every where.

[c] So the Grecians name that, which we call a Park, that is to ſay, a place where trees are planted, and wilde beaſts kept, by which name they that tranſlated the old Teſtament out of Hebrew into Greek, called the garden Eden, whereinto Adam was put ſtraight after his creation, as a moſt delicate and pleaſant place. And hereupon grew it, that that bleſſed ſeat of the glory of God is called by that name.

[d] Which no man is able to utter.

[e] Which the Saints themſelves are not by any meanes able to expreſſe, becauſe it is God himſelf. Thus doth Clemens Alexandrinus expound this place, Strom. 5.

[2] To remove all ſuſpition of ambition he witneſſeth that he braggeth not of thoſe things, as of his own, but as out of himſelf, and yet notwithſtanding faineth nothing, leaſt by this occaſion other men ſhould attribute unto him more then indeed he is: and therefore he had rather glory in his miſeries.

[3] An excellent doctrine: why God will even have his beſt ſervants to be vexed of Satan, and by all kind of temptations: to wit, leſt they ſhould be too much puffed up, and alſo that they may be made perfit by that continuall exerciſe.

[f] He meaneth concupiſcence, that ſticketh faſt in us, as it were a prick, inſomuch as it conſtrained Paul himſelf being regenerate, to cry out, I do not that good that I would, &c. And he calleth that a prick, by a borrowed kinde of ſpeech taken from thorns, or ſtumpes, which are very dangerous and hurtfull for the feet, if a man walk through woods that are cut down.

[h] Oft.

[4] He concludeth, that he will onely ſet his miſeries againſt the vain brags of the falſe apoſtles, and therewith alſo excuſeth himſelf, for that by their importunity, he was conſtrained to ſpeake ſo much of thoſe things as he did: to wit, becauſe that if his Apoſtleſhip were ſubverted, his doctrine muſt needs fall.

[i] That I might feel the vertue of Chriſt more and more: For the weaker that our Tabernacles are, the more doth Chriſts vertue appeare in them.

[k] I do not onely take them patiently, and with a good heart, but alſo I take great pleaſure in them.

[5] Again he maketh the Corinthians witneſſes of thoſe things whereby God had ſealed his Apoſtleſhip amongſt them, and again, he declareth by certain arguments how farre he is from all covetouſneſſe, and alſo how he is affectioned towards them.

[l] The arguments whereby it may well appeare, that I am indeed an Apoſtle of Ieſus Chriſt.

* Chap. 11. 9.

[m] I was not ſlothfull in getting my living with mine own hands, that I might not be burthenſome to you.

[6] He putteth aw another moſt gri vous ſlander, wit, that he d ſubtilly, and by thers, make h gain and profit them.

[7] He concludet that he writeth no theſe things unt them, as thoug he needeth to de fend himſelf, fo he is guilty of no thing: but becau it is behooveabl for them to doub nothing of his fi delity, who inſtructed them.

[n] As it becometh hi to ſpeake truly an ſincerely, that pro feſſeth himſelf to bei Chriſt, that is to ſay to be a Chriſtian.

[8] Having confirmed his authority unto them, he rebuketh them ſharply, and threatneth them alſo like an Apoſtle, ſhewing that he wil not ſpare them hereafter, unleſſe they repent, ſeeing that this is the third time that he hath warned them.

* Deut. 19. 15. Matth. 18. 16. Iohn 8. 17. Heb. 10. 28.

[1] A moſt ſharp reprehenſion, for that while they deſpiſe the Apoſtles admonitions, they tempt Chriſts own patience: and alſo while they contemn him as wretched and miſerable, they lay nothing herein againſt him, which is not common to him with Chriſt.

[a] And will be moſt mightie to be revenged of you when need ſhall be.

[b] As touching that baſe form of a ſervant which he took upon him when he abaſed himſelf.

* 1 Corin. 11. 28.

[2] He confirmeth that which he ſpake of the vertue of God appearing in his miniſterie, and he gathereth by the mutuall relation between the peoples faith, and the miniſters preaching, that they muſt either reverence his Apoſtleſhip, upon whoſe doctrine their faith is grounded, or they muſt condemn themſelves of infidelity, and muſt confeſſe themſelves not to be of Chriſts body.

6 [3] But I truſt that ye ſhall know that we are not reprobates.

7 Now I pray unto God that ye do none evill, not that we ſhould ſeem approved, but that ye ſhould do that which is honeſt: though we be as [c] reprobates.

8 For we cannot do any thing againſt the truth, but for the truth.

9 For we are glad when we are weake, and that ye are ſtrong: this alſo we wiſh for, even your [d] perfection.

10 Therefore write I theſe things being abſent, leſt when I am preſent, I ſhould uſe ſharpneſſe, according to the power which the Lord hath given me, to edification, and not to deſtruction.

11 [4] Finally brethren, fare ye well: be perfect: be of good comfort: be of one minde: live in peace, and the God of love and peace ſhall be with you.

12 [5] Greet one another with an * holy kiſſe. All the Saints ſalute you.

13 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the love of God, and the communion of the holy Ghoſt be with you all, Amen.

¶ The ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians, written from Philipi, a city in Macedonia, and ſent by Titus and Lucas.

[3] He mitigateth ÿ ſharpnes, truſting ÿ they will ſhew themſelves toward their faithfull Apoſtles, apt and willing to be taught: adding this moreover ÿ he paſſeth not for his own fame and eſtimation, ſo that he may ſerve to their ſalvation which is ÿ onely mark that he ſhooteth at.

[c] In mens iudgement.

[d] That all things may be in good order amongſt you, and the members of the Church reſtored into their place, which have been ſhaken and out of place.

[4] A brief exhortation, but yet ſuch an one as comprehendeth all the parts of a chriſtian mans life.

[5] He ſaluteth them familiarly, and in concluſion wiſheth well unto them.

* 1 Cor. 16.20.

THE EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE PAUL TO THE GALATIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 Straight after the ſalutation, 6 he reprehendeth the Galatians for revolting 9 from his Goſpel, 15 which he received from God, 17 before he had communicated with any of the Apoſtles.

PAVL [1] an Apoſtle (not [a] of men, neither by [b] man, * but by [c] Jeſus Chriſt, and God the Father which hath raiſed him from the dead)

2 And all the brethren which are with me, unto the Churches of Galatia:

3 Grace be with you, and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

4 [2] Which gave himſelf for our ſinnes, that he might deliver us * from this preſent evill [d] world, according to the will of God even our Father,

5 To whom be glory for ever and ever, Amen.

6 [3] I marvell that ye are ſo ſoon [e] removed away unto another Goſpel, from him that had called you in the grace of Chriſt,

7 [4] Which is not another Goſpel, ſave that there be ſome which trouble you, and intend to [f] pervert the Goſpel of Chriſt.

8 But though that we, or an Angel from heaven preach unto you otherwiſe, then that which we have preached unto you, let him be [g] accurſed.

9 As we ſaid before, ſo ſay I now again, If any man preach unto you otherwiſe, then that ye have received, let him be accurſed.

10 [5] For now preach I [h] mans doctrine, or Gods? or go I about to pleaſe men? for if I ſhould yet pleaſe men, I were not the ſervant of Chriſt.

11 * [6] Now I certifie you, brethren, that the Goſpel which was preached of me, was not after man.

12 For neither received I it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the [i] revelation of Jeſus Chriſt.

13 [7] For ye have heard of my converſation in time paſt, in the Jewiſh religion, how that * I perſecuted the Church of God extreamely, and waſted it,

14 And profited in the Jewiſh religion above many of my companions of mine own nation, and was much more zealous of the [k] traditions of my Fathers.

[1] A ſalutatiõ comprehending in few words the ſum of the Apoſtles doctrine, and alſo beſides, ſtraightway from the beginning, ſhewing the gravitie meet for the authoritie of an Apoſtle, which he had to maintain againſt the falſe Apoſtles.

[a] He ſheweth who is the authour of the miniſterie generally: for herein the whole miniſterie agreeth, that whether they be Apoſtles, or Shepheards, or Doctours, they are appointed of God.

[b] He toucheth the inſtrumentall cauſe: for this is a peculiar prerogative to the Apoſtles, to be called immediately from Chriſt.

* Titus 1.3.

[c] Chriſt no doubt is man, but he is God alſo, and head of the Church, and in this reſpect to be exempted out of the number of men.

[f] For there is nothing more cõtrary to faith or free iuſtification, then iuſtification by the Law, or by our deſervings.

[g] Looke Rom. 9.3.

[5] A confirmation taken both from the nature of the doctrine it ſelf, and alſo from the manner which he uſed in teaching: for neither ſaith he, did I teach thoſe things which pleaſed men, as theſe men do, which put a part of ſalvation in externall things, and works of the law, neither went I about to procure any mans favour: And therefore the matter it ſelf ſheweth that that doctrine which I delivered unto you, is heavenly.

[h] He toucheth the falſe apoſtles, who had nothing but men in their mouthes, and he, though he would derogate nothing from the Apoſtles, preacheth God, and not men.

* I Cor. 15. 1.

[2] The ſum of the true Goſpel is this, that Chriſt by his onely offering ſaveth us being choſen out from the world, by the free decree of God the Father. * Luke 1.74. [d] Out of that moſt corrupt ſtate which is without Chriſt. [3] The firſt part of the Epiſtle wherein he witneſſeth that he is an Apoſtle, nothing inferior to thoſe chief diſciples of Chriſt, and wholy agreeing with them, whoſe names the falſe apoſtles did abuſe. And he beginneth with chiding, reproving them of lightneſſe, for that they gave eare ſo eaſily unto them which preverted them and drew them away unto a new Goſpel. [c] He uſeth the paſſive voice to caſt the fault upon the falſe apoſtles, and he uſeth the time that now is, to give them to underſtand, that it was not already done, but in doing. [4] He warneth them in time to remember that there are not many Goſpels, and therefore whatſoever theſe falſe Apoſtles pretend which had the Law, Moſes, and the Fathers, in their mouthes, yet they are indeed ſo many corruptions of the true Goſpel, inſomuch that he himſelf, yea, and the very Angels themſelves (and therefore much more theſe falſe apoſtles) ought to be holden accurſed, if they go about to change the leaſt jot that may be in the Goſpel that he delivered to them before.

[6] A ſecond argument to prove that his doctrine is heavenly, becauſe he had it from heaven, from Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, without any mans help, wherein he excelleth them whom Chriſt taught here on earth, after the manner of men. [i] This place is to be underſtood of an extraordinarie revelation, for otherwiſe the Sonne alone reveiled his Goſpel by his Spirit, although by the miniſtery of men, which Paul ſhutteth out here. [7] He proveth that he was extraordinarily taught of Chriſt himſelf, by the hiſtorie of his former life, which the Galatians themſelves knew well enough: for ſaith he, it is well known in what ſchoole I was brought up, even from a childe, to wit, amongſt the deadly enemies of the Goſpel. And that no man may cavill and ſay, That I was a ſcholer of the Phariſes in name onely, and not in deed, no man is ignorant how that I excelled in Phariſaiſme, and was ſuddainly made of a Phariſe, an Apoſtle of the Gentiles, ſo that I had no ſpace to be inſtructed of men. * Acts 9. 1. [k] He calleth them the traditions of his Fathers, becauſe he was not onely a Phariſe himſelf, but alſo had a Phariſe to his father.

15 But when it pleaſed God (which had [l] ſeparated me from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace,)

16 To reveale his Sonne [m] in me, that I ſhould preach him * among the Gentiles, immediatly [8] I communicated not with [n] fleſh and blood:

17 Neither came I again to Jeruſalem to them which were Apoſtles before me, but I went unto Arabia, and turned again unto Damaſcus.

18 Then after three yeares I came again to Jeruſalem to viſit Peter, and abode with him fifteen dayes.

19 And none other of the Apoſtles ſaw I, ſave James the Lords brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you, behold, I witneſſe [o] before God, that I lie not.

21 After that, I went into the coaſts of Syria and Cilicia: for I was unknown by face unto the Churches of Judea, which were in Chriſt.

22 But they had heard onely ſome ſay, He which perſecuted us in time paſt, now preacheth the [p] faith which before he deſtroyed.

23 And they glorified God for me.

CHAP. II.

1 That the Apoſtles did nothing diſagree from his Goſpel, 3 he declareth by the example of Titus being uncircumciſed, 11 and alſo by his avouching the ſame againſt Peters diſſimulation: 17 And ſo he paſſeth to the handling of our free juſtification by Chriſt, &c.

THen [1] fourteen yeares after, I went up again to Jeruſalem with Barnabas, and took with me Titus alſo.

2 And I went up by revelation, and declared unto them that Goſpel which I preach among the Gentiles, but particularly to them that were the chief, leſt by any meanes I ſhould run, or had run [a] in vain:

3 But neither yet Titus which was with me, though he were a Grecian, was compelled to be circumciſed,

4 To wit, for the [b] falſe brethren which were craftily ſent in, and crept in privily to ſpie out our liberty, which we have in Chriſt Jeſus, that they might bring us into bondage:

5 To whom we gave not place by [c] ſubjection for an houre, that the [d] truth of the Goſpel might continue with [e] you.

6 But by them which ſeemed to be great, I was not taught (whatſoever they were in time paſſed, I am nothing the better, * God accepteth no mans perſon) for they that are the chief, did adde nothing to me above that I had.

7 But contrariwiſe, when they ſaw that the Goſpel over the [f] uncircumciſion was committed unto me, as the Goſpel over the circumciſion was unto Peter:

8 (For he that was mighty by Peter in the Apoſtleſhip over the circumciſion, was alſo mighty by me toward the Gentiles)

9 And when James, and Cephas, and John, knew of the grace that was given unto me, which are [g] counted to be pillars, they gave to me and to Barnabas the right [h] hands of fellowſhip, that we ſhould preach unto the Gentiles, and they unto the circumciſion,

10 Warning onely that we ſhould remember the poore: which thing alſo I was diligent to do.

11 ¶ And when Peter was come to Antiochia, I withſtood him to his [i] face: for he was to be condemned.

12 [2] For before that certain came from James, he ate with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew and ſeparated himſelf, fearing them which were of the circumciſion.

13 And the other Jewes played the hypocrites likewiſe with him, in ſo much that Barnabas was [k] led away with them by that their hypocriſie.

14 But when I ſaw that they went not the [l] right way to the [m] truth of the Goſpel, I ſaid unto Peter before all men, If thou being a Jew, liveſt as the Gentiles, and not like the Jewes, why [n] conſtraineſt thou the Gentiles to do like the Jewes?

15 [3] We which are [o] Jewes by nature, and not [p] ſinners of the Gentiles, 16 Know that a man is not juſtified by the works of the law, but by the faith [q] of Jeſus Chriſt, even we, I ſay, have beleeved in Jeſus Chriſt, that we might be juſtified by the faith of Chriſt, and not by the works of the law, becauſe that by the works of the law, [r] no fleſh ſhall be juſtified.

17 * [4] If then while [ſ] we ſeek to be made righteous by Chriſt, we our ſelves are found ſinners, is Chriſt therefore the miniſter of ſinne? God forbid.

18 For if I build again the things that

1 Now he ſheweth how he agreeth with the Apoſtles, with whom he granteth that he conferred touching his Goſpel which he taught among the Gentils, fourteen yeares after his converſion, and they allowed it, in ſuch ſort, that they conſtrained not his fellow Titus to be circumciſed, although ſome tormented themſelves therein, which traiterouſly laid wait againſt him, but in vain: neither did they adde the leaſt jot that might be to the doctrin which he had preached, but contrariwiſe they gave to him and Barnabas the right hands of fellowſhip, and acknowledged them as Apoſtles appointed of yͤ Lord to the Gentiles.

a Vnfruitfull, for as touching his doctrine, Paul doubteth not of it, but becauſe there were certain reports caſt abroad of him, that he was of another opinion then the reſt of the Apoſtles were, which thing might have hindered the courſe of the Goſpel, therefore he laboureth to remedy this ſore.

q In Ieſus Chriſt.

r No man, and in this word (fleſh) there is a great vehemencie, whereby is meant that the nature of ma is utterly corrupt. * Rom. 3. 19. 4 Before he goeth any further, he meeteth with their objection, which abhorred this doctrine of free juſtification by faith, becauſe they ſay, men ar by this meanes withdrawn from the ſtudy of good works. And in this ſort is the objection If ſinners ſhould be juſtified through Chriſt by faith without the law, Chriſt ſhould approv ſinners, & ſhould as it were exhort them thereunto by his miniſtery. Paul anſwereth, that thi conſequence is falſe, becauſe that Chriſt deſtroyeth ſin in the beleevers: For ſo, ſaith he, d men flee unto Chriſt through the terrour and feare of the law, that being quit from the cur of the law, and juſtified, they may be ſaved by him, that together therewithall, he beginneth in them by little and little that ſtrength and power of his, which deſtroyeth ſin: to the en that this old man being aboliſhed by the vertue of Chriſt crucified, Chriſt may live in them and they may conſecrate themſelves to God. Therefore if any man give himſelf to ſin afte he hath received the Goſpel, let him not accuſe Chriſt nor the Goſpel, but himſelf, for th he deſtroyeth the work of God in himſelf. ſ He goeth from juſtification to ſanctification, whic is another benefit we receive by Chriſt, if we lay hold on him by faith.

I have deſtroyed, I make my ſelfe a treſpaſſer.

19 For I through the Law am dead to the [t] Law, that I might live unto God.

20 I am crucified with Chriſt, but I live, yet not [v] I any more, but Chriſt liveth in me: and in that that I now live in the [x] fleſh, I live by the faith in the Sonne of God, who hath loved me, and given himſelfe for me.

21 [5] I doe not abrogate the grace of God: for if righteouſnes be by the Law, then Chriſt died without a [y] cauſe.

[t] The Law that feth the con- ence, bringeth us Chriſt, and he on- cauſeth us to die the Law indeed, cauſe that by ma- ing us righteous, it taketh away from the terrour of con- ence, and by ſtifying us, cau- faith through the mortifying of luſt in , that it cannot take ſuch occaſion to ſinne by the reſtraint which the Law ma- keth, as it did before, Rom.7.10.11.

[u] The ſame that I was before. [x] In this mortall body. [5] Theſecond argument taken of an abſurditie: If men may be juſtified by the Law, then was it not neceſſary for Chriſt to die. [y] For there was no cauſe why he ſhould doe ſo.

CHAP. III.

1 He rebuketh them, for ſuffering themſelves to be drawen from the grace of free juſtifica ion in Chriſt, moſt lively ſe out unto them. 6 He bringeth in Abrahams example, 10 declaring the effect, 21 and cauſes of the giving of the Law.

O [1] Fooliſh Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye ſhould not obey the trueth, to whom Jeſus Chriſt before was deſcribed in your [a] ſight, and among you crucified?

2 This onely would I learne of you, Received ye [b] the Spirit by the works of the Law, or by the hearing of [c] faith preached?

3 [2] Are ye ſo fooliſh, that after ye have begun in the Spirit, ye would now be made perfect by the [d] fleſh?

4 [3] Have ye ſuffered ſo many things in vaine? if ſo be it be even in vaine.

5 [4] He therefore that miniſtreth to you the Spirit, & worketh miracles among you, doth he it through the works of the Law, or by the hearing of faith preached?

6 [5] Yea, rather as [e] Abraham beleeved God, and it was * imputed to him for righteouſneſſe.

7 [6] Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the ſame are the children of Abraham.

8 [7] For the Scripture foreſeeing, that God would juſtifie the Gentiles through faith, preached before the Goſpel unto Abraham, ſaying, * [8] In thee ſhall all the Gentiles be [f] bleſſed.

9 [9] So then they which be of faith, are bleſſed [g] with faithfull Abraham.

10 [10] For as many as are of the works of the Law, are under the curſe: [11] for it is written, * Curſed is every man that continueth not in all things, which are written in the booke of the Law, to doe them.

11 [12] And that no man is juſtified by the Law in the ſight of God, it is evident: * for the juſt ſhall live by faith.

12 [13] And the Law is not of faith: but * the man that ſhall doe theſe things, ſhall live in them.

13 [14] Chriſt hath redeemed us from the curſe of the Law, being made a curſe for us, ([15] for it is written, * [h] Curſed is every one that hangeth on a tree.)

14 [16] That the bleſſing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Chriſt Jeſus, that we might receive the promiſe of the Spirit through faith.

15 [17] Brethren, I ſpeak as [i] men doe: * though it be but a mans covenant, when it is [k] confirmed, yet no man doeth abrogate it, or addeth any thing thereto.

16 Now to Abraham and his ſeed were the promiſes made. He ſaith not, And to the ſeeds, as ſpeaking of many: but, And to thy ſeed, as of one, [18] which is [l] Chriſt.

17 [19] And this I ſay, that the covenant that was confirmed afore of God [m] in reſpect of Chriſt, the [20] Law which was foure hundred and thirty yeares after cannot diſanull, that it ſhould make the promiſe of none effect.

18 [21] For if the [n] inheritance be of the Law, it is no more by the promiſe, but God gave it freely unto Abraham by promiſe.

19 [22] Wherefore then ſerveth the Law? It was added becauſe of the [o] tranſgreſſions, [p] till the ſeed came, unto the which the pro-

[1] The third reaſon, or argument, taken of thoſe gifts of the holy Ghoſt, wherewith they were endued from heaven after they had heard and beleeved the Goſpel by Pauls miniſterie: which ſeeing they were ſo evident to all mens eyes, that they were, as it were, lively images, wherein they might behold the trueth of the doctrine of the Goſpel, no leſſe then if they had beheld with their eyes Chriſt himſelfe crucified, in whoſe onely death they ought to have their truſt, he marveileth how it could be that they could be ſo bewitched by the falſe apoſtles.

[a] Chriſt was laid before you ſo notably and ſo plainly, that you had his lively image, as it were, repreſented before your eyes, as if he had been crucified before you.

[b] Thoſe ſpirituall graces and gifts which were a ſeale, as it were to the Galatians that the Goſpell which was preached to them was true.

[2] The fourth argument mixed with the former: and it is double. If the Law be to be joyned with faith, this were not to goe forward, but backward, ſeeing that thoſe ſpirituall gifts which were beſtowed upon you are more excellent then any that could proceed from your ſelves. And moreover, it ſhould follow, that the Law is better then Chriſt, becauſe it ſhould perfect and bring to end that which Chriſt began only. [d] By the (fleſh) he meaneth the ceremonies of the Law, againſt which he ſetteth the Spirit, that is, the ſpirituall working of the Goſpel. [3] An exhortation by manner of upbraiding, that they doe not in vaine ſuffer ſo many conflicts. [4] He repeateth the third argument which was taken of the effects, becauſe he had enterlaced certain other arguments by the way. [5] The fift Argument which is of great force, and hath three grounds. The firſt, that Abraham was juſtified by faith, to wit, by free imputation of righteouſneſſe according to the promiſe apprehended by faith, as Moſes doeth moſt plainely witneſſe. [e] Looke Romanes 4. * Gen.15.6. rom.4.3. iames 2.23. [6] The ſecond, that the ſonnes of Abraham muſt be eſteemed and accounted of by faith. [7] The third, that all people that beleeve, are without exception comprehended in the promiſe of the bleſſing. * Geneſ.12.3. actes 3.25. [8] A proofe of the firſt and ſecond ground, out of the words of Moſes. [f] Bleſſing in this place ſignifieth the free promiſe by faith. [9] The concluſion of the fift argument: Therefore as Abraham is bleſſed by faith, ſo are all his children (that is to ſay, all the Gentiles that beleeve) bleſſed, that is to ſay, freely juſtified. [g] With faithfull Abraham, and not by faithfull Abraham, to give us to underſtand that the bleſſing commeth not from Abraham, but from him, by whom Abraham and all his poſteritie is bleſſed. [10] The ſixt argument, the concluſion whereof is alſo in the former verſe taken of contraries, thus: They are accurſed which are of the works of the Law, that is to ſay, which value their righteouſneſſe by the performance of the Law. Therefore they are bleſſed which are of faith, that is, they which have righteouſneſſe by faith. [11] A proofe of the former ſentence or propoſition, and the propoſition of this argument is this: Curſed is he that fulfilleth not the whole Lawe. * Deut.27.26.

[12] The ſecond propoſition with y^e^ concluſion: But no man fulfilleth the Law. Therefore no man is juſtified by the Law, or els, All are accurſed which ſeeke righteouſnes by the works of the Law. And there is annexed alſo this manner of proofe of the ſecond propoſition, to wit, Righteouſneſſe and life are attributed to faith, Therefore no man fulfilleth the Law. * Habak.2.4. rom.1.17. heb.10.38.

[13] Here is a reaſon ſhewed of the former conſequence: Becauſe the Law promiſeth life to all that keepe it, and therefore if it be kept, it juſtifieth and giveth life. But the Scripture attributing righteouſneſſe and life to faith, taketh it from the Law, ſeeing that faith juſtifieth by imputation, and the Law by the performing of the worke. * Levit.18.5.

[14] A preventing of an obiection: How then can they be bleſſed, whom the Law pronounceth to be accurſed? Becauſe Chriſt ſuſtained the curſe which the Law laid upon us, that we might be quit from it.

[15] A proofe of the anſwere by the teſtimony of Moſes. * Deut.21.23. [h] Chriſt was accurſed for us, becauſe he bare the curſe that was due to us, to make us partakers of his righteouſneſſe. [16] A concluſion of all that was ſaid before in the handling of the fift and ſixt reaſons, to wit, that both the Gentiles are made partakers of the free bleſſing of Abraham in Chriſt, and alſo that the Iewes themſelves, of whoſe number the Apoſtle counteth himſelfe to be, cannot obtaine that promiſed grace of the Goſpel, which he calleth the Spirit, but onely by faith. And the Apoſtle doeth ſeverally apply the concluſion, both to the one and to the other, preparing himſelfe a way to the next argument, whereby he declareth that that one onely ſeed of Abraham, which is made of all peoples, can no otherwiſe be joined and grow vp together but by faith in Chriſt. [17] He putteth forth two generall rules before the next argument, which is the ſeventh in order: The one is, that it is not lawfull to break covenants and contracts which are juſtly made, and according to Law, among men, neither may any thing be added unto them: the other is, that God did ſo make a covenant with Abraham, that he would gather together his children which conſiſt both of Iewes and Gentiles into one body (as appeareth by that which hath been ſaid before.) For he did not ſay, that he would be the God of Abraham and of his ſeeds, (which thing notwithſtanding ſhould have been ſaid, if he had many and divers ſeeds, as the Gentiles apart, and the Iewes apart) but that he would be the God of Abraham, and of his ſeede, as of one. [i] I will uſe an example which is common among you, that you may be aſhamed that you give not ſo much to Gods covenants as you do to mans. * Heb.9.17. [k] Authentical, as we call it. [18] He putteth forth the ſumme of the ſeventh argument, to wit, that both the Iewes and the Gentiles, grow together in one body of the ſeed of Abraham, in Chriſt onely, ſo that all are one in Chriſt, as it is afterward declared, verſ.28. [l] Paul ſpeaketh not of Chriſts perſon, but of two peoples, which grew together in one, in Chriſt. [19] The eight argument taken of compariſon, thus: If a mans covenant (being authenticall) be firme and ſtrong, much more Gods covenant. Therefore the Law was not given to abrogate the promiſe made to Abraham, which had reſpect to Chriſt, that is to ſay, the end whereof did hang on Chriſt. [m] Which tended to Chriſt. [20] An inlarging of that argument, thus: Moreover and beſides that the promiſe is of it ſelfe firme and ſtrong, it was alſo confirmed with the preſcription of long time, to wit, of 430 yeares, ſo that it could in no wiſe be broken. [21] An obiection: We grant that the promiſe was not abrogated by the covenant of the Law, and therefore we joyne the Law with the promiſe. Nay, ſaith the Apoſtle, theſe two cannot ſtand together, to wit, that the inheritance ſhould both be given by the Law and alſo by promiſe, for the promiſe is free: whereby it followeth that the Law was not given to juſtifie, for by that meanes the promiſe ſhould be broken. [n] By this word (inheritance) is meant the right of the ſeed, which is, that God ſhould be our God, that is to ſay, that by vertue of the Covenant that was made with faithfull Abraham, we that be faithfull, might by that meanes be bleſſed of God as well as he. [22] An obiection which riſeth from the former anſwere: If the inheritance be not by the Law (at the leaſt in part) then why was the Law given after that the promiſe was made? therefore ſaith the Apoſtle, to reprove men of ſinne, and ſo to teach them to looke unto Chriſt, in whom at length that promiſe of ſaving all people together ſhould be fulfilled, and not that the Law was given to juſtifie men. [o] That men might underſtand by diſcovering of their ſinnes, that they are ſaved by the onely grace of God, which he revealed to Abraham and that in Chriſt. [p] Untill the partition wall was broken down, and that full ſeed ſprang up, framed of two peoples, both of Iewes and Gentiles: for by this word Seede, we may not underſtand, Chriſt alone by himſelfe, but coupled and ioyned together with his body.

miſe was made: [23] and it was [q] ordained by [r] Angels in the hand of a Mediatour.

20 Now a Mediatour is not a Mediatour of one: [24] but God is one.

21 [25] Is the Law then againſt the promiſes of God? God forbid: For if there had beene a Law given which could have given life, ſurely righteouſnes ſhould have been by the Law.

22 But the [ſ] Scripture hath [*] concluded [t] all under ſinne, that the [v] promiſe by the faith of Ieſus Chriſt ſhould be given to them that beleeve.

23 [26] But before faith came, we were kept under the Law, as under a gariſon, and ſhut up unto [x] that faith, which ſhould afterward be revealed.

24 Wherefore the Law was our ſcholemaſter to bring us to Chriſt, that we might be made righteous by faith.

25 But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a ſcholemaſter, 26 [27] For ye are all the ſonnes of God by faith, in Chriſt Jeſus.

27 [28] For all ye that are [y] baptized into Chriſt, have [z] put on Chriſt.

28 There is neither Iew nor Grecian: there is neither bond nor free: there is neither male nor female: for ye are all [a] one in Chriſt Jeſus.

29 And if ye be Chriſts, then are ye Abrahams ſeed, and heires by promiſe.

---

23 A confirmation of the former anſwere taken from the maner and forme of giving the Law: for it was given by Angels, ſtriking a great terrour into all, and by Moſes, a Mediatour, comming betweene. Now they that are one, neede no Mediatour, but they that are twaine, at the leaſt, and that are at variance one with another. Therefore the Lawe it ſelfe, and the Mediatour were witneſſes of the wrath of God, and not that God would by this meanes reconcile men to himſelfe, and aboliſh the promiſe, or adde the Law unto the promiſe.

24 A taking away of an obiection, leſt any man might ſay, that ſometimes by conſent of the parties which have made a covenant, ſome thing is added to the covenant, or the former covenants are broken. This, ſaith the Apoſtle, commeth not to paſſe in God who is alwayes one, and the ſelfe-ſame, and like himſelfe.

25 The concluſion uttered by a maner of asking a queſtion, and it is that ſame that was uttered before, Verſ.17, but proceeding of another rule: ſo that the argument is new, and is this: God is alwayes like unto himſelfe: Therefore the Law was not given to aboliſh the promiſes. But it ſhould aboliſh them if it gave life, for by that meanes it ſhould juſtifie, and therefore it ſhould aboliſh that juſtification, which was promiſed to Abraham, and to his ſeed by faith. Nay, it was rather given to bring to light the guiltines of all men, to the end that all beleevers fleeing to Chriſt promiſed, might be freely juſtified in him.

[ſ] By the word Scripture, he meaneth the Law.

[*] Rom.3.9.

[t] All men, and whatſoever commeth from man.

[u] In every one of theſe words, there lieth an argument againſt the merits of workes: for all theſe words, promiſe, faith, Chriſt, might be given, to beleevers, are againſt merits, and not one of them can ſtand with deſerving works.

26 Now there followeth another handling of the ſecond part of this Epiſtle: the ſtate whereof was this: Although the Law (that is, the whole government of Gods houſe according to the Law) doe not juſtifie, is it therefore to be aboliſhed, ſeeing that Abraham himſelfe was cirumciſed, and his poſteritie held ſtill the uſe of Moſes Law? Paul affirmeth that it ought to be aboliſhed, becauſe it was inſtituted for that end and purpoſe, that it ſhould be, as it were, a Scholemaſter and keeper to the people of God, untill the promiſe appeared in deed, that is to ſay, Chriſt, and the Goſpel manifeſtly publiſhed with great efficacie of the Spirit.

27 Becauſe age changeth not the condition of ſervants, he addeth that we are free by condition, and therefore, ſeeing we are out of our childhood, we have no more need of a keeper and Scholemaſter.

28 Vſing a generall particle, leſt the Iewes at the leaſt ſhould not thinke themſelves bound with the band of the Law, he pronounceth that Baptiſme is common to all beleevers, becauſe it is a pledge of our deliverance in Chriſt, as wel to the Iewes as to the Grecians, that by this meanes all may be truely one in Chriſt, that is to ſay, that promiſed ſeed to Abraham, and inheritours of eternall life.

[z] The Church muſt put on Chriſt, as it were a garment, and be covered with him, that it may be throughly holy, and without blame.

[a] You are all as one: and ſo is this great knot and coniunction ſignified.

Chap. IV.

1 Being delivered from the bondage of the Law, 4 by Chriſts comming, who is the end thereof, 9 it is very abſurd to ſlide back to beggerly ceremonies. 13 He calleth them againe therefore to the puritie of the doctrine of the Goſpel, 21 confirming his diſcourſe with a fine allegorie.

Then [1] I ſay, that the heire as long as he is a childe, differeth nothing from a ſervant, though he be lord of all,

2 But is under tutors and governours [a] untill the time appointed of the Father.

3 Even ſo, we when we were children, were in bondage under the [b] rudiments of the world.

4 [2] But when the [c] fulneſſe of time was come, God ſent forth his Sonne made of a [d] woman, and made under the Law,

5 That he might redeeme them which were uuder the Law, that we might [*] receive the [e] adoption of the ſonnes.

6 [3] And becauſe ye are ſonnes, God hath [f] ſent forth the [g] Spirit of his Son into your hearts, which crieth, Abba, Father.

7 Wherefore, thou art no more a [h] ſervant, but a ſonne: now if thou be a ſonne, thou art alſo the [i] heire of God through Chriſt.

8 [4] But even then, when ye knew not God, ye did ſervice unto them, which by nature are not gods:

9 But now, ſeeing ye know God, yea, rather are knowen of God, how turne ye againe unto impotent and [k] beggerly rudiments, whereunto as from the beginning ye will be in bondage [l] againe?

10 Yee obſerve dayes, and moneths, and times and yeares.

11 I am in feare of you, leſt I have beſtowed on you labour in vaine.

12 [5] Be ye as I (for I am even as you) brethren, I beſeech you: ye have not hurt me at all.

13 And ye know how through [m] infirmitie of the fleſh, I preached the Goſpel unto you at the firſt.

14 And the [n] triall of me which was in my fleſh, ye deſpiſed not, neither abhored: but ye received me as an Angel of God, yea, as [o] Chriſt Jeſus.

15 [p] What was then your felicitie? for I beare you record, that if it had been poſſible, ye would have plucked out your owne eyes, and have given them unto me.

16 Am I therefore become your enemie, becauſe I tell you the trueth?

17 They are ielous over you [q] amiſſe: yea, thy would exclude you, [r] that ye ſhould altogether love them.

18 But it is a good thing to love [ſ] earneſtly alwayes in a good thing, and not onely when I am preſent with you.

---

1 He declareth that by another double ſimilitude, which he ſaid before concerning the keeper and ſcholemaſter: For he ſaith, that the Law (that is, the whole government of Gods houſe according to the Law) was as it were a tutour or overſeer appointed for a time, untill ſuch time as that protection and overſeeing which was but for a time, being ended, we ſhould at length come to be at our owne libertie, and ſhould live as children, and not as ſervants. Moreover, he ſheweth by the way, that that governance of the Law, was as it were an A B C, and as certaine principles, in compariſon of the doctrine of the Goſpel.

[a] This is added, becauſe he that is alwayes under a tutour or governour, may hardly be counted a freeman.

[b] The Law is c rudiments, bec that by the God instructe Church as it we rudiments, and a ward powred (u holy Spirit plentifully in the of the Goſpel.

2 He uttereth declareth man things at once wit, that thi tutourſhip was ded at his ti that curious m may leave to s why that ſchol maſterſhip laſte ſo long. And moreover that we are no ſonnes by natu but by adopti and that in tha Son of God, w therefore tooke upon him our fleſh, that we might be mad his brethren,

[c] The time is to be full, when parts of it are and ended, and therefore Chriſt c not have come ei ſooner or later.

[d] He calleth M rie a woman, reſpect of the ſe and not as the w is uſed in a contr ſence to a virgine, ſhe remained a virgine ſtill.

[*] Roman.8. 15.

[e] The adoption the ſonnes of God, is from ev laſting, but is vealed and ſhew in the time appoin for it.

3 He ſheweth t we are in ſuch ſort free and at libertie, t in the meane ſ ſon we muſt governed by t Spirit of Chri which reigning our hearts, may teach us the tr ſervice of the Father. But th is not to ſerve, b rather to enioy true libertie, it becommeth ſons and heires.

[f] By that that f loweth, he gather that that went before: for if have his Spirit, are his ſonnes, a if we are his ſonn then are we free,

[g] The holy Gho who is both of t Father, and of t Sonne: but there a peculiar rea why he is called t Spirit of the Sonne, to wit, becauſe the holy Ghoſt ſealeth up our adoption in Chriſt, and maketh a full aſſurance of it.

[h] The word, ſervant, is not taken heere for one that liveth ſinne, which is proper to the infidels, but for one that is yet under the ceremonies of the Law, wh is proper to the Iewes.

4 He applieth the form doctrine to the Galatians, with a peculiar reprehenſion: for in compariſon of them, t Iewes might have pretended ſome excuſe as men that were borne and brought up in th ſervice of the Law. But ſeeing that the Galatians were taken and called out of idolatrie Chriſtian libertie, what pretence might they have to goe backe to thoſe impotent a beggerly rudiments?

[k] They are called impotent and beggerly ceremonies, being consider apart by themſelves without Chriſt: and againe, for that by that meanes they gave good teſtimon that they were beggers in Chriſt, when as notwithſtanding, for men to fall backe from Chriſt ceremonies, is nothing elſe, but to caſt away riches, and to follow beggerie.

5 He mitigateth and qualifieth thoſe things, wherein he mig have ſeemed to have ſpoken ſomewhat ſharpely, very artificially, and divinely declaring h good will toward them in ſuch ſort, that the Galatians could not but either be utterly deſp rate when they reade theſe things, or acknowledge their owne lightneſſe with teares, a deſire pardon.

[o] For my miniſteries ſake.

[p] What a talke was there abro in the world amongſt men, how happie you were?

[q] For they are iealous over you for th owne commoditie.

[r] That they may convey all your love from me, to themſelves.

[ſ] H ſetteth his owne true and good love, which was earneſtly bent toward them, againſt the naught vicious love of the falſe apoſtles.

19 My little children, of whom I travaile in birth again, untill Chriſt be formed in you.

20 And I would I were with you now, that I might [t] change my voice: for I am in doubt of you.

21 [6] Tell me, ye that [v] will be under the Law, doe ye not heare the Law?

22 For it is written, that Abraham had two ſonnes, * one by a ſervant, and * one by a free woman.

23 But he which was of the ſervant, was born after the [x] fleſh: and he which was of the free woman, was borne by [y] promiſe:

24 By the which things another thing is meant: for [z] theſe mothers are the [a] two Teſtaments, the one which is Agar of mount [b] Sina, which gendereth unto bondage,

25 (For Agar or Sina is a mountaine in Arabia, and it [c] anſwereth to Hieruſalem which now is) and [d] ſhe is in bondage with her children:

26 But Hieruſalem, which is [e] above, is free: which is the mother of us all.

27 [7] For it is written, * Reioyce thou barren that beareſt no children: breake forth, and crie, thou that travaileſt not: for the [f] deſolate hath many moe children then ſhe which hath an husband.

28 * Therefore, brethren, we are after the [g] manner of Iſaac, children of the [h] promiſe.

29 But as then he that was borne after the [i] fleſh, perſecuted him that was borne after the [k] Spirit, even ſo it is now.

30 But what ſaith the Scripture? * Put out the ſervant and her ſonne: for the ſonne of the ſervant ſhall not be heire with the ſonne of the free woman.

31 [8] Then brethren, we are not children of the ſervant, but of the free woman.

Chap. V.

1 Having declared that we came of the free woman, he ſheweth the price of that freedome, 13 and how we ſhould uſe the ſame, 16 that we may obey the Spirit, 19 and reſiſt the fleſh.

Stand faſt therefore in the liberty wherewith Chriſt hath made us free, and be not intangled againe with the yoke of bondage.

2 [1] * Behold, I Paul ſay unto you, that if ye be [a] circumciſed, Chriſt ſhall profit you nothing.

3 For I teſtifie again to every man, which is circumciſed, that he is bound to keepe the whole Law.

4 Ye are * [b] aboliſhed from Chriſt, whoſoever are [c] juſtified by the Law, ye are fallen from grace:

5 [2] For we through the [d] Spirit wait for the hope of righteouſneſſe through faith.

6 [3] For in Jeſus Chriſt neither circumciſion availeth any thing, neither [4] uncircumciſion, [5] but [e] faith, which worketh by love.

7 [6] Ye did run well: who did let you, that ye did not obey the trueth?

8 [7] It is not the perſwaſion of [f] him that calleth you.

9 * [8] A little leaven doth leaven the whole lumpe.

10 [9] I have truſt in you through the Lord, that ye will be none otherwiſe minded: but he that troubleth you, ſhall beare his condemnation, whoſoever he be.

11 [10] And brethren, if I yet preach circumciſion, why doe I yet ſuffer perſecution? Then is the ſlander of the croſſe aboliſhed.

12 [11] Would to God they were even cut off, which doe [g] diſquiet you.

13 For brethren, ye have been called unto libertie: [12] onely uſe not your libertie as an occaſion unto the fleſh, but by love ſerve one another.

14 [13] For [h] all the Law is fulfilled in one word, which is this, * Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thy ſelfe.

15 [14] If ye bite and devoure one another, take heed leſt ye be conſumed one of another.

16 [15] Then I ſay, * Walke in the Spirit, and ye ſhall not fulfill the luſts of the fleſh.

17 For the [i] fleſh luſteth againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the fleſh: and theſe are contrary one to another, ſo that ye can[t] Vſe other words among you.

[6] Becauſe the falſe Apoſtles, urged this, that unleſſe the Gentiles were circumciſed, Chriſt could profit them nothing at all, and this diſſenſion of them which beleeved of the circumciſion, againſt them which beleeved of the uncircumciſion, was full of offence: the Apoſtle after divers arguments, whereby he hath refuted their errour, bringeth forth an allegory, wherein he ſaith, the holy Ghoſt did ſhadow out unto us, all theſe myſteries: to wit, that it ſhould come to paſſe, that two ſorts of ſonnes, ſhould have Abraham a father common to them both: but not with like ſucceſſe, for as Abraham begate Iſhmael, by the common courſe of nature, of Agar his bondmaid, and a ſtranger, and begate Jſaac of Sara a free woman, by the vertue of the promiſe, and by grace onely, and the firſt was not onely, not heire, but alſo perſecuted the heire: So there are two covenants, and as it were, two ſonnes borne to Abraham of thoſe two covenants, as it were of two mothers. The one was made in Sina, without the land of promiſe, according to which covenant Abrahams children according to the fleſh were begotten: to wit, the Jewes, which ſeeke righteouſneſſe by that covenant, that is, by the Law: but they are not heires, nay they ſhall at length be caſt out of the houſe, as they that perſecute the true heires. The other was made in that high Ieruſalem, or in Sion (to wit, by the ſacrifice of Chriſt) which begetteth children of promiſe, to wit, beleevers by the vertue of the holy Ghoſt, which children (as Abraham) doe reſt themſelves in the free promiſe, and they onely by the right of children ſhall be partakers of the fathers inheritance, and thoſe ſervants ſhall be ſhut out. [u] That deſire ſo greatly. * Gen 16.15. * *Gen.*21.1. [8] The concluſion of the former allegory, that wee by no meanes procure and call back again the ſlavery of the Law, ſeeing that the children of the bondmaid ſhall not be heires.

[1] Another obteſtation, wherein he plainely witneſſeth that juſtification of workes, and juſtification of faith cannot ſtand together, becauſe no man can be juſtified by the Law, but he that doeth fully and perfectly fulfill it. And he taketh the example of circumciſion, becauſe it was the ground of all the ſervice of the Law, and was chiefly urged of the falſe apoſtles. * Acts 15.1 [a] Circumciſion is in other places called the ſeale of righteouſneſſe, but heere we muſt have conſideration of the circumſtance of the time, for now had Baptiſme come in the place of circumciſion. And moreover Paul reaſoneth according to the opinion that his enemies had of it, which made circumciſion a piece of their ſalvation. * 1.*Cor.*1.17. [b] That is, as he himſelfe expoundeth it afterward, ye are fallen from grace. [c] That is, ſeeke to be iuſtified by the Law, for indeede no man is iuſtified by the Law. [2] He privily compareth the new people with the olde: for it is certaine that they alſo did ground al their hope of juſtification and life in faith, and not in circumciſion, but ſo, that their faith was wrapped in the externall and ceremoniall worſhip: but our faith is bare, and content with ſpirituall worſhip. [d] Through the Spirit which ingendreth faith. [3] He addeth a reaſon, for that now circumciſion is aboliſhed, ſeeing that Chriſt is exhibited unto us with ful plentie of ſpirituall circumciſion, [4] He maketh mention alſo of uncircumciſion, leſt the Gentiles ſhould pleaſe themſelves in it, as the Iewes doe in circumciſion. [5] The taking away of an obiection: If all that worſhip the Law be taken away, wherein then ſhall we exerciſe our ſelves? In charity, ſaith Paul: for faith, whereof we ſpeake, cannot be idle, nay it bringth forth dayly fruits of charitie. [e] So is true faith diſtinguiſhed from counterfeit faith: for charitie is not ioyned with faith, as a fellow cauſe, to helpe forward our iuſtification with faith. [6] Againe, he chideth the Galatians, but with an admiration, and therewithall a praiſe of their former race, to the end that he may make them more aſhamed. [7] He playeth the part of an Apoſtle with them, and uſeth his authoritie, denying that that doctrine can come from God, which is contrary to his. [f] Of God. * 1 *Cor.*5.6. [8] He addeth this, that they may not ſeeme to contend upon a trifle, warning them diligently (by a ſimilitude, which he borroweth of leaven, as Chriſt himſelfe alſo did) not to ſuffer the puritie of the Apoſtolical doctrine to be infected with the leaſt corruption that may be. [9] He mitigateth the former reprehenſion, caſting the fault upon the falſe apoſtles, againſt whom he denounceth the horrible judgements of God. [10] He willeth them to conſider how that he ſeeketh not his owne profit in this matter, ſeeing that he could eſchew the hatred of men, if he would joyne Iudaiſme with Chriſtianity. [11] An example of a true Paſtour: inflamed with the zeale of Gods glory, and love of his flock. [g] For they that preach the Law, cauſe mens conſciences alwayes to tremble. [12] The third part of this Epiſtle, ſhewing that the right uſe of Chriſtian libertie conſiſteth in this, that being delivered, and ſet at libertie from the ſlavery of ſin, and the fleſh, and being obedient to the ſpirit, we ſhould ſerve unto one anothers ſalvation through love. [13] He propoundeth the love of our neighbour, as a marke wherunto all Chriſtians ought to referre all their actions, and thereunto he citeth the Teſtimonie of the Law. [h] This particle (All) muſt be reſtrained to the ſecond Table. * Levit. 19.18.*matth.*22.39.*mar.*12.31.*rom.*13.9.iames 2.8. [14] An exhortation to the dueties of charitie, by the profit yͤ enſueth thereof, becauſe that no men provide worſe for themſelves then they that hate one another. [15] He acknowledgeth the great weakeneſſe of the godly, for that they are but in part regenerate: but he willeth them to remember that they are endued with the Spirit of God, which hath delivered them from the ſlaverie of ſinne, and ſo of the Law, ſo farre forth as it is the vertue of ſinne, that they ſhould not give themſelves to luſts. * *Rom.*13 14. 1.*pet.*2.11. [i] *For the fleſh dwelleth even in the regenerate man, but the Spirit reigneth, although not without great ſtrife, as is largely ſet forth, Rom.*7.

not doe the ſame things that ye would.

18 And if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the Law.

19 [16] Moreover, the works of the fleſh are manifeſt, which are adulterie, fornication, uncleanneſſe, wantonneſſe,

20 Idolatrie, witchcraft, hatred, debate, emulations, wrath, contentions, ſeditions, hereſies, 21 Envie, murthers, drunkenneſſe, gluttonie, and ſuch like, whereof I tell you before, as I alſo have told you before, that they which doe ſuch things, ſhall not inherit the kingdome of God.

22 But the [k] fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long ſuffering, gentleneſſe, goodneſſe, faith, 23 Meekeneſſe, temperancie: [17] againſt ſuch there is no Law.

24 For they that are Chriſts, have crucified the fleſh with the affections and the luſts.

25 If we [l] live in the Spirit, let us alſo walke in the Spirit.

26 [18] Let us not be deſirous of vaine glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

[16] He ſetteth out that particularly, which he ſpake generally, reckoning up ſome chiefe effects of the fleſh, and oppoſing them to the fruits of the Spirit, that no man may pretend ignorance.

[k] Therefore they are not the fruits of freewill, but ſo farre forth as our will is made free by grace.

[17] Leſt that any man ſhould obiect that Paul playeth the Sophiſter, as one who vrging the Spirit, urgeth nothing but that which the Law commandeth, he ſheweth that he requireth, not that literall and outward obedience, but ſpiritual, which proceedeth not from the Law, but from the Spirit of Chriſt, which doeth beget us againe, and muſt and ought to be the ruler and guider of our life.

[l] If we be indeed endued with the quickening Spirit, which cauſeth us to die to ſinne, and live to God, let us ſhew it in our deedes, that is, by holineſſe of life.

[18] He addeth peculiar exhortaions, according as he knew the Galatians ſubiect to divers vices: and firſt of all, he warneth them to take heed of ambition, which vice hath two fellowes, backbiting, and envie, out of which two it cannot be but many contentions muſt needs ariſe.

Chap. VI.

1 Now he intreateth particularly of charitie toward ſuch as offend, 6 toward the miniſters of the word, 10 and thoſe that are of the houſhold of faith: 11 Not like unto ſuch who have a counterfeit zeale of the Law, 13 glorying in the mangling of the fleſh, 14 and not in the croſſe of Chriſt.

Brethren, [1] if a man be [a] ſuddenly taken in any offence, ye which are [b] ſpirituall, [c] reſtore ſuch one with the [d] ſpirit of meekneſſe, [2] conſidering thy ſelfe, leſt thou alſo be tempted.

2 [3] Beare ye one anothers burden, and ſo fulfill the [e] Law of Chriſt.

3 For if any man ſeeme to himſelfe that he is ſomewhat, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himſelfe in his imagination,

4 But let every man prove his owne work: and then ſhall he have reioycing in himſelfe onely, and not in another.

5 [*] [4] For every man ſhall beare his own burden.

[1] He condemneth importunate rigour, becauſe that brotherly reprehenſions ought to be moderated and tempered by the ſpirit of meekneſſe.

[a] Through the malice of the fleſh, and the devill.

[b] Which are upholden by the vertue of Gods Spirit.

[c] Labour to fill up that that is wanting in him.

[d] This is a kinde of ſpeach which the Hebrewes uſe, giving to underſtand thereby, that all good gifts come from God.

[2] He toucheth the ſore: for they commonly are moſt ſevere judges, which forget their owne infirmities.

[3] He ſheweth that this is the end of reprehenſions, to raiſe up our brother which is fallen, and not proudly to oppreſſe him. Therefore every one muſt ſeeke to have commendation of his owne life by approving of himſelfe, and not by reprehending others

[*] 1 Cor.3 8.

[4] A reaſon wherefore men ought, to have the greateſt eye upon themſelves, becauſe that every man ſhalbe judged before God, according to his owne life, and not by comparing himſelfe with other men.

6 [5] Let him that is taught in the word, make him that hath taught him, partaker of [f] all his [*] goods.

7 [6] Be not deceived: God is not mocked: for whatſoever a man ſoweth, that ſhall he alſo reape.

8 For he that ſoweth to his [g] fleſh, ſhall of the fleſh reape coruption: but he that ſoweth to the ſpirit, ſhall of the ſpirit reape life everlaſting.

9 [*] [7] Let us not therefore be wearie of well doing: for in due ſeaſon we ſhall reape, if we faint not.

10 [8] While we have therefore time, let us doe good unto all men, but ſpecially unto them, which are of the houſhold of faith.

11 ¶ [9] Ye ſee how large a letter I have written unto you with mine owne hand.

12 As many as deſire to make a [h] faire ſhew in [i] the fleſh, they conſtraine you to be circumciſed, onely becauſe thy would not ſuffer perſecution for the [k] croſſe of Chriſt.

13 For they themſelves which are circumciſed, keepe not the Law, but deſire to have you circumciſed, that they might reioyce in [l] your fleſh.

14 [10] But God forbid that I ſhould [m] reioyce, but in the croſſe of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, whereby the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

15 For in Chriſt Jeſus neither circumciſion availeth any thing, nor uncircumciſion, but a new creature.

16 And as many as walke according to this rule, peace ſhall be upon them, and mercie, and upon the [n] Iſrael of God.

17 [11] From henceforth let no man put me to buſines: for I beare in my body the [o] marks of the [p] Lord Jeſus.

18 [12] Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with your [q] ſpirit, Amen.

THE EPISTLE OF PAVL TO THE EPHESIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 After the ſalutation, 4 he entreateth of the free election of God, 5 and adoption, 7. 13 from whence mans ſalvation floweth, as from the true and naturall fountain, and becauſe ſo high a myſterie can not be underſtood, 16 he prayeth that the full 20 knowledge of Chriſt may by God be reveiled unto the Epheſians.

PAVL [1] an Apoſtle of Ieſus Chriſt by the will of God, to the [*] Saints, which are at Epheſus, and to the [a] faithfull in Chriſt Jeſus:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 [*][2] Bleſſed be God, [3] and the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, [4] which hath bleſſed us with [b] all ſpirituall bleſſing in [c] heavenly things in [5] Chriſt,

4 [6] As he hath choſen us in [d] him, before the foundation of the world, [7] that we [e] ſhould [f] be holy, and without blame [g] before him in love:

5 [8] Who hath predeſtinate us, to be adopted through Jeſus Chriſt [h] in himſelf, according to the good pleaſure of his will,

6 [9] To the [i] praiſe of the glory of his grace [10] wherewith he hath made us freely accepted in his beloved:

7 [11] By whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveneſſe of ſins according to his rich grace:

8 [12] [k] Whereby he hath been abundant toward us in [l] all wiſedom and underſtanding,

9 And hath opened unto us the [m] myſtery of his will [13] according to his good pleaſure, which he hath purpoſed in him,

10 [14] That in the diſpenſation of the fulneſſe of the times, he might [n] gather together in one all things, both which are in heaven, & which are in earth, even in Chriſt:

11 [15] In whom alſo we are choſen when we were predeſtinate according to the purpoſe of him, which worketh [o] all things after the counſell of his own will,

12 That we, which [p] firſt truſted in Chriſt, ſhould be unto the praiſe of his glory:

13 [16] In whom alſo ye have truſted, after that ye heard the [q] word of trueth, even the Goſpel of your ſalvation, wherein alſo after that ye beleeved, ye were [r] ſealed with the holy [ſ] Spirit of promiſe,

14 Which is the earneſt of our inheritance, for the [t] redemption of that libertie purchaſed unto the praiſe of his glory.

15 [17] Therefore alſo after that I heard of the faith, which ye have in the Lord Jeſus, and love toward all the Saints,

16 I ceaſe not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers,

17 [18] That the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that Father of [v] glory, might give unto you the Spirit of wiſedom, and revelation through the [x] acknowledging of him,

18 That the eyes of your underſtanding may be lightned, that ye may know what the [y] hope is of his calling, and what the riches of his glorious inheritance is in the Saints,

19 [19] And what is the exceeding greatnes of his power toward us, which beleeve, [*] according to the working of his mightie power,

20 [20] Which he wrought in Chriſt, when

---

[1] The inſcription and ſalutation, whereof we have ſpoken in the former Epiſtles.

[*] 1 Cor.1.2.

[*] 1 Cor.1.3. 1 Pet.1.3.

[2] The firſt part of the Epiſtle, wherein he handleth all the parts of our ſalvation propounding the example of yͤ Epheſians, and uſing divers exhortations, and beginning after his manner with thankſgiving.

[3] The efficient cauſe of our ſalvation is God, not conſidered confuſedly and generally, but as the Father of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt.

[4] The next finall cauſe, & in reſpect of us, is our ſalvation, all things being beſtowed upon us which are neceſſary to our ſalvation, which kind of bleſſing is heavenly, and proper to the elect.

[b] With all kind of gracious and bountifull goodneſſe which is heavenly indeed, and from God onely. [c] Which God our Father gave us from his high throne from above: or becauſe the Saints have thoſe gifts beſtowed on them, which belong properly to the citizens of heaven. [5] The matter of our ſalvation is Chriſt, in whom onely we are indued with ſpirituall bleſſing and unto ſalvation. [6] He declareth the efficient cauſe, or by what means God the Father ſaveth us in his Son: Becauſe ſaith he, he choſe us from everlaſting in his Son. [d] To be adopted in him. [7] He expoundeth the next finall cauſe, which he maketh double, to wit, ſanctification, and juſtification, whereof he will ſpeak heerafter. And heerby alſo two things are to be noted, to wit, that holineſſe of life cannot be ſeparate from the grace of election? and again what pureneſſe ſoever is in us, is the gift of God who hath freely of his mercie choſen us. [e] Then God did not chuſe us, becauſe we were, or otherwiſe ſhould have been holy, but to the end we ſhould be holy. [f] Being clothed with Chriſts righteouſneſſe. [g] Truely and ſincerely. [8] Another plainer expoſition of the efficient cauſe, and alſo of eternall election, whereby God is ſaid to have choſen us in Chriſt, to wit, becauſe it pleaſed him to appoint us out when we were not yet born, whom he would make to be his children by Ieſus Chriſt: ſo that there is no reaſon heer of our election to be ſought, but in the free mercie of God, neither is faith which God foreſaw, the cauſe of out predeſtination, but the effect. [h] God reſpecteth nothing, either that preſent is, or that is to come, but himſelf onely. [9] The uttermoſt and chiefeſt finall cauſe is the glory of God the Father, who ſaveth us freely in his Son. [i] That as his bountifull goodneſſe deſerveth all praiſe, ſo alſo it ſhould be ſet forth and publiſhed. [10] Another finall cauſe more neer, is our juſtification, while that he freely accounteth us for juſt in his Son. [11] An expounding of the materiall cauſe, how we are made acceptable to God in Chriſt, for it is he onely whoſe ſacrifice by the mercie of God is imputed unto us, for forgiveneſſe of ſins. [12]. Now he commeth at length to the formall cauſe, that is to ſay, to vocation, or preaching of the Goſpel, whereby God executeth that eternall counſell of our free reconciliation and ſalvation in Chriſt, and putting in place of the Goſpell all wiſedom and underſtanding, he ſheweth how excellent it is. [k] By which gracious goodneſſe and bountifulneſſe. [l] In perfect and ſound wiſdome.

[m] For unleſſe the Lord had opened unto us that myſtery, we could never have ſo much as dreamed of it our ſelves.

[13] Not onely the election, but alſo yͤ vocation proceedeth of meer grace.

[14] The Father exhibited and gave Chriſt, who is the head of al the elect unto the world, at yͤ time which was convenient, according as he moſt wiſely diſpoſed all times from everlaſting. And Chriſt is he, in whom all the elect from the beginning of the world, (otherwiſe wandering and ſeparated from God) are gathered together: of which ſome were then in heaven, when he came into yͤ earth, (to wit, ſuch as by faith in him to come, were gathered together) and other being found upon the earth, were gathered together of him, and yͤ reſt are daily gathered together.

[n] The faithfull are ſaid to be gathered together in Chriſt, becauſe they are ioyned together with him through faith, and become as it were one man.

[15] He applieth ſeverally the benefit of vocation to the beleeving Iews, going back to the very fonntain, yͭ even they alſo may not attribute their ſalvation, neither to themſelves, nor to their ſtock, nor any other thing, but to the onely grace and mercie of God, both becauſe they were called, and alſo becauſe they were firſt called.

[o] All things are attributed to the grace of God without exception, & yet for all that, we are not ſtocks, for he giveth us grace both to will, and to be able to do thoſe things that are good, Phil.2.13. [p] He ſpeaketh of the Iews. [16] Now he maketh the Epheſians (or rather all the Gentiles) equall to the Iews, becauſe yͭ notwithſtanding they came laſt, yet being called by the ſame Goſpel, they embraced it by faith, and were ſealed up with the ſame ſpirit, which is yͤ pledge of election, untill the inheritance it ſelf be ſeen, yͭ in them alſo the glory of God might ſhine forth & be manifeſted. [q] That word which is trueth indeed, becauſe it commeth from God. [r] This is a borrowed kind of ſpeach taken of a ſeal, which being put to any thing, maketh difference between thoſe things that are authenticall, and others that are not. [ſ] With that Spirit, which bringeth not the Law, but the promiſe of free adoption. [t] Full and perfect. [17] He returneth to the former gratulation, concluding two things together of thoſe things that went before: the firſt is, that all good things come to us from God the Father in Chriſt, & by Chriſt, that for them he may be praiſed of us. The ſecond is, that all thoſe things (which he bringeth to two heads, to wit, faith and charitie) are increaſed in us by certain degrees, ſo that we muſt deſire increaſe of his grace, from whom we have the beginning, and of whom we hope for the end. [18] The cauſes of faith, are God the Father lightning our minds with his holy Spirit, that we may embrace Chriſt opened unto us in the Goſpel, to the obtaining of everlaſting life, & the ſetting forth of Gods glory. [v] Full of maieſtie. [x] For it is not enough for us to have knowen God once, but we muſt know him every day more and more. [y] What bleſſings they are which he calleth you to hope for, whom he calleth to Chriſt. [19] The excellencie of faith is declared by yͤ effects, becauſe the mighty power of God is ſet forth & ſhewed therein. [*] Chap. 3.7. Col.2.12. [20] The Apoſtle willeth us to behold in our moſt glorious Chriſt, with the eyes of faith, that moſt excellent power and glorie of God, whereof all the faithfull are partakers, although it be as yet very dark in us, by reaſon of the ignominie of the Croſſe, and the weakneſſe of the fleſh.

he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his [z] right hand in the heavenly places.

21 Farre above all principalitie, and power, and might, and domination, and every [a] name that is named, not in this world onely, but alſo in that that is to come,

22 [21] And hath made all things ſubject under his feet, and hath given him over all things to be the [b] head to the Church,

23 Which is his body, even the [c] fulneſſe of him that filleth all in all things.

Chap. II.

2 The better to ſet out the grace of Chriſt, he uſeth a compariſon, calling them to minde, 5. 12 that they were altogether caſt-awayes & aliants, 8 That they are ſaved by grace, 13 and brought neer by reconciliation through Chriſt, 17 publiſhed by the Goſpel.

And [1]* you hath he quickened, that were [a] dead in [2] treſpaſſes and ſinnes,

2 [3] Wherein, in times paſt ye walked, [4] according to the courſe of this world, and [b] after the prince that ruleth in the ayre, even the ſpirit, that now [5] worketh in the [c] children of diſobedience,

3 [6] Among whom we alſo had our converſation in times paſt, in the luſts of our [d] fleſh, in fulfilling the will of the fleſh, and of the minde, and [7] were by nature the [e] children of wrath, as well as [f] others.

4 [8] But God which is rich in mercy, through his great love wherewith he loved us,

5 Even when we were dead by ſinnes, hath quickened us together in Chriſt, by whoſe grace ye are ſaved,

6 And hath raiſed us up [g] together, and made us ſit together in the heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus,

7 That he might ſhew in the ages to come the exceeding riches of his grace, through his kindneſſe toward us in Chriſt Jeſus.

8 For by [h] grace are ye ſaved through faith, and that not of your ſelves: it is the gift of God,

9 [9] Not of works, leſt any man ſhould boaſt himſelfe,

10 For we are [i] his workemanſhip created in Chriſt Jeſus unto good works, which God hath ordained that we ſhould walke in them.

11 [10] Wherefore remember that ye being in time paſt Gentiles in the fleſh, and [k] called uncircumciſion of them, which are [l] called circumciſion in the fleſh, made with hands,

12 That ye were, I ſay, at that time [m] without Chriſt, and were [n] aliants from the common wealth of Iſrael, and were * Srangers from the covenants of promiſe, and had no hope, and were without God in the world.

13 [11] But now in Chriſt Jeſus, ye which once were farre off, are made neere by the blood of Chirſt.

14 [12] For he is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath broken the ſtop of the partition wall,

15 * In abrogating through his fleſh the hatred, that is, the Law of commandements which ſtandeth in ordinances, for to make of twaine one new man in himſelfe, ſo making peace,

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in [o] one body by his croſſe, and [p] ſlay hatred thereby,

17 [13] And came, and preached peace to you which were a farre off, and to them that were neere.

18 For [q] through him we both have an entrance unto the Father by one Spirit.

19 [14] Now therefore ye are no more ſtrangers and forreiners: but citizens with the Saints, and of the houſhold of God,

20 [15] And are built upon the foundation of the Apoſtles and Prophets, Jeſus Chriſt himſelfe being the [r] chiefe corner ſtone,

21 In whom all the building [ſ] coupled together, groweth unto an holy Temple in the Lord:

22 In whom ye alſo are built together to be the habitation of God by the Spirit.

Chap. III

1 He declareth that therefore he ſuffered many things of the Iews, 3 becauſe he preached the miſterie touching the ſalvation of the Gentiles, 8 at Gods commandement. 13 After he deſired the Epheſians not to faint for his afflictions: 14 And for this cauſe he prayeth unto God, 18 That they may underſtand the great love of Chriſt.

---

[z] To be ſet on Gods right hand, is to be partaker of the ſoveraigntie which he hath over all creatures.

[a] Every thing whatſoever it be, or above all things, be they of never ſo much power or excellencie.

21 That wee ſhould not think that that excellent glory of Chriſt is a thing wherewith we have nought to doe, he witneſſeth, that he was appointed of God the Father, head of all the Church, and therefore the body muſt be joined to this head, which otherwiſe would be a maimed thing without the members: which notwithſtanding is not of neceſſitie (ſeeing that the Church is rather quickned and ſuſtained by the only vertue of Chriſt, ſo farre off is it, that he needeth the fulneſſe thereof) but of the infinite good will and pleaſure of God, who vouchſaſeth to joyne us to his Sonne.

[b] In ſo much that there is nothing but is ſubiect unto him.

[c] For the love of Chriſt is ſo great towards the Church, that though he doe fully ſatisfie all with all things, yet he eſteemeth himſelfe but a maimed and unperfect head, unleſſe he have the Church joyned to him as his body.

1 He declareth againe the greatneſſe of Gods good will by comparing that miſerable ſtate wherein we are borne, with that dignitie whereunto we are advanced by God the Father in Chriſt. So that he deſcribeth that condition in ſuch ſort, that he ſaith, that touching ſpirituall motions we are not onely born halfe dead, but wholly and altogether dead.

* Coloſ.2.13.

[a] Looke Rom.6.2. So then he calleth them dead, which are not regenerate: for as the immortalitie of them which are damned is no life: ſo this knitting together of body and ſoule, is properly no life but death in them which are not ruled by the Spirit of God.

2 He ſheweth the cauſe of death, to wit, ſinnes.

3 He proveth, by the effects, that all were ſpiritually dead.

4 He proveth this evill to be univerſal, in ſo much as all are ſlaves of Satan.

5 Men are therefore ſlaves to Satan, becauſe they are willingly rebellious againſt God.

[c] They are called the children of diſobedience, which are given to diſobedience.

6 After that he hath ſeverally condemned the Gentiles, he confeſſeth that the Iewes amongſt whom he numbreth himſelfe, are not a whit better.

[d] By the name of fleſh, in the firſt place, he meaneth the whole man, which he divideth into two parts: into the fleſh, which is the part that the Philoſophers terme without reaſon, and into the thought, which they call reaſonable: ſo that he leaveth nothing in man halfe dead, but concludeth that the whole man is of nature the ſonne of wrath.

7 The Concluſion: All men were borne ſubiect to the wrath and curſe of God.

[e] Men are ſaid to be the children of wrath paſſively, that is to ſay, guiltie of everlaſting death, by the iudgement of God, who is angry with them.

[f] Prophane people which knew not God.

8 Now hereof followeth another member of the compariſon, declaring our excellencie, to wit, that by the vertue of Chriſt we are delivered from that death, and made partakers of eternall life, to the end that at length we may reigne with him. And by divers and ſundry meanes he beateth this into their heads, that the efficient cauſe of this benefit is the free mercie of God: and Chriſt himſelfe is the materiall cauſe: and Faith is the juſtrument, which alſo is the free gift of God: and the end is Gods glorie.

[g] To wit, as he addeth afterwards, in Chriſt, for as yet this is not fulfilled in us but onely in our head, by whoſe Spirit we have begunne to die to ſinne, and live to God, untill that worke be fully brought to an end: but yet the hope is certaine, for we are as ſure of that wee looke for, as we are of that we have received already.

[h] So then, Grace, that is to ſay, the gift of God, and faith, doe ſtand one with another, to which two, theſe are contrarie, To be ſaved by our ſelves, or by our workes. Therefore what meane they which would ioyne together things of contrarie nature?

9 He takerh awa expreſly, and namely from our workes, the praiſ of juſtification, ſeeing that th good workes themſelves are th effects of gtace i us.

[i] He ſpeaketh her of grace, and no of nature: there fore be the worke never ſo good, look what they are, it is o grace.

10 Applying th former doctrine to the Gentiles, he ſheweth tha they were not only as the Iewes by nature, bu alſo after an eſpecial ſort, ſtrangers and withour God: therefore they ought ſo much the rather remember that ſame ſo great a benefit o God.

[k] You were calle no otherwiſe the Gentiles, that al the world might witneſſe of your uncleanneſſe.

[l] Of the Iewes which were knowen from you by th marke of circumciſion, the marke of th covenant.

[m] He beginneth firſ with Chriſt, wh was the end of all th promiſes.

[n] You had no righ or title to the common wealth of Iſrael.

* Rom.9.4.

11 Chriſt is the onely bond of the Jewes and Gentiles, wherby they be reconciled to God.

12 As by the ceremonies and worſhip appointed by the Law, the Iewes were divided from the Gentiles, ſo now Chriſt, having broken downe the partition wall joyneth them both together, both in himſelfe, and betwixt themſelves, and to God. Wherby it followeth, that whoſoever eſtabliſheth the ceremonies of the Law, maketh the grace of Chriſt void, and of none effect.

* Coloſ.2.14.

[o] He alludeth to the ſacrifices of the Law, which repreſented that true and only Sacrifice.

[p] For he deſtroyed death by death, and faſtened it, as it were, to the croſſe.

13 The preaching of the Goſpel, is an effectuall inſtrument of this grace, common as wel to the Iewes, as to the Gentiles.

[q] Chriſt is the gate, as it were, by whom we come to the Father, and the holy Ghoſt, is as it were, our lodes man who leadeth us.

14 The concluſion: The Gentiles are taken into the fellowſhip of ſalvation, and he deſcribeth the excellencie of the Church, calling it the citie and houſe of God, 15 The Lord committed the doctrine of ſalvation, firſt to the Prophets, and then to the Apoſtles, the end whereof, and matter, as it were, and ſubſtance, is Chriſt. Therefore that is indeed the true and Catholique Church, which is builded upon Chriſt by the Prophets and Apoſtles, as a ſpirituall temple conſecrated to God.

[r] That is, the head of the building, for the foundations are, as it were, the heads of the building.

[ſ] So that God is the workeman not onely of the foundation, but alſo of the whole building.

FOr [1] this cauſe, I Paul am the [a] Priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt for you Gentiles,

2 If ye have heard of the diſpenſation of the grace of God , which is given me to you-ward,

3 That is, that God by revelation hath ſhewed this myſterie unto me (as I wrot above in few words,

4 Whereby when ye read,ye may know mine underſtanding in the myſterie of Chriſt)

5 Which in [b] other ages was not opened unto the ſons of men , as it is now reveiled unto his holy Apoſtles and Prophets by the Spirit,

6 That the Gentiles ſhould be inheriters alſo,and of the ſame body, & partakers of his promiſe in Chriſt by the Goſpel,

7 Whereof I am made a miniſter by the gift of the grace of God given unto me through the effectual working of his power,

8 Even unto me the leaſt of all Saints is this grace given , that I ſhould preach among the Gentiles the unſearchable riches of Chriſt,

9 And to make clear unto all men what the fellowſhip of the myſterie is , which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God,who hath created all things by Jeſus Chriſt ,

10 [2] To the intent, that now unto principalities and powers in heavenly places, might be knowen by the Church the [c] manifold wiſdome of God,

11 According to the [d] eternall purpoſe which he wrought in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord , 12 By whom we have boldneſſe and entrance with confidence by faith in him.

13 Wherefore I deſire that ye faint not at my tribulations for your ſakes, which is your glory.

14 [3] For this cauſe I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

15 (Of whom is named the whole [e] family in heaven and in earth.)

16 That he might graunt you according to the [f] riches of his glorie, that ye may be ſtrengthened by his Spirit in the [g] inner man,

17 That Chriſt may dwell in your hearts by faith :

18 That ye,being rooted and grounded in [h] love,may be able to comprehend with all Saints, [i] what is the breadth,and length, and depth , and height :

19 And to know the [k] love of Chriſt, which [l] paſſeth knowledge, that ye may be filled with all [m] fulneſſe of God.

20 [4] Unto him therefore that is able to do exceeding aboundantly above al that we aske or think, according to the power that worketh in us, 21 Be praiſe in the Church by Chriſt Jeſus,throughout all generations for ever, Amen.

CHAP. IV.

Theſe three laſt chapters contain precepts of manners. 1 He exhorteth them to mutuall love. 7 Sundry gifts are therefore beſtowed of God, 16 that the Church may be built up. 18 He calleth them from the vanitie of the infidels, 25 from lying, 29 and from filthy talking.

I Therefore , [1] being priſoner in the Lord, pray you that ye walk worthy of the [a] vocation whereunto ye are called,

2 [2] With all humbleneſſe of mind, and meekneſſe, with [b] long ſuffring,ſupporting one another through love,

3 [3] Endevouring to keep the unitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

4 [4] There is one body , and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your vocation.

5 There is one Lord,one Faith, one Baptiſme,

6 One God and Father of all , which is [c] above all,and [d] through all,and [e] in you al.

7 [5] But unto every one of us is given grace,according to the meaſure of the [f] gift of Chriſt.

8 Wherefore he ſaith, When he aſcended up on high, he led [g] captivitie captive, ad gave gifts unto men.

9 (Now,in that he aſcended , what is it but that he had alſo deſcended firſt into the [h] loweſt parts of the earth ?

10 He that deſcended , is even the ſame that aſcended,far above all heavens, that he might [i] fill [k] all things.)

11 [6] He therefore gave ſome to be [l] Apoſtles , and ſome [m] Prophets , and ſome [n] Euangeliſts , and ſome [o] Paſtours and Teachers,

12 [7] For the repairing of the Saints , for the work of the miniſterie, and for the edification of the [p] body of Chriſt, 13 [8] Till we all meet together (in the [q] unitie of faith , and that acknowledging of the Son of God) unto a perfit man , and unto the meaſure of the [r] age of the fulneſſe of Chriſt.

[1] He maintaineth his Apoſtleſhip againſt the offence of the croſſe, whereon alſo he taketh an argument to confirme himſelf, affirming that he was not only appointed an Apoſtle by the mercie of God, but was alſo particularly appointed to the Gentiles to call them on every ſide to ſalvation, becauſe God had ſo determined it from the beginning , although he deferred a great while the manifeſtation of ÿ his counſell.

[a] Theſe words , the priſoner of Ieſus Chriſt , are taken paſſively , that is to ſay, I Paul am caſt into priſon for maintaining the glory of Chriſt.

[b] He meaneth not that none knew the calling of the Gentiles before, but becauſe very few knew of it, and they that did know it , as the Prophets, had it reveiled unto them very darkely and under figures.

[2] The unlooked for calling of the Gentiles,was as it were a glaſſe to the heavenly Angels,wherein they might behold the marveilous wiſedom of God.

[c] God never had but one way only, to ſave men by : but it had divers faſhions and forms.

[d] Which was before all beginnings.

[3] He teacheth by his own example, that the efficacie of the doctrine dependeth upon the grace of God, and therefore we ought to joyne prayers with the preaching and hearing of ÿ word: which are needfull not only to them which are yonglings in religion,but even to the oldeſt alſo , that they growing up more & more by faith in Chriſt being confirmed with all ſpirituall gifts , may be grounded & rooted in the knowledge of that immeaſurable love, wherewith God the Father hath loved us in Chriſt, ſeeing that the whole family, whereof part is already received into heaven , and part is yet here on earth, dependeth upon that adoption of the heavenly Father , in his only Son,

[e] All that whole people, which had but one houſhold-Father,and that is the Church ,which is adopted in Chriſt.

[f] According to the greatneſſe of his mercie. [g] Look Romans 7.22. [h] Wherewith God loveth us, which is the root of our election. [i] How perfit that work of Chriſt is in every part. [k] Which God hath ſhewed us in Chriſt. [l] Which paſſeth all the capacitie of mans wit , to comprehend it fully in his mind : for otherwiſe who ſo hath the ſpirit of God perceiveth ſo much (according to the meaſure that God hath given him) as is ſufficient to ſalvation. [m] So that we have abundantly in us, whatſoever things are requiſite to make us perfit with God.

[4] He breaketh forth into a thankſgiving, whereby the Epheſians alſo may be confirmed to hope for any thing of God.

[1] Another part of the Epiſtle , containing precepts of Chriſtian life, the ſum whereof is this,that every man behave himſelf as it is meet for ſo excellent grace of God.

[a] By this is meant the generall calling of the faithfull,which is this, to be holy as our God is holy.

[2] Secondly, he commendeth meekneſſe of the mind, which is ſhewed forth by bearing one with another.

[b] Look Mat. 28. 25.

[3] Thirdly , he requireth perfit agreement, but yet ſuch as is knit with the band of the holy Ghoſt.

[4] An argument of great waight, for an earneſt interteining of brotherly love and charitie one with another , becauſe we are made one body,as it were,of one God and Father, by one Spirit, worſhipping one Lord with one faith,and conſecrated to him with one Baptiſme , and hope of one ſelf ſame glory,whereunto we are called. Therefore whoſoever breaketh charitie, breaketh all theſe things aſunder.

[5] He teacheth us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Chriſt onely ,who reigneth in heaven,having mightily conquered all his enemies (from whence he heapeth all gifts upon his Church:) but yet notwithſtanding theſe gifts are diverſly and ſundry waies divided according to his will and pleaſure , and therefore every man ought to be content with that meaſure that God hath given him , and to beſtow it to the common profit of the whole body. [f] Which Chriſt hath given. [g] A multitude of captives. [h] Down to the earth,which is the loweſt part of the world. [i] Fill with his gifts. [k] The Church. [6] Firſt of all he reckoneth up the Eccleſiaſticall functions,which are partly,exrraordinarie and for a ſeaſon, as Apoſtles, Prophets,Euangeliſts, and partly,ordinarie and perpetuall , as Paſtors and Doctors. [l] The Apoſtles were thoſe twelve,unto whom Paul was afterward added , whoſe office was to plant Churches throughout all the world. [m] The Prophets office was one of the chiefeſt, which were men of marvelous wiſedom,and ſome of them could foretell things to come. [n] Theſe the Apoſtles uſed as fellows in the execution of their office,being not able to anſwere all places themſelves. [o] Paſtours are they which govern the Church,and Teachers are they which governe the ſchooles. [7] He ſheweth the end of Eccleſiaſticall functions,to wit, that by the miniſterie of men all the Saints may ſo grow up together, that they may make one myſticall body of Chriſt. [p] The Church [8] The uſe of this miniſterie is perpetuall,ſo long as we are in this world,that is , untill that time that having put off the fleſh, and throughly and perfitly agreeing betwixt our ſelves , we ſhall be joyned with Chriſt our head. Which thing is done by that knowledge of the Son of God increaſing in us, and he himſelf by little and little growing up in us, untill we come to be a perfit man, which ſhall be in the world to come, when God ſhall be all in all. [q] In that moſt neer conjunction which is knit and faſtened together by faith. [r] Chriſt is ſaid to grow up to full age,not in himſelf,but in us.

14 [9] That we henceforth be no more children, [10] wavering and caried about with every wind of doctrine, by the [ſ] deceit of men, and [t] with craftineſſe, whereby they lay in wait to deceive.

15 [11] But let us follow the trueth in love, and in all things grow up into him, which is the head, that is, Chriſt:

16 By whom all the body being coupled, and knit together by every joynt, for the furniture thereof (according to the [v] effectuall power, which is in the meaſure of every part) receiveth [x] increaſe of the body, unto the edifying of it ſelf in [y] love.

17 [12] This I ſay therefore and teſtifie in the Lord, that ye henceforth walke not as *other Gentiles walk, in [z] vanitie of their mind,

18 Having their underſtanding darkened, and being ſtrangers from the [a] life of God through the ignorance that is in them, becauſe of the hardneſſe of their heart:

19 Which being [b] paſt feeling, have given themſelves unto wantonneſſe, to work all uncleanneſſe, even with [c] greedineſſe.

20 [13] But ye have not ſo learned Chriſt,

31 If ſo be ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, [d] as the trueth is in Jeſus,

22 * That is, that ye caſt off concerning the converſation in time paſt, [e] that old man, which is corrupt through the deceiveable luſts,

23 And be renewed in the [f] Spirit of your mind,

24 And put on the new man, which [g] after God is created [h] unto righteouſneſſe, and [i] true holineſſe.

25 [14] Wherefore caſt off lying, and ſpeak every man trueth unto his neighbour: for we are members one of another.

26 [15] Be [k] angrie, but ſin not: let not the ſun go down [l] upon your wrath, 27 Neither give place to the devill.

[9] Betwixt our childhood (that is to ſay, a very weak ſtate, while as yet we do altogether waver) and our perfit age, which we ſhall have at length in another world, there is a mean, to wit, our youth, and ſteady going forward to perfection.

[10] He compareth them, which reſt not themſelves upon the word of God, to little boats which are toſſed hither and thither with the doctrines of men, as it were, with contrary winds, and therewithall forewarneth them that it commeth to paſſe not onely by the lightneſſe of mans brain, but alſo by the craftineſſe of certain, which make as it were an art of it.

[t] By the deceit of thoſe men which are very well practiſed in deceiving of other.

[11] By earneſt affection of the trueth and love, we grow up into Chriſt: for he (being effectuall by the miniſtery of his word, which as the vitall ſpirit doth ſo quicken the whole body, that it nouriſheth al the limbs thereof according to ỹ meaſure and proportion of each one) quickeneth and cheriſheth his Church, which conſiſteth of divers functions, as of divers members, and preſerveth the proportion of every one. And thereof it followeth that neither this body can live without Chriſt, neither can any man grow up ſpiritually, which ſeparateth himſelf from the other members.

[v] Of Chriſt, who in manner of the ſoul, quickeneth all the members. [x] Such increaſe as is meet the body ſhould have. [y] Charitie is the knitting of the limbs together. [12] He deſcendeth to the fruits of Chriſtian doctrine, and reaſoneth firſt upon the principles of manners and actions, ſetting down a moſt grave compariſon between the children of God, and them, which are not regenerate: For in theſe men, all the powers of the mind are corrupted, and their mind is given to vanity, and their ſenſes are darkened with moſt groſſe miſtineſſe, and their affections are ſo accuſtomed by little and little to wickedneſſe, that at length they run headlong into all uncleanneſſe, being utterly deſtitute of all judgement. * Rom.1.21. [z] If the nobleſt parts of the ſoul be corrupted, what is man but corruption onely? [a] Whereby God liveth in them. [b] Void of all judgement. [c] They ſtrove to paſſe one another, as though there had been ſome gain to be gotten by it. [13] Here followeth the contrary part, touching men which are regenerate by the true and lively knowledge of Chriſt, which have other principles of their doings far different, to wit, holy and honeſt deſires, and a mind clean changed by the vertue of the holy Ghoſt, from whence proceed alſo like effects, as a juſt and holy life indeed. [d] As they have learned, which acknowledge Chriſt indeed, and in good earneſt. * Col.3.8 [e] Your ſelves. [f] Where there ought to have been the greateſt force of reaſon, there is the greateſt corruption of all, which waſteth all things. [g] After the image of God. [h] The effect and end of the new creation. [i] Not fained nor counterfeit. [14] He commendeth ſeverally certain peculiar Chriſtian vertues, and firſt of all, he requireth trueth, (that is to ſay, ſincere manners) condemning all deceit and diſſembling, becauſe we are born one for another. [15] He teacheth us how to bridle our anger, in ſuch ſort, that although it be hot, yet that it break not out, and that it be ſtraight wayes quenched before we ſleep: leſt Satan taking occaſion to give us evill counſell, through that wicked counſeller, deſtrov us. [k] If it ſo fall out, that you be angry, yet ſin not: that is, bridle your anger, and do not wickedly put that in execution, which you have wickedly conceived. [l] Let not the night come upon you in your anger, that is, make an atonement quickly for all matters.

28 [16] Let him that ſtole, ſteale no more: but let him rather labour, and worke with his hands the thing which is [m] good, that he may have to give unto him that needeth.

29 [17] Let no [n] corrupt communication proceed out of your mouthes: but that which is good to the uſe of edifying, that it may miniſter [o] grace unto the hearers.

30 [18] And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, by whom ye are ſealed unto the day of redemption.

31 Let all bitterneſſe, and anger, and wrath, crying, and evill ſpeaking be put awav from you, with all maliciouſneſſe.

32 Be ye courteous one to another, and tender hearted, freely forgiving one another, even as God for Chriſts ſake, freely forgave you.

[16] He deſcendet from the heart, t the hands, condemning theft: & becauſe the men which give themſelves to this wickedneſſe, uſe to pretend poverty, he ſheweth that labour is a good remedie againſt poverty, which God bleſſeth in ſuch ſort, that the which labour hav alwayes ſome overplus to help other, ſo far is it from this, that they are conſtrai ned to ſteal other mens goods.

[m] By labouring in things that are holy, and profitable to hi neighbour.

[17] He brideleth the tongue alſo, teaching us ſo to temper our talke, that our hearers minds be not onely not deſtroyed, but alſo inſtructed. [n] Word for word, rotten. [o] By grace, he meaneth that, whereby men may profit to the going on forward in godlineſſe and love. [18] A generall precept againſt all exceſſe of affections which dwell in that part of the mind, which they call, Angrie, and he ſetteth againſt them the contrary meanes. And uſeth a moſt vehement preface, how we ought to take heed that we grieve not the holy Spirit of God through our immoderateneſſe and intemperancie, who dwelleth in us, to this end, to moderate all our affections. [19] An argument taken from the example of Chriſt, moſt grave and vehement, both for pardoning of thoſe injuries which have been done unto us by our greateſt enemies, and much more for having conſideration of the miſerable, and uſing moderation and gentle behaviour towards all men.

CHAP. V.

3 Leſt in thoſe vices which he reprehended, they ſhould ſet light by his admonitions. 5 He terrifieth them by denouncing ſevere judgements, 8 and ſtirreth them forward. 15 Then he deſcendeth from generall leſſons of manners, 21 to the particular dueties of wives, 25 and husbands.

BE ye therefore followers of God, as deare children.

2 *And walke in love, even as Chriſt hath loved us, and hath given himſelfe for us, to be an offering and a ſacrifice of a ſweet ſmelling ſavour to God.

3 *[1] But fornication, and all uncleanneſſe, or couetouſneſſe, let it not be once named among you, as it becommeth Saints,

4 Neither filthineſſe, neither fooliſh talking, neither [a] jeſting, which are things not comely, but rather giving of thanks.

5 [2] For this ye know, that no whoremonger, neither unclean perſon, nor covetous perſon, which is an [b] idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Chriſt, and of God.

6 *Let no man deceive you with vain words: for, for ſuch things commeth the wrath of God upon the children of diſobedience.

7 [3] Be not therefore companions with them:

8 For ye were once darknes, but are now [c] light in the Lord: walk as children of light,

* Iohn 13.34. and 15.12. 1 Iohn 3.23.

* Chap.4.29. Coloſſ.3.5. 1 Theſ.4.3.

[1] Now he commeth to another kind of affections, which is in that part of the mind, which men call covetous or deſirous: and he reprehendeth fornication, covetouſnes and jeſting, very ſharply.

[a] Ieſtes which men caſt one at another: that no lightneſſe be ſeen, nor evill example given, nor any offence moved by evill words or backbiting.

[2] Becauſe theſe ſins are ſuch, that the moſt part of men count them not for ſins, he awaketh the godly to the end they ſhould ſo much the more take heed to themſelves from them, as moſt hurtfull plagues. [b] A bondſlave to idolatry, for the covetous man thinketh that his life ſtandeth in his goods. * Mat.24.4. Marke 13.5. Luke 21.8. 2 Theſſ.2.3. [3] Becauſe we are not ſo ready to any thing, as to follow evill examples, therefore the Apoſtle warneth the godly to remember alwayes, that the other are but as it were darkeneſſe, and that they themſelves are as it were light. And therefore the other commit all villenies (as men are wont in the dark) but they ought not onely not to follow their examples, but alſo (as the property of the light is,) reprove their darkneſſe, and to walke ſo (having Chriſt that true light going before them) as it becommeth wiſe men. [c] The faithfull are called light, both becauſe they have the true light in them which lightneth them, and alſo becauſe they give light to other, in ſo much, that their honeſt converſation reproveth the life of wicked men.

9 (For the fruit of the [d] Spirit is in all goodnes, and righteouſnes, and truth)

10 Approving that which is pleaſing to the Lord,

11 And have no fellowſhip with the unfruitfull works of darkeneſſe, but even [e] reprove them rather.

12 For it is ſhame even to ſpeake of the things which are done of them in ſecret.

13 But all things when they are reproved of the light are manifeſt: for it is light that maketh all things manifeſt.

14 Wherefore [f] he ſaith, Awake thou that ſleepeſt, and ſtand up from the [g] dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee light.

15 [4] Take heed therfore that ye walke circumſpectly, not as fooles, but as * wiſe, 16 [h] Redeeming the ſeaſon: for the [i] dayes are evill.

17 * Wherefore, be ye not unwiſe, but underſtand what the will of the Lord is.

18 [5] And be not drunken with wine, wherein is [k] exceſſe: but be fulfilled with the Spirit,

19 Speaking unto your ſelves in pſalmes, and hymnes, and ſpirituall ſongs, ſinging and making melodie to the Lord in your [l] hearts,

20 Giving thanks alwayes for all things unto God even the Father, in the Name of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, 21 [6] Submitting your ſelves one to another in the feare of God.

22 ¶ * [7] Wives, ſubmit your ſelves unto your husbands, [8] as unto the Lord,

23 * [9] For the husband is the wives head, even as Chriſt is the head of the Church, [10] and the ſame is the ſaviour of his body.

24 [11] Therefore as the Church is in ſubjection to Chriſt, even ſo let the wives be to their husbands in every thing.

25 ¶ * [12] Husbands, love your wives, even as Chriſt loved the Church, and gave himſelfe for it,

26 [13] That he might [m] ſanctifie it, and cleanſe it by the waſhing of water through the [n] word,

27 That he might make it unto himſelfe a glorious Church, [o] not having ſpot or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing, but that it ſhould be holy and without blame.

28 [14] So ought men to love their wives, as their own bodies: he that loveth his wife, loveth himſelfe.

7 Now he deſcendeth to a family, dividing orderly all the parts of a family. And he ſaith, that the duetie of wives conſiſteth herein, to be obedient to their husbands.

8 The firſt argument, for they cannot be diſobedient to their huſbands, but they muſt reſiſt God alſo, who is the authour of this ſubjection.

* 1 Cor.11.3.

9 A declaration of the former ſaying: Becauſe God hath made the man head of the woman in matrimony, as Chriſt is the head of the Church.

10 Another argument: Becauſe the good eſtate of the wiſe dependeth of the man, ſo that this ſubmiſſion is not onely juſt, but alſo very profitable: as alſo the ſalvation of the Church is of Chriſt, although farre otherwiſe. 11 The concluſion of the wives duetie towards their husbands. * Coloſſ.3.19. 12 The husbands duetie toward their wives, is to love them as themſelves, of which love, the love of Chriſt toward his Church is a lively paterne. 13 Becauſe many men pretend the infirmities of their wives to excuſe their owne hardneſſe and crueltie, the Apoſtle willeth us to marke what manner of Church Chriſt gat, when he joyned it to himſelfe, and how he doeth not onely, not loath all her filth, and uncleanneſſe, but ceaſeth not to wipe the ſame away with his cleanneſſe, untill he wholly purged it. m Make it holy. n Through the promiſe of free juſtification and ſanctification in Chriſt, received by faith. o The Church as it is conſidered in it ſelſe, ſhall not be without wrinkle, before it come to the marke it ſhooteth at: for while it is in this life, it runneth in a race: but if it be conſidered in Chriſt, it is cleane and without wrinckle. 14 Another argument: Every man loveth himſelfe, even of nature, therefore he ſtriveth againſt nature that loveth not his wife: he proveth the conſequent firſt by the myſticall knitting of Chriſt and the Church together, & then by the ordinance of God, who ſaith ÿ man & wife are as one, ÿ is, not to be divided.

29 For no man ever yet hated his [p] own fleſh, but nouriſheth and cheriſheth it, even as the Lord doeth the Church.

30 For we are members of his body, [q] of his fleſh, and of his bones.

31 * For this cauſe ſhall a man leave father and mother, and ſhall [r] cleave to his wife, and they twaine ſhalbe one fleſh.

32 [15] This is a great ſecret, but I ſpeake concerning Chriſt, and concerning the Church.

33 [16] Therfore every one of you, doe ye ſo: let every one love his wife, even as himſelfe, and let the wife ſee that ſhe feare her huſband.

p His owne body.

r Looke Matt. 15.5.

15 That no man might dreame of naturall conjunction, or knitting of Chriſt and his Church together (ſuch as the huſbands and the wives is) he ſheweth that it is ſecret, to wit, ſpirituall, and ſuch as farre differeth from the common capacity of man: as which conſiſteth by the vertue of the Spirit, and not of the fleſh, by faith, and by no naturall band. 16 The concluſion both of the husbands duetie toward his wife, and of the wives toward her husband.

CHAP. VI.

1 He ſheweth the dueties of children, 5 ſervants, 9 and maſters. 10 Then he ſpeaketh of the fierce battell that the faithfull have, 12 and what weapons we muſt uſe in the ſame: 21 In the end he commendeth Tychicus,

CHildren, [1] * obey your parents [2] in the [a] Lord: [3] for this is right.

2 * [4] Honour thy father and mother ([5] which is the firſt commandement with [b] promiſe)

3 That it may be well with thee, and that thou mayeſt live long on earth.

4 [6] And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in inſtruction and [c] information of the Lord.

5 [7] * Servants, be obedient unto them that are your maſters, [8] according to the fleſh, with [d] feare and trembling in ſingleneſſe of your hearts, as unto Chriſt,

6 Not with ſervice to the eye, as menpleaſers, but as the ſervants of Chriſt, [9] doing the will of God from the heart,

7 With good will, ſerving the [e] Lord, and not men.

8 [10] And know ye that whatſoever good thing any man doth, that ſame ſhall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.

9 [11] And ye maſters doe the ſame things unto them, putting away threatning: and know that even your maſter alſo is in heaven, neither is there * [f] reſpect of perſon with him.

1 He commeth to another part of a family, and ſheweth that the duety of the children toward their parents, conſiſteth in obedience unto them.

* Coloſſ.3.20.

2 The firſt argument: becauſe God hath ſo appointed: whereupon it followeth alſo that children are ſo farre forth bound to obey their parents, as they may not ſwarve from the true worſhip of God.

a For the Lord is author of all fatherhood, and therefore we muſt yeeld ſuch obedience as he will have us.

3 The ſecond argument: Becauſe this obedience is moſt juſt.

* Exod.20.12. Deut.5.16. Eccleſ.3.9. Matt.15.4. Marke 7.10.

4 A proofe of the firſt argument.

5 The third argument taken of the profit that enſueth thereby: Becauſe the Lord vouchſafed this commandement amongſt all the reſt, of a ſpeciall bleſſing.

b With a ſpeciall promiſe: for otherwiſe the ſecond commandement hath a promiſe of mercy to a thouſand generations, but that promiſe is generall. 6 It is the duetie of fathers to uſe their fatherly authoritie moderately & to Gods glory. c Such informations and precepts as being taken out of Gods booke, are holy and acceptable to him. 7 Now he deſcendeth to the third part of a family, to wit, to the duetie both of the maſters, and of the ſervants. And he ſheweth that the duetie of ſervants conſiſteth in an heartie love and reverence to their maſters. * Col.3.22. Titus 2.9. 1 Pet.2.18. 8 He mitigateth the ſharpeneſſe of ſervice, in that they are ſpiritually free notwithſtanding the ſame, and yet that ſpirituall freedome taketh not away corporall ſervice: inſomuch that they cannot be Chriſts, unleſſe they ſerve their maſters willingly and faithfully, ſo farre foorth as they may with ſafe conſcience. d With carefull reverence, for ſlaviſh feare is not allowable, much leſſe in Chriſtian ſervants. 9 To cut of occaſion of all pretences, he teacheth us that it is Gods will that ſome are either borne or made ſervants, and therefore they muſt reſpect Gods will, although their ſervice be never ſo hard. e Being mooved with a reverence to God-ward, as though yee ſerved God himſelfe. 10 Although they ſerve unkind and cruell maſters, yet the obedience of ſervants is no leſſe acceptable to God, then the obedience of them that are free. 11 It is the dutie of maſters, to uſe the authority that they have over their ſervants modeſtly and holily, ſeeing that they in an other reſpect have a common maſter which is in heaven, who will judge both the bond and the free. * *Deut.10.17. 2 Chron.19.7. 10 ¶ [12] Finally, my brethren, be ſtrong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to ſtand againſt the aſſaults of the devill.

12 [13] For we wreſtle not againſt fleſh and [g] blood, but againſt [*] [h] principalities, againſt powers, and againſt the worldly governours, the princes of the darkeneſſe of this world, againſt ſpirituall wickedneſſes, which are in the high places.

13 [14] For this cauſe take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to reſiſt in the [i] evill day, and having finiſhed all things, ſtand faſt.

14 Stand therefore, and your loynes girded about with verity, and having on the breſt plate of righteouſneſſe, 15 And your feet ſhod with the [k] preparation of the Goſpel of peace.

16 Above all, take the ſhield of faith, wherwith ye may quench all the fierie darts of the wicked,

17 And take the helmet of ſalvation, and the ſword of the Spirit, which is the word of God,

18 And pray alwayes with all manner prayer and ſupplication in the [l] Spirit: and watch therunto with all perſeverance and ſupplication for all Saints,

19 And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly to publiſh the ſecret of the Goſpel, 20 Whereof I am the ambaſſadour in bonds, that therein I may ſpeake boldly, as I ought to ſpeake.

21 ¶ [15] But that ye may alſo know mine affaires, and what I doe, Tychicus my deare brother and faithfull miniſter in the Lord, ſhall ſhew you of all things, 22 Whom I have ſent unto you for the ſame purpoſe, that ye might know mine affaires, and that he might comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be with the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

24 Grace be with all them which love our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to their [m] immortalitie, Amen.

¶ Written from Rome unto the Epheſians, and ſent by Tychicus.

[12] He concludeth the other part of this Epiſtle, with a grave exhortation, that all be ready and fight conſtantly, truſting to ſpirituall weapons, untill their enemies be cleane put to flight. And firſt of all, he warneth us to take the armour of God, wherwith onely our enemy may be diſpatched.

[13] Secondly, he declareth that our chiefeſt & mightieſt enemies are invisible, that we may not thinke that our chiefeſt conflict is with men.

[g] Againſt men, which are of a fraile and brittle nature, againſt which are ſet ſpirituall ſubtilities, more mighty then the other by a thouſand parts.

[h] He giveth theſe names to the evill angels, by reaſon of the effects which they worke: not that they are able to doe the ſame of themſelves, but becauſe God giveth them the bridle.

[14] He ſheweth that theſe enemies are put to flight with the onely armour of God, to wit, with uprightneſſe of conſcience, a godly and holy life, knowledge of the Goſpel, faith, and to be ſhort, with the word of God, and uſing daily earneſt prayer for the health of the Church, and eſpecially for the conſtancie of the true, godly, and valiant miniſters of the word.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

CHAP. I.

3 Having teſtified his godly and tender affection towards the Philippians, 12 he intreateth of himſelf, and his bonds: 22 And pricketh them forward by his own example, 27 and exhorteth them to unitie, 28 and patience.

PAul [1] & Timotheus the ſervants of Jesus Christ, to all the Saints in Chriſt Jeſus which are at Philippi, with the [a] Biſhops, and Deacons:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 I thanke my God, having you in perfect memory,

4 (Alwayes in all my prayers for all you, praying with gladneſſe.)

5 Becauſe of the [b] fellowſhip which yee have in the Goſpel, from the [c] firſt day unto now.

6 And I am perſwaded of this ſame thing, that he that hath begun this good worke in you, will performe it until the [d] day of Jeſus Chriſt,

7 As it becommeth me ſo to judge of you al, becauſe I have you in remembrance, that both in my [e] bands, and in my defence, and confirmation of the Goſpel you all were partakers of my [f] grace.

8 [2] For God is my record, how I long after you all from the very heart root in Jeſus Chriſt.

9 [3] And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge, and in all judgement,

10 That ye may allow thoſe things which are beſt, that ye may be pure, and without offence untill the day of Chriſt.

11 Filled with the [g] fruits of righteouſnes, which are by Jeſus Chriſt unto the glory and praiſe of God.

12 ¶ [4] I would ye underſtood, brethren, that the things which have come unto me, are turned rather to the furthering of the Goſpel,

13 So that my bands [h] in Chriſt are famous throughout all the [i] judgement hall, and in all other places,

14 In ſo much that many of the brethren in the Lord are boldned through my bands,

[1] The marke whereat he ſhooteth in this Epiſtle, is to confirme the Philippians by all meanes poſſible, not onely not to faint, but alſo to goe forward. And firſt of all, he commendeth their former doings, to exhort them to go forward: which thing he ſaith, he hopeth fully they will doe, and that by the teſtimony of their lively charity, but in the meane ſeaſon he referreth all things to the grace of God.

[a] By the Biſhops are meant both the Paſtours, which have the diſpenſation of the word, and the Elders that governe: and by Deacons, are meant thoſe that were ſtewards of the treaſurie of the Church, and had to looke unto the poore.

[b] Becauſe that you alſo are made partakers of the Goſpel.

[c] Ever ſince I knew you.

[d] The Spirit of God will not forſake you unto the very latter end, untill your mortall bodies ſhall appeare before the iudgement of Chriſt to be glorified.

[e] A true proofe a true knitting together with Chriſt.

[f] He calleth his bands grace, as though he had received ſome ſingul benefit.

[2] He declareth his good will towards them, therewithall ſhewing by what meanes chiefly they may be confirmed, to wit, by continuall praye

[3] He ſheweth what thing we ought chiefly deſire, to wit, firſt o all that we may increaſe in the tru knowledge of God, (ſo that we may be able to diſcerne things that differ one from another) and alſo in charity, that even to the end we may give our ſelves to good workes in deed, to the glory of God by Ieſus Chriſt.

[g] If righteouſneſſe be the tree, & good workes the fruits, then muſt the Papiſts needes be deceived, when they ſa that workes are the cauſe of righteouſneſſe.

[4] He preventeth the offence that might come by his perſecution, whereby divers tooke occaſion to diſgrac his Apoſtleſhip. To whom he anſwereth, that God hath bleſſed his impriſonment in ſuch wiſe, that he is by that meanes become more famous, and the dignitie of the Goſpel, by this occaſion is greatly enlarged, although not with like affection in all men, yet in deed and dare more frankly ſpeake the [k] word.

[h] For Chriſts ſake.

15 Some preach Chriſt even through envie and ſtrife, and ſome alſo of good will.

16 The one part preacheth Chriſt of contention and not [l] purely, ſuppoſing to add more affliction to my bands.

17 But the others of love, knowing that I am ſet for the defence of the Goſpel.

18 [5] What then? yet Chriſt is preached all manner of wayes, whether it be under a [m] pretence, or ſincerely: and I therein joy: yea, and will joy.

19 For I know that this ſhall turne to my ſalvation through your prayer, and by the helpe of the Spirit of Ieſus Chriſt, 20 [6] As I fervently looke for, and hope, that in nothing I ſhall be aſhamed, but that with all confidence, as alwayes, ſo now Chriſt ſhall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death.

21 For Chriſt is to me both in life, and in death advantage.

22 [7] And whether to live in the [n] fleſh were profitable for me, and what to chuſe I know not.

23 For I am diſtreſſed betweene both, deſiring to be looſed and to be with Chriſt, which is beſt of all.

24 Neverthelesſe, to abide in the fleſh, is more needfull for you.

25 And this am I ſure of, that I ſhall abide, and with you all continue, for your furtherance and joy of your faith,

26 That ye may more aboundantly rejoyce in IESUS CHRIST for me, by my comming to you againe.

27 [8] Onely let your converſation be, as it becommeth the Goſpel of Chriſt, that whether I come and ſee you, or elſe be abſent, I may heare of your matters that ye [o] continue in one Spirit, and in one minde, fighting together through the faith of the Goſpel.

28 [9] And in nothing feare your adverſaries, which is to them a token of perdition, and to you of ſalvation, and that of God.

29 [10] For unto you it is given for Chriſt, that not onely ye ſhould beleeve in him, but alſo ſuffer for his ſake, 30 [11] Having the ſame fight, which ye ſaw in me, and now heare to be in me.

The Goſpel is cal- le word, to ſet h the excellen- ſt.

but with a pure de, for otherwiſe r doctrine was .

He ſheweth by ing forth his n example, that end of our afflictions is true , and that ugh the vertue of the Spirit Chriſt, which giveth to them t aſke it.

Vnder a goodly w and ſhew: they made Chriſt ſtake for their ambition and envie.

We muſt continue even to the d, with great confidence, having nothing before our eyes but Chriſts glorie onely, whether we live or die.

7 An example of a true ſhepherd, who maketh more accompt how he may profit his ſheepe, then he doth of any commoditie of his own whatſoever.

To live in this mortall body.

Having ſet down thoſe things before in manner of a preface, he deſcendeth now to exhortations, warning them firſt of all, to conſent both in doctrine and minde, and afterward, that being thus knit together with thoſe common bands, they continue through the ſtrength of faith to beare all adverſitie in ſuch ſort, that they admit nothing unworthy the profeſſion of the Goſpel.

The word ſignifieth to ſtand faſt, and it is proper to wreſtlers, that ſtand faſt and ſhrinke not a foot.

9 We ought not to be diſcouraged but rather encouraged by the perſecutions, which the enemies of the Goſpel imagine and practiſe againſt us: ſeeing that they are certaine witneſſes, from God himſelfe, both of our ſalvation, and of the deſtruction of the wicked.

10 He proveth that his ſaying, that perſecution is a token of our ſalvation, becauſe it is a gift of God to ſuffer for Chriſt, which gift he beſtoweth upon his own, as he doeth the gift of faith. 11 Now he ſheweth for what purpoſe he made mention of his afflictions.

CHAP. II.

1 Hee exhorteth them above all things 3 to humilitie, 6 and that by the example of Chriſt. 19 Hee promiſeth to ſend Timotheus ſhortly unto them, 26 and excuſeth the long tarying of Epaphroditus.

IF [1] there be therefore any conſolation in [a] Chriſt, if any comfort of love, if any fellowſhip of the Spirit, if any [b] compaſsion and mercie,

2 Fulfill my joy, that ye be like minded, having the [c] ſame love, being of one accord, and of one judgement,

3 That nothing be done through contention or vaine glory, but that in meekeneſſe of minde every man eſteeme other better then himſelfe.

4 Looke not every man on his own things, but every man alſo on the things of other men.

5 [2] Let the ſame minde be in you that was even in Chriſt Jeſus,

6 Who being in the [d] forme of God, [e] thought it no robbery to be [f] equall with God:

7 But he made himſelfe of [g] no reputation, and tooke on him the [h] forme of a ſervant, and was made like unto men, and was found in ſhape as a man.

8 He humbled himſelfe, and became obedient unto the death, even the death of the croſſe.

9 [3] Wherefore God hath alſo highly exalted him, and given him a [i] Name above every name,

10 That at the Name of Jeſus ſhould [k] every knee bow, both of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth,

11 And that [l] every tongue ſhould confeſſe that Jeſus Chriſt is the Lord, unto the glory of God the Father.

12 [4] Wherefore my beloved, as ye have alwayes obeyed me, not as in my preſence only, but now much more in mine abſence, ſo [m] make an end of your own ſalvation with feare and trembling.

13 [5] For it is God which worketh in you, both [n] the will and the deed, even of his good pleaſure.

14 [6] Doe all things without * murmuring and reaſonings,

15 [7] That ye may be blameleſſe, and pure, and the ſons of God without rebuke in the mids of a naughty and crooked nation, among whom ye ſhine as * lights in the world,

16 Holding forth the [o] word of life, [8] that I may rejoyce in the day of Chriſt, that I have not runne in vaine, neither have laboured in vaine.

17 Yea, and though I be offered up upon the [p] ſacrifice, and ſervice of your faith, I am glad, and rejoyce with you all.

18 For the ſame cauſe alſo be ye glad, and rejoyce with me.

1 A moſt earneſt requeſt to remove all thoſe things, whereby that great and ſpeciall conſent and agreement is commonly broken, to wit, contention and pride, whereby it commeth to paſſe that they ſeparate themſelves one from another. a Any Chriſtian comfort. b If any feeling of inward love.

c Like love.

2 He ſetteth before them a moſt perfit example of all modeſtie and ſweete converſation, Chriſt Ieſus, whom we ought to follow with all our might: who abaſed himſelfe ſo farre for our ſakes, although he be above all, that he tooke upon him the forme of a ſervant, to wit, our fleſh, wilingly ſubject to all infirmities, even to the death of the croſſe.

d Such as God himſelfe is, and therefore God, for there is none in all parts like to God, but God himſelfe.

e Chriſt that glorious and everlaſting God knew that he might rightfully and lawfully not appeare in the baſe fleſh of man, but remaine with Majeſtie meete for God: yet he choſe rather to debaſe himſelfe.

f If the Sonne be equall with the Father, then is there of neceſſitie an equalitie, which Arius that Heretike denieth: and if the Son be compared to the Father, then is there a diſtinction of perſons, which Sabellius that Heretike denieth.

g He brought himſelfe from all things, as it were to nothing.

h By taking our manhood upon him.

3 He ſheweth the moſt glorious event of Chriſts ſubmiſſion, to teach us that modeſtie is the true way to true praiſe and glory.

i Dignitie and renoune, and the matter with it.

k All creatures ſhall at length be ſubiect to Chriſt.

4 The concluſion: We muſt go on to ſalvation with humilitie and ſubmiſſion by the way of our vocation.

m He is ſaid to make an end of his ſalvation, which runneth in the race of righteouſneſſe.

5 A moſt ſure and grounded argument againſt prid, for that we have nothing in us praiſe worthy, but it commeth of the free gift of God, and is without us, for we have no abilitie or power, ſo much as to will well, (much leſſe to do well) but only of the free mercy of God.

n Why then? we are not ſtocks, but yet we doe not will well of nature, but only becauſe God hath made of our naughty will a good will. 6 He deſcribeth modeſtie by the contrary effects of pride, teaching us, that it is farre both from all malicious and cloſe or inward hatred, and alſo from open contentions and brawlings. * 1 Pet. 4. 9. 7 To be ſhort, he requireth a life without fault, and pure, that being lightned with the word of God, they may ſhine in the darkeneſſe of this world. * Matt. 5. 14. o The Goſpel is called the word of life, becauſe of the effects which it worketh. 8 Againe he pricketh them forward, ſetting before them his true Apoſtolike care that he had of them: comforting them moreover, to the end they ſhould not be ſorie for the greatneſſe of his afflictions, no not although he ſhould die to make perfit their oblation with his blood, as it were, with a drinke offering. p As if he ſaid, I brought you Philippians to Chriſt, my deſire is that you preſent your ſelves a lively ſacrifice to him, and then ſhall it not grieve me to be offered up as a drinke offering, to accompliſh this your ſpirituall offering.

19 [9] And I truſt in the Lord Ieſus, to ſend * Timotheus ſhortly unto you, that I alſo may be of [q] good comfort, when I know your ſtate.

20 For I have no man like minded, who will faithfully care for your matters.

21 * For [r] all ſeek their own, and not that which is Jeſus Chriſts.

22 But ye know the proofe of him, that as a ſonne with the father, he hath ſerved with me in the Goſpel:

23 Him therefore I hope to ſend, aſſoone as I know how it will goe with me,

24 And I truſt in the Lord, that I alſo my ſelfe ſhall come ſhortly.

25 But I ſuppoſed it neceſſary to ſend my brother Epaphroditus unto you, my companion in labour, and fellow ſouldier, even your meſſenger, and he that miniſtred unto me ſuch things as I wanted.

26 For he longed after all you, and was full of heavineſſe, becauſe ye had heard that he had been ſick.

27 And no doubt he was ſick, very neere unto death: but God had mercy on him, and not on him onely, but on me alſo, leſt I ſhould have ſorrow upon ſorrow:

28 I ſent him therefore the more diligently, that when ye ſhould ſee him again, ye might rejoyce, and I might be the leſſe ſorrowfull.

29 Receive him therefore in the Lord with all gladneſſe, and make much of ſuch:

30 Becauſe that for the [ſ] worke of Chriſt he was neere unto death, and regarded not his life, to fulfill that ſervice which was lacking on your part toward me.

[9] Moreover, he confirmeth their mindes both by ſending back Epaphroditus unto them, whoſe fidelitie towards them, and great paines in helping him, he commendeth: and alſo promiſing to ſend Timothy ſhortly unto them, by whoſe preſence they ſhall receive great commoditie, and hoping alſo to come himſelfe ſhortly unto them, if God will.

Chap. III.

2 He refuteth the vaine boaſtings of the falſe apoſtles, 7 and ſetteth Chriſt againſt them. 10 Hee ſetteth out the force and nature of faith, 15 that laying all things aſide, they may be partakers of the croſſe of Chriſt, 18 the enemies whereof he noteth out.

Moreover, [1] my brethren, rejoyce in the Lord. [2] It grieveth me not to write the [a] ſame things to you, and for you it is a ſure thing.

2 Beware of dogges: beware of evill workers: beware of the [b] conciſion.

3 [3] For we are the circumciſion which worſhip God in the Spirit, and rejoyce in Chriſt Jeſus, and have no confidence [c] in the fleſh:

4 [4] Though I might alſo have confidence in the fleſh. If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might truſt in the fleſh, much more I,

5 Circumciſed the eight day, of the kinred of Iſrael, of the tribe of Benjamin: * an Ebrew of the Ebrewes, * by the Law a Phariſe.

6 Concerning zeale, I perſecuted the Church: touching the righteouſneſſe which is in the Law, I was unrebukeable.

7 But the things that were [d] vantage unto me, the ſame I counted loſſe for Chriſts ſake:

8 Yea, doubtleſſe I think [e] all things but loſſe for the excellent knowledge ſake of Chriſt Jeſus my Lord, for whom I have counted all things loſſe, and do judge them to be dung, that I might [f] winne Chriſt,

9 And might be found in [g] him, that is, [h] not having mine owne righteouſneſſe, which is of the Law, but that which is through the faith of Chriſt, even the righteouſneſſe which is of God through faith,

10 [5] That I may [i] know him, and the vertue of his reſurrection, and the [6] fellowſhip of his afflictions, and be made conformable unto his death,

11 If by any meanes I might attaine unto the [k] reſurrection of the dead:

12 Not as though I had already attained to it, either were already perfect: but I follow, if that I may comprehend that for whoſe ſake alſo I am [l] comprehended of Chriſt Jeſus.

13 Brethren, I count not my ſelfe, that I have attained to it, but one thing, I doe: I forget that which is behind, and endevour my ſelfe unto that which is before,

14 And follow hard toward the marke, for the price of the high calling of God in Chriſt Jeſus.

15 [7] Let us therefore as many as be [m] perfect, be thus minded: and if ye be otherwiſe minded, God ſhall reveale even the ſame unto you.

16 Nevertheleſſe, in that whereunto we are come, Let us proceed by one rule, that we may minde one thing.

17 Brethren, be followers of me, and looke on them, which walke ſo, as ye have us for an enſample.

18 [8] * For many walke, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you weeping, that they are the enemies of the Croſſe of Chriſt:

19 Whoſe [n] end is damnation, whoſe god is their bellie, and whoſe [o] glory is to their ſhame, which mind earthly things.

[1] A concluſion of thoſe things which have been before ſaid, to wit, that they go forward chearfully in the Lord.

[2] A preface to the next admonition that followeth, to take good heed & beware of falſe apoſtles, which joyne circumciſion with Chriſt, (that is to ſay, juſtification by works, with free juſtification by faith) and beat into mens heads the ceremonies which are aboliſhed, for true exerciſes of godlineſſe and charitie. And he calleth them dogges, as prophane barkers, and evill workemen, becauſe they neglected true works, and did not teach the true uſe of them. To be ſhort, hee calleth them Conciſion, becauſe in urging Circumciſion, they cut off themſelves and others from the Church.

[a] Which you have oftentimes heard of me. [b] He alludeth to circumciſion, of the name whereof whiles they boaſted, they cut aſunder the Church. [3] He ſheweth that we ought to uſe true circumciſion, to wit, the circumciſion of the heart, that cutting off all wicked affections by the vertue of Chriſt, we may ſerve God in puritie of life. [c] In outward things which pertaine nothing to the ſoule. [4] He doubteth not to preferre himſelfe even according to the fleſh, before thoſe perverſe hot urgers of the Law, that all men may know, that he doeth with good judgement of minde, lightly eſteeme of all thoſe outward things: forſomuch as he lacketh nothing, which hath Chriſt, nay, the confidence of our works cannot ſtand with the free juſtification in Chriſt by faith.

Chap. IV.

1 From particular exhortations, 4 he cometh to generall. 10 He ſaith that he took ſuch joy in their readines to liberality, 12 that he will patiently beare the want.

Therefore, [1] my brethren, beloved and longed for, my joy and my [a] crown, ſo continue in the [b] Lord, ye beloved.

2 [2] I pray Evodias, and beſeech Syntyche, that they be of one accord in the Lord.

3 Yea, and I beſeech thee, faithfull yokefellow, help thoſe women, which laboured with me in the Goſpel, with Clement alſo, and with other my fellow labourers, whoſe names are in the * [c] book of life.

4 [3] Rejoyce in the [d] Lord alway, again I ſay, Rejoyce.

5 [4] Let your [e] patient minde be known unto all men. [5] The Lord is at hand.

6 [6] Be nothing carefull, but in all things let your requeſts be ſhewed unto God in prayer, and ſupplication with [f] giving of thanks.

7 And the [g] peace of God which paſſeth all underſtanding, ſhall preſerve your [h] hearts and minds in Chriſt Jeſus.

8 [7] Furthermore, brethren, whatſoever things are true, whatſoever things [i] are honeſt, whatſoever things are juſt, whatſoever things are pure, whatſoever things are worthy love, whatſoever things are of good report, if there be any vertue, or if there be any praiſe, think of theſe things,

9 Which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and ſeen in me: thoſe things do, and the Goſpel of peace ſhall be with you.

10 [8] Now I rejoyce alſo in the Lord greatly, that now at the laſt your care for me ſpringeth afreſh, wherein notwithſtanding ye were carefull, but yet lacked opportunitie.

11 I ſpeake not becauſe of [k] want: for I have learned in whatſoever ſtate I am, therwith to be content.

12 And I can be [l] abaſed, & I can abound: every where in all things I am [m] inſtructed, both to be full, and to be hungry, and to abound, and to have want.

13 I am able to doe all things through the help of Chriſt, which ſtrengtheneth me.

14 Notwithſtanding yee have well done, that ye did communicate to mine affliction:

15 [9] And ye Philippians know alſo that in the [n] beginning of the Goſpel, when I departed from Macedonia, no Church communicated with me, concerning the matter of giving and receiving, but ye onely.

16 For even when I was in Theſſalonica, ye ſent once, and afterward again for my neceſſitie:

17 [10] Not that I deſire a gift: but I deſire the fruit which may further your reckoning:

18 Now I have received all, and have plentie: I was even filled, after that I had received of Epaphroditus that which came from you, an [o] odour that ſmelleth ſweet, a ſacrifice acceptable and pleaſant to God.

19 And my God ſhall fulfill all your neceſſities, through his riches, with glory in Jeſus Chriſt.

20 Unto God even our Father be praiſe for evermore, Amen.

21 Salute all the Saints in Chriſt Jeſus. The brethren which are with me, greet you.

22 All the Saints ſalute you, and moſt of all they which are of [p] Ceſars houſhold.

23 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all, Amen.

[3] He addeth particular exhortations: the firſt is, that the joy of the Philippians be not hindred by any afflictions that the wicked imagine and work againſt them.

[d] So is the joy of the world diſtinguiſhed from our ioy.

[4] The ſecond is, that taking all things in good part, they behave themſelves moderately with all men.

[e] Your quiet and ſetled minde.

[5] The taking away of an objection: We muſt not be diſquieted through impatience, ſeeing that God is at hand to give us remedy in time againſt all our miſeries. [6] The third is, that we be not too carefull for any thing, but with ſure confidence give God thanks, and crave of him whatſoever we have need of, that with a quiet conſcience we may wholly & with all our hearts ſubmit our ſelves to him. [f] So David began very oft with teares, but ended with thankſgiving. [g] That great quietneſſe of minde, which God onely giveth in Chriſt. [h] He divideth the minde into the heart, that is, into that part which is the ſeat of the will and affections, and into the higher part whereby we underſtand and reaſon of matters. [7] A generall concluſion, that as they have bin taught both in word and example, ſo they frame their lives to the rule of all holineſſe and righteouſneſſe.

THE EPISTLE OF PAVL TO THE COLOSSIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 After the ſalutation, 4 he praiſeth them the more, to make them attentive unto him. 7 He reporteth the teſtimony of the doctrine which they heard of Epaphras. 13 He magnifieth Gods grace towards them, 20 and ſheweth that all the parts of our ſalvation conſiſt in Chriſt alone.

PAVL an Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by the [a] will of God, and Timotheus our brother,

2 To them which are at [b] Coloſſe, Saints, and faithfull brethren in Chriſt: Grace be with you, & peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 [1] We give thanks to God even the [c] Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, alway praying for you:

4 Since we heard of your faith in Chriſt Jeſus, and of your love toward all Saints,

5 For the [d] hopes ſake, which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof you have heard before by the word of truth, which is the Goſpel,

6 Which is come unto you, even as it is unto all the world, and is faithfull, as it is alſo among you, from the day that ye heard and truly knew the grace of God,

7 As ye alſo learned of Epaphras our deare fellow ſervant, which is for you a faithfull miniſter of Chriſt:

8 [2] Who hath alſo declared unto us your love in the [e] Spirit.

9 For this cauſe we alſo, ſince the day we heard of it, ceaſe not to pray for you, and to deſire that ye might be fulfilled with knowledge of [f] his will, in all wiſdome, and ſpirituall underſtanding,

10 That ye might walk worthy of the Lord, and pleaſe him in all things, being fruitfull in all good works, and increaſing in the knowledge of God,

11 [3] Strengthened with all might through his glorious power, unto all patience, and long ſuffering with [g] joyfulneſſe,

12 [4] Giving thanks unto the [5] Father which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in [h] light:

13 Who hath delivered us from the power of darkneſſe, and hath tranſlated us into the kingdome * of his deare Sonne,

14 [6] In whom we have redemption through his blood, that is, the forgiveneſſe of ſinnes, 15 [7] Who is the * image of the inviſible God, [i] the firſt begotten of every creature.

16 * For by him were all things created, which are in heaven, and which are in earth, things viſible and inviſible: whether they be [k] Throans, or Dominions, or Principalities, or Powers, all things were created by him, and for him.

17 And he is before all things, and in him all things conſiſt.

18 [8] And he is the head of the body of the Church: he is the beginning, * and the [l] firſt begotten of the dead, that in all things he might have the preeminence.

19 * For it pleaſed the Father, that in him ſhould [m] all fulneſſe dwell.

20 [9] And through peace made by that blood of that his croſſe, to reconcile to himſelf through him, through him, I ſay, [n] all things, both which are in earth, and which are in heaven.

21 [10] And you which were in times paſt ſtrangers and enemies, becauſe your minds were ſet in evill works, hath [o] he now alſo reconciled,

22 In that body of his [p] fleſh through death, to make you holy, and unblameable, and without fault in his ſight,

23 [11] If ye continue grounded and ſtabliſhed in the faith, and be not moved away from the hope of the Goſpel, whereof ye have heard, and which hath been preached to every [q] creature which is under heaven, [12] whereof I Paul am a miniſter.

---

[a] By the free bountifulneſſe of God.

[b] Coloſſe is ſituated in Phrygia, not far from Hierapolis and Laodicea, on that ſide that they bend toward Lycia and Pamphylia.

[1] He commendeth the doctrine ÿ was delivered thẽ by Epaphras, and their readineſſe in receiving it.

[c] We cannot otherwiſe conſider of God to our ſalvation, but as he is Chriſts Father, in whom we are adopted.

[d] For the glory that is hoped for.

[2] He declareth his good will towards them, telling them that they muſt not ſtill remain at one ſtay, but go on further both in the knowledge of the Goſpel, and alſo in the true uſe of it.

[e] Your ſpirituall love, or your love which cometh from the Spirit.

[f] Gods will.

[3] The gift of continuance is not of us, but it proceedeth from the vertue of God, which he doth freely give us.

[g] It muſt not be unwilling, and as it were drawn out of us by force, but proceed from a merry and ioyfull minde.

[4] Having ended the preface, he goeth to the matter it ſelf, that is to ſay, to an excellent deſcriptiõ (although it be but ſhort) of whoſe Chriſtianity, which is fitly divided into three treatiſes: for firſt of all, he expoundeth the true doctrine according to the order of the cauſes, beginning from this verſe to the 21. And from thence he beginneth to apply the ſame to the Coloſſians, with divers exhortations to the ſixt verſe of the ſecond Chapter. And laſt of all, in the third place, even to the third Chapter, he refuteth the corruptions of true doctrine. [5] The efficient cauſe of our ſalvation is the onely mercy of God the Father, who maketh us meet to be partakers of eternall life, delivering us from the darkneſſe wherein we were born, and bringing us to the light of the knowledge of the glory of his Sonne.

[h] In that glor and heavenly k dome.

* Matth. 3. 17. and 17. 5. 2 Pet. 1. 17.

[6] The matter ſelf of our ſalva on, is Chriſt Son of God, w hath obtained miſſion of ſinn for vs, by ÿ off ing up of himſe

[7] A lively deſc ption of the perſ of Chriſt, where we underſtand, t in him onely G ſheweth himſelf be ſeen: who w begotten of t Father before a thing was mad that is, from eve laſting, by who alſo all things t are made, we made without a exception, by whom alſo they c conſiſt, & who glory they ſerve.

* Hebr. 1. 3.

[i] Begotten before a thing was made: a therefore the eve laſting Sonne of t everlaſting Fathe

* Iohn 1. 3.

[k] He ſetteth forth t Angels with glori names, that by t compariſon of mo excellent ſpirits, w may underſtand ho farre paſſing the ex cellencie of Chriſt i in whom onely w have to content o ſelves, and let go a Angels.

[8] Having gloriouſly declared the excellent digniti of the perſon o Chriſt, he deſcribeth his office and function, to wit that he is that ſame to the Church, tha the head is to th body, that is to ſay, the prince and governour of it, and the very begining of true life, as who riſing firſt from death is the authour of eternall life, ſo that he i above all, in whom onely there is moſt plentifull abundance of all good things, which i powred out upon the Church.

* Revel. 1. 5. 1 Cor. 15. 20.

[l] Who ſo roſe again that he ſhould di no more, and who raiſeth other from death to life by his power.

* Iohn 1. 14. Chap. 2. 9

[m] Moſt plentifull abundance of all things pertaining to God.

[9] Now he teacheth how Chriſt executed that office which his Father enjoyned him, to wit, by ſuffering the death of the Croſſe (which was joyned with the curſe of God) according to his decree, that by this ſacrifice he might reconcile to his Father all men, aſwell them which beleeved in him to come, and were already under this hope gathered into heaven, as them which ſhould upon the earth beleeve in him afterward. And thus is juſtification deſcribed of the Apoſtle which is one and the chiefeſt part of the benefit of Chriſt.

[n] The whole Church.

[10] Sanctification is another work of God in us by Chriſt, in that that he reſtored us (which hated God extremely, and were wholly and willingly given to ſinne) to his gracious favour in ſuch ſort, that he therewithall purifieth us with his holy Spirit, and conſecrateth us to righteouſneſſe.

[o] The Sonne.

[p] In that fleſhly body, to give us to underſtand that his body was not a fantaſticall body, but a true body.

[11] The ſecond treatiſe of this part of the Epiſtle, wherein he exhorteth the Coloſſians not to ſuffer themſelves by any meanes to be moved from this doctrine, ſhewing and declaring that there is no where any other true Goſpel.

[q] To all men: whereby we learn that the Goſpel was not ſhut up within the corners of Iudea alone.

[12] He purchaſeth authority to this doctrine by his Apoſtleſhip, and taketh a moſt ſure proof thereof, of his afflictions, which he ſuffereth for Chriſt his Name to inſtruct the Churches with theſe examples of patience.

24 Now rejoyce I in my ſufferings for [r]you, and fulfill the [s] reſt of the afflictions of Chriſt in my fleſh, for his bodies ſake, which is the Church,

25 [13] Whereof I am a miniſter, according to the diſpenſation of God, which is given me unto you-ward, to fulfill the word of God,

26 * Which is the myſtery hid ſince the world began, and from all ages, but now is made manifeſt unto his [t] Saints,

27 To whom God[v] would make known what is the riches of his glorious myſterie among the Gentiles, which riches is Chriſt in you, the hope of glory:

28 [14] Whom we preach, admoniſhing every man, and teaching every man in [x] all wiſdome, that we may preſent every man perfect in Chriſt Jeſus, 29 Whereunto I alſo labour and ſtrive, according to his working which worketh in me mightily.

[r] For your profit and commoditie.

[s] The afflictions of the Church are ſaid to be Chriſts afflictions, by reaſon of that fellowſhip and knitting together that the body and the head have, the one with the other, not that there is any more need to have the Church redeemed, but that Chriſt ſheweth his power in the daily weakneſſe of his, and that for the comfort of the whole body.

13 He bringeth another proof of his Apoſtleſhip, to wit, that God is the authour of it, by whō alſo he was appointed peculiarly Apoſtle of the Gentiles, to the end that by this meanes, that ſame might be fulfilled by him, which the Prophets foretold of the calling of the Gentiles.

* Rom. 16.25. Epheſ. 3.9. 2 Tim. 1. 10. Titus 1. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 20.

[t] Whom he choſe to ſanctifie unto himſelf in Chriſt: moreover he ſaith, that the myſterie of our redemption was hidden ſince the world began, except it were revealed unto a few, who alſo were taught it extraordinarily. [v] Thus Paul brideleth the curioſity of men. 14 He proteſteth that he doth faithfully execute his Apoſtleſhip in every place, bringing men unto Chriſt onely through the Lords plentifull bleſſing of his labours. [x] Perfect and ſound wiſdome, which is perfect in itſelf, and ſhall in the end make them perfect that follow it.

CHAP. II.

He condemneth, as vain, whatſoever is without Chriſt, 11 entreating ſpecially of circumciſion, 16 of abſtinence from meats, 18 and of worſhipping of Angels. 20 That we are delivered from the traditions of the law through Chriſt.

FOr I [1] would ye knew what great ſighing I have for your ſakes, and for them of Laodicea, and for as many as have not ſeen my [a] perſon in the fleſh,

2 [2] That [b] their hearts might be comforted, and they knit together in love, and in all riches of the [c] full aſſurance of underſtanding, to know the myſtery of God, even the Father, and of Chriſt:

3 In whom are hid all the treaſures of [d] wiſdome and knowledge.

4 [3] And this I ſay, leſt any man ſhould beguile you with [e] entiſing words:

5 * For though I be abſent in the fleſh, yet am I with you in the ſpirit, rejoycing and beholding your [f]order, and your [g] ſtedfaſt faith in Chriſt.

6 As ye have therefore [h] received Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, ſo walk in him,

7 Rooted and built in him, and ſtabliſhed in the faith, as ye have bin taught, abounding therein with thankſgiving.

8 [4] Beware leſt there be any man that [i] ſpoile you through Philoſophy, and vain deceit, [5] through the traditions of men, [6] according to the [k] rudiments of the world, [7] and not after Chriſt.

1 The taking away of an objection. In that that he viſited not the Coloſſians, nor the Laodiceans, he did it not of any negligence, but is ſo much the more carefull for them.

[a] Me preſent in body.

2 He concludeth ſhortly the ſum of the former doctrin to wit, that the whole ſum of true wiſdome, and moſt ſecret knowledge of God, conſiſteth in Chriſt onely, & that this is the uſe of it touching men, that they being knit together in love, reſt themſelves happily in the knowledge of ſo great a goodneſſe, untill they come fully to enjoy it.

[b] Whom he never ſaw

[c] Of that underſtanding, which bringeth forth a certain and undoubted perſwaſion in our minds.

[d] There is no true wiſdome without Chriſt.

3 A paſſing over to the treatiſe following, againſt the corruptions of Chriſtianity.

[e] With a framed kinde of talk made to perſwade.

* 1.*Cor.*5.3.

[f] The manner of your Eccleſiaſticall diſcipline. [g] Doctrine. [h] So then Chriſt hangeth not upon mens traditions. 4 He bringeth all corruptions to three kindes. The firſt is, that which ariſeth of vain and curious ſpeculations, and yet beareth a ſhew of a certain ſubtill wiſdome. [i] This is a word of warre, and it is as much as to drive or cary away a ſpoyle or booty. 5 The ſecond, which is manifeſtly ſuperſtitious and vain, and ſtandeth onely upon cuſtome and fained inſpirations. 6 The third kind was of them which joyned the rudiments of the world (that is to ſay, the ceremonies of the law) with the Goſpel. [k] Principles and rules, wherewith God ruled his Church, as it were under a ſchoolemaſter. 7 A generall confutation of all corruption is this, that that muſt needs be a falſe religion, which addeth any thing to Chriſt.

9 [8] For in [l]him [m] dwelleth [n]all the fulneſſe of the Godhead [o]bodily.

10 And ye are compleat in him, which is the head of all principality and power.

11 [9] In whom alſo ye are circumciſed with *circumciſion made without hands, by putting off the [p] ſinfull body of the fleſh, through the circumciſion of Chriſt, 12 [10] In that ye are * [q] buried with [r] him through baptiſme, [11] in whom ye are alſo raiſed up together through the faith of the [ſ] operation of God, which raiſed him from the dead.

13 * [12] And you which were dead in ſins, [13] and in the uncircumciſion of your fleſh, hath he quickned together with him, forgiving you all your treſpaſſes.

14 [14] And putting out the * [t] hand writing of ordinances that was againſt us, which was contrary to us, he even took it out of the way, and faſtened it upon the croſſe,

15 And hath ſpoyled the [v]Principalities, and Powers, and hath [x] made a ſhew of them openly, and hath triumphed over them in the [y] ſame croſſe.

16 [15] Let no man therefore condemn you in meat or drink, or in reſpect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the Sabbath dayes, 17 Which are but a ſhadow of things to come: but the [z] body is in Chriſt.

18 [16] Let no man at his pleaſure beare rule over you by [a] humbleneſſe of minde, and worſhipping of Angels, [17] advancing himſelf in thoſe things which he neuer ſaw, [18] [b] raſhly puft up with his fleſhly minde, 19 [19] And holdeth not the [c] head, whereof all the body furniſhed and knit together by joynts, and bands, increaſeth with the increaſing of [d] God.

8 A reaſon: Becauſe onely Chriſt, God and man, is moſt perfect, and paſſeth farre above all things, ſo that whoſoever hath him, may require nothing more.

[m] This word (dwelleth) noteth out unto us the joyning together of thoſe natures, ſo that of God and Man is one Chriſt.

[n] Theſe words ſet down moſt perfect Godhead to be in Chriſt.

[o] The knitting together of God and man is ſubſtantiall and eſſentiall.

9 Now he dealeth preciſely againſt the third kinde, ỳ is to ſay, againſt them which urged the Jewiſh religion: and firſt of all, he denyeth that we have need of the circumciſion of the fleſh, ſeeing that without it, we are circumciſed within by the vertue of Chriſt.

* Rom. 2. 29.

[p] Theſe many words are uſed to ſhew what the old man is, whom Paul in other places calleth the body of ſinne.

10 The taking away of an objection: We need not ſo much as the externall ſigne which our fathers had, ſeeing that our Baptiſme is a moſt effectual pleg and witneſſe, of ỳ inward reſtoring and renewing.

* Rom. 6. 4. Epheſ. 1. 19.

[q] Look Rom. 6 4.

[r] So then all the force of the matter cometh not from the very deed done, that is to ſay, it is not the dipping of us into the water by a Miniſter, that maketh us to be buried with Chriſt, as the Papiſts ſay, that even for the very acts ſake, we become verely Chriſtians, but it cometh from the vertue of Chriſt, for the Apoſtle addeth the reſurrection of Chriſt, and faith. 11 One end of Baptiſme is the death and buriall of the old man, and that by the mighty power of God onely, whoſe vertue we lay hold on by faith, in the death and reſurrection of Chriſt. [ſ] Through faith which cometh from God. * Epheſ. 2. 1. 12 Another end of Baptiſme is, that we which were dead in ſinne, might obtain free remiſſion of ſinnes and eternall life; through faith in Chriſt who died for us. 13 A new argument which lieth in theſe few words, and it is thus: Uncircumciſion was no hinderance to you, why you being juſtified in Chriſt ſhould not obtain life, therefore you need not circumciſion to the attainment of ſalvation. 14 He ſpeaketh now more generally againſt the whole ſervice of the law, and ſheweth by two reaſons, that it is aboliſhed. Firſt, to what purpoſe ſhould he that hath obtained remiſſion of all his ſinnes in Chriſt, require thoſe helps of the Law? Secondly, becauſe, that if a man do rightly conſider thoſe rites, he ſhall finde that they were ſo many teſtimonies of our guiltineſſe, whereby we manifeſtly witneſſed as it were by by our own handwritings, that we deſerved damnation. Therefore did Chriſt put out that handwriting by his comming, and faſtening it to the Croſſe, triumphed over all our enemies, were they never ſo mighty. Therefore to what end and purpoſe ſhould we now uſe thoſe ceremonies, as though we were ſtill guilty of ſinne, and ſubject to the tyranny of our enemies? * Epheſians 2. 15. [t] Aboliſhing the rites and ceremonies. [v] Satan and his Angels. [x] As a conquerour made he a ſhew of thoſe captives, and put them to ſhame. [y] The croſſe was as a chariot of triumph. No conquerour could have triumphed ſo glorioully in his chariot, as Chriſt did upon the croſſe. 15 The concluſion: wherein alſo he nameth certain kindes, as the difference of daies, and meates, and proveth by a new argument, that we are not bound unto them: to wit, becauſe thoſe things were ſhadows of Chriſt to come, but we poſſeſſe him now exhibited unto us. [z] The body as a thing of ſubſtance and pith, he ſetteth againſt ſhadows. 16 He diſputeth againſt the firſt kinde of corruptions, and ſetteth down the worſhipping of Angels for an example: which kinde of falſe religion he confuteth, firſt, this way: becauſe that they which bring in ſuch a worſhip, attribute that unto themſelves which is proper onely to God, to wit, authoritie to binde mens conſciences with religion, although they ſeem to bring in theſe words by humbleneſſe of minde. [a] By fooliſh humbleneſſe of minde: for otherwiſe humbleneſſe is a vertue. For theſe Angel-worſhippers blamed ſuch of pride as would go ſtraight to God, and uſe no other under meanes beſide Chriſt. 17 Secondly, becauſe they raſhly thruſt upon them for oracles thoſe things which they neither ſaw nor heard, but deviſed of themſelves. 18 Thirdly, becauſe theſe things have no other ground whereupon they are built, but onely the opinion of men, which pleaſe themſelves without all meaſure in their own devices. [b] Without reaſon. 19 The fourth argument, which is of great weight: becauſe they ſpoile Chriſt of his dignity, who onely is ſufficient both to nouriſh and alſo to increaſe his whole body. [c] Chriſt. [d] With the increaſing which cometh from God.

20 [20]

20 [20] Wherefore if ye be dead with Chriſt from the ordinances of the world, why, [e] as though ye lived in the world, are ye burdened with traditions?

21 [21] As touch not, taſt not, handle not,

22 [22] Which all periſh with the uſing, [23] and are after the commandements and doctrines of men,

23 [24] VVhich things have indeed a ſhew of [f] wiſdome, in [g] voluntary religion and humbleneſſe of minde, and in [h] not ſparing the body, which are things of no value, ſith they pertain to the [i] filling of the fleſh.

20 Now laſt of all, he fighteth againſt the ſecond kinde of corruptions, ỳ is to ſay, againſt meer ſuperſtitions, invented of men, which partly deceive the ſimplicity of ſome with their craftineſſe, and partly with very fooliſh ſuperſtitions, and to be laughed at: as whẽ godlineſſe, remiſſion of ſinnes, or any ſuch like vertue, is put in ſome certain kinde of meate, and ſuch like things, which the inventors of ſuch rites themſelves underſtand not, becauſe indeed it is not. And he uſeth an argument taken of compariſon. If by the death of Chriſt who eſtabliſhed a new covenant with his blood, you be delivered from thoſe externall rites wherewith it pleaſed the Lord to prepare the world, as it were by certain rudiments, to that full knowledge of true religion, why would ye be burdened with traditions, I wot not what, as though ye were citizens of this world, that is to ſay, as though ye depended upon this life, and earthly things? Now this is the cauſe why before verſe 8. he followed another order then he doth in the confutation: becauſe he ſheweth there, by what degrees falſe religions came into the world, to wit, beginning firſt by curious ſpeculations of the wiſe, after which in proceſſe of time ſucceeded groſſe ſuperſtition, againſt which miſchiefs, the Lord ſet at length that ſervice of the Law, which ſome abuſed in like ſort: but in the confutation he began with the aboliſhing of the Law ſervice, that he might ſhew by compariſon, that thoſe falſe ſervices ought much more to be taken away. e As though your felicity ſtood in theſe earthly things, and the kingdome of God were not rather ſpirituall. 21 An imitation in the perſon of theſe ſuperſtitious men, rightly expreſſing their nature and uſe of ſpeech. 22 Another argument: The ſpirituall and inward kingdome of God cannot conſiſt in theſe outward things, and ſuch as periſh with the uſing. 23 The third argument: Becauſe God is not the authour of theſe traditions, and therefore they did not binde the conſciences. 24 The taking away of an objection. Theſe things have a goodly ſhew, becauſe men by this meanes, ſeem to worſhip God with a good minde, and humble themſelves, and neglect the body, which the moſt part of men curiouſly pamper up and cheriſh: but yet notwithſtanding the things themſelves are of no value, ſorſomuch as they pertain not to the things that are ſpirituall and everlaſting, but to the nouriſhment of the fleſh. f Which ſeem indeed to be ſome exquiſite thing, and ſo wiſe devices, as though they came from heaven. g Hence ſprang the works of ſupererogation, as the Papiſts term them, that is to ſay, needleſſe works, as though men performed more then is commanded them: which was the beginning and the very ground, whereon Monks merits were brought in. h A lively deſcription of Monkery. i Seeing they ſtand in meat and drink, wherein the kingdome of God doth not ſtand.

C H A P. III.

1 Againſt earthly exerciſes, which the falſe apoſtles urged, 2 he ſetteth heavenly: 5 And beginneth with the mortifying of the fleſh, 8 whence he draweth partitular exhortations, 18 and particular duties which depend on each mans calling.

IF [1] ye then [2] be [a] riſen with Chriſt, [3] ſeek thoſe things which are above, where Chriſt ſitteth at the right hand of God.

2 Set your affections on things which are above, and not on things which are on the [b] earth.

3 [4] For ye are dead, [5] and your life is hid with Chriſt in God.

4 When Chriſt which is our life ſhall appeare, then ſhall ye alſo appeare with him in glory.

5 [6] * Mortifie therefore your [c] members which are on the earth, fornication, uncleanneſſe, the inordinate affection, evill concupiſcence, and covetouſneſſe which is idolatrie:

6 For the which things ſake the wrath of God [d] cometh on the children of diſobedience.

7 Wherein ye alſo walked once, when ye lived in them.

8 But now put ye away even all theſe things, wrath, anger, maliciousnes, curſed ſpeaking, filthy ſpeaking, out of your mouth.

9 Lie not one to another, [7] ſeeing that ye have put off the old man with his works,

10 And have put on the new, [8] which is renewed in [e] knowledge after the image of him that created him,

11 [9] Where is neither Grecian nor Jew, circumciſion nor uncircumciſion, Barbarian, Scythian, bond, free: But Chriſt is all, and in all things.

12 Now therefore as the elect of God holy and beloved, [f] put on the [g] bowels of mercies, kindneſſe, humbleneſſe of minde, meekneſſe, long ſuffering:

13 Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrell to another: even as Chriſt forgave, even ſo do ye.

14 And above all theſe things put on love, which is the [h] bond of perfectneſſe.

15 And let the peace of God [i] rule in your hearts, to the which ye are called in [k] one body, and be ye thankfull.

16 Let the word of Chriſt dwell in you plenteouſly in all wiſdome, teaching and admoniſhing your own ſelves, in [l] Pſalmes, and Hymnes, and ſpirituall ſongs, ſinging with a grace in your hearts to the Lord.

17 * And whatſoever ye ſhall do, in word or deed, do all in the [m] name of the Lord Jeſus, giving thanks to God even the Father by him.

18 ¶ * [10] Wives, ſubmit your ſelves unto your huſbands, as it is [n] comely in the Lord.

19 * [11] Huſbands love your wives, and be not bitter unto them.

20 ¶ * [12] Children, obey your parents in [o] all things: for that is well pleaſing unto the Lord.

21 [13] Fathers provoke not your children to anger, leſt they be diſcouraged.

22 ¶ [14] * Servants, be obedient unto them that are your maſters according to the fleſh, in all things, not with eye-ſervice as men-pleaſers, but in ſingleneſſe of heart, fearing God.

23 And whatſoever ye do, do it hartily, as to the Lord, and not to men,

1 Another part of this Epiſtle, wherin he taketh occaſion, by reaſon of thoſe vain exerciſes, to ſhew the duty of a Chriſtian life: which is an ordinary thing with him, after he hath once ſet down the doctrine it ſelf.

2 Our renewing or new birth, which is wrought in us by being partakers of the reſurrection of Chriſt, is the fountain of all holyneſſe, out of which ſundry arms or rivers do afterwards flow.

a For if we be partakers of Chriſt, we are caried as it were into another life, where we ſhall need neither meat nor drinke, for we ſhall be like unto the Angels. 3 The end and mark which all the duties of Chriſtian life ſhoot at, is to enter into the kingdome of heaven, and to give our ſelves to thoſe things which leade us thither, that is, to true godlineſſe, and not to thoſe outward and corporall things. b So he calleth that ſhew of religion which he ſpake of in the former chapter. 4 A reaſon taken of the efficient cauſes, and others: you are dead as touching the fleſh, that is, touching the old nature which ſeeketh after all tranſitory things, and on the other ſide, you have begun to live according to the Spirit, therefore give your ſelves to ſpirituall and heavenly, and not to carnall and earthly things. 5 The taking away of an objection: whiles we are yet in this world, we are ſubject to many miſeries of this life, ſo that the life that is in us, is as it were hidden: yet notwithſtanding we have the beginnings of life and glory, the accompliſhment whereof which lieth now in Chriſts and in Gods hand, ſhall be aſſuredly and manifeſtly performed in that glorious coming of the Lord. 6 Let not your dead nature be any more effectuall in you, but let your living nature be effectuall. Now the force of nature is known by the motions. Therefore let the affections of the world die in you, and let the contrary motions which are ſpirituall, live. And he reckoneth up a great long ſcroule of vices, and their contrary vertues. * Epheſ. 5. 3. c The motions and luſts that are in us, are in this place very properly called members, becauſe that the reaſon and will of man corrupted, doth uſe them as the body doth his members.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 He therefore beginneth with thankſgiving, 4 to put them in mind that whatſoever was praiſe worthy in them, 11 it came of Gods goodneſſe: 8 and that they are enſamples unto others.

PAul, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the Church of the Theſſalonians, which is in God our Father, and in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt: Grace be with you, and peace from God our father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

2 [1] We give God thanks alwayes for you all, making mention of you in our prayers,

1 An example of right Chriſtian rejoycing, whereby alſo we learn, that ſuch as have great gifts in them, are in two ſorts bridled, to wit, if they conſider that they have received all from God, and that continuance muſt be deſired at his hands, whereunto alſo the whole Epiſtle exhorteth the Theſſalonians.

3 [2] Without ceaſing, remembring your effectuall faith, and diligent love, and the patience of your hope in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, in the ſight of God, even our Father.

4 Knowing, beloved brethren, that ye are [a] elect of God.

2 He commendeth them for three ſpeciall gifts, effectuall faith, continuall love, and patient hope: to the end they might be aſhamed, being indued with ſuch excellent gifts, not to continue in Gods election. a Word for word, that your election is of God.

5 [3] For our Goſpel was not unto you in word only, but alſo in power, and in the holy Ghoſt, and in [b] much aſſurance, as ye know after what manner we were among you for your ſakes.

6 [4] And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, and received the word in much affliction, with [c] joy of the holy Ghoſt,

7 So that ye were as enſamples to all that beleeve in Macedonia and Achaia:

8 For from you ſounded out the word of the Lord, not in Macedonia and in Achaia only: but your faith alſo which is toward God, ſpread abroad in all quarters, that we need not to ſpeak any thing:

9 For they [d] themſelves ſhew of us what manner of entring in we had unto you, [5] and how ye turned to God from Idoles, to ſerve the living and true God,

10 And to look for his ſon from heaven, whom he raiſed from the dead, even Jeſus which delivereth us from [e] that wrath to come.

3 Another reaſon, why they ought in no wiſe ſtart back, but continue to the end, becauſe they cannot doubt of this doctrine which hath been ſo many wayes confirmed unto them even from heaven, as they themſelves did well know.

b Paul ſheweth by two things that there followed very great fruit of his preaching, to wit, by theſe gifts of the holy Ghoſt, and that certain aſſurance which was throughly ſetled in their minds, as appeared by their willing bearing of the Croſſe.

4 Another reaſon, becauſe even that day they imbraced the Goſpel with great chearfulnes, in ſo much that they were an example to all their neighbors: ſo that it ſhould be more ſhame to them to faint in the mid race.

c With joy which commeth from the holy Ghoſt. d All the beleevers. 5 It is no true coverſion to forſake idoles, unleſſe a man therewithall worſhip the true and living God, in Chriſt the onely Redeemer. e This word (That) is not put here without cauſe, and by (wrath) is meant that revenge and puniſhment, wherewith the Lord will judge the world at length in his terrible wrath.

Chap. II.

1 He declareth how faithfully he preached the Goſpel unto them, 5 ſeeking neither gain, 6 nor praiſe of men: 10 and he proveth the ſame by their own teſtimony: 14 that they did couragiouſly bear perſecutions of their countrey men: 17 that he deſireth very much to ſee them.

FOr [1] ye your ſelves know, brethren, that our entrance in unto you was not in vain,

2 [2] But even after that we had ſuffered before, and were ſhamefully intreated at * Philippi (as ye know) we were bold in [a] our God, to ſpeak unto you the Goſpel of God with much ſtriving.

3 [3] For our exhortation was not by deceit, nor by [b] uncleanneſſe, nor by guile:

4 [4] But as we were [c] allowed of God, that the Goſpel ſhould be committed unto us, ſo we ſpeak, not as they that pleaſe men, but God, which [d] approveth our hearts.

5 Neither yet did we ever uſe flattering words, as ye know, nor coloured covetouſneſſe, God is record.

6 [5] Neither ſought we praiſe of men, neither of you, nor of others, when we might have bene [e] chargeable, as the Apoſtles of Chriſt.

7 But we were [f] gentle among you, even as a nource cheriſheth her children.

8 [6] Thus being affectioned toward you, our good will was to have dealt unto you, not the Goſpel of God onely, but alſo our own ſouls, becauſe ye were deare unto us,

1 That which he touched before ſhortly concerning his Apoſtleſhip, he handleth now more atlarge, and to that end & purpoſe which we ſpake of.

2 The vertues of a true Paſtour are, freely without fear to preach the Goſpel, even in the midſt of dangers.

* Acts 16.12.

a Through God his gracious help.

3 To teach pure doctrine faithfully and with a pure heart.

b By any wicked & naughty kind of dealing.

4 To approve his conſcience to God, being free from all flattery and covetouſneſſe.

c Seeing there is this difference between the judgements of God and the judgements of men, that when men chuſe, they reſpect the qualities of thoſe things which ſtand before them, but God findeth the reaſon of his counſell only in himſelf, it followeth, that ſeeing we are not able to think a good thought, that whomſoever he firſt chuſeth to theſe callings, he maketh them able, and doth not find them able. And therefore in that we are allowed of God, it hangeth upon his mercie. d Which liketh and alloweth of them. 5 To ſubmit himſelf even to the baſeſt, to win them, and to eſchew all pride. e When I might lawfully have lived upon the expences of the Church. f We were not rough, but eaſie and gentle as a nource, that is, neither ambitious, nor covetous, but taketh all pains as patiently as if ſhe were a mother. 6 To have the flock that is committed unto him in more eſtimation then his own life.

9 [7] For ye remember, brethren, * our labour and travail: for we laboured day and night, becauſe we would not be chargeable unto any of you, and preached unto you the Goſpel of God.

10 [8] Ye are witneſſes, and God alſo, how holily, and juſtly, and unblameably we behaved our ſelves among you that beleeve:

11 [9] As ye know how that we exhorted you, and comforted, and beſought every one of you (as a father his children)

12 [10] That ye * would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory.

13 [11] For this cauſe alſo thanke we God without ceaſing, that when ye received the word of God, which he heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is indeed the word of God, which alſo worketh in you that beleeve.

14 [12] For brethren, ye are become followers of the Churches of God, which in Judea are in [g] Chriſt Jeſus, becauſe ye have alſo ſuffered the ſame things of your own [h] countreymen, even as they have of the Jews,

15 [13] Who both killed the Lord Jeſus and their own Prophets, and have perſecuted us away, [14] and God they pleaſe not, and are contrary to [i] all men,

16 And forbid us to preach unto the Gentiles, that they might be ſaved, to [k] fulfill their ſins alwayes: for the [l] wrath of God is come on them to the utmoſt.

17 [15] Foraſmuch, brethren, as we [m] were kept from you for a ſeaſon, concerning ſight, but not in the heart, we enforced the more to ſee your face with great deſire.

18 Therefore we would have come unto you (I Paul, at leaſt once or twiſe) but Satan hindered us.

19 For what is our hope or joy, or crown of rejoycing? are not even you in the preſence of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt at his comming?

20 Yes, ye are our glory and joy.

7 To depart w his own right ther then to b chargeable to h ſheep.

12 He confirme them in their a flictions which they ſuffered of their own peop becauſe they we afflicted of thei own countreymen: which ca as well (ſaith he to the Churche of the Iews, as t them: and there fore they ought take it in good part.

h Even of them, which are of the ſame countrey, an the ſame town tha you are of.

13 He prevente an offence which might be taken, for that the Iews eſpecially, above all other, perſecuted the Goſpel. That is no new thing, ſaith he, ſeeing they ſlew Chriſt himſelf, an his Prophets, and have baniſhed m alſo.

14 He foretelleth the utter deſtruction of the Iews, leſt any man ſhould be moved by their rebellion.

i For the Iews would neither enter into the Kingdom o God themſelves, nor ſuffer other to enter in. k Untill that wickedneſſe of theirs which they have by inheritance, as i were, of their fathers, be growen ſo great, that the meaſure of their iniquitie being filled, God may com forth to wrath. l The judgement of God being angrie, which indeed appeared ſhortly after in th deſtruction of the citie of Hieruſalem, whither many reſorted even out of divers Provinces, when it wa beſieged. 15 He meeteth with an objection, why he came not to them ſtraightwaye being in ſo great miſerie, I deſired oftentimes (ſaith he) & it lay not in me, but Satan hindred my endevours, and therefore I ſent Timothie my faithfull companion unto you, becauſe you are moſt dear to me. m Were kept aſunder from you, and as it were orphanes.

Chap. III.

1 To ſhew his affection toward them, he ſendeth Timothie unto them: 6 He is ſo moved by the report of their proſperous ſtate, 9 that he cannot give ſufficient thanks, 11 and therefore he breaketh out into prayer.

you, and to comfort you touching your faith,

3 That no man ſhould be moved with theſe afflictions: [1] for ye your ſelves know, that we are appointed thereunto.

4 For verely when we were with you, we told you before that we ſhould ſuffer tribulations, even as it came to paſſe, and ye know it.

5 Even for this cauſe, when I could no longer forbeare, I ſent him that I might know of your faith, leſt the tempter had tempted you in any ſort, and that our labour had beene in vaine.

6 [2] But now lately when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and love, and that ye have good remembrance of us alwayes, deſiring to ſee us as we alſo doe you,

7 Therefore brethren, we had conſolation in you, in all our affliction and neceſſity through your faith.

8 For now are we [a] alive, if ye ſtand faſt in the Lord.

9 For what thanks can we recompenſe to God again for you, for al the joy wherewith we reioyce for your ſakes before our God,

10 Night and day, * praying exceedingly that we might ſee your face, and might [b] accompliſh that w^{ch} is lacking in your faith.

11 Now God himſelfe, even our Father, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, guid our journey unto you.

12 [3] And the Lord increaſe you, and make you abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we doe toward you,

13 * To make your hearts ſtable and unblamable in holineſſe before God, even our Father, at the comming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt with all his Saints.

[1] The will of God, who calleth his, on this condition, to bring them to glory by afflicti-on, is a moſt ſure remedy againſt all afflictions.

[2] Becauſe they have hitherto gone ſo well forward, hee exhorteth them againe to make an end of the reſt of the journey, ſeeing that therein alſo they ſhall do him, their Apoſtle, a great pleaſure, a For now you cannot otherwiſe thinke me ſafe and in good caſe, unleſſe you goe forward in religion and faith.

* Rom. 1.10. and 15.23.

b Paul was conſtrained through the importunate dealing of the enemies, to leave the building which he had ſcarce begun: And for that cauſe he had left Silas and Timotheus in Macedonia, and when Timothie came to Athens to him, he ſent him backe againe ſtraightway. So that he deſireth to ſee the Theſſalonians, that he may throughly accompliſh their faith and religion, that was as yet imperfect.

[3] Another part of the Epiſtle, whe in hee ſpeaketh of the dueties of a Chriſtian life. And he ſheweth that the perfection of a chriſtian life, conſiſteth in two things, to wit, in charitie toward all men, and inward puritie of the heart, the accompliſhment whereof notwithſtanding is deferred to the next comming of Chriſt, who will then perfite his worke by the ſame grace wherewith he begun it in us.

* Chap. 5. 23. 1 Cor. 1. 8.

Chap. IV.

1 He exhorteth them, 3 to holyneſſe, 9 and brotherly love. 13 He forbiddeth them to ſorow after the maner of infidels. 15 He ſetteth out the Hiſtory of our reſurrection.

AND [1] furthermore we beſeech you, brethren, and exhort you in the Lord Jeſus, that ye [a] increaſe more and more, as ye have received of us, how ye ought to walk, and to pleaſe God.

2 For ye know what commandements we gave you by the Lord Ieſus.

3 * [2] For this is the will of God even your [b] ſanctification, and that ye ſhould abſtaine from fornication,

14 [3] That every one of you ſhould know, how to poſſeſſe his veſſell in holineſſe and honour,

5 [4] And not in the luſt of concupiſcence, even as the Gentiles which know not God:

[1] Divers exhortations, the ground whereof is this, to be mindfull of thoſe things which they have heard of the Apoſtle.

a That ye labour to excell more and more, and daily paſſe your ſelves,

* Rom. 12.2. epheſ. 5.17.

[2] This is the ſumme of thoſe things which he delivered them, to dedicate themſelves wholly to God. And he condemneth plainely all filthines through luſt, becauſe it is altogether contrary to the will of God.

b Looke Iohn 17.17.

[3] Another reaſon, becauſe it defileth the body. [4] The third, becauſe the Saints are diſcerned from them which know not God by honeſtie and puritie.

6 * [5] That no man oppreſſe or defraud his brother in any matter: for the Lord is avenger of all ſuch things, as we alſo have told you before time and teſtified.

7 * For God hath not called us unto uncleanneſſe, but unto holineſſe.

8 He therefore that [c] deſpiſeth theſe things, deſpiſeth not man, but God who hath even given you his holy Spirit.

9 [6] But as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you: * for ye are taught of God to love one another,

10 Yea, and that thing verely ye doe unto all the brethren which are throughout all Macedonia: but we beſeech you, brethren, that ye increaſe more and more,

11 [7] And that ye ſtudie to be quiet, and to meddle with your owne buſineſſe, [8] and to worke with your owne hands, as we commanded you,

12 That ye may behave your ſelves honeſtly toward them that are without, and that no thing be lacking unto you.

13 ¶ [9] I would not, brethren, have you ignorant [10] concerning them [11] which are aſleepe, that ye ſorow not even as other which haue no hope.

14 [12] For if we beleeve that Jeſus is dead, and is riſen, even ſo them which ſleepe in [d] Jeſus, will God [e] bring with him.

15 [13] For this ſay we unto you by the [f] word of the Lord, that [g] we which live, and are remaining in the comming of the Lord, ſhall not prevent them which ſleepe:

16 For the Lord himſelfe ſhall deſcend from heaven with a [h] ſhout, and with the voice of the Archangel, and * with the trumpet of God: and the dead in Chriſt ſhall riſe firſt:

17 Then ſhall we which live and remain, bee [i] caught up with them alſo in the cloudes, to meet the Lord in the aire: and ſo ſhall we ever be with the Lord.

18 Wherefore, comfort your ſelves one another with theſe words.

* 1 Cor. 6.8.

[5] Secondly, he reprehendeth al violent oppreſſion, and immoderate deſire, and ſheweth moſt ſeverely, as the prophet of God, that God will revenge ſuch wickedneſſe.

* 1 Cor. 1.2.

c Theſe commandements which I gave you.

[6] Thirdly, he requireth a readie minde to all maner of louingkindneſſe, and exhorteth them to profite more and more in that vertue.

* Iohn 13.34. and 15.12, 1 Iohn 2.8. and 4. 21.

[7] He condemneth unquiet braines, and ſuch as are curious in matters which appertaine not unto them.

[8] He rebuketh idleneſſe & ſlothfulneſſe, which vices whoſoever are given unto, fall into other wickedneſſe, to the great offence of the Church.

[9] The third part of the Epiſtle, which is interlaced among the former exhortations (which he returneth unto afterward) wherein he ſpeaketh of mourning for the dead, and the maner of the reſurrection, and of the latter day.

[10] We muſt take heed that we doe not immoderatly bewaile the dead, ẏ is, as they uſe to doe which thinke that they are utterly periſhed.

[11] A confirmation: for death is but a ſleepe of the body (for he ſpeaketh of the faithfull) untill the Lord commeth.

[12] A reaſon of the confirmation, for ſeeing that the head is riſen, the members alſo ſhall riſe, and that by the vertue of God.

d They die in Chriſt, which continue in faith whereby they are graffed into Chriſt, even to the laſt gaſpe. e Will call their bodies out of their graves, and ioyne their ſoules to them againe. [13] The manner of the reſurrection ſhalbe thus: The bodies of the dead ſhalbe as it were raiſed out of ſleep at the ſound of the trumpet of God, Chriſt himſelfe ſhall deſcend from heaven. The Saints (for he ſpeaketh properly of them) which ſhall then be found alive, together with the dead which ſhall riſe ſhall be taken up into the clouds to meet the Lord, and ſhalbe in perpetuall glory with him. f In the Name of the Lord, as though he himſelfe ſpake unto you. g He ſpeaketh of theſe things, as though he ſhould be one of them whom the Lord ſhall finde alive at his comming, becauſe that time is uncertaine: and therefore every one of us ought to be in ſuch a readineſſe, as if the Lord were comming at every moment. h The word which the Apoſtle uſeth here, ſignifieth properly that incouragement which mariners uſe one to another, when they altogether with one ſhout put forth their oares and row together. * 1 Cor. 15.52. i Suddenly and in the twinkling of an eye.

Chap. V.

1 Condemning the curious ſearching for the ſeaſons of Chriſt comming, 6 he warneth them to be ready daily to receive him: 11 And ſo giveth them ſundry good leſſons.

BUT [1] of the times and [a] ſeaſons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you:

2 For ye your ſelves know perfectly, that the day of the Lord ſhall come, even as a thiefe in the night.

[1] The day that God hath appointed for this judgement, we know not: But this is ſure that it ſhall come upon men when they looke for nothing leſſe.

a Looke Actes 1.7.

3 For when they ſhall ſay, Peace and ſafetie, then ſhall come upon them ſudden deſtruction, as the travail upon a woman with child, and they ſhall not eſcape.

4 [2] But ye, brethren, are not in darkneſſe, that that day ſhall come on you, as it were a thief.

5 Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, neither of darkneſſe,

6 Therefore let us not ſleep as do other, but let us watch and be ſober.

7 For they that ſleep, ſleep in the night, and they that be drunken, are drunken in the night,

8 [3] But let us which are of the day, be ſober, * putting on the breſtplate of faith and love, and the hope of ſalvation for an helmet:

9 [4] For God hath not appointed us unto wrath, but to obtain ſalvation by the means of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

10 [5] Which died for us, that whether we wake or ſleep, we ſhould live together with him.

11 [6] Wherefore exhort one another, and edifie one another, even as ye do.

12 [7] Now we beſeech you, brethren, that ye [b] acknowledge them which labour among you, and are over you in the [c] Lord, and admoniſh you,

13 That ye have them in ſingular love for [d] their works ſake. [8] Be at peace among your ſelves.

14 [9] We deſire you, brethren, admoniſh them that are [e] out of order: comfort the feeble minded: bear with the weak: be patient toward all men.

15 [10] * See that none recompence evil for evill unto any man: but ever follow that which is good, both toward your ſelves, and toward all men.

16 [11] Rejoyce evermore.

17 * Pray continually.

18 In all things, give thanks: for this is the [f] will of God in Chriſt Jeſus toward you.

19 [12] Quench not the Spirit.

20 Deſpiſe not [g] prophecying.

21 Try all things, and keep that which is good.

22 [13] Abſtain from all [h] appearance of evill.

23 Now the very God of peace [i] ſanctifie you throughout: and I pray God that your whole ſpirit and ſoul and body, may be kept blameleſſe unto the comming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

24 [14] * [k] Faithfull is he which calleth you, which will alſo [l] do it.

25 [15] Brethren, pray for us.

26 Greet all the brethren with an holy kiſſe.

27 I charge you in the Lord, that this Epiſtle be read unto all the brethren the Saints.

28 The grace of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt be with you, Amen.

¶ The firſt Epiſtle unto the Theſſalonians, vvritten from Athens.

[2] Returning to exhortations, he warneth us which are lightened with the knowledge of God, that it is our duetie not to live ſecurely in delicioufneſſe, left we be ſuddenly taken in a dead ſleep in pleaſures: but contrariwiſe to have an eye to ỹ Lord, and not ſuffer our ſelves to be oppreſſed with the cares of this world, for that is meet for the darkneſſe of the night, and this for the light.

[3] We muſt fight with faith & hope, much leſſe ought we lie careleſly ſnorting.

[5] The death of Chriſt is a pledge of our victory, for therefore he died, that we might be partakers of his life or vertue, yea even whiles we live here,

[6] We muſt not onely watch our ſelues, but we are alſo bound to ſtir up and confirme one another.

THE SECOND EPISTLE
OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS.

CHAP. I.

3 He commendeth the increaſe of faith, and charitie, 4 and the patience of the Theſſalonians, 6 and deſcribing Gods vengeance againſt ſuch as oppreſſe the godly, 10 he teacheth the godly to wait for the laſt judgement.

PAul and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the Church of the Theſſalonians, which is in God our Father, and in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 * [1] We ought to thank God alwayes for you, brethren, as it is meet, becauſe that your faith [a] groweth exceedingly, and the love of every one of you toward another aboundeth,

4 So that we our ſelves rejoyce of you in the Churches of God, becauſe of your patience and faith in all your perſecutions and tribulations that ye ſuffer,

5 * [2] Which is a manifeſt token of the righteous judgement of God, that ye may be counted worthy of the Kingdom of God, for the which ye alſo ſuffer.

[2] He openeth the fountain of al true comfort, to wit, ỹ in afflictions which w ſuffer of the wicked for righteouſneſſe ſake, we may behold as it were in a glaſſe ỹ teſtimoni of ỹ judgment to come, & ỹ end thereof moſt acceptable to us, & moſt ſharp to his enemies

6 [3]

6 [3] For it is a righteous thing with God, to recompenſe tribulation to them that trouble you,

7 And to you, which are troubled, reſt [4] with us, *[5] when the Lord Jeſus ſhal ſhew himſelfe from heaven with his mightie Angels,

8 In flaming fire, rendering vengeance unto them [6] that doe not know God, and which obey not unto the Goſpel of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

9 Which ſhall be puniſhed with everlaſting perdition, from the preſence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power,

10 When he ſhall come to be glorified in his Saints, and to be made marveilous in all them that beleeve ([7] becauſe our teſtimonie toward you was beleeved) in that day.

11 [8] Wherefore, we alſo pray alwayes for you, that our God may make you worthie of [b] this calling, and fulfill [c] all the good pleaſure of his goodneſſe, and the [d] worke of faith with power, 12 That the Name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt may be glorified in you, and ye in him, according to the grace of our God, and of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

[3] A proofe: God is juſt, therefore he will worthily, puniſh the unjuſt, and will do away the miſeries of his people.

[4] He confirmeth them alſo by the way, by this means that the condition both of this preſent ſtate and the ſtate to come, is common to him with them.

* 1 Theſ.4.16.

[5] A moſt glorious deſcription of the ſecond comming of Chriſt, to be ſet againſt all the miſeries of the godly, & the triumphs of the wicked.

[6] There is no knowledge of God unto ſalvation, without the Goſpel of Chriſt.

[7] The children of God ſhall be counted by the faith which they have in ẏ Goſpel, which is preached unto them by the Apoſtles.

[8] Seeing that we have the marke ſet before us, it remaineth that we go unto it. And we go to it, by certain degrees of cauſes: firſt by the free love and good pleaſure of God, by vertue whereof all other inferiour cauſes work: from thence proceedeth the free calling to Chriſt, and from calling, faith, whereupon followeth both the glorifying of Chriſt in us, and us in Chriſt. [b] By (calling) he meaneth not the very act of calling, but that ſelf ſame thing whereunto we are called, which is the glory of that heavenly Kingdom. [c] Which he determined long ſince, only upon his gracious and mercifull goodneſſe toward you. [d] So then, faith is an excellent work of God in us: and we ſee here plainly that the Apoſtle leaveth nothing to free will, to make it checkmate with Gods working therein, as the Papiſts dream.

CHAP. II.

2 He ſheweth that the day of the Lord ſhall not come, till there be a departure from the faith, 3 and that Antichriſt be reveiled, 8 whoſe deſtruction he ſetteth out, 15 and thereupon exhorteth to conſtancy.

NOw [1] we beſeech you, brethren, by the comming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and by our [a] aſſembling unto him,

2 [2] That ye be not ſuddenly moved from your mind, nor troubled neither by [b] ſpirit, not by [c] word, nor by [d] letter, as it were from us, as though the day of Chriſt were at hand.

3 Let no man deceive you by any means: [3] for that day ſhall not come, except there come a departing firſt, and that [e] that man of ſin be diſcloſed, even the ſon of perdition,

4 Which is an adverſarie, and [f] exhalteth himſelf againſt all that is called God, or that is worſhipped: [4] ſo that he doth ſit as God in the Temple of God, ſhewing himſelf that he is God.

5 [5] Remember ye not, that when I was yet with you, I told you theſe things?

6 And now ye know [g] what withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time.

7 [6] For the myſterie of iniquitie doeth alreadie work: [7] only he which now [h] withholdeth, ſhall let till he be taken out of the way.

8 [8] And then ſhall [i] that wicked man be revealed, * whom the Lord ſhall [k] conſume with the [l] Spirit of his mouth, and ſhal aboliſh with the brightneſſe of his comming,

2 [9] Even him whoſe comming is by the effectuall working of Satan, with al power, and ſignes, and [m] lying wonders,

10 And in all deceiveableneſſe of unrighteouſneſſe, among them that periſh, becauſe they received not the love of the trueth, that they might be ſaved.

11 And therefore God ſhall ſend them [n] ſtrong deluſion, that they ſhould beleeve lyes, 12 That all they might be damned which beleeved not the trueth, but [o] had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſſe.

13 [10] But we ought to give thanks alway to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, becauſe that God hath from the beginning choſen you to ſalvation, through [p] ſanctification of the Spirit, and the [q] faith of trueth, 14 Whereunto he called you by our [r] Goſpel, to obtain the glory of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

15 [11] Therefore, brethren, ſtand faſt, and keep the inſtructions, which ye have been taught, either by word, or by our Epiſtle.

16 Now the ſame Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, and our God, even the Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlaſting conſolation and good hope through grace, 17 Comfort your hearts, and ſtabliſh you in every word and good work.

[1] The ſecond part of the Epiſtle, conteining an excellent prophecie of the ſtate of the Church, which ſhalbe from the Apoſtles time unto the latter day of judgement.

[a] If we think earneſtly upon that unmeaſurable glory, which we ſhall be partakers of with Chriſt, it will be an excellent remedie for us againſt wavering and impatience, ſo that neither the gliſtering of the world ſhall allure us, nor the dreadfull ſight of the croſſe diſmay us.

[2] We muſt take heed of falſe Prophets, ſpecially in this matter, which go about to deceive, and that for the moſt part, after three ſorts: for either they brag of fained propheticall revelations, or they bring conjectures and reaſons of their own, or uſe counterfeit writings. [b] By dreams and fables, which men pretend to be ſpirituall revelations. [c] Either by word of mouth, or by books written. [d] Either by forged letter, or falſly gloſed upon. [3] The Apoſtle fortelleth that before the comming of the Lord, there ſhalbe a throne ſet up cleane contrarie to Chriſts glory, wherein that wicked man ſhall ſit, and transferre all things that appertain to God, to himſelf, and many ſhall fall away from God to him. [e] By ſpeaking of one, he pointeth out the body of the tyrannous and perſecuting Church. [f] All men know who he is that ſayth he can ſhut up heaven and open it at his pleaſure, and took upon him to be Lord and Maſter above all Kings and Princes, before whom Kings and Princes fall down and worſhip, honouring that Antichriſt as a god. [4] He foretelleth that Antichriſt (that is, whoſoever he be ẏ ſhal occupie that ſeat that falleth away from God) ſhall not reigne without the Church, but in the very boſom of the Church. 5. This prophecie was continually declared to the ancient Church, but it was neglected of them that followed.

[g] What hindereth and ſtayeth.

[6] Even in the Apoſtles time the firſt foundation of the Apoſtaticall ſeat were laid, but yet ſo that they deceived men.

[7] He fortelleth, that when the empire of Rome is taken away, the ſeat that falleth away from God, ſhall ſucceed and hold his place, as the old writers, Tertullian, Chryſoſtome and Hierome do expound it.

[h] He which is now in authoritie, and ruleth all, to wit, the Romane Empire.

[8] That wickedneſſe ſhal at length be detected by the word of the Lord, and ſhall utterly be aboliſhed by Chriſts comming.

[i] Word for word, that lawleſſe fellow, that is to ſay, he that ſhall tread Gods Law clean under foot.

* Iſa.11.4.

[k] Bring to nought.

[l] With his word, for the true Miniſters of the word are as a mouth, whereby the Lord breatheth out that mightie and everlaſting word, which ſhall break his enemies in ſunder, as it were an yron rod.

[9] He foretelleth, that Satan will beſtow all his might and power, and uſe all falſe miracles that he can to eſtabliſh that ſeat, & that with great ſucceſſe, becauſe the wickedneſſe of the world doeth ſo deſerve it: yet ſo, that onely the unfaithfull ſhall periſh through his deceit.

[m] Which are partly falſe, and partly wrought to eſtabliſh a falſhood.

[n] A moſt mightie working to deceive them.

[o] They liked lyes ſo well, that they had pleaſure in them, which is the greateſt madneſſe that may be. [10] The elect ſhall ſtand ſteadfaſt and ſafe from all their miſchiefs. Now election is knowen by theſe teſtimonies: faith is gathered by ſanctification: faith, by that that we accord unto the trueth: trueth by calling, through the preaching of the Goſpel: from whence we come at length to a certain hope of glorification. [p] To ſanctifie you. [q] Faith which layeth hold not upon lies, but upon the trueth of God, which is the Goſpel. [r] By our preaching. [11] The concluſion: It remaineth then that we continue in the doctrine which was delivered unto us by the mouth and writings of the Apoſtles, through that free good will of God, which comforteth us with an invincible hope, and alſo in al godlineſſe our whole life long.

CHAP. III.

1 He deſireth them to further the preaching of the Goſpel with their prayers, 6 and to withdraw themſelves from thoſe, who through idleneſſe, 11 and curioſitie pervert good order: 14 Whom he excludeth from the company of the faithfull.

FUrthermore, [1] brethren, * pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free paſſage and be glorified, even as it is with you,

2 And that we may be delivered from

[1] He addeth now conſequently according to his manner, divers admonitions: The firſt of them is, that they make prayers for the increaſe and free paſſage of the Goſpel, and for the ſafetie of the faithfull miniſters of the ſame.

* Epheſ.6,19. Coloſſ.4.3.

[a] unreaſonable and evill men: [2] for all men have not faith.

3 But the Lord is faithfull, which will ſtabliſh you, and keep you from [b] evill.

4 [3] And we are perſwaded of you through the Lord, that ye both do, and wil do the things which we warne you of.

5 [4] And the Lord guid your hearts to the love of God, and the waiting for of Chriſt.

6 [5] We warn you, brethren, in the Name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that ye withdraw your ſelves from every brother that walketh inordinately, and not after the inſtruction which he received of us:

7 [6] For ye your ſelves know, * how ye ought to follow us: * for we behaved not our ſelves inordinately among you,

8 Neither took we bread of any man for nought: but we wrought with labour and travail night and day, becauſe we would not be chargeable to any of you,

9 Not becauſe we have not authoritie, but that we might make our ſelves an enſample unto you to follow us.

10 For even when we were with you, this we warned you of, that if there were any which would not work, that he ſhould [c] not eat.

a Which have no care of their duety.
2 It is no marvell that the Goſpel is hated of ſo many, ſeeing that faith is a rare gift of God. Notwithſtanding the Church ſhall never be deſtroyed by the multitude of the wicked, becauſe it is grounded & ſtayed upon the faithfull promiſe of God.
b From Satans ſnares, or from evill.
3 The ſecond admonition is, that they follow alwayes ẏ doctrine of the Apoſtles as a rule for their life.
4 Thirdly, he diligently and earneſtly admoniſheth them of two things which are given us by the onely grace of God, to wit, of charitie, and a watchfull mind to the comming of Chriſt.
5 Fourthly, he ſaith, that idle and lazie perſons ought not to be relieved of the Church, nay, that they are not to be ſuffered.
6 Leſt he might ſeem to deal hardly with them, he ſetteth forth himſelf for an example, who beſides his travaile in preaching, laboured with his hands, which he ſayth he was not ſimply bound to doe.
* 1 Corinth. 11.1. * 1 Theſſ. 4.11. c What ſhall we doe then with thoſe idle bellied Monkes, & ſacrificing Prieſts? A Monke (ſayth Socrates, book 8. of the Tripartite hiſtorie) which worketh not with his hands, is like a thief.

11 For we heare, that there are ſome which walk among [7] you inordinately, and work not at all, [8] but are buſie bodies.

12 [9] Therefore them that are ſuch, we warn and exhort by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that they work with quietneſſe, and eate their own bread.

13 [10] And ye, brethren, be not wearie in well doing.

14 [11] If any man obey not this our ſaying in this letter, note him, and have no [12] companie with him, [13] that he may be aſhamed:

15 [14] Yet count him not as an enemie, but admoniſh him as a brother.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL TO TIMOTHEUS.

CHAP. I.

Setting forth a perfect paterne of a true Paſtour, whoſe office eſpecially conſiſteth in teaching, 4 he warneth him that vain queſtions ſet apart, he teach theſe things, 5 which further charitie and faith: 12 and that his authoritie be not condemned, 14 he ſheweth what an one he is made through the grace of God.

PAul [1] an Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by the ‡ commandement of God our Saviour, and of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt our hope

2 Vnto Timotheus my naturall ſon in the faith: Grace, [a] mercy, and peace from God our Father, and from Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

1 Firſt of all, he avoucheth his own free vocation and alſo Timothies, that the one might be confirmed by the other: and therewithall he declareth the ſum of the Apoſtolicall doctrine, to wit, the mercie of God in Chriſt Ieſus, apprehended by faith, the end whereof is yet hoped for.
a There is as much difference betwixt mercie and grace, as is betwixt the effect and the cauſe: for grace is that free good will of God, whereby he choſe us in Chriſt, and mercie is that free iuſtification which followeth it.

3 [2] As I beſought thee to abide ſtill in Epheſus, vvhen I departed into Macedonia, ſo doe, that thou mayeſt vvarne ſome, that they teach none other doctrine,

4 [3] Neither that they give heed to fables and [b] genealogies which are endleſſe, which breed queſtions rather then godly edifying which is by faith.

5 [4] For * the end of the [c] commandement is [d] love out of a pure heart, and of a good conſcience, and of faith unfained:

6 [5] From the which things ſome have erred, and have turned unto vaine jangling.

2 This whole E piſtle conſiſteth in admonitions, wherein all the duties of a faithfull Paſtour are lively ſet out. An the firſt admonition is this, that n innovation be made either in th Apoſtles doctrin it ſelf, or in ẏ man ner of teaching it
3 The doctrine i corrupted not onl by falſe opinions but alſo by vain and curious ſpeculations: the decleration and utterance whereof can nothing help our faith.
b He noteth out one kind of vain queſtions. 4 The ſecond admonition is, that the right uſe and practiſe of the doctrin muſt be joyned with the doctrine. And that conſiſteth in pure charitie, & a good conſcience and true faith, * Rom. 13.10. c Of the Law. d There is neither love without a good conſcience, nor a good conſcience without faith, nor faith without the word of God.
5 That which he ſpake before generally of vain and curious controverſies, he applyeth to them which pretending a zeal of the Law, dwelled upon outward things, and never made an end of babling of fooliſh trifles.

7 [6] They would be doctours of the Law, and yet underſtand not what they ſpeak, neither whereof they affirme.

8 [7] And we know, that the Law is good, if a man uſe it lawfully,

9 [8] Knowing this, that the Law is not given unto a [e] righteous man, but unto the lawleſſe and diſobedient, to the ungodly, and to [f] ſinners, to the unholy, and to the profane, to murtherers of fathers and mothers, to manſlayers,

10 To whoremongers, to buggerers, to menſtealers, to lyars, to the perjured, and if there be any other thing, that is contrary to wholeſome doctrine,

11 [9] Which is according to the glorious Goſpel of the bleſſed God, [10] which is committed unto me.

12 [11] Therefore I thank him, which hath made me [g] ſtrong, that is, Chriſt Jeſus our Lord: for he counted me faithfull, and put me in his ſervice, 13 When before I was a [h] blaſphemer, and a perſecuter, and an oppreſſor: but I was received to mercie: for I did it ignorantly through unbelief.

14 But the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant [12] with faith and love, which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

15 [13] This is a [i] true ſaying, and by all means worthy to be received, that * Chriſt Jeſus came into the world to ſave ſinners, of whom I am chiefe.

16 Notwithſtanding for this cauſe was I received to mercy, that Jeſus Chriſt ſhould firſt ſhew on me all long ſuffering unto the enſample of them, which ſhall in time to come beleeve in him unto eternall life.

17 [14] Now unto the King everlaſting, immortall, inviſible, unto God [k] only wiſe, be honour, and glory, for ever and ever, Amen.

18 [15] This commandement commit I unto thee, ſon Timotheus, according to the prophecies, which went before upon thee, that thou by [l] them ſhouldeſt fight a good fight, 19 Having faith [m] and a good conſcience, [16] which ſome have put away, and as concerning faith, have made ſhipwrack.

20 Of whom is Hymeneus, and Alexander, * [17] whom I have [n] delivered unto Satan, that they might [o] learn not to blaſpheme.

There are none more unlearned, and more impudent in uſurping the name of holineſſe, then fooliſh ſophiſticall babblers.

7 The taking away of an objection: He condemneth not the Law, but requireth the right uſe and practiſe of it.

8 He indeed eſcapeth the curſe of the Law, and therefore doeth not abhorre it, who fleeing and eſchewing thoſe things which the Law condemneth, giveth himſelf withall his heart, to obſerve it: and not he that maketh a vain babling of outward & curious matters.

[e] And ſuch a one is he, whom the Lord hath endued with true doctrine, and with the holy Ghoſt.

[f] To ſuch as make an art, as it were, of ſinning.

9 He ſetteth againſt fond and vain babbling, not only the Law, but the Goſpel alſo, which condemneth not, but greatly commendeth the wholeſom doctrine contained in the commandements of God, and therefore he calleth it a glorious Goſpel, and the Goſpel of the bleſſed God, the vertue whereof theſe babblers knew not.

10 A reaſon why neither any other Goſpel is to be taught then he hath taught in the Church, neither after any other ſort, becauſe there is no other Goſpel beſide that, which God committed to him.

11 He maintaineth of neceſſitie his Apoſtleſhip againſt ſome that did carp at his former life, debaſing himſelf even to hell, to advance Chriſts only mercie, wherewith he aboliſhed all thoſe his former doings.

[g] Which gave me ſtrength, not onely when I had no will to doe well, but alſo when I was wholly given to evill.

[h] Theſe are the preparative works which Paul braggeth of.

12 He proveth this change by the effects, for that, that he that was a profane man, is become a beleever: and he that did moſt outragiouſly perſecute Chriſt, burneth now in love toward him. 13 He turneth the reproch of the adverſaries upon their own head, ſhewing that this ſingular example of the goodneſſe of God, redoundeth to the commoditie of the whole Church. [i] Worthy to be beleeved. * *Math.*9.13. Marke 2.17. 14 He breaketh out into an exclamation, even for very zeal of mind, for that he cannot ſatisfie himſelf in amplifying the grace of God. [k] Look Iohn 17.3. 15 The concluſion of both the former fatherly admonitions, to wit, that Timothie ſtriving manfully againſt all lets, being called to the miniſterie according to many prophecies which went before of him, ſhould both maintain the doctrine which he had received, & keep alſo a good conſcience. [l] By the help of them. [m] Wholeſom and ſound doctrine. 16 Whoſoever keep not a good conſcience, do loſe alſo by little and little, the gift of underſtanding: which he proveth by two moſt lamentable examples. * 1 *Cor.*5.5. 17 Such as fall from God, and his religion, are not to be ſuffered in the Church, but rather ought to be excommunicated. [n] Caſt out of the Church, and ſo delivered them to Satan. [o] That by their ſmart they might learn what it is to blaſpheme.

CHAP. II.

1 He exhorteth them to make publike prayers for all men, 4. 5 and that for two cauſes: 8 And therefore he willeth all men in all places to pray. 9 And declareth in what apparell, 11 and with what modeſtie, women ought to behave themſelves in holy aſſemblies.

I [1] Exhort therefore, that firſt of all ſupplications, prayers, interceſſions, and giving of thanks be made for all men,

2 For Kings, and for all that are in authoritie, [2] that we may lead a quiet and a peaceable life, in all godlineſſe aud [a] honeſtie:

3 [3] For this is good and acceptable in the ſight of God our Saviour,

4 Who will that al men ſhall be ſaved, and come unto the acknowledging of the trueth.

5 [4] For there is one God, and one Mediatour between God and man, which is the [b] man Chriſt Jeſus, 6 Who gave himſelf a ranſome for all men, [5] to be that teſtimonie in due time.

7 * Whereunto I am ordained a Preacher and an Apoſtle (I ſpeak the trueth in Chriſt, and lie not) even a teacher of the Gentiles in [c] faith and veritie.

8 [6] I will therefore that the men pray, every where [d] lifting up pure hands without [e] wrath, or [f] doubting.

9 * [7] Likewiſe alſo the women, that they aray themſelves in comely apparell, with ſhamefaſtneſſe and modeſtie, not with broided hair, or gold, or pearles, or coſtly apparell,

10 But (as becommeth women that profeſſe the fear of God) with good works.

11 Let the woman learn in ſilence with all ſubjection.

12 * I permit not a woman to teach, [8] neither to uſurpe authoritie over the man, but to be in ſilence:

13 [9] For * Adam was firſt formed, then Eve.

14 * [10] And Adam was not [g] deceived, but the woman was deceived, and vvas in the tranſgreſſion.

15 [11] Notwithſtanding, through bearing of children ſhee ſhall be ſaved, if they continue in faith, and love, and holineſſe with modeſtie.

1 Having diſpatched thoſe things which pertain to doctrine, he ſpeaketh now in the ſecond place of the other part of the miniſterie of the word, to wit, of publike prayers. And firſt of all, declaring this queſtion, for whom we ought to pray: he teacheth that we muſt pray for all men, and eſpecially, for all manner of Magiſtrates, which thing was at that time ſomewhat doubted of, ſeeing that Kings, yea, and the moſt part of Magiſtrates were at that time enemies of the Church.

3 An argument taken of the end: to wit, becauſe yͤ magiſtrates are appointed to this end, yͭ men might peaceably and quietly live in all godlineſſe and honeſtie, and therefore muſt we commend them eſpecially to God, that they may faithfully execute ſo neceſſarie an office.

[a] This word conteineth all kind of duety, which is to be uſed amongſt men in all their affaires.

3 Another argument, why Churches or Congregations ought to pray for al men, without any difference of nation, kind, age, or order: to wit, becauſe the Lord by calling of all ſorts, yea ſometime thoſe that are greateſt enemies to the Goſpel, will have his Church gathered together after this ſort, and therefore prayers to be made for all.

4 God ſhould not elſe be manifeſted to be the only God of all men, unleſſe he ſhould ſhew his goodneſſe in ſaving of all ſorts of men: neither ſhould Chriſt be ſeen to be the only Mediatour between God & al ſorts of men, by having taken upon him yͤ nature of man which is common to all men, unleſſe he had ſatisfied for all ſorts of men, and made interceſſion for all. [b] Chriſt Ieſus which was made man. 5 A confirmation becauſe yͭ even to the Gentiles is yͤ ſecret of ſalvation now opened & made manifeſt, yͤ Apoſtle himſelf being appointed properly to this office, which he doth faithfully & ſincerely execute. * 2 *Tim.*1.11. [c] Faithfully & ſincerely: & by faith he meaneth wholeſom & ſound doctrine, & by trueth, an upright and ſincere handling of it. 6 He hath ſpoken of the perſons for whom we muſt pray: & now he teacheth that the difference of places is taken away: for in times paſt, one only nation, & in one certain place, came together to publike ſervice: but now Churches or Congregations are gathered together every where, (orderly and decently) & men come together to ſerve God publikly with common prayer, neither muſt we ſtrive for the nation, or for the purification of the body, or for the place, but for the mind to have it clean from all offence, & full of ſure truſt and confidence. [d] He putteth the ſigne for the thing it ſelf, the lifting up of hands for the calling upon God. [e] Without theſe griefs and offences of the mind, which hinder us from calling upon God with a good conſcience. [f] Doubting, which is againſt faith, Iames 1.6. * 1 *Pet.*3.3. 7 Thirdly, he appointeth women to learn in the publike aſſemblies with ſilence & modeſtie, being comely apparelled, without any riot or exceſſe in their apparell. * 1 *Cor.*14.34. 8 The firſt argument, why it is not lawfull for women to teach in the Congregation, becauſe by this meanes, they ſhould be placed above men, for they ſhould be their maſters: which is againſt Gods ordinance. 9 He proveth this ordinance of God, whereby the woman is ſubject to man, firſt by that yͭ God made the woman after man, for mans ſake. * *Gen.*1.27. & 2.7.21. * *Gen.*3.6. 10 Then, becauſe yͭ after ſin, God enjoyned the woman this puniſhment, for yͭ the man was deceived by her. [g] Adam was deceived, but through his wives means, & therefore ſhe is worthily for this cauſe ſubiect to her husband, and ought to be. 11 He addeth a comfort by the way, that their ſubjection hindereth not but that women may be ſaved as well as men, if they behave themſelves in thoſe burdens of marriage holily and modeſtly, with faith and charitie,

1 Having diſpatched the treatiſe, as well of doctrine and of the manner of handling of it, as alſo of publike, prayer, he now in the third place commeth to the perſons themſelves, ſpeaking firſt, of Paſtors, and afterward, of Deacons, and he uſeth a Preface, that the Church may know that theſe be certaine and ſure rules.

2 A biſhoprick, or the miniſterie of the word is not an idle dignitie, but a worke, and that an excellent worke, and therefore a Biſhop muſt be furniſhed with many vertues both at home and abroad. Wherefore it is requiſite before he be choſen to examine well his learning, his gifts, and ableneſſe, and his life.

a He ſpeaketh not heere of ambitious ſeeking, then the which there cannot be a worſe fault in the Church, but generally of the minde and diſpoſition of man, framed and diſpoſed to helpe and edifie the Church of God, when and whereſoever it ſhall pleaſe the Lord.

* Titus 2.6.

b Therefore he that ſhutteth out married men from the office of Biſhops, only becauſe they are married, is Antichriſt.

c A common tipler, and one that will ſit by it.

d Leſt by reaſon that he is a advanced to that degree, he take occaſion to be proud, which will undoe him, and ſo he fall into the ſame condemnation that the devill himſelfe is fallen into.

3 Likewiſe the Deacons muſt firſt be prooved, that there may be a good triall of their honeſtie, truth, ſobriety, minde void of covetouſneſſe, that they are well inſtructed in the doctrine of faith, and to bee ſhort, of their good conſcience and integritie.

C h a p. III.

He ſetteth out Biſhops, 8 and Chriſtian Deacons, with their wives, 12 children and family: 15 he calleth the Church the houſe of God.

THis [1] is a true ſaying, [2] If any man [a] deſire the office of a Biſhop, he deſireth a worthy worke.

2 * A Biſhop therefore muſt be unreproveable, the husband of [b] one wife, watching, temperate, modeſt, harberous, apt to teach,

3 Not [c] given to wine, no ſtriker, not given to filthie lucre, but gentle, no fighter, not covetous,

4 One that can rule his owne houſe honeſtly, having children under obedience with all honeſtie:

5 For if any cannot rule his own houſe, how ſhall he care for the Church of God?

6 He may not be a yong ſcholler, leſt he being puffed up fall into the [d] condemnation of the devill.

7 He muſt alſo be well reported of, even of them which are without, leſt he fall into rebuke, and the ſnare of the devill.

8 [3] Likewiſe muſt [e] Deacons be grave, not double tongued, not given unto much wine, neither to filthy lucre.

9 * Having, the [f] myſterie of the faith in pure conſcience.

10 And let them firſt be proved: then let them miniſter, if they by found blameleſſe.

11 [4] Likewiſe their wives muſt be honeſt, not evill ſpeakers, but ſober, and faithfull in all things.

12 [5] Let the Deacons be the husbands of one wife, and ſuch as can rule their children well, and their owne houſholds.

13 For they that have miniſtred well, get themſelves a good [g] degree, and [h] great liberty in the faith, which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

14 [6] Theſe things write I unto thee, truſting to come very ſhortly unto thee.

15 But if I tarie long, that thou mayeſt yet know, how thou oughteſt to behave thy ſelfe in the [7] houſe of God, which is the Church of the living God, the [i] pillar and ground of trueth.

16 [8] And without controverſie, great is the myſterie of godlineſſe, which is, God is manifeſted in the fleſh, [k] juſtified in the Spirit, ſeen of Angels, preached unto the Gentiles, beleeved on in the world, and received up in glory.

C h a p. IV.

1 He condemneth aſwell falſe doctrines 3 of marriage and the choice of meates, 7 as alſo prophane fables: 8 And commendeth the godly exerciſe, 13 and the daily reading of the Scripture.

NOw the [1] Spirit ſpeaketh evidently, that in the latter times ſome ſhall depart from the [a] faith, and ſhall give heed unto ſpirits of errour, and doctrines of devils,

2 [2] Which ſpeake lies through [b] hypocriſie, and have their [c] conſciences burned with an hote yron,

3 [3] Forbidding to marry, and commanding to abſtaine from meats [4] which God hath created [5] to be received [6] with giving thankes of them which beleeve and know the trueth.

4 [7] For every creature of God is good, and nothing ought to be refuſed, if it be received with thankeſgiving.

5 [8] For it is [d] ſanctified by the [e] word of God, and prayer.

6 [9] If thou put the brethren in remembrance of theſe things, thou ſhalt be a good miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt, which haſt beene nouriſhed up in the words of faith, and of good doctrine, which thou haſt continually [f] followed.

7 [10] But caſt away profane, and old wives fables, [11] and exerciſe thy ſelfe unto [g] godlineſſe.

8 [12] For bodily exerciſe profiteth little: but godlineſſe is profitable unto all things, which hath the promiſe of the life preſent, and of that that is to come.

9 [13] This is a true ſaying, and by all means worthy to be received.

10 For therefore we labour and are rebuked, becauſe we truſt in the living God, which is the Saviour of all men, ſpecially of thoſe that beleeve.

11 Theſe things warne and teach.

12 [14] Let no man deſpiſe thy youth, but be unto them that beleeve, an enſample, in word, in converſation, in love, in ſpirit, in faith and in pureneſſe.

Chap. V.

1 Having ſet down a manner how to rebuk all degrees, 3 he intreateth of widowes, who then were choſen for the ſervice of the Church: 17 Then he commeth to Elders, 23 and ſpeaketh ſomewhat touching the health of the body.

REbuke [1] not an Elder, but exhort him as a Father, and the younger men as brethren,

2 The elder women as Mothers, the yonger as ſiſters, with all pureneſſe.

3 [2] [a] Honour widowes, which are widowes in deed.

4 [3] But if any widow have children, or nephewes, let them learn firſt to ſhew godlineſſe [4] toward their own houſe, and [5] to recompenſe their kinred: [6] for that is an honeſt thing, and acceptable before God.

5 [7] And ſhe that is a widow in deed & left alone, truſteth in God, and continueth in ſupplications and prayers night and day.

6 [8] But ſhe that liveth in pleaſure, is dead while ſhe liveth.

7 Theſe things therefore warn them of, that they may be blameleſſe.

8 If there be any that provideth not for his own, and namely for them of his houſehold, he denieth the faith, and is worſe then an infidell.

9 [9] Let not a widow be taken into the number under threeſcore yeare old, that hath been the wife of [b] one husband,

10 And well reported of for good works: if ſhe have nouriſhed her children, if ſhe have lodged the ſtrangers, if ſhe have [c] waſhed the Saints feet, if ſhe have miniſtred unto them which were in adverſitie, if ſhe were continually given unto every good worke.

11 [10] But [d] refuſe the yonger widowes: for when they have begun to waxe wanton againſt Chriſt, they will marrie, 12 Having damnation, becauſe they have broken the firſt faith.

13 [11] And likewiſe alſo being idle, they learne to goe about from houſe to houſe: yea, they are not onely idle, but alſo pratlers and buſie-bodies, ſpeaking things which are not comely.

14 [12] I will therefore that the yonger women marry, and beare children, and governe the houſe, and give none occaſion to the adverſary to ſpeake evill:

15 For certaine are alreadie turned back after Satan.

16 [13] If any faithfull man or faithfull woman have widowes, let them miniſter unto them, and let not the Church be charged, that there may be ſufficient for them that are widowes in deed.

17 ¶ [14] The Elders that rule wel, let them be had in [e] double honour, [f] ſpecially they which labour in the word and doctrine.

18 For the Scripture ſaith, * Thou ſhalt not muzzle the mouth of the oxe that treadeth out the corn: and, * The labourer is worthy of his wages.

19 [15] Againſt an Elder receive none accuſation, but under two or three witneſſes.

20 [16] Them that ſinne, rebuke openly, that the reſt alſo may feare.

21 ¶ * [17] I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the elect Angels, that thou obſerve theſe things without preferring one before another, and do nothing partially.

22 [18] Lay hands [g] ſuddenly on no man, neither be partaker of other mens ſins: keep thy ſelfe pure.

23 [19] Drinke no longer water, but uſe a little wine for thy ſtomacks ſake, and thine often infirmities.

24 [20] Some mens ſins are open before hand, and go before unto judgement: but ſome mens follow after.

25 [21] Likewiſe alſo the good works are manifeſt before-hand, and they that are otherviſe cannot be hid.

12 The fift rule: Let yonger widowes marrie, and governe their houſes godly.

13 The ſixt rule: Let the faithfull helpe their widowes at their own charges as much as they can, and let not the Congregation be burdened with theſe expenſes.

14 Now he giveth rules, and ſheweth how he ought to behave himſelfe with the Elders, that is to ſay, with the Paſtours, and ſuch as have the governance in the diſcipline of the Church, which is preſident of their company. The firſt rule. Let the Church or Congregation ſee unto this eſpecially, as God himſelfe hath commanded, that the Elders that doe their duetie well, be honeſtly maintained.

e We muſt be more carefull for them then for the reſt.

f There were two kindes of Elders, the one attended upon the governement onely, & looked to the manners of the Congregation, the other did beſide that attend upon preaching and prayers, to and for the Congregation.

* *Deuteron.*25.4. 1 *Cor.*9.9.

* Matt. 10. 10. Luke 10.7.

15 The ſecond rule. Let no accuſation be admitted againſt an Elder, but under two or three witneſſes.

16 The third rule. Let the Elders ſo convicted be rebuked openly, that they may be an example to other.

* *Chap.*6.13.

17 The fourth rule. Let ſinceritie be uſed without any prejudice or reſpect of perſons in Eccleſiaſticall proceedings (eſpecially againſt the Elders) becauſe God himſelfe is there preſent, and the Lord Ieſus Chriſt with a multitude of Angels. 18 The fift rule. Let the miniſter lay hands ſuddenly on no man. Let him not be faultie herein, either by favouring any mans folly, or perverſe affection: If ought be done otherwiſe then well of his fellowes, let him keep his conſcience pure. g As much as in thee lieth, doe not raſhly admit any whatſoever to any Eccleſiaſticall function. 19 The ſixt rule. Let the Elders have indifferent conſideration of their health, in the manner of their diet. 20 Becauſe hypocrites ſometimes creep into the miniſtery, although there be never ſo great diligence uſed, the Apoſtle willeth the Paſtours not to be troubled therefore, or ſlack any whit of their diligence in trying and examining, becauſe the Lord hath appointed a time to diſcover the faults of ſuch men, and it is our parts to take heed that we offend not therein. 21 Another comfort belonging to them, which ſometimes are ſlandered and miſreported of.

Chap. VI.

1 He ſheweth the duetie of ſervants: 10 and what a miſchievous evill covetouſneſſe is: 13 and having ſpoken ſomewhat of rich men, he once againe forbiddeth Timothie 20 to cumber himſelfe with vaine babblings.

LEt [1] as many ſervants as are under the yoke, count their maſters worthy of all honour, [2] that the Name of God, and his doctrine be not evill ſpoken of.

1 He addeth alſo rules for the ſervants duetie towards their maſters: whereupon no doubt there were many queſtions then moved by them, which tooke occaſion by the Goſpel to trouble the common ſtate. And this is the firſt rule: Let ſervants that are come to the faith, and have infidels to their maſters, ſerve them notwithſtanding with great fidelitie. 2 The reaſon, leſt God ſhould ſeeme by the doctrine of the Goſpel to ſtirre up men to rebellion and all wickedneſſe.

2 [3] And they which have beleeving maſters, let them not deſpiſe them, becauſe they are brethren, but rather doe ſervice, becauſe they are faithfull, and beloved, and [a] partakers of the benefit. [4] Theſe things teach and exhort.

3 [5] If any man teach otherwiſe, and conſenteth not to the wholeſome words of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and to the doctrine, which is according to godlineſſe,

4 He is puft up and knoweth nothing, but doteth about queſtions and [b] ſtrife of words, whereof commeth envie, ſtrife, railings, evill ſurmiſings,

5 Froward [c] diſputations of men of corrupt mindes, and deſtitute of the trueth, which thinke that gaine is godlineſſe: from ſuch ſeparate thy ſelfe.

6 [6] But godlineſſe is great gaine, if a man be content with that he hath.

7 [7] For we brought nothing into the world, and it is certaine, that we can cary nothing out.

8 Therefore when we have food and raiment, let us therewith be content.

9 [8] For they that will be rich, fall into tentation and ſnares, and into many fooliſh and noiſome luſts, which drown men in perdition and deſtruction.

10 For the deſire of money is the root of all evill, which while ſome luſted after, they erred from the faith, and [d] pearced themſelves through with many ſorrowes.

11 [9] But thou, O [e] man of God, flee theſe things, and follow after righteouſnes, godlines, faith, love, patience, and meekenes.

12 Fight the good fight of faith: lay hold of eternall life, whereunto thou art alſo called, and haſt profeſſed a good profeſſion before many witneſſes.

13 * [10] I charge thee in the ſight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Jeſus Chriſt, which under Pontius Pilate * witneſſed a good confeſſion,

14 That thou keep this commandement without ſpot, and unrebukeable, untill the appearing of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

15 Which in due time he ſhall ſhew, that is [f] * bleſſed and Prince only, the King of kings, and Lord of lords:

16 Who onely hath immortality, and dwelleth in the light that none can attaine unto, * whom never man ſaw, neither can ſee, unto whom be honour and power everlaſting, Amen.

17 [11] Charge them that are rich in [g] this world, that they be not high minded, and that they * truſt not in uncertaine riches, but in the [h] living God, (which giveth us abundantly, all things to enjoy.)

18 That they do good, and be rich in good works, and be ready to diſtribute, and communicate.

19 * [12] Laying up in ſtore for themſelves a good foundation againſt the time to come, that they may obtaine eternall life.

20 [13] O Timotheus, keep that which is commited unto thee, and avoide profane and vaine bablings, & oppoſitions of ſcience * falſly ſo called,

21 Which while ſome [i] profeſſe, they have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee, Amen.

3 The ſecond rule: Let not ſervants that are come to the faith, and have alſo maſters of the ſame profeſſion and religion, abuſe the name of brotherhood, but let them ſo much the rather obey them.

a Let this be ſufficient, that as touching thoſe things which pertaine to everlaſting life, they are partakers of the ſame good will and love of God, as their maſters themſelves are.

4 A generall concluſion, that theſe things ought not onely to be ſimply taught, but muſt with exhortations be diligently beaten into their heads.

5 Hee condemneth ſeverely, and excommunicateth or caſteth out of the Church as proud men, ſuch as content not themſelves with Chriſts doctrine, (that is to ſay the doctrine of godlineſſe) but wearie both themſelves and others, in vaine queſtions, (for all other things are vaine) becauſe they content not themſelves in Chriſts doctrine: and as lying deceivers, becauſe they ſavour or ſound of nothing but vanitie: as mad men, becauſe they trouble themſelves ſo much in matters of nothing: as miſchievous plagues, for that they cauſe great contentions, and corrupt mens mindes and judgment: to be ſhort, as prophane and wicked, becauſe they abuſe the precious name of godlineſſe and religion, to filthie lucre.

b Striving about words, and not about matter: and by words he meaneth all thoſe things which have not pith in them, and whereby we can reape no profit. c Such as we ſee in thoſe ſhameleſſe Schooles of Poperie, which are nothing elſe but vaine babbling and pratling. 6 He turneth away fitly the name of gaine and lucre, confeſſing that godlineſſe is great gaine, but farre after another ſort, to wit, becauſe it bringeth true ſufficiencie. 7 He mocketh their folly, which doe ſo greedily gape after fraile things, that they can in no wiſe be ſatisfied, and yet notwithſtanding they cannot enjoy that exceſſe. 8 He fraieth Timothie from covetouſneſſe after another ſort, to wit, becauſe it draweth with it an infinite ſort of luſts, & thoſe very hurtfull, wherewith covetous men doe torment themſelves ſo farre forth, that in the end they caſt away from them their faith and ſalvation. d Sorrow and griefe do as it were pearce thorow the mind of man, and are the harveſt and true fruits of covetouſneſſe. 9 A peculiar exhortation to divers vertues, wherewith it behoveth the Paſtours eſpecially to be furniſhed. e Whom the Spirit of God ruleth.

* Chap. 5. 21.

10 A moſt earn requeſt & charg to obſerve & ke all the premiſſe faithfully, with our eyes ſet up the comming o Ieſus Chriſt, who glory we have ſet againſt the vaine gliſtering this world, and h power againſt the terrours of th wicked.

* Matt. 27. 11. Iohn. 18.37.

* Chap. 1.11. reve. 17 14.& 19.16.

* Iohn 1. 18.

11 He addeth fo an overplus, as i were, a ſharpe admonition to the rich, that they chiefly take heed of two miſchiefes, to wit, of pride, & deceithfull hope, againſt which he ſetteth three excellent vertues, hope in the living God, liberalitie towards their neighbour, and gentle conditions.

g In things pertaining to this life, with whom thoſe men are compared which are rich in good workes.

* Marke 4. 19. Luke 12. 15.

h Who only is, and that everlaſting: for he ſetteth the fraile nature of riches againſt God.

* Mat. 6.2.

12 The praiſe of liberalitie, by the effects thereof: becauſe it is a ſure teſtimonie of the Spirit of God which dwelleth in us, and therefore of the ſalvation that ſhall be given us.

13 He rehearſeth the chiefeſt of all the former exhortations, which ought to be deepely imprinted in the minds of all Miniſters of the word, to wit, that they eſchew all vaine bablings of Sophiſtry, and continue in the ſimplicitie of ſincere doctrine.

i Not onely in word, but alſo in countenance and geſture: to be ſhort, whiles their behaviour was ſuch, that even when they held their peace, they would make men beleeve, their heads were occupied about nothing but high and weighty matters, even then they erred concerning the faith.

THE

OF PAVL TO TIMOTHEVS.

CHAP. I.

5 He commendeth Timotheus faith, 6 and exhorteth him to go on faithfully in the charge committed unto him: 8 And that neither for the bonds, 15 nor the revolting of others, he faint. 11 He triumpheth of his Apoſtleſhip. 14 He willeth him to have care of the thing committed unto him, 16 and praiſeth Oneſiphorus.

PAul an Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by the will of God, [a] according to the promiſe of life which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

2 To Timotheus my beloved ſon: Grace, mercie and peace from God the Father, and from Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

3 [1] I thanke God, *whom I ſerve from mine [b] Elders with pure conſcience, that without ceaſing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day,

4 Deſiring to ſee thee, mindefull of thy teares, that I may be filled with joy:

5 When I call to remembrance the unfained faith that is in thee, which dwelt firſt in thy grandmother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice, and am aſſured that it dwelleth in thee alſo.

6 [2] Wherefore, I put thee in remembrance that thou [c] ſtirre up the gift of God which is in thee, by the putting on of mine hands:

7 For God hath not given us the ſpirit of [d] feare, but of power, and of love, and of a ſound minde.

8 [3] Be not therefore aſhamed of the teſtimonie of our Lord, neither of mee [e] his priſoner: but be partaker of the afflictions of the [f] Goſpel, according to the [g] power of God:

9 [4] Who hath ſaved us, and called us with an * holy calling, not according to our * works, but according to his own purpoſe and grace, which was [h] given to us through Chriſt Jeſus [i] before the * world was,

10 But is now made manifeſt by that appearing of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, who hath aboliſhed death, and hath brought life and immortalitie unto [k] light through the Goſpel,

11 * [5] Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, and Apoſtle, and a teacher of the Gentiles, 12 [6] For the which cauſe I alſo ſuffer theſe things, [7] but I am not aſhamed: for I know whom I have beleeved, and I am perſwaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed to him againſt that day.

13 [8] Keep the true paterne of the wholeſome words, which thou haſt heard of me in faith and love which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

14 [9] That worthy thing, which was committed to thee, keep [10] through the holy Ghoſt, which dwelleth in us.

15 [11] This thou knoweſt, that all they which are in Aſia, be turned from me: of which ſort are Phygellus and Hermogenes.

16 The Lord give mercie unto the houſe of Oneſiphorus: for he oft refreſhed me, and was not aſhamed of my chaine, 17 But when he was at Rome, he ſought me out very diligently, and found me.

18 The Lord grant unto him, that he may find mercie with the Lord at that day, and in how many things he hath miniſtred unto me at Epheſus, thou knoweſt very well.

CHAP. II.

2 The better to ſet out perſeverance in the Christian warfare, 3 he taketh ſimilitudes 4 from ſouldiers, 6 and from huſbandmen. 10 He ſheweth that his bonds are for the profit of the Saints: 15 Then he warneth Timothie to divide the word of trueth aright, 17 to beware of the examples of the wicked, 22 and to doe all things modeſtly.

THou [1] therefore, my ſon, be ſtrong in the grace that is in Chriſt Jeſus.

2 And what things thou haſt heard of

[a] Sent of God to preach that life, which he promiſed in Chriſt Ieſus.

[1] The chiefeſt marke that he ſhooteth at in this Epiſtle, is to confirme Timothie to continue conſtantly, and manfully, even to the end, ſetting firſt before him, the great good will he beareth him, and then reckoning up the excellent gifts which God would as it were have to be by inheritance in Timothie, and his anceſtors, which might ſo much the more make him bound to God.

* Acts 22.3.

[b] From Abraham, Iſaac and Iacob: for he ſpeaketh not of Phariſaiſme, but of Chriſtianiſme.

[2] He warneth us to ſet the invincible power of the Spirit, which God hath given us againſt thoſe ſtormes which may, and do come upon us.

[c] The gift of God is as it were a certaine lively flame kindled in our hearts, which the fleſh and the devill goe about to put out: and therefore we, on the contrary ſide, muſt labour as much as we can to foſter and keepe it burning.

[d] To pearce us thorow, and terrifie us, as men whom the Lord will deſtroy.

[3] He proveth that the ignominie or ſhame of the croſſe, is not onely, not to be aſhamed of, but alſo that it is glorious and moſt honourable: firſt, becauſe the Goſpel wherefore the godly are afflicted, is the teſtimonie of Chriſt: and ſecondly, becauſe at length the great vertue and power of God appeareth in them.

[f] The Goſpel after a ſort is ſaid to be afflicted in them that preach it.

[g] Through the power of God.

[4] He ſheweth with how great benefits God hath bound us, to maintaine boldly and conſtantly his glory which is joyned with our ſalvation, and reckoneth up the cauſes of our ſalvation, to wit, that free and eternall purpoſe of God, to ſave us in Chriſt, which was to come, whereby it ſhould come to paſſe, that we ſhould at length be freely called of God by the preaching of the Goſpel, to Chriſt the deſtroyer of death and authour of immortalitie.

* 1 Cor.1,2.

* Titus 3.5.

[h] He ſaith, that that grace was given us from everlaſting, unto which we were predeſtinate from everlaſting. So that the doctrine of foreſeene faith & foreſeene workes, is cleane contrary to the doctrine which preacheth & teacheth the grace of God.

[i] Before that courſe of yeares which hath runne on, ever ſince the beginning of the world.

* Rom. 16.25. Eph. 1.4. Col. 1.16. Titus 1.2.

[k] Hath cauſed life and immortalitie to appeare.

* 1 Tim. 2.7.

[5] That is, the Goſpel which the Apoſtle preached.

[6] He confirmeth his Apoſtleſhip by a ſtrange argument, to wit, becauſe the world could not abide it, and therefore it perſecuted him that preached it.

[7] By ſetting his own example before us, he ſheweth us how it may be, that we ſhall not be aſhamed of the Croſſe of Chriſt, to wit, if we be ſure that God both can and will keep the ſalvation which he hath, as it were, layd up in ſtore by himſelfe for us againſt that day.

[8] He ſheweth wherein he ought to be moſt conſtant, to wit, both in the doctrine it ſelfe, the abridgement whereof is faith and charitie, and next in the manner of teaching it, a lively paterne and ſhape whereof Timothie knew in the Apoſtle.

[9] An amplification taken of the dignitie of ſo great a benefit committed to the miniſters.

[10] The taking away of an objection. It is an hard thing to doe it, but the Spirit of God is mighty, who hath inwardly indued us with his vertue.

[11] He preventeth an offence which aroſe by the meanes of certaine that fell from God, and the religion, and uttereth alſo their names, that they might be knowen of all men. But he ſetteth againſt them the ſingular faith of one man, that one onely good example might counterpoiſe and weigh down all evill examples.

[1] The concluſion of the former exhortation which hath alſo added unto it a declaration, how that they do not keep that worthy thing that is committed unto them, which keep it to themſelves, but they rather, which do moſt freely communicate it with other, to the end that many may be partakers of it, without any mans loſſe or hinderance.

me, by [a] many witneſſes, the ſame deliver to faithfull men, which ſhal be able to teach others alſo.

3 [2] Thou therefore ſuffer affliction as a good ſouldier of Jeſus Chriſt.

4 No man that warreth, entangleth himſelfe with the affaires of [b] this life, becauſe he would pleaſe him that hath choſen him to be a ſouldier.

5 [3] And if any man alſo ſtrive for a maſterie, he is not crowned, except he ſtrive as he ought to doe.

6 [4] The husbandman muſt labour before he receive the fruits.

7 [5] Conſider what I ſay: and the Lord give thee underſtanding in all things:

8 [6] Remember that Jeſus Chriſt, made of the ſeed of David, was raiſed againe from the dead, according to my Goſpel,

9 [7] Wherein I ſuffer troubles as an evill doer, even unto bonds: but the word of God is not bound.

10 Therefore I ſuffer all things for the elects ſake, that they might alſo obteine the ſalvation which is in Chriſt Jeſus, with eternall glory.

11 [8] It is a true ſaying, For if we be * [c] dead together with him, we ſhall alſo live together with him.

12 If we ſuffer, we ſhall alſo reigne together with him: * if we denie him, he alſo will denie us.

13 If * we beleeve not, yet abideth he faithfull: he cannot denie himſelfe.

14 Of theſe things put them in remembrance, and [d] proteſt before the Lord, that they ſtrive not about words, which is to no profit, but to the perverting of the hearers.

15 [9] Studie to ſhew thy ſelfe approved unto God, a workeman that needeth not to be aſhamed, dividing the word of trueth [e] aright.

16 [f] Stay prophane and vaine bablings: [10] for they ſhall increaſe unto more ungodlineſſe.

17 And their word ſhall fret as a canker: of which ſort is Hymeneus and Philetus, 18 Which as concerning the trueth, have erred from the marke, ſaying, that the reſurrection is paſt already, and do deſtroy the faith of certaine.

[a] When many were by, which can beare witneſſe of theſe things.

[2] Another admonition: That the miniſterie of the word is a ſpirituall warfare, which no man can ſo travaile in, that he may pleaſe his captain, unleſſe he forgoe and part with all hinderances which might draw him away from it.

[b] With affaires of houſehold, or other things that belong to other ordinary buſineſſes.

[3] The third admonition: The Miniſtery is like to a game or juſting, wherein men ſtrive for the victory, and no man is crowned, unleſſe he ſtrive according to the lawes which are preſcribed, be they never ſo hard and painefull.

[4] Another ſimilitude, tending to the ſame end, no man may looke for the harveſt, unleſſe he firſt take paines to plow and ſow his ground.

[5] All theſe things cannot be underſtood, and much leſſe practiſed, unleſſe we aske of God, and he give us underſtanding.

[6] He confirmeth plainely two principles of our faith, which are alwayes aſſaulted of heretikes, the one whereof (to wit, that Chriſt is the true Meſſias, made man of the ſeed of David) is the ground of our ſalvation: and the other is the higheſt part of it, to wit, that he is riſen againe from the dead.

[7] The taking away of an objection: Trueth it is, that he is kept in priſon as an evill doer, yet there is no cauſe, why therefore ſome ſhould goe about to derogate credite from his Goſpel, ſeeing that nothwithſtanding God did bleſſe his miniſterie, nay rather, that example of this his captivitie and patience, did ſundrie wayes confirme the Church in the hope of a better life.

[8] The fourth admonition: Wee ought not to contend upon words and queſtions, which are not onely unprofitable, but alſo for the moſt part hurtfull: but rather upon this, how we may frame our ſelves to all manner of patience, and to die alſo with Chriſt (that is to ſay, for Chriſts Name) becauſe that is the plaine way to the moſt glorious life: as contrariwiſe, the falling away of men can diminiſh no part of the trueth of God, although by ſuch meanes they procure moſt certaine deſtruction to themſelves. * Rom. 6.5. [c] If we be afflicted with Chriſt, and for Chriſt his ſake. * Matt. 10.33. Marke 8.38. * Rom. 3.3. and 9.6. [d] Call God to witneſſe, or as a Iudge: as Moſes, Ioſhua, Samuel, and Paul himſelfe did, Actes 20. [9] The fift admonition: A Miniſter muſt not be an idle diſputer, but a faithfull ſteward, in dividing aright the word of trueth, in ſo much that he muſt ſtop the mouthes of other vaine bablers. [e] By adding nothing to it, neither overſkipping any thing, neither mangling it, nor renting it in ſunder, nor wreſting of it: but marking diligently what his hearers are able to beare, and what is fit to edifying. [f] Marke and watch, and ſee they creepe not on further. [10] He diſcovereth the ſubtilitie of Satan, who beginning with theſe principles, draweth us by little and little to ungodlineſſe through the meanes of that wicked and prophane babling, ſtill creeping on: which he proveth by the horrible example of them that taught, that the reſurrection was already paſt.

19 [11] But the foundation of God remaineth ſure, and hath this ſeale, The Lord knoweth who are his: and, Let every one that [g] calleth on the Name of Chriſt, depart from iniquitie.

20 [12] Notwithſtanding, in a great houſe are not onely veſſels of gold and of ſilver, but alſo of wood and of earth, * and ſome for honour, and ſome unto diſhonour.

21 If any man therefore [h] purge himſelf from theſe, he ſhall be a veſſell unto honour, ſanctified, and meet for the Lord, and prepared unto every good worke.

22 [13] Flee alſo from the luſts of youth, and follow after righteouſnes, faith, love, and [14] peace, with them that * call on the Lord with pure heart, 23 * And put away fooliſh and unlearned queſtions, knowing that they ingender ſtrife.

24 But the ſervant of the Lord muſt not ſtrive, but muſt be gentle toward all men, apt to teach, [i] ſuffering the evill,

25 Inſtructing them with meekeneſſe that are [k] contrary minded, proving if God at any time will give them repentance, that they may acknowledge the trueth, 26 And come to amendment out of the ſnare of the devill, of whom they are taken priſoners, to doe his will.

[11] A digreſſion, wherein he ſalveth that offence that roſe by their falling away: ſhewing firſt, that the elect are out of all danger of any ſuch falling away: ſecondly, that they are knowen to God, and not to us: and therefore it is no marveile if we count hypocrits oftentims for the true brethren: but we muſt take heed that we be not like them, but rather that we be indeed ſuch as we are ſaid to be.

[g] That ſerveth and worſhippeth him, and is as it were named of him, a faithfull man, or Chriſtian.

[12] The taking away of an objection: It is no diſhonour to the good man of the houſe, that he hath not in a great houſe all veſſels of one ſort and for one ſervice, but we muſt looke to this, that we be found veſſels prepared to honour.

* Rom. 9.21.

[h] By theſe words is meant the execution of the matter, and not the cauſe: for in that we purge our ſelves, it is not to be attributed to any free will that is in us, but to God, who freely and wholly worketh in us a good and an effectuall will. [13] Returning to the matter from whence he digreſſed, verſe 16. he warneth him to exerciſe himſelfe in weighty matters, and ſuch as perteine to godlineſſe. [14] The ſixt admonition: We muſt above all things eſchew all bitternes of mind, both in teaching all men, and alſo in calling them backe which have gone out of the way. * 1 Cor. 1.2. * 1 Tim. 1.4. and 4.7 Titus 3.9. [i] To winne them through our patient bearing with them, but not to pleaſe them, or excuſe them in their wickedneſſe. [k] He meaneth ſuch as doe not yet ſee the trueth.

CHAP. III.

1 He foretelleth the dangerous times that are to enſue, 9 but with the certaine hope of victorie, 10 he encourageth him to the combat, ſetting out eſpecially the triall of ſound doctrine.

THis [1] know alſo, that in the * laſt dayes ſhall come perillous times:

2 For men ſhalbe lovers of their own ſelves, covetous, boaſters, proud, curſed ſpeakers, diſobedient to parents, unthankefull, [a] unholy,

3 Without naturall affection, truce breakers, falſe accuſers, intemperate, fierce, no lovers at all of them which are good,

4 Traitours, headie, high minded, lovers of pleaſures more then lovers of God,

5 Having a ſhew of godlineſſe, but have denied the power thereof: [2] turn away therefore from ſuch:

6 For of this ſort are they which creepe into houſes, and leade captive ſimple women laden with ſinnes, and led with divers luſts,

7 Which women are ever learning, and are never able to come to the acknowledging of the trueth.

8 * And as Jannes and Jambres withſtood Moſes, ſo doe theſe alſo reſiſt the trueth, men

[1] The ſeventh admonition: We may not hope for any Church in this world without corruption: but there ſhalbe rather great abundance of moſt wicked men, even in the very boſome of the Church, which notwithſtanding ſhall make a ſhew and countenance of great holineſſe, and charitie.

* 1 Tim. 4.1. 2 Pet. 3.3. Iude 18.

[a] Which make no account, either of right or honeſtie.

[2] We muſt not dally with ſuch men as reſiſt the trueth, not of ſimple ignorance but of a perverſe mind, (which thing appeareth by their fruits which he painteth out heere lively) but we muſt rather turn away from them.

* Exod. 7. 11.

men of corrupt mindes, reprobate concerning the faith.

9 [3] But they ſhall prevail no longer: for their madneſſe ſhall be evident unto all men, as theirs alſo was.

10 ¶ [4] But thou haſt [b] fully known my doctrine, manner of living, purpoſe, faith, long-ſuffering, love, patience,

11 Perſecutions, and afflictions which came unto me at [c] Antiochia, at Iconium, and at Lyſtri, which perſecutions I ſuffered: but from them all the Lord delivered me:

12 Yea, and all that will live godly in Chriſt Jeſus, ſhall ſuffer perſecution.

13 But the evill men and deceivers ſhall wax [d] worſe and worſe, deceiving, and being deceived.

14 But continue thou in the things which thou haſt learned, and which are committed unto thee, knowing of whom thou haſt learned them:

15 And that thou haſt known the holy Scriptures of a child, which are able to make thee wiſe unto ſalvation, through the faith which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

16 * [5] For the whole Scripture is given by inſpiration of God, and is profitable to teach, to convince, to correct, and to inſtruct in righteouſneſſe, 17 That the [e] man of God may be abſolute, being made perfect unto all good works.

Chap. IV.

1 He chargeth him to preach the Goſpel with all diligence. 3 in that ſo miſerable a time: 6 That his death is hard at hand, 8 yet ſo, that as a conquerour, he maketh haſte to a glorious triumph. 10 He ſheweth the cauſe why he ſendeth for Timothie, 11 even by reaſon of his preſent ſtate.

I [1] Charge thee therefore before God, and before the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which ſhall judge the quick and dead at that his appearing, and in his kingdome,

2 Preach the word: be inſtant, in ſeaſon and out of ſeaſon: improve, rebuke, exhort with al long-ſuffering, and doctrine:

3 [2] For the time will come, when they will not ſuffer wholeſome doctrine: but having their eares itching, ſhall after their own luſts, get them an heape of teachers,

4 And ſhall turn their eares from the truth, and ſhall be given to [a] fables.

5 [3] But watch thou in all things: ſuffer adverſitie: do the work of an Evangeliſt: [b] cauſe thy miniſtery to be throughly liked of.

6 [4] For I am now ready to be [c] offered, and the time of my departing is at hand.

7 I have fought a good fight, and have finiſhed my courſe: I have kept the faith.

8 For henceforth is laid up for me the crown of righteouſneſſe, which the Lord the righteous judge ſhall give me at that day: and not to me onely, but unto all them alſo that love that his appearing.

9 [5] Make ſpeed to come unto me at once:

10 For Demas hath forſaken me, and hath [d] embraced this preſent world, and is departed unto Theſſalonica, Creſcens is gone to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia.

11 * Onely Luke is with me. Take Mark and bring him with thee: for he is profitable unto me to miniſter.

12 And Tychicus have I ſent to Epheſus.

13 The cloke that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comeſt, bring with thee, and the books, but ſpecially the parchments.

14 Alexander the copperſmith hath done me much evill: the Lord reward him according to his works:

15 Of whom be thou ware alſo: for he withſtood our preaching ſore.

16 At my firſt anſwering no man aſſiſted me, but all forſook me: I pray God, that it may not be laid to their charge.

17 Notwithſtanding the Lord aſſiſted me, and ſtrengthened me, that by me the preaching might be fully beleeved, and that all the Gentiles ſhould heare: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the [e] lion.

18 And the Lord will deliver me from every [f] evill work, and will preſerve me unto his [g] heavenly kingdome: to whom be praiſe for ever and ever, Amen.

19 Salute Priſca and Aquila, and the * houſhold of Oneſiphorus.

20 Eraſtus abode at Corinthus: Trophimus I left at Miletum ſick.

21 Make ſpeed to come before winter. Eubulus greeteth thee, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren.

22 The Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with thy ſpirit: Grace be with you, Amen.

¶ The ſecond Epiſtle written from Rome unto Timotheus, the firſt Biſhop elected of the Church of Epheſus, when Paul was preſented the ſecond time before the Emperour Nero.

[3] He addeth a comfort: The Lord wil at length pluck off al their vizards.

[4] That we be not deceived by ſuch hypocrites, we muſt ſet before us the vertues of the holy ſervants of God, and we muſt not be afraid of perſecution which they ſuffered willingly, and which alwayes followeth true godlineſſe. But we muſt eſpecially hold faſt the doctrine of the Apoſtles, the ſumme whereof is this, that we are ſaved through faith in Chriſt Jeſus.

[b] Thou knoweſt throughly not onely what I taught and did, but alſo how I was minded and diſpiſed.

* 2 Pet. 1. 20.

[5] The eight admonition which is moſt precious: A Paſtour muſt be wiſe by the word of God onely: wherein we have perfectly delivered unto us whatſoever pertaineth either to diſcerne, know, and eſtabliſh true opinions, and to confute falſe: & furthermore to correct evill manners, and to frame good.

[e] The Prophets and expounders of Gods will, are properly and peculiarly called, Men of God.

[1] The principall and chief of all admonitions, being therefore propoſed with a moſt earneſt charge, is this: that the word of God be propounded with a certain holy importunitie, as neceſſity requireth: but ſo, that a good and true ground of ý doctrin be laid, and the vehemency be tempered with al holy meekneſſe.

[2] Faithfull paſtours in times paſt, took all occaſions they could, becauſe men were very prompt and ready to return to their fables

[a] To falſe and unprofitable doctrines which the world is now ſo bewitched withall, that it had rather the open light of the truth were utterly put out, then it would come out of darkneſſe.

[3] The wickedneſſe and falling away of the world ought to cauſe faithfull miniſters to be ſo much the more carefull.

[b] Prove and ſhew by good and ſubſtantiall proof, that thou art the true miniſter of God.

[4] He foretelleth his death to be at hand, and ſetteth before them an excellent example both of invinſible conſtancy, and ſure hope.

[c] To be offered for a drink offering: and he alludeth to the powring out of blood or wine which was uſed in ſacrifices.

[5] The laſt part of the Epiſtle, ſetting forth grievous complaints againſt certain, and examples of ſingular godlines in every place, & of a mind never wearied.

[d] Contented himſelf with this world.

* Col. 4. 10, 14.

[e] Of Nero.

[f] Preſerve me pure from committing any thing unworthy my Apoſtleſhip.

[g] To make me partaker of his kingdome.

THE EPISTLE OF PAVL TO TITVS.

Chap. I.

6 He ſheweth what kinde of men ought to be choſen miniſters, 10 How vain bablers mouthes ſhould be ſtopped: 12 And through this occaſion he toucheth the nature of the Cretians, 14 and the Iewes who put holineſſe in outward things.

Paul [1] [a] a ſervant of God, and an Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, according to the faith of Gods [b] elect, [2] and the acknowledging of the truth, which is according unto godlineſſe,

2 Unto the [c] hope of eternall life, which God that cannot lie, hath [d] promiſed before the * [e] world began:

3 [3] But hath made his word manifeſt in due time through the preaching, which is * committed unto me, according to the commandement of God our [f] Saviour:

4 [4] To Titus my naturall ſon according to the common faith, [5] Grace, mercy and peace from God the father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour.

5 [6] For this cauſe left I thee in Creta, that thou ſhouldeſt continue to redreſſe the things that remain, and ſhouldeſt ordain Elders in every city, as I appointed thee,

6 * If any be unreproveable, the huſband of one wife, having faithfull children, which are not ſlandered of riot, neither are [g] diſobedient.

7 [7] For a Biſhop muſt be unreproveable, as Gods [h] ſteward, not [i] froward, not angry, nor given to wine, no ſtriker, not given to filthy lucre,

8 But harberous, one that loveth goodneſſe, [k] wiſe, righteous, holy, temperate,

9 [8] Holding faſt that faithfull word according to doctrine, [9] that he alſo may be able to exhort with wholſome doctrine, and convince them that ſay againſt it:

10 [10] For there are many diſobedient and vain talkers and deceivers of minds, chiefly they of the [l] Circumciſion, 11 Whoſe mouthes muſt be ſtopped, which ſubvert whole houſes, teaching things, which they ought not, for filthy lucres ſake.

12 [m] One of themſelves, even one of their own prophets ſaid, The Cretians are alwayes liars, evill beaſts, ſlow bellies.

13 This witneſſe is true: wherefore convince them [n] ſharply, that they may be found in the faith,

14 And not taking heed to * Jewiſh fables, and commandements of men, that turn away from the truth.

15 [11] Unto the pure * are all things pure, but unto them that are defiled, and unbeleeving is nothing pure, but even their [o] minds and conſciences are defiled.

16 They profeſſe that they know God, but by works they deny him, and are abominable and diſobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.

Chap. II.

2 He ſetteth out the duties of ſundry perſons and ſtates, 6 and willeth him to inſtruct the Church in manners. 11 He draweth an argument from the end of our redemption, 12 which is, that we live godly and uprightly.

But [1] ſpeake thou the things which become wholſome doctrine,

2 [2] That the elder men be watchfull, grave, temperate, ſound in the faith, in love, and in patience.

3 The elder women likewiſe, that they be in ſuch behaviour as becometh holineſſe, not falſe accuſers, not ſubject to much wine, but teachers of honeſt things,

4 That they may inſtruct the yong women to be ſober minded, that they love their huſbands, that they love their children,

5 That they be temperate, chaſt, [a] keeping at home, good & * ſubject unto their huſbands, that the word of God be not euill ſpoken of.

6 Exhort young men likewiſe, that they be ſober minded.

7 [3] In all things ſhew thy ſelf an example of good works with uncorrupt doctrine, with [b] gravity, integritie,

8 And with the wholſome word, which cannot be condemned, that he which withſtandeth, may be aſhamed, having nothing concerning you to ſpeake evill of.

9 * [4] Let ſervants be ſubject to their maſters, and pleaſe them in all [c] things, not anſwering again,

10 Neither pickers, but that they ſhew all good faithfulnes, that they may adorne the

[1] He voucheth his Apoſtleſhip (not for Titus, but for the Cretenſes ſake) both by the teſtimony of his outward calling, and by his conſent, wherein he agreeeth with all the elect from the beginning of the world.

[a] A miniſter, as Chriſt himſelf, in that that he was a Miniſter and head of the Prophets, is called a ſervant, Eſa. 43. 10.

[b] Of thoſe whom God hath choſen.

[2] The faith wherein all the elect cōſent, is the true & ſincere knowledge of God, tending to this end, ẏ worſhipping God aright, they may at length obtain life everlaſting according to the promiſe of God, who is true, which promiſe was exhibited in Chriſt in due time according to his eternall purpoſe.

* Galat. 1. 1.

[f] This word (Saviour) doth not onely ſignifie a preſerver of life, but alſo a giver of life.

[4] The Apoſtle moveth the Cretenſes to heare Titus, by ſetting forth his conſent and agreement with him in the faith, and therwithall ſheweth by what ſpeciall note we may diſtinguiſh true miniſters from falſe.

[5] There is but one way of ſalvation, common both to the Paſtor and the flock.

[6] The firſt admonition to ordain Elders in every city.

* 1 Tim. 3.2.

[g] This word is proper to horſes and oxen, which will not abide the yoke.

[7] The ſecond admonition: what faults Paſtours (whom he comprehended afore under the word Elders) ought to be void of, and what vertues they ought to have.

[h] Whom the Lord hath appointed ſteward of his gifts.

[i] Not hard conditioned, and evill to pleaſe.

[k] Circumſpect, and of a ſound iudgement, and of a ſingular example of moderation.

[8] The third admonition: The Paſtour muſt hold faſt that doctrine, which the Apoſtles delivered, and pertaineth to ſalvation, leaving all curious and vain matters.

[9] The fourth admonition: To apply the knowledge of true doctrine unto uſe, which conſiſteth in two things, to wit, in governing them which ſhew themſelves apt to learn, and confuting the obſtinate.

[10] An applying of the generall propoſition to a particular. The Cretenſes above all other need ſharp reprehenſions: both becauſe their minds are naturally given to lies and ſlothfulneſſe, & alſo becauſe of certain covetous Jews, which under a colour of godlineſſe, joyned partly certain vain traditions, and partly old ceremonies with the Goſpel.

* Rom. 14. 20.

[o] If our minds and conſciences be unclean, what cleanneſſe is there in us before regeneration?

[1] The fifth admonition: The doctrine muſt not only be generally pure, but alſo be applied to all ages and orders of men, according to the diverſitie of circumſtances.

[2] What are the chiefeſt vertues for old and young, both men and women, and how they ought to be ſtirred up unto them continnally.

12 And teacheth us that we ſhould deny ungodlineſſe and [d] worldly luſts, and that we ſhould live ſoberly and righteouſly, and godly in this preſent world,

13 [e] Looking for that bleſſed hope, and appearing of that glory of that mightie God, and of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, 14 Who gave himſelf for us, that he might redeem us from al iniquity, & purge us, to be a [f] peculiar people unto himſelf, zealous of good works.

d Luſts of the fleſh, which belong to the preſent ſtate of this life and world.

e Chriſt is here moſt plainly called that mighty God, and his appearance and coming is called by the figure Metonymie, our hope. f As it were a thing peculiarly laid up for himſelf. g With all authority poſſible.

Chap. III.

1 He willeth that all generally be put in minde to reverence ſuch as be in authority: 3 That they remember their former life, and attribute all juſtification unto grace. 9 And if any brawler withſtand theſe things, 10 he willeth that he be rejected.

PUt [1] them in remembrance that they *be ſubject to the Principalities and powers, and that they be obedient, and ready to every good work,

2 That they ſpeake evill of no man, that they be no fighters, but ſoft, ſhewing all meekneſſe unto all men.

3 [2] * For we our ſelves alſo were in times paſt unwiſe, diſobedient, deceived, ſerving the luſts and divers pleaſures, living in malicioufneſſe and envie, hatefull, and hating one another.

4 But when that bountifulneſſe and that love of God our Saviour toward man appeared,

5 * Not by the works of [a] righteouſneſſe, which we had done, but according to his mercie he ſaved us, by the waſhing of the new birth, and the renewing of the [b] holy Ghoſt,

6 Which he ſhed on us aboundantly through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour,

7 That we, being juſtified by his grace, ſhould be made heires according to the hope of eternall life.

8 [3] This is a true ſaying, and theſe things I will thou ſhouldeſt affirm, that they which have beleeved God, might be carefull to ſhew forth [c] good works. Theſe things are good and profitable unto men.

9 * But ſtay fooliſh queſtions, and genealogies, and contentions, and brawlings about the law: for they are unprofitable and vain.

10 [4] Reject him that is an heretick, after once or twiſe admonition, 11 Knowing that he that is ſuch, is perverted, and ſinneth, being damned of his own ſelf.

12 [5] When I ſhall ſend Artemas unto thee, or Tychicus, be diligent to come to me unto Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter.

13 Bring Zenas the expounder of the law, and Apollos on their journey diligently, that they lack nothing.

14 And let ours alſo learn to ſhew forth good works for neceſſarie uſes, that they be not unfruitfull.

15 All that are with me, ſalute thee. Greet them that love us in the faith. Grace be with you all, Amen.

¶ To Titus, elect the firſt Biſhop of the Church of the Cretians, written from Nicopolis in Macedonia.

3 Again with great earneſtnes he beateth into our heads, how that we ought to give our ſelves to true godlineſſe, and eſchew al vain queſtions, which ſerve to nothing but to move ſtrife and debate.

THE EPISTLE OF PAVL TO PHILEMON

1 Paul handling a baſe and ſmall matter, yet according to his manner mounteth aloft unto God. 8 Sending again to Philemon his vagabound and theeviſh ſervant, he entreateth pardon for him, and very gravely preacheth of Chriſtian equity.

PAul a priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt and our brother Timotheus, unto Philemon our deare friend, & fellow helper,

2 And to our deare ſiſter Apphia, and to Archippus our fellow ſouldier, and to the Church that is in thine houſe:

3 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

4 I * give thanks to my God, making mention alwayes of thee in my prayers,

5 (When I heare of thy love and faith, which thou haſt toward the Lord Jeſus, and toward all Saints.)

6 That the [a] fellowſhip of thy faith may be made effectuall, and that whatſoever good thing is in you through Chriſt Jeſus, may be [b] known, a By fellowſhip of faith, he meaneth thoſe duties of charity which are beſtowed upon the Saints, and flow forth of an effectuall faith.

* 1 Theſſ. 1. 2. 2 Theſſ. 1. 3.

b That by this means all men may perceive how rich you are in Chriſt, to wit, in faith, charity, and all bountifulneſſe.

7 For we have great joy and conſolation in thy love, becauſe by thee, brother, the Saints [c] bowels are comforted.

8 Wherefore, though I be very bold in Chriſt to command thee, that which is convenient, 9 [1] Yet for loves ſake, I rather beſeech thee, though I be as I am, even Paul aged, and even now a priſoner for Jeſus Chriſt.

10 I beſeech thee for my ſon * Oneſimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds,

11 Which in times paſt was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable both to thee and to me,

12 Whom I have ſent again: thou therfore, receive him, that is, mine own [d] bowels:

13 Whom I would have retained with me, that in thy ſtead he might have miniſtered unto me in the bonds of the Goſpel.

14 But without thy minde would I do nothing, that thy benefit ſhould not be as it were of [e] neceſſity, but willingly.

15 It may be that he therefore [f] departed for [g] a ſeaſon, that thou ſhouldeſt receive him for ever, 16 Not now as a ſervant, but above a ſervant, even as a brother beloved, eſpecially to me: how much more then unto thee, both in the [h] fleſh, and in the Lord?

17 If therefore thou count our things common, receive him as my ſelf.

18 If he hath hurt thee, or oweth thee ought, that put on mine accounts.

19 I Paul have written this with mine own hand: I will recompenſe it, albeit I do not ſay to thee, that thou oweſt moreover unto me even thine own ſelf.

20 [i] Yea, brother, let me obtain this pleaſure of thee in the Lord: comfort my bowels in the Lord.

21 Truſting in thine obedience, I wrote unto thee, knowing that thou wilt do even more then I ſay.

22 Moreover alſo prepare me lodging: for I truſt through your prayers I ſhall be freely given unto you.

23 There ſalute thee Epaphras my fellow priſoner in Chriſt Jeſus, 24 Marcus, Ariſtarchus, Demas, and Luke my fellow helpers.

25 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, be with your ſpirit, Amen.

¶ Written from Rome to Philemon, and ſent by Oneſimus a ſervant.

[c] Becauſe thou diddeſt ſo dutifully and cheerefully refreſh the Saints, that they conceived inwardly a marvellous ioy: for by this word (bowels) is meant not onely the inward feeling of wants and miſeries that men have one of anothers ſtate, but alſo that ioy and comfort which entreth into the very bowels, as though the heart were refreſhed and comforted.

[1] An example of a Chriſtian excuſe and commendation for an other man.

* Coloſſ. 4. 9.

[d] As mine own ſon, and as if I had begotten him of mine own body.

[e] That thou mighteſt not ſeem to have lent me thy ſervant upon conſtraint, but willingly.

[f] Thus he aſſwageth the harder kinde of ſpeech, which is to ſay, he ran away.

[g] For a little time.

[h] Becauſe he is thy ſervant, as other ſervants are, & becauſe he is the Lords ſervant, ſo that thou muſt needs love him, both for the Lords ſake, and for thine own ſake.

[i] Good brother, let me obtain this benefit at thine hand.

THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWES.

THe drift and end of this epiſtle, is to ſhew that Jeſus Chriſt the Son of God, both God & man, is that true eternall and onely Prophet, King, and high Prieſt, that was ſhadowed by the figures of the old law, and is now indeed exhibited: of whom the whole Church ought to be taught, governed, and ſanctified.

CHAP. I.

1 To ſhew that the doctrine which Chriſt brought, is moſt excellent, in that it is the knitting up of all prophecies, 4 he advanceth him above the Angels: 10 And proveth by divers teſtimonies of the Scripture, that he farre paſſeth all other.

AT [1] ſundry times and in divers manners God ſpake in the old time to our fathers by the Prophets: in theſe [a] laſt dayes he hath ſpoken unto us by his [b] Sonne,

2 [2] Whom he hath made [c] heire of all things, by whom alſo he made the [d] worlds,

3 * Who being the [e] brightneſſe of the glory, and the ingraved form of his [f] perſon, and [g] bearing up all things by his mighty word, [3] hath by himſelf purged our ſins, and [h] ſitteth at the right hand of the majeſty in the higheſt places,

4 [4] And is made ſo much more excellent then the Angels, in as much as he hath obtained a more excellent [i] Name then they:

5 [5] For unto which of the Angels ſaid he at any time, * Thou art my Son, [k] this day begat I thee? [6] and again, I * will be his Father, and he ſhall be my Sonne?

6 [7] And [l] again, when he bringeth in his firſt begotten Sonne into the world, he ſaith, * And let all the Angels of God worſhip him.

7 [8] And of the Angels he ſaith, * He

[1] The firſt part of the general propoſition of this Epiſtle: the ſonne of God is indeed that Prophet or teacher, which hath actually now performed that, that God after a ſort, & in ſhadows ſignified by his Prophets, and hath fully opened his Fathers will to the world.

[a] So that the former declaration made by the Prophets was not full, and nothing muſt be added to this later.

[b] Which one Sonne is God and man.

[2] The ſecond part of the ſame propoſition: The ſame Son is appointed of the Father to be our King and Lord, by whom alſo he made all things: and in whom onely he ſetteth forth his glory, yea, and himſelf alſo to be beholden of us, who beareth up and ſuſtaineth all things by his will and pleaſure. [c] Poſſeſſour and equall compartner of all things with the Father. [d] That is, whatſoever hath been at any time, is, or ſhall be. * Col. 1. 15. [e] He in whom that glory and Maieſtie of the Father ſhineth, who is otherwiſe infinit, and cannot be beholden.

[g] Suſtaineth, defendeth, and cheriſheth.

[3] The third part of the ſame propoſition: The ſame Son executed the office of the high Prieſt in offering up himſelf, and is our onely & moſt mighty Mediatour in heaven.

[h] This ſheweth that the ſavour of that his ſacrifice is not onely moſt acceptable to the Father, but alſo it everlaſting, and furthermore, how farre this high Prieſt paſſeth all the other high Prieſts.

[4] Before he commeth to declare ẏ office of Chriſt, he ſetteth forth the excellencie of his perſon, & firſt of all he ſheweth him ſo to be man, that therewithall he is God alſo. [i] Dignity & honour. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. He proveth and confirmeth the dignity of Chriſt manifeſted in the fleſh, by theſe ſix evident teſtimonies, whereby it appeareth that he farre paſſeth all Angels, inſomuch that he is called both Son, and God, in verſes 5. 6. 7. 8. 10. 13. * Pſal. 2. 7. Chap. 5. 5. [k] The Father begat the Son from everlaſting, but that everlaſting generation was made manifeſt and repreſented to the world in his time, and therefore he addeth this word (To day) * 2 Sam. 7. 14. 1 Chron. 22. 10. [l] The Lord was not content to have ſpoken it once, but he repeateth it in an other place. * Pſal. 97. 7. * Pſal. 104. 4.

maketh the ſpirits his [m] meſſengers, and his miniſters a [n] flame of fire.

8 But unto the Son he ſaith, O God thy [o] throne is for ever [p] and ever: the ſcepter of thy kingdome is a [q] ſcepter of righteouſneſſe.

9 Thou haſt loved righteouſneſſe and [r] hated iniquitie. Wherefore God, even thy God, hath [ſ] anointed thee with the oyle of gladneſſe above thy [t] fellowes.

10 [9] And, * Thou Lord, in the beginning haſt [v] eſtabliſhed the earth, and the heavens are the works of thine hands:

11 They ſhall periſh, but thou doeſt remaine: and they ſhall waxe old as doeth a garment,

12 And as a veſture ſhalt thou fold them up, and they ſhall be changed: but thou art the ſame, and thy yeares ſhall not faile.

13 [10] Vnto which alſo of the Angels ſaid he at any time, * Sit at my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footſtoole?

14 Are they not all [x] miniſtring ſpirits, ſent forth to miniſter, for their ſakes which ſhall be heires of ſalvation?

C h a p. II.

1 Therefore he inferreth that good heed muſt be given to Chriſts doctrine: 9 And he ſetteth out unto us even as our brother in our fleſh, that we may with a good will yeeld up our ſelves wholly unto him.

WHerefore [1] we ought diligently to give heed to the things which [a] we have heard, leaſt at any time we [b] run out.

2 For if the [c] word ſpoken by Angels was ſtedfaſt, and every tranſgreſſion and diſobedience received a juſt recompence of reward,

3 How ſhall we eſcape, if we neglect ſo great ſalvation, [2] which at the firſt beganne to be preached by the Lord, and afterward was confirmed unto us by [d] them that heard him,

4 * God bearing witneſſe thereto, both with [e] ſignes and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the holy Ghoſt, according to his own will?

5 [3] For he hath not put in ſubjection unto the Angels the [f] world to come, whereof we ſpeake:

6 [4] But * one in a certaine place witneſſed, ſaying, [g] What is man, that thou ſhouldeſt be mindfull of him? or the [h] ſon of man, that thou wouldeſt conſider him?

7 Thou [i] madeſt him a little inferiour to the Angels: thou crownedſt him with [k] glory and honour, and haſt ſet him above the works of thine hands.

8 * Thou haſt put all things in ſubjection under his feet. And in that he hath put all things in ſubjection under him, he left nothing that ſhould not be ſubject unto him. [5] But we yet ſee not all things ſubdued unto him.

9 [6] But we [l] ſee Ieſus crowned with glory and honour, * which was made a little [m] inferiour to the Angels, [7] through the [n] ſuffering of death, that by Gods grace he might [o] taſte death for [8] all men.

10 [9] For it became [p] him, for whom are all theſe things, and by whom are all theſe things, [10] ſeeing that he brought many children unto glory, [11] that he ſhould conſecrate the [q] prince of their ſalvation through afflictions:

11 [12] For he that [r] ſanctifieth, and they which are ſanctified are all of [ſ] one: wherefore he is not aſhamed to cal them brethren

12 [13] Saying, * I will declare thy Name unto my brethren: in the mids of the Church will I ſing praiſes to thee.

31 [14] And againe, * I wil put my [t] truſt in him. And againe, * [v] Behold, heere am I, and the children which God hath given me.

14 Foraſmuch then as the children are [x] partakers of fleſh and blood, he alſo himſelfe likewiſe tooke part with them, that he might deſtroy * through death, him that had the [y] power of death, that is, the [z] devill,

15 And that he might deliver all them, which for feare of [a] death were all their life time ſubject to bondage:

16 [15] For he in no ſort tooke on him

[1] Now as it were pauſing with himſelfe, and ſhewing to what end and purpoſe all theſe things were ſpoken, to wit, to underſtand by the excellencie of Chriſt, above all creatures, that his doctrine, majeſty, and Prieſthood, is moſt perfect, he uſeth an exhortation taken from a compariſon.

[a] He maketh himſelfe an hearer.

[b] They are ſaid to let the word run out, which hold it not faſt when they have heard it.

[c] The Law which appointed puniſhment for the offenders: and which Paul ſaith was given by Angels, Galat. 3. 19. and Steven, Acts 7. 53.

[2] If the breach & tranſgreſſion of the word ſpoken by Angels was not ſuffered unpuniſhed, much leſſe ſhal it be lawfull for us to neglect the Goſpel which the Lord of Angels preached, and was confirmed by the voyce of the Apoſtles, and with ſo many ſignes & wonders from heaven, and eſpecially with ſo great and mighty working of the holy Ghoſt.

* Marke 16. 20.

[e] This is the true end of miracles. Now they are called ſignes, becauſe they appeare one thing, and repreſent another: and they are called wonders, becauſe they repreſent ſome ſtrange and unacuſtomed thing: and vertues becauſe they give us a glimce of Gods mightie power.

[3] If it were an hainous matter to contemn the Angels which are but ſervants, much more hainous is it to contemn that moſt mightie King of the reſtored world.

[f] The world to come, whereof Chriſt is Father, Eſa. 9. 6. or the Church, which as a new world, was to be gathered together by the Goſpel.

[4] He ſheweth that the uſe of this kingly dignitie conſiſteth herein, that men might not onely in Chriſt recover that dignitie which they have loſt, but alſo might be through him advanced above all things, which dignitie of men David deſcribeth moſt excellently.

* Pſal. 8. 6.

[g] What is there in man that thou ſhouldeſt have ſo great regard of him, and doe him that honour?

[h] He calleth all the citizens of that heavenly kingdome, as they are conſidered in themſelves, before that God giveth them the libertie of that citie in Chriſt, Man, and the Son of man.

[i] This is the firſt honour of the citizens of the world to come, that they are next the Angels.

[k] For they ſhalbe in very great honour when they ſhalbe partakers of the kingdome. And he ſpeaketh of the thing that ſhalbe, as though it were already, becauſe it is ſo certaine.

* 1 Cor. 15. 27.

[5] An objection: But where is this ſo great rule and dominion?

[6] The anſwere: This is already fulfilled in Ieſus Chriſt our head, who was for a time for our ſakes inferiour to the Angels, being made man: but now is advanced into moſt high glorie.

[l] By his vertue and power which appeareth manifeſtly in the Church.

* Phil. 2. 8.

[m] Who abaſed himſelfe for a ſeaſon, and tooke upon him the ſhape of a ſervant.

[7] He ſheweth the cauſe of this ſubjection, to wit, to taſte of death for our ſakes, that ſo doing the part of a redeemer, he might not onely be our Prophet & King, but alſo our high Prieſt.

[n] That he might die.

[o] Feele death.

[8] Heerein conſiſteth the force of the argument: for we could not at length be glorified with him, unleſſe he had been abaſed for us, even all the faithfull. And by this occaſion the Apoſtle commeth to the other part of the declaration of Chriſts perſon, wherein he proveth him to be in ſuch ſort God, that he is alſo man.

[9] He proveth moreover by other arguments, why it behoved the Son of God who is true God (as he proved a little before) to become man notwithſtanding, ſubject to all miſeries, ſin onely except.

[10] Firſt of all becauſe the Father, to whoſe glory all things are to be referred, purpoſed to bring many ſons unto glory. And how could he have men for his ſons, unleſſe his onely begotten ſon had become brother to men.

[11] Secondly, The Father determined to bring thoſe ſons to glory, to wit, out of that ignominie wherein they lay before. Therefore the ſon ſhould not have been ſeen plainely to be made man, unleſſe he had been made like unto other men, that he might come to glory by the ſelfe ſame way, by the which he ſhould bring other: yea rather, it became him which was Prince of the ſalvation of other, to be conſecrated above other, through thoſe afflictions, Prophet, King, and Prieſt, which are the parts of that principalitie for the ſalvation of other.

[q] The Chieftaine, who as he is chiefeſt in dignity, ſo is he the firſt begotten from among the dead, amongſt many brethren.

[12] The ground of both the former arguments, for neither ſhould we be ſons through him, neither could he be conſecrate through afflictions, unleſſe he had been made man like unto us. But becauſe this Sonnehood dependeth not upon nature onely, for no man is accounted the ſon of God, unleſſe that beſides that, he is a ſon of man, he be alſo Chriſts brother, (which is by ſanctification, that is, by becomming one with Chriſt, who ſanctifieth us through faith) therefore the Apoſtle maketh mention of the ſanctifier, to wit, of Chriſt, and of them that are ſanctified, to wit, of all the faithfull, whom therefore Chriſt vouchſafeth to call brethren.

[r] He uſeth the time that now is, to ſhew us that we are yet ſtill going on, & increaſing in this ſanctification: and by ſanctification he meaneth our ſeparation from the reſt of the world, our cleanſing from ſin, and our dedication wholly unto God, all which Chriſt alone worketh in us.

[13] That which he taught before of the incarnation of the ſanctifier, he applieth to the propheticall office.

* Pſal. 22. 25.

[14] He applieth the ſame to the kingly power of Chriſt, in delivering his from the power of the devill and death.

* Pſal. 18. 2.

[t] I will commit my ſelfe to him, and to his defence.

* Eſa. 8. 18.

[u] This Eſai ſpeaketh of himſelfe & his diſciples, but betokening thereby all miniſters, as alſo his diſciples ſignifie the whole Church. And therefore ſeeing Chriſt is the head of the Prophets & miniſters, theſe words are more rightly verified of him, then of Eſai.

[x] Are made of fleſh and blood, which is a fraile and brittle nature.

* Hoſe. 13. 14. 1 Cor. 15. 55.

[y] The devill is ſaid to have the power of death, becauſe he is the authour of ſin: and from ſin commeth death, and for this cauſe he eggeth us daily to ſin.

[z] He ſpeaketh of one as of the Prince, ioyning to him ſecretly all his angels.

[a] By (death) thou muſt underſtand here, that death which is ioyned with the wrath of God, as it muſt needs be, if it be without Chriſt, then the which there can be nothing deviſed more miſerable.

[15] He expoundeth thoſe words of fleſh & blood, ſhewing that Chriſt is true man, and that not by turning his divine nature, but by taking of mans nature. And he nameth Abraham, reſpecting the promiſes made to Abraham in this behalfe.

the [b] Angels nature, but he took on him the [c] ſeede of Abraham.

17 [16] Wherefore in [d] all things it behooved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be [e] mercifull, and a [f] faithfull high Prieſt in things concerning God, that he might make reconciliation for the ſins of the people:

18 For in that he ſuffered, and was [g] tempted, he is able to ſuccour them that are tempted.

---

[b] The nature of Angels.

[c] The very nature of man.

[16] He applieth the ſame to the Prieſthood, for which he ſhould not have been fit, unleſſe he had become man, and that like unto us in all things, ſin onely except.

[d] Not onely as touching nature, but qualities alſo.

[e] That he might be truely touched with the feeling of our miſeries.

[f] Doing his office ſincerely.

[g] Was tried and egged to wickedneſſe by the devill.

Chap. III.

1 Now he ſheweth how farre inferiour Moſes is to Chriſt, 5.6. even ſo much as the ſervant to the maſter: and ſo he bringeth in certaine exhortations and threatnings taken out of David, 8 againſt ſuch as either ſtubburnly reſiſt, 12 or elſe are very ſlow to obey.

Therefore, [1] holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly vocation, conſider the [a] Apoſtle and high Prieſt of our [b] profeſſion Chriſt Ieſus:

2 [2] Who was faithfull to him that hath [c] appointed him, [3] even as * Moſes was in all his houſe.

3 [4] For this man is counted worthy of more glory then Moſes, inſomuch as he which hath builded the houſe, hath more honour then the houſe.

4 For every houſe is builded of ſome man, & he that hath built all things, is God.

5 [5] Now Moſes verely was faithfull in all his houſe, as a ſervant, for a witneſſe of the things which ſhould be ſpoken after:

6 But Chriſt is as the ſon, over his owne houſe, [6] whoſe [d] houſe we are, if we hold faſt that [e] confidence and that rejoycing of that hope unto the end.

7 Wherefore, as the holy Ghoſt ſaith, *To day if ye [f] ſhal heare his voyce,

8 Harden not your hearts, as in the [g] provocation, according to the day of the tentation in the wilderneſſe,

9 Where your fathers tempted me, proved me, and ſaw my works forty yeares long.

10 Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and ſaid, They [h] erre ever in their heart, neither have they knowen my wayes.

11 Therefore I ſware in my wrath, If they ſhall enter into my reſt.

12 [7] Take heed, brethren, leſt at any time there be in any of you an evill heart, and unfaithfull, to depart away from the living God,

13 But exhort one another daily, [i] while it is called to day, leſt any of you be hardened through the deceitfulneſſe of ſin:

14 [8] For we are made partakers of Chriſt, if we keep ſure unto the end that [k] beginning, wherewith we are upholden, 15 [l] So long as it is ſaid, To day if ye heare his voyce, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation.

16 For ſome when they heard, provoked him to anger: howbeit, not all that came out of Egypt by Moſes.

17 But with whom was he diſpleaſed forty yeares? Was he not diſpleaſed with them that ſinned, * whoſe karkeiſes fell in the wildernes?

18 And to whom ſware he that they ſhould not enter into his reſt, but unto them that obeyed not?

19 So we ſee that they could not enter in, becauſe of unbeliefe.

---

[1] Having laid the foundation, that is to ſay, declared and proved both the natures of one ſelfe ſame Chriſt, he giveth him three offices, to wit, the office of a Prophet, King, and Prieſt, & as touching the office of teaching, & governing, compareth him with Moſes and Ioſhua, unto the 14. verſe of the next Chapter, and with Aaron touching the Prieſthood. And he propoundeth that which he purpoſed to ſpeake of, with a moſt grave exhortation, that all our faith may tend to Chriſt, as to the onely everlaſting teacher, governour, and high Prieſt.

[a] The Embaſſadour or meſſenger, as Rom. 15. he is called the miniſter of Circumciſion.

[b] Of the doctrine of the Goſpel which we profeſſe.

[2] He confirmeth his exhortation with two reaſons, firſt of all, becauſe Chriſt Ieſus was appointed ſuch an one of God, ſecondly, becauſe he throughly executed the offices that his Father enjoyned him.

[c] Apoſtle and high Prieſt.

[3] Now he commeth to the compariſon with Moſes, and he maketh them like one to the other in this, that they were both appointed rulers over Gods houſe, and executed faithfully their offices: but by and by after he ſheweth that there is great unlikelineſſe in that ſame ſimilitude. * Num. 12.7. [4] The firſt compariſon: The builder of the houſe is better then the houſe it ſelfe, therefore is Chriſt better then Moſes. The reaſon of the conſequent is this: becauſe the builder of this houſe is God, which cannot be attributed to Moſes: and therefore Moſes was not properly the builder: but a part of the houſe: but Chriſt as Lord and God made all this houſe. [5] Another compariſon: Moſes was a faithfull ſervant in this houſe, that is, in the Church, ſerving the Lord that was to come, but Chriſt ruleth and governeth his houſe as Lord. [6] He applieth the former doctrine to his end, exhorting all men by the words of David to heare the Son himſelfe ſpeake, and to give full credite to his words, ſeeing that otherwiſe they cannot enter into that eternall reſt. [d] To wit, Chriſts. [e] He calleth ~~that~~ excellent effect of faith (whereby we cry Abba, that is, Father) confidence, and to confidence he ioyneth hope. * Pſal. 95.8. Chap. 4.7. [f] So that God was to ſpeake once againe after Moſes. [g] In the day that they vexed the Lord, or ſtrove with him. [h] They are brutiſh and mad. [7] Now weighing the words of David, he ſheweth firſt by this word, To day, yͭ we muſt not neglect the occaſion while we have it: for that word is not to be reſtrained to Davids time, but it comprehendeth all that time wherein God calleth us.

[i] While to day laſteth, that is to ſay, ſo long as the Goſpel is offered to us.

[8] Now he conſidereth theſe words, If you heare his voice, &c. ſhewing that they are ſpoken and meant of the hearing of faith, againſt which he ſetteth hardening through unbeliefe.

[k] That beginning of truſt and confidence: and after the manner of the Hebrews, he calleth that, beginning, which is chiefeſt.

[l] So long as this voyce ſoundeth out.

* Numb. 14.37.

Chap. IV.

1 He ioyneth exhortation with threatning, leſt they, even as their fathers were, be deprived of the reſt offered unto them, 11 but that they endevour to enter into it. 14 And ſo he beginneth to intreat of Chriſts Prieſthood.

Let us feare therefore, leſt at any time by forſaking the promiſe of entring into his reſt, any of you ſhould ſeeme to be deprived:

2 [1] For unto us was the Goſpel preached as alſo unto them: but the word that they heard, profited not them, becauſe it was not [a] mixed with faith in thoſe that heard it.

3 [2] For we which have beleeved, doe enter into the reſt as he ſayd to the other, * As I have ſworn in my wrath, If they ſhall enter into my reſt: although the works were finiſhed from the foundation of the world:

4 For he ſpake in a certaine place of the ſeventh day on this wiſe, * And God did reſt the ſeventh day from all his works.

5 And in this place againe, If they ſhall enter into my reſt.

6 Seeing therefore it remaineth that ſome muſt enter thereinto, and they to whom it was firſt preached, entered not therein for unbeliefs ſake:

7 Againe he appointed in David a certaine day, by To day, after ſo long a time,

---

[1] By theſe words, His voyce, he ſheweth that David meant the preaching of Chriſt, who was then alſo preached, for Moſes and the Prophets reſpected none other.

[a] He compareth the preaching of the Goſpel to drinke, which being drunke, that is to ſay, heard, profiteth nothing, unleſſe it be tempered with faith.

[2] Leſt any man ſhould object that thoſe words were meant of the land of Canaan, and of Moſes doctrine, & therefore cannot be well drawen to Chriſt, and to eternall life, the Apoſtle ſheweth that there are two manner of reſts ſpoken of in the Scriptures: the one of the ſeventh day, wherin God is ſaid to have reſted from all his works: another is ſaid to be that ſame, whereunto Ioſhua led yͤ people: but this reſt is not the laſt reſt wherunto we are called: and that he proveth by two reaſons. For ſeeing that David ſo long time after, ſpeaking to the people which were then placed in the land of Canaan, uſeth theſe words, To day, and threatneth them ſtill that they ſhall not enter into the reſt of God, which refuſed then the voyce of God that ſounded in their eares, we muſt needes ſay that he meant another time then the time of Moſes, and another reſt then the reſt of the land of Canaan: And that is, that everlaſting reſt, wherin we begin to live to God, after that the race of this life ceaſeth: as God reſted the ſeventh day from thoſe his workes, that is to ſay, from making the world. Moreover the Apoſtle therewithall ſignifieth that the way to this reſt, which Moſes and the land of Canaan, and all that order of the Law did ſhadow, is opened in the Goſpel onely. * Pſal. 95.11. * Gen. 2.2. Deut. 5.14.

ſaying, as it is ſaid, * This day, If ye heare his voyce, harden not your hearts.

8 For if [b] Jeſus had given them reſt, then would he not after this have ſpoken of another day.

9 There remaineth therefore a reſt to the people of God.

10 [c] For he that is entred into his reſt, hath alſo ceaſed from his own works, as God did from his.

11 [3] Let us ſtudy therefore to enter into that reſt, leſt [d] any man fall after the ſame enſample of diſobedience.

12 [4] For the [e] word of God is [f] lively, and mighty in operation, and ſharper then any two edged ſword, and entreth through, even unto the dividing aſunder of the [g] ſoule and the [h] ſpirit, and of the joynts, and the marrow, and is a diſcerner of the thoughts, and the intents of the heart.

13 Neither is there any creature, which is not manifeſt in [i] his ſight: but all things are naked and open unto his eyes, with whom we have to doe.

14 [5] Seeing then that we have a great high Prieſt, which is entred into heaven, even Jeſus the Son of God, let us [k] hold faſt our profeſſion:

15 [6] For we have not an high Prieſt, which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all things tempted in like ſort, yet without ſin.

16 Let us therefore go boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy, and finde grace to helpe in the time of need.

* Chap.3.7.

[b] He ſpeaketh of Ioſhua the ſon of Nun: and as the land of Canaan was a figure of our true reſt, ſo was Ioſhua a figure of Chriſt.

[c] As God reſted the ſeventh day, ſo muſt we reſt from our workes, that is, from ſuch as proceed from our corrupt nature.

[3] He returneth to an exhortation.

[d] Leſt any man become a like example of infidelitie.

[4] An amplification taken from the nature of the word of God, the power whereof is ſuch, that it entreth even to the deepeſt and moſt inward and ſecret parts of the heart, wounding them deadly that are ſtubburn, & plainely quickening the beleevers.

[e] The doctrine of God which is preached both in the Law and in the Goſpel.

[f] He calleth the word of God lively, by reaſon of the effects it worketh in them to whom it is preached.

[g] He calleth that the ſoule which hath the affections reſident in it.

[h] By the Spirit, he meaneth that nobleſt part which is called the minde.

[i] In Gods ſight.

[5] Now he entreth into the compariſon of Chriſts Prieſthood with Aarons, and declareth even in the very beginning the marveilous excellencie of this Prieſthood, calling him the ſon of God, and placing him in the ſeate of God in heaven, plainely and evidently ſetting him againſt Aarons Prieſts, and the tranſitory tabernacle, which compariſons he ſetteth foorth afterward more at large.

[k] And let it not goe out of our handes.

[6] Leſt he might ſeeme by this great glory of our high Prieſt, to ſtay and ſtop us from going unto him, he addeth ſtraight wayes after, that he is notwithſtanding our brother indeed, (as he proved it alſo before) and that he accompteth all our miſeries his own, to call us boldly to him.

Chap. V.

1 Firſt he ſheweth the duety of the high Prieſt: 5 Secondly, that Chriſt is appointed of God to be our high Prieſt, 7 and that he hath fulfilled all things belonging thereunto.

For [1] every high Prieſt is taken from among men, and is ordained for men, in things pertaining to God, [2] that he may offer both [a] gifts and [b] ſacrifices for ſins,

2 Which is [c] able ſufficiently to have compaſſion [d] on them that are ignorant, and that are out of the way, becauſe that he is alſo [e] compaſſed with infirmitie,

3 And for the ſames ſake he is bound to offer for ſins, as well for his own part, as for the peoples.

4 * [3] And no man taketh this honour unto himſelfe, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

5 So likewiſe Chriſt tooke not to himſelf this honour, to be made the high Prieſt, but he that ſaid unto him, * Thou art my Son, this day begate I thee, gave it him.

6 As he alſo in another place ſpeaketh, * Thou art a Prieſt for ever, after the [f] order of Melchi-ſedec:

7 [4] Who in the [g] dayes of his fleſh did offer up prayers and ſupplications, with ſtrong crying and teares unto him, that was able to [h] ſave him from death, and was alſo heard in that which he feared.

8 And though he were the Son, yet [i] learned he obedience, by the things which he ſuffered.

9 [5] And being [k] conſecrate, was made the authour of eternall ſalvation unto all them that obey him:

10 And is called of God an high Prieſt after the order of Melchi-ſedec:

11 [6] Of whom we have many things to ſay, which are hard to be uttered, becauſe ye are dull of hearing.

12 [7] For when as concerning the time ye ought to be teachers, yet have ye need againe that we teach you what are the firſt principles of the word of God: and are become ſuch as have need of milke, and not of ſtrong meat,

13 For every one that uſeth milke, is inexpert in the [l] word of righteouſneſſe: for he is a babe.

14 But ſtrong meat belongeth to them that are of age, which through long cuſtome have their [m] wittes exerciſed, to diſcerne both good and evill.

[1] The firſt part of the firſt compariſon of Chriſts high Prieſthood, with Aarons: Other high Prieſts are taken from among men, and are called after the order of men.

[2] The firſt part of the ſecond compariſon: Others as weake, are made high Prieſts, to the end that feeling the ſame infirmitie in themſelves which is in all the reſt of the people, they ſhould in their owne and the peoples name offer gifts and ſacrifices, which are witneſſes of common faith and repentance.

[a] Offering of things without life.

[b] Beaſts which were killed, but eſpecially in the ſacrifices for ſins and offences.

[c] Fit & meet.

[d] On them that are ſinfull: for in the Hebrew tongue, under ignorance and errour is every ſin meant, even that ſin that is voluntarie.

[e] For that he himſelfe beareth about with him a nature ſubject to the ſame diſcommodities and vices.

* 1 Chron. 13.10. and 23.13.

[3] The third compariſon which is whole. The others are called of God, and ſo was Chriſt, but in an other order then Aaron: for Chriſt is called the Son, begotten of God, and a Prieſt for ever after the order of Melchi-ſedec.

* Pſal.2.7. Chap.1.5.

* Pſal.110.4. Chap.7.17.

[f] After the likeneſſe or manner as it is afterward declared.

* Chap.7.15.

[4] The other part of the ſecond compariſon: Chriſt being exceedingly afflicted, and exceedingly mercifull asked not for his ſins, for he had none, but for his feare, and obtained his requeſt, & offered himſelfe for all his.

[g] While he lived here with us, in our weake and fraile nature.

[h] To deliver him from death.

[i] He learned in deede what it is to have a Father, whom a man muſt obey.

[5] The other part of the firſt compariſon. But Chriſt was conſecrate of God the Father as the Authour of our ſalvation, and an high Prieſt for ever, and therefore he is ſo a man, that notwithſtanding he is farre above all men.

[k] Looke Chap.2.10.

[6] A digreſſion untill he come to the beginning of the ſeventh Chapter: wherein he partly holdeth the Hebrewes in the diligent conſideration of thoſe things which he hath ſaide, and partly prepareth them to the underſtanding of thoſe things whereof he will ſpeake.

[7] An example of an Apoſtolike chiding.

[l] In the word which teacheth righteouſneſſe.

[m] All their power whereby they underſtand and judge.

Chap. VI.

1 He briefly toucheth the childiſh ſlothfulneſſe of the Hebrewes, 4 and terrifieth them with ſevere threatnings: 7 He ſtirreth them up to endevour in time to goe forward: 9 He hopeth well of them: 13 He alledgeth Abrahams example: 17 and compareth faith that taketh hold on the word, 19 unto an ancre.

Therefore leaving the doctrine of the [a] beginnings of Chriſt, let us be led forward unto perfection, [1] not laying againe the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God,

2 Of the doctrine of Baptiſme, and laying on of hands, and of the reſurrection from the dead, and of eternall judgement.

3 And this will we doe if God permit:

4 [2] * For it is [b] impoſſible that they which were once lightened, & have [c] taſt-

[a] The firſt principles of chriſtian religion, which we do call the Catechiſme.

[1] Certaine principles of a Catechiſme, which comprehend the ſumme of the doctrine of the Goſpel, were given in few words, and briefely to the rude & ignorant, to wit, the profeſſion of repentance and faith in God: the articles of which doctrine, were demanded of them which were not as yet received members of the Church, at the dayes appointed for baptiſme: and of the children of the faithfull which were baptized in their infancie, when hands were laid upon them. And of thoſe articles, two are by name recited: the reſurrection of the fleſh, and the eternall judgement.

[2] He addeth a vehemencie to his exhortation, and a moſt ſharp threatning of the certaine deſtruction that ſhall come to them which fall from God and his religion.

* Chap.10.26. Matt.12.45. 2Pet.2.20.

[b] He ſpeaketh of a generall backeſliding, and ſuch as do altogether fall away from the faith, and not of ſins which are committed through the frailtie of a man againſt the firſt and the ſecond Table.

[c] We muſt marke the force of this word, for it is one thing to beleeve as Lydia did, whoſe heart God opened, Acts 16.13. and another thing to have ſome taſte.

ed of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the holy Ghoſt,

5 And have taſted of the good word of God, and of the powers of the world to come,

6 If they fall away, ſhould be renewed againe by repentance: ſeeing they [d] crucifie againe to themſelves the Son of God, and make a mocke of him:

7 [3] For the earth which drinketh in the raine that commeth oft upon it, and bringeth foorth herbes meet for them by whom it is dreſſed, receiveth bleſsing of God:

8 But that which beareth thornes and briers, is reproved, and is neere unto curſing, whoſe end is to be burned.

9 [4] But beloved, we have perſwaded our ſelves better things of you, and ſuch as accompany ſalvation, though we thus ſpeake:

10 [5] For God is not unrighteous that he ſhould forget your worke, and labour of love, which ye ſhewed toward his Name, in that ye have miniſtred unto the Saints, and yet miniſter.

11 And we deſire that every one of you ſhew the ſame diligence, to the full aſſurance of hope unto the end,

12 [6] That ye be not ſlouthfull, but followers of them, which through faith and patience inherite the promiſes.

13 [7] For when God made the promiſe to Abraham, becauſe he had no greater to ſweare by, he ſware by himſelfe,

14 Saying, * Surely I will [e] abundantly bleſſe thee, and multiply thee marveilouſly:

15 And ſo after that he had taried patiently, he enjoyed the promiſe.

16 For men verely ſweare by him that is greater then themſelves, and an oath for confirmation is among them an end of all ſtrife:

17 So God, willing more [f] abundantly to ſhew unto the heires of promiſe the ſtableneſſe of his councel, bound himſelfe by an oath,

18 That by two immutable things, wherin it is unpoſsible that God ſhould lie, we might have ſtrong conſolation, which have our refuge to lay hold upon that hope that is ſet before us,

19 [8] Which hope we have, as an ancre of the ſoule, both ſure and ſtedfaſt, and it entreth into that which is within the vaile:

20 [9] Whither the forerunner is for us entred in, even Jeſus that is made an high Prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedec.

[d] As men that hate Chriſt, and as though they crucified him againe, make him a mocking ſtocke to all the world, and that to their own deſtruction, as Iulian the Apoſtata or backeſlider did.

[3] He ſetteth forth the former threatning with a ſimilitude.

[4] He mitigateth and aſſwageth all that ſharpneſſe, hoping better of them to whom he writeth.

[5] He praiſeth them for their charitie, thereby encouraging them to goe forward, and to hold out to the end.

[6] He ſheweth what vertues chiefly they have neede of to go forward conſtantly, and alſo to profit: to wit, of charitie, and patience: and leſt any man ſhould object and ſay, that theſe things are impoſsible to be done, he willeth them to ſet before themſelves the examples of their anceſtors, and to follow them.

[7] Another pricke to pricke them forward: Becauſe the hope of the inheritance is certaine, if we continue to the end, for God hath not onely promiſed it, but alſo promiſed it with an oath.

* Gen. 12. 2. and 17.4. and 22.17.

[e] I will heape up benefits moſt plentifully upon thee.

[f] More then was needfull, were it not for the wickedneſſe of men which beleeve not God, no, though he ſweare.

[8] He likeneth hope to an ancre: becauſe that even as an ancre being caſt into the bottome of the ſea, ſtayeth the whole ſhip, ſo doth hope alſo enter even into the very ſecret places of heaven: And he maketh mention of the Sanctuary, alluding to the old Tabernacle, and by this means returneth to the compariſons of the Prieſthood of Chriſt with the Leviticall.

[9] He repeateth Davids words, wherein all thoſe compariſons, whereof he hath before made mention, are ſignified, as he declareth in all the next Chapter.

CHAP. VII.

1 He hath hitherto ſtirred them up, to marke diligently what things are to be conſidered in Melchi-ſedec, 15 wherein he is like unto Chriſt, 20 Wherfore the Law ſhould give place to the Goſpel.

For this [1] Melchi-ſedec * was King of Salem, the Prieſt of the moſt high God, who met Abraham, as he returned from the ſlaughter of the kings, and [a] bleſſed him:

2 To whom alſo Abraham gave the tithe of all things: who firſt is by interpretation King of righteouſneſſe: after that, he is alſo King of Salem, that is, King of peace.

3 [2] Without father, without mother, without kindred, and hath neither beginning of his dayes, neither end of life: but is likened unto the Son of God, and continueth a Prieſt for ever.

4 [3] Now conſider how great this man was, unto whom even the Patriarch Abraham gave the tithe of the ſpoyles:

5 For verely they which are the children of Levi, which receive the office of the Prieſt-hood, have a * commandement to take according to the Law, tithes of the people (that is, of their brethen) though they came out of the [b] loynes of Abraham.

6 But he whoſe kinred is not counted among them, received tithes of Abraham, and bleſſed him that had the promiſes.

7 And [c] without all contradiction the leſſe is bleſſed of the greater.

8 And here men that die, receive tithes: but there he receiveth them, of whom it is witneſſed, that he liveth.

9 [4] And to ſay as the thing is, Levi alſo which receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham:

10 For he was yet in the loynes of his father Abraham, when Melchi-ſedec met him.

11 [5] If therefore [d] perfection had beene by the Prieſthood of the Levites (for under it the Law was eſtabliſhed to the people) what needed it furthermore, that another Prieſt ſhould riſe after the order of Melchi-ſedec, and not to be called after the order of Aaron?

12 [6] For if the Prieſthood be changed, then of neceſsitie muſt there be a change of the [e] Law.

13 For he of whom theſe things are ſpoken, pertaineth unto another tribe,

[1] Declaring tho words, Accordi to the order of Me chi-ſedec, whereu on that compar ſon ſtandeth of the Prieſthood Chriſt with the Leviticall: firſt, Melchi-ſedec himſelfe is conſi dered as the figu of Chriſt, and the are the heads that compariſon: Melchi-ſedec wa a King and a Prieſt, and ſuch a one in deed is Chriſt alone. H was a King of peace & righteouſnes, ſuch a one in deede is Chriſt alone.

* *Gen.*14.18.

[2] Another figure Melchi-ſedech i ſet before us to b conſidered as on without beginning and withou ending, for nei ther his father, nor his mother nor his anceſtors nor his death ar written of: and ſuch an one indeed is the Son o God, to wit, an everlaſting Prieſt as he is God, without mother wonderfully begotten: as he is man, without fa ther wonderfully conceived.

[3] Another figure Melchi-ſedec in conſideration of his Prieſthood was above Abraham: for he took tenths of him, & bleſſed him as a Prieſt: Such a one indeed is Chriſt, upon whom dependeth even Abrahams ſanctification, and all the beleevers, and whom all men ought to worſhip and reverence as the author of all.

* *Numb.*18. 21.

[b] Were begotten of Abraham.

[c] He ſpeaketh of the publike bleſsing which the Prieſts uſed.

[4] A double amplification: The firſt, that Melchi-ſedec took the tenths as one immortall (to wit, in reſpect that he is the figure of Chriſt, for his death is in no place made mention of, and David ſetteth him forth as an everlaſting Prieſt) but the Leviticall Prieſts, as mortall men, for they ſucceed one another: the ſecond, that Levi, himſelfe was tithed in Abraham by Melchi-ſedec. Therefore the Prieſt-hood of Melchi-ſedec (that is, Chriſts, who is pronounced to be an everlaſting Prieſt according to this order) is more excellent then the Leviticall. [5] The third treatiſe of this Epiſtle, wherein after he hath prooved Chriſt to be a King, a Prophet and Prieſt, he now handleth diſtinctly the condition and excellencie of all theſe offices, ſhewing that all theſe were but ſhadowes in all other, but in Chriſt they are true and perfit. And he beginneth with the Prieſthood, wherewith alſo the former treatiſe ended, that by this meanes all the parts and members of the diſputation, may better hang together. And firſt of all he proveth that the Leviticall Prieſthood was imperfect, becauſe another Prieſt is promiſed a long time after, according to another order, that is to ſay, of another manner of rule and faſhion. [d] If the Prieſthood of Levi could have made any man perfit. [6] He ſheweth how that by the inſtitution of the new Prieſthood, not only the imperfection of the Prieſthood of Levi was declared, but alſo that it was changed for this: for theſe two cannot ſtand together, becauſe that firſt appointment of the tribe of Levi, did ſhut foorth the tribe of Iuda, & made it alſo inferiour to Levi: and this latter doth place the Prieſthood in the tribe of Iuda. [e] Of the inſtitution of Aaron.

whereof no man [f] ſerved at the altar,

14 For it is evident, that our Lord ſprung out of Judah, concerning the which tribe Moſes ſpake nothing, touching the Prieſthood.

15 [7] And it is yet a more evident thing, becauſe that after the ſimilitude of Melchi-ſedec, there is riſen up another Prieſt,

16 [8] Which is not made Prieſt after the [g] law of the carnall commandment, but after the power of the endleſſe life:

17 For he teſtifieth thus, * Thou art a Prieſt for ever, after the order of Melchi-ſedec.

18 [9] For the [h] commandment that went afore, is diſanulled, becauſe of the weaknes thereof, and unprofitableneſſe.

19 For the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope made perfect, whereby we draw neare unto God.

20 [10] And foraſmuch as it is not without an oath (for theſe are made Prieſts without an oath:

21 But this is made with an oath by him that ſaid unto him, *The Lord hath ſworn, and will not repent, Thou art a Prieſt for ever, after the order of Melchi-ſedec,) 22 By ſo much is Jeſus made a ſurety of a better Teſtament.

23 [11] And among them many were made Prieſts, becauſe they were not ſuffered to endure, by the reaſon of death:

24 But this man, becauſe he endureth ever, hath a Prieſthood, which [i] cannot paſſe from one to another.

25 Wherefore, he is [k] able alſo perfectly to ſave them that come unto God by him, ſeeing he ever liveth, to make interceſſion for them.

26 [12] For ſuch an high Prieſt it became us to have, which is holy, harmleſſe, undefiled, ſeparate from ſinners, and made higher then the heavens:

27 Which needeth not daily as thoſe high Prieſts to offer up ſacrifice, * firſt for his own ſinnes, and then for the peoples: [13] for [l] that did he [m] once, when he offered up himſelf.

28 For the Law maketh men high Prieſts, which have infirmitie: but the [n] word of the oath [14] that [o] was ſince the Law, maketh the Sonne, who is conſecrated for evermore.

[f] Had any thing to do about the altar.

[7] Leſt any man might object, that the Prieſthood indeed was tranſlated from Levi to Juda, but yet notwithſtanding the ſame remaineth ſtill, he both weigheth and expoundeth thoſe words of David, for ever according to the order of Melchi-ſedec, whereby alſo a divers inſtitution of Prieſthood is well perceived.

[8] He proveth the diverſity and excellency of the inſtitution of Melchi-ſedecs Prieſthood, by this, that the Prieſthood of the law did ſtand upon an outward and bodily anointing: but the ſacrifice of Melchi-ſedec is ſet out to be everlaſting and more ſpirituall.

[g] Not after the ordination, which commandeth frail and tranſitory things, as was done in Aarons conſecration, and all that whole Prieſthood.

* Pſal. 110. 4. Chap. 5. 6.

[9] Again, that no man might object that the laſt Prieſthood was added to make a perfect one, by the coupling of them both together, he proveth that the firſt was abrogated by the latter, as unprofitable, and that by the nature of them both. For how could thoſe corporall and tranſitory things ſanctifie us, either of themſelves, or being joyned with another?

[h] The ceremoniall law.

[10] Another argument, whereby he proveth that the Prieſthood of Chriſt is better then the Prieſthood of Levi, becauſe his was eſtabliſhed with an oath, but theirs was not ſo.

* Pſal. 110. 4.

[11] Another argument tending to the ſame purpoſe. The Leviticall Prieſts (as mortall men) could not be everlaſting, but Chriſt, as he is everlaſting, ſo hath he alſo an everlaſting Prieſthood, making moſt effectuall interceſſion for them which by him come unto God.

[i] Which cannot paſſe away.

[k] He is fit and meet.

[12] Another argument: There are required in an high Prieſt innocencie and perfect pureneſſe, which may ſeparate him from ſinners, for whom he offereth. But the Leviticall high Prieſts ſhall not be found to be ſuch, for they offer firſt for their own ſinnes: but Chriſt onely is ſuch a one, and therefore the true and onely high Prieſt.

* Levit. 16. 11.

[13] Another argument, which notwithſtanding he handleth afterward: The Leviticall Prieſts offered ſacrifice after ſacrifice, firſt for themſelves, and then for the people. But Chriſt offered not for himſelf, but for other, not ſacrifices, but himſelf, not oftentimes, but once. And this ought not to ſeem ſtrange, ſaith he, foraſmuch as they are weake, but this Man is conſecrate an everlaſting Prieſt, and that by an oath.

[l] That ſacrifice which he offered.

[m] It was ſo done, that it needeth not to be repeated or offered again any more.

[n] The commandment of God which was bound with an oath.

[14] Another argument taken of the time: Former things are taken away by the latter.

[o] Exhibited.

Chap. VIII.

1 To prove more certainly that the ceremonies of the law are abrogated, 5 he ſheweth that they were appointed to ſerve the heavenly pattern. 8 He bringeth in the place of Ieremy, 13 to prove the amendment of the old covenant.

NOw [1] of the things which we have ſpoken, this is the ſum, that we have ſuch an high Prieſt, that ſitteth at the right hand of the throne of the Majeſtie in heavens,

2 [2] And is a Miniſter of the [a] Sanctuary, [3] and of that [b] true Tabernacle which the Lord pight, and not man:

3 [4] For every high Prieſt is ordained to offer both gifts and ſacrifices: wherefore it was of neceſſitie, that this man ſhould have ſomewhat alſo to offer:

4 [5] For he were not a Prieſt, if he were on the earth, ſeeing there are Prieſts that according to the law offer gifts,

5 Who ſerve unto the patern and ſhadow of heavenly things, as Moſes was warned by God, when he was about to finiſh the Tabernacle. *See, ſaid he, that thou make all things according to the patern, ſhewed to thee in the mount.

6 [6] But now our high Prieſt hath obtained a more excellent office, in as much as he is the Mediatour of a better Teſtament, which is eſtabliſhed upon better promiſes.

7 [7] For if that firſt Teſtament had been unblameable, no place ſhould have been ſought for the ſecond.

8 For in rebuking them he ſaith, * Behold, the daies will come, ſaith the Lord, when I ſhall make with the [c] houſe of Iſrael, & with the houſe of Juda a new Teſtament:

9 Not like the Teſtament that I made with their fathers, in the day that I tooke them by the hand, to leade them out of the land of Egypt: for they continued not in my Teſtament, and I regarded them not, ſaith the Lord.

10 For this is the Teſtament that I will make with the houſe of Iſrael, After thoſe dayes, ſaith the Lord, I will put my laws in their mind, and in their heart I will write them, and I will be their God, and they ſhall be my people, 11 And they ſhal not teach every man his neighbour, & every man his brother, ſaying, Know the Lord: for all ſhall know me, from the leaſt of them to the greateſt of them.

12 For I will be mercifull to their unrighteouſneſſe, and I will remember their ſins, and their iniquities no more.

13 [8] In that he ſaith, A new Teſtament, he hath abrogated the old: now that which is diſanulled and waxed old, is ready to vaniſh away.

[1] He briefly repeateth ỳ, whereunto all theſe things are to be referred, to wit, that we have a far other high Prieſt then thoſe Leviticall high Prieſts are, even ſuch an one as ſitteth at the right hand of the moſt high God in heaven.

[2] They of Levi were high Prieſts in an earthly ſanctuary, but Chriſt is in the heavenly.

[a] Of heaven.

[3] They of Levi exerciſed their Prieſthood in a frail tabernacle, but Chriſt beareth about with him a farre other tabernacle, to wit, his body which God himſelf made to be everlaſting, as it ſhall afterward be declared, cha. 9. 11.

[b] Of his body.

[4] He bringeth a reaſon, why it muſt needs be ỳ Chriſt ſhould have a body, (which he calleth a Tabernacle, which the Lord pight, & not man) to wit, ỳ he might have what to offer: for otherwiſe hee could not be an high Prieſt. And the ſelfe ſame bodie is both the Tabernacle and the ſacrifice.

[5] He giveth a reaſon, why he ſaid that our hie Prieſt is in the heavenly Sanctuarie, and not in the earthly: becauſe ſaith he, if he were now on the earth, he could not miniſter in the earthly ſanctuary, ſeeing ther are yet Leviticall Prieſts which are appointed for him, that is to ſay, to be patterns of that perfit example. And to what purpoſe ſhold the patterns ſerve when the true & originall example is preſent?

* Exod. 25. 40. Acts 7. 44.

[6] He entreth into the compariſon of the old & tranſitorie Teſtament or Covenant, being but for a time, whereof the Leviticall Prieſts were mediators, with the new, the everlaſting Mediatour whereof is Chriſt, to ſhew, that this is not onely better then that in all reſpects, but alſo that that was abrogated by this.

[7] He proveth by the teſtimony of Jeremie, that there is a ſecond teſtament or covenant, and therefore that the firſt was not perfit.

* Ier. 31. 31, 32, 33, 34. Rom. 11. 27. Chap. 10. 16

[c] He calleth it an houſe, as it were one family of the whole kingdome: for whereas the kingdome of David was divided into two factions, the Prophet giveth us to underſtand, that through the new Teſtament they ſhall be ioyned together againe in one.

[8] The concluſion therefore by the latter and the new, the firſt and old is taken away, for it could not be called new, if it differed not from the old, and againe, that ſame is at length taken away, which is ſubject to corruption, and therefore imperfect.

CHAP. IX.

2 Comparing the form of the Tabernacle, 10 and the ceremonies of the law, 11 unto the truth ſet out in Chriſt, 15 He concludeth that now there is no more need of another Prieſt, 24 Becauſe Chriſt himſelf hath fulfilled theſe duties under the new covenant.

THen [1] the firſt Teſtament had alſo ordinances of religion, and a [a] worldly Sanctuarie:

2 For the firſt Tabernacle was made wherein was the candleſtick, and the table, and the ſhewbread, which Tabernacle is called the Holy places.

3 And after [b] the ſecond vail was the Tabernacle, which is called the [c] Holieſt of all,

4 Which had the golden cenſer, and the Ark of the Teſtament overlaid round about with gold, wherein the golden pot, which had Manna, was, and * Aarons rod that had budded, and the * tables of the Teſtament.

5 * And over the ark were the glorious Cherubims, ſhadowing the [d] mercy ſeate: of which things we will not now ſpeake particularly.

6 [2] Now when theſe things were thus ordained, the Prieſts went alwayes into the firſt Tabernacle, and accompliſhed the ſervice:

7 But into the ſecond went the * high Prieſt alone, once every yeare, not without blood which he offered for himſelf, and for the [e] ignorances of the people,

8 [3] Whereby the holy Ghoſt this ſignified, that the way into the Holieſt of all was not yet opened, while as yet the firſt Tabernacle was ſtanding,

9 [4] Which was a figure [f] for that preſent time, wherein were offered gifts and ſacrifices that could not make holy, concerning the conſcience, him that did the ſervice,

10 [5] Which onely ſtood in meats and drinks, and divers waſhings, and carnall rites, [g] which were enjoyned, untill the time of reformation:

11 [6] But Chriſt being come an high Prieſt of good things to come, [7] by a [h] greater and a more perfect Tabernacle not made with hands, that is, not of his building, 12 [8] Neither by the blood of [i] goates and calves: but by his own blood entred he in once into the Holy place, and obtained eternall redemption for us.

13 * [9] For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the aſhes of an heifer, ſprinkling them that are uncleane, ſanctifieth as touching the [k] purifying of the fleſh,

14 How much more ſhall the * blood of Chriſt, which through the eternall ſpirit offered himſelf without fault to God, * purge your conſcience from [l] dead works, to ſerve the living God?

15 [10] And for this cauſe he is the Mediatour of the new Teſtament, that through * death which was for the redemption of the tranſgreſſions that were in the former Teſtament, they which were called, might receive the promiſe of eternall inheritance.

16 [11] For where a Teſtament is, there muſt be the death of him that made the Teſtament.

17 * For the Teſtament is confirmed when men are dead: for it is yet of no force as long as he that made it is alive.

18 [12] Wherefore, neither was the firſt ordained without blood.

19 For when Moſes had ſpoken every precept to the people, [m] according to the Law, he took the blood of calves and of goats[c] with water and purple wooll and hyſſop, and [n] ſprinkled both the book, and all the people, 20 * Saying, This is the blood of the Teſtament, which God hath appointed unto you.

21 Moreover, he ſprinkled likewiſe the Tabernacle with blood alſo, and all the miniſtring veſſels.

22 And almoſt all things are by the law purged with blood, and without ſhedding of blood is no remiſſion.

23 It was then neceſſary, that the [o] ſimilitudes of heavenly things ſhould be purified with ſuch things: but the heavenly things themſelves are purified with better ſacrifices then are theſe:

24 [13] For Chriſt is not entred into the holy places that are made with hands, which are ſimilitudes of the true Sanctuarie: but is entred into very heaven to appeare now in the ſight of God for us,

---

[1] A diviſion of the firſt Tabernacle, which he calleth worldly, that is to ſay, tranſitory, and earthly, into two parts, to wit, into the holy places, & the Holieſt of all.

[a] An earthly and a flitting.

[b] He calleth it the ſecond vaile, not becauſe there was two vailes, but becauſe it was behinde the Sanctuary, or the firſt Tabernacle.

[c] The Holieſt Sanctuary.

* Num. 17.10.

* 1 Kings 8.9. 2 Chron. 5.10.

* Exod. 25.22.

[d] The Hebrews call the cover of the Ark of the covenant, the mercy ſeate, whom both the Grecians and we follow.

[2] Now he cometh to the ſacrifices, which he divideth into thoſe daily ſacrifices, and that yearely and ſolemn ſacrifice, with the which the high Prieſt onely but once every yeare entring into the Holieſt of all with blood offered for himſelf and the people.

* Exod. 30.10. Levit. 16.2.

[e] For the ſinnes, Looke chap. 5.2.

[3] Of that yearely rite and the ceremony, he gathereth that the way was not by ſuch ſacrifices opened into heaven, which was ſhadowed by the Holieſt of all: for why did the high Prieſt alone enter in thither, ſhutting out all other, and that to offer ſacrifices there both for himſelf, and for others, and after, did ſhut the Holieſt of al again?

[4] An objection: If the way were not opened into heaven by thoſe ſacrifices (that is to ſay, if the worſhippers were not purged by them) why then were thoſe ceremonies uſed? To wit, that men might be called back to that ſpirituall example, that is to ſay, to Chriſt, who ſhould correct all thoſe things at his coming

[f] For that time that that figure had to laſt.

[5] An other reaſon why they could not make cleane the conſcience of the worſhippers, to wit, becauſe they were outward and carnall, or corporall things.

[g] For they were as you would ſay, a burden, from which Chriſt delivered us.

[6] Now he entreth into the declaration of the figures, and firſt of all comparing the Leviticall high Prieſt with Chriſt, (that is to ſay, the figure with the thing it ſelf) he attributeth to Chriſt the adminiſtration of good things to come, that is, everlaſting, which thoſe carnall things had reſpect unto.

[7] An other compariſon of the firſt corruptible Tabernacle, with the latter, (that is to ſay, with the humane nature of Chriſt) which is the true incorruptible Temple of God, whereinto the Sonne of God entred, as the Leviticall high Prieſts into the other which was fraile and tranſitory.

[h] By a more excellent and better.

[8] Another compariſon of the blood of the ſacrifices with Chriſt. The Leviticall high Prieſts entring by thoſe their holy places into their Sanctuary, offered corruptible blood for one yeare onely: but Chriſt entring into that holy body of his, entred by it into heaven it ſelf, offering his own moſt pure blood for an everlaſting redemption: For one ſelf ſame Chriſt anſwereth both to the high Prieſt, and the Tabernacle, and the ſacrifices, and the offerings themſelves, as the truth to the figures, ſo that Chriſt is both high Prieſt, and Tabernacle, and Sacrifice, yea, all thoſe both truly and for ever.

[i] For in this yearely ſacrifice of reconciliation, there were two kinds of ſacrifices, the one a goat, the other a heifer, or calf.

* Levit. 16.14. Num. 19.4.

[9] If the outward ſprinkling of blood and aſhes of beaſts was a true and effectuall ſigne of purifying and cleanſing, how much more ſhall the thing it ſelf, and the truth being preſent, which in tims paſt was ſhadowed by thoſe externall Sacraments, that is to ſay, his blood, which is in ſuch ſort mans blood, that it is alſo the blood of the Son of God, and therefore hath an everlaſting vertue of purifying & cleanſing, do it?

[k] He conſidereth the ſignes apart, being ſeparate from the thing it ſelf.

* 1 Pet. 1.19. 1 Iohn 1.7. Revel. 1.5.

* Luke 1.74.

[l] From ſinnes which proceed from death, and bring forth nothing but death.

[10] The concluſion of the former argument: therefore ſeeing the blood of beaſts did not purge ſinnes, the new Teſtament which was before time promiſed, whereunto thoſe outward things had reſpect, is now indeed eſtabliſhed, by the vertue whereof all tranſgreſſions might be taken away, & heaven indeed opened unto us: whereof it followeth that Chriſt ſhed his blood alſo for the fathers, for he was ſhadowed by theſe old ceremonies, otherwiſe, unleſſe they had ſerved to repreſent him, they had been nothing at all profitable. Therefore this Teſtament is called the latter, not as concerning the vertue of it, (that is to ſay, remiſſion of ſinnes) but in reſpect of that time, wherein the thing it ſelf was finiſhed, that is to ſay, wherein Chriſt was indeed exhibited to the world, and fulfilled all things which were neceſſary to our ſalvation.

* Rom. 5.6. 1 Pet. 3.18.

[11] A reaſon why the Teſtament muſt be eſtabliſhed by the death of the Mediatour, becauſe this Teſtament hath the condition of a Teſtament or gift, which is made effectuall by death, and therefore that it might be effectuall, it muſt needs be that he that made the Teſtament, ſhould dy.

* Gal. 3.15.

[12] There muſt be a proportion between thoſe things which purifie, and thoſe which are purified: Under the Law all thoſe figures were earthly, The Tabernacle, the book, the veſſels, the ſacrifices, although they were the ſignes of heavenly things. Therfore it was requiſite that all thoſe ſhould be purified with ſome matter and ceremony of the ſame nature, to wit, with the blood of beaſts, with water, wooll, hyſſope. But under Chriſt all things are heavenly, an heavenly Tabernacle, an heavenly Sacrifice, an heavenly people, an heavenly doctrine, and heaven it ſelf is ſet open before us for an everlaſting habitation. Therfore all theſe things are ſanctified in like ſort, to wit, with that everlaſting offering of the quickning blood of Chriſt.

[m] As the Lord had commanded.

[n] He uſed to ſprinkle.

* Exod. 24.8.

[o] The ſimilitudes of heavenly things were earthly, and therefore they were to be ſet forth with earthly things, as with the blood of beaſts, and wooll, and hyſſope. But under Chriſt all things are heavenly, and therefore they could not but be ſanctified with the offering of his lively blood.

[13] Another double compariſon: The Leviticall high Prieſt entred into the Sanctuary, which was made indeed by the commandment of God, but yet with mens hands, that it might be a pattern of another more excellent, to wit, of the heavenly palace. But Chriſt entred into heaven it ſelf. Again, he appeared before the Ark, bnt Chriſt before God the Father himſelf.

25 [14] Not that he ſhould offer himſelf often, as the high Priſt entred into the holy place every yeare with other blood, 26 [15] (For then muſt he have often ſuffered ſince the foundation of the world) but now in the [p] end of the world hath he been made manifeſt once, to put away [q] ſin by the ſacrifice of himſelf.

27 And as it is appointed unto men that they ſhall [r] once die, and after that cometh the judgement :

18 So * Chriſt was once offered to take away the ſins of [ſ] many, [16] and unto them that look for him, ſhall he appeare the ſecond time without ſin unto ſalvation.

[14] Another double compariſon: The Leviticall high Prieſt offered other blood, but Chriſt offered his own: he every yeare once iterated his offering: Chriſt offering himſelf but once aboliſhed ſinne altogether, both of the former ages, & of the ages to come.

[15] An argument to prove ye Chriſts offering ought not to be repeated: Seeing that ſinnes were to be purged from the beginning of the world, and it is proved that ſins cannot be purged, but by the onely blood of Chriſt: he muſt needs have dyed oftentimes, ſince the beginning of the world. But a man can die but once: therefore Chriſts oblation which was once done in ye latter dayes, neither could nor can be repeated. Seeing then it is ſo, ſurely the vertue of it extendeth both to ſinnes that were before, and to ſins that are after his coming. p In the latter dayes. q That whole root of ſinne. r He ſpeaketh of the naturall ſtate and condition of man: For as for Lazarus and certain other that died twiſe, that was no uſuall thing, but extraordinary: and as for them that ſhall be changed, their changing is a kinde of death, 1 Coe.15.51. * Rom.5.8. 1 Pet.3.18. ſ Thus the generall promiſe is reſtrained to the elect onely: and we have to ſeek the teſtimony of our election, not in the ſecret counſell of God, but in the effects that our faith worketh, and ſo we muſt climbe up from the loweſt ſtep to the higheſt, there to finde ſuch comfort as is moſt certain, and ſhall never be moved. 16 Shortly by the way he ſetteth out Chriſt as Judge, partly to terrifie them, which do not reſt themſelves in the onely oblation of Chriſt once made, and partly to keep the faithfull in their duty, that they go not back.

C H A P. X.

1 He proveth that the ſacrifices of the law were unperfect, 2 becauſe they were yearely renewed: 5 But that the ſacrifice of Chriſt is one, and perpetuall, 6 he proveth by Davids teſtimony. 19 Then he addeth an exhortation, 29 and ſeverely threatneth them that reject the grace of Chriſt. 36 In the end he praiſeth patience, 38 that cometh of faith.

FOr [1] the Law having the ſhadow of good things to [a] come, and not the very image of the things, can never with thoſe ſacrifices, which they offer yeare by yeare continually, ſanctifie the comers thereunto:

2 For would they not then have ceaſed to have been offered, becauſe that the offerers once purged, ſhould have no more conſcience of ſinnes ?

3 But in thoſe ſacrifices there is a remembrance again of ſins every yeare.

4 For it is unpoſſible that the blood of buls and goats ſhould take away ſinnes.

5 [2] Wherefore when he [b] cometh into the world, he ſaith, * Sacrifice and offering thou wouldeſt not: but a [c] body haſt thou ordained me.

6 In burnt-offerings, and ſin-offerings thou haſt had no pleaſure.

7 Then I ſaid, Lo, I come (In the beginning of the book it is written of me) that I ſhould do thy will, O God.

8 Above when he ſaid, Sacrifice and offering, and burnt-offrings, and ſin-offrings thou wouldeſt not have, neither hadſt pleaſure therein (which are offered by the Law)

9 Then ſaid he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God: he taketh away the [d] firſt, that he may ſtabliſh the ſecond.

10 By the which will we are ſanctified, even by the offering of the body of Jeſus Chriſt once made.

[1] He preventeth a privie objection. Why then were thoſe ſacrifices offered? The Apoſtle anſwereth, firſt touching ye yearly ſacrifice which was the ſolemneſt of all, wherein, (ſaith he) there was made every yeare a remembrance again of all former ſinnes. Therefore that ſacrifice had no power to ſanctifie: for to what purpoſe ſhould thoſe ſinnes which are purged be repeated again, & wherfore ſhould new ſinnes come to be repeated every yeare, if thoſe ſacrifices did aboliſh ſinne?

a Of things which are everlaſting, which were promiſed to the Fathers, and exhibited in Chriſt.

2 A concluſion following of thoſe things that went before, and comprehending alſo the other ſacrifices, Seeing that the ſacrifices of the law could not do it, therefore Chriſt ſpeaking of himſelf as of our high Prieſt, manifeſted in the fleſh, witneſſeth evidently that God reſted not in the ſacrifices, but in the obedience of his Sonne our high Prieſt, in whoſe obedience he offered up himſelf once to his Father for us.

b The Son of God is ſaid to come into the world, when he was made man. * Pſal. 40.7. c It is word for word in the Hebrew text, Thou haſt pierced mine eares through, that is, thou haſt made me obedient, and willing to heare. d That is, the ſacrifices, to eſtabliſh the ſecond, that is, the will of God.

11 [3] And every Prieſt ſtandeth [e] daily miniſtring, and oft times offereth one manner of offering, which can never take away ſinnes :

12 But this man after he had offered one ſacrifice for ſinnes, * ſitteth for ever at the right hand of God, 13 [4] And from henceforth tarieth, * till his enemies be made his footſtoole.

14 For with one offering hath he conſecrated for ever them that are ſanctified.

15 [5] For the holy Ghoſt alſo beareth us record : for after that he had ſaid before,

16 * This is the Teſtament that I will make unto them after thoſe dayes, ſaith the Lord, I will put my lawes in their heart, and in their minds I will write them, 17 And their ſinnes and iniquities will I remember [f] no more.

18 Now where remiſſion of theſe things is, there is no more offering for [g] ſinne.

19 [6] Seeing therefore brethren, that by the blood of Jeſus we may be bold to enter into the Holy place,

20 By the new and living way, which he hath prepared for us through the vaile, that is, his [h] fleſh :

21 And ſeeing we have an high Prieſt, which is, over the houſe of God,

22 [7] Let us draw neare with a [i] true heart in aſſurance of faith, our [k] hearts being pure from an evill conſcience,

23 And waſhed in our bodies with [l] pure water, let us keep the profeſſion of our hope, without wavering (for he is faithfull that promiſed)

24 And let us conſider one another, to provoke unto love, and to good works,

25 Not forſaking the fellowſhip that we have among our ſelves, as the manner of ſome is : but let us exhort one another, [8] and that ſo much the more, becauſe ye ſee that the day draweth neere.

26 * For if we ſin [m] willingly after that we have received and acknowledged that truth, there remaineth no more ſacrifice for ſinnes, 27 But a fearfull looking for of judgement, and violent fire, which ſhall devoure the [n] adverſaries.

28 [9] He that deſpiſeth Moſes law, dieth

3 A concluſion with the other part of the compariſon: The Leviticall high Prieſt repeateth the ſame ſacrifices daily in his ſanctuary: whereupon it followeth that neither thoſe ſacrifices, neither thoſe offerings, neither thoſe high Prieſts could take away ſinnes. But Chriſt having offred one ſacrifice once for the ſins of all men, and having ſanctified his own for ever, ſitteth at the right hand of the Father, having all power in his hands e At the altar.

* Chap. 1.13. Pſal. 110.1. 1 Cor. 15.25.

4 He preventeth a privie objection, to wit, that yet notwithſtanding we are ſubject to ſinne and death, whereunto the Apoſtle anſwereth, that the full efficacie of Chriſts vertue hath not yet ſhewed it ſelf, but ſhall at length appeare when he wil at once put to flight all his enemies, with whom as yet we ſtrive.

* Chap. 1.13.

5 Although there do yet remain in us reliques of ſin, yet the work of our ſanctification which is to be perfected, hangeth upon the ſelf ſame ſacrifice which never ſhall be repeated : and that the Apoſtle proveth by alledging again the teſtimony of Jeremy, thus: Sin is taken away by the new Teſtament, ſeeing the Lord ſaith that it ſhall come to paſſe, that according to the form of it, he will no more remember our ſins: Therfore we need now no purging ſacrifice to take away that which is already taken away but we muſt rather take paines, that we may now through faith be partakers of that ſacrifice.

* Ier. 31.33. Rom. 11.27. Chap. 8.8.

f Why then, where is the fire of purgatory, and that Popiſh diſtinction of the fault, and the puniſhment?

g He ſaid well, for ſin: for there remaineth another offering, to wit, of thanksgiving. 6 The ſum of the former treatiſe: We are not ſhut out now of the holy place, as the Fathers were, but we have an entrance into the true holy place (that is, into heaven) ſeeing that we are purged with the blood, not of beaſts, but of Jeſus. Neither as in times paſt, doth the high Prieſt ſhut us out by ſetting the vail againſt us, but through the vaile which is his fleſh, he hath brought us into heaven it ſelf, being preſent with us, ſo that we have now truly an high Prieſt, which is over the houſe of God. h So Chriſts fleſh ſheweth us the Godhead as it were under a vaile. For otherwiſe we were not able to abide the brightneſſe of it. 7 A moſt grave exhortation, wherein he ſheweth how that ſacrifice of Chriſt may be applyed to us: to wit, by faith, which alſo he deſcribeth by the conſequents, to wit, by ſanctification of the Spirit, which cauſeth us ſurely to hope in God, and to procure by all meanes poſſible one anothers ſalvation, through the love that is in us one towards another. i With no double and counterfeit heart, but with ſuch an heart as is truly and indeed given to God. k This is it which the Lord ſaith, Be ye holy, for I am holy. l With the grace of the holy Ghoſt. 8 Having mentioned the laſt coming of Chriſt, he ſtirreth up the godly to the meditation of an holy life, and citeth the faithleſſe fallers from God to the fearfull judgement ſeate of the Judge, becauſe they wickedly rejected him in whom onely ſalvation conſiſteth. * Chap. 6.4. m Without any cauſe or occaſion, or ſhew of occaſion. n For it is another matter to ſin through the frailty of mans nature, and another thing to proclaim war as it were to God as to an enemie. 9 If the breach of the law of Moſes was puniſhed by death, how much more worthy death is it to fall away from Chriſt?

without mercy*under two or three witneſſes:

29 Of how much ſorer puniſhment ſuppoſe ye ſhall he be worthy, which treadeth under foot the ſon of God,& counteth the blood of the Teſtament as an unholy thing, wherewith he was ſanctified, and doth deſpite the Spirit of grace?

30 [10] For we know him that hath ſaid, *Vengeance belongeth unto me: I will recompence, ſaith the Lord. And again, the Lord ſhall [o] judge his people.

31 It is a fearefull thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 [11] Now call to remembrance the dayes that are paſſed, in the which, after ye had received light, ye endured a great fight in afflictions,

33 Partly while ye were made a [p] gazing ſtock both by reproches and afflictions,and partly while ye became [q] companions of them which were ſo toſſed to and fro.

34 For both ye ſorrowed with me for my bonds, and ſuffered with joy the ſpoiling of your goods, knowing in your ſelves how that ye have in heaven a better,and an enduring [r] ſubſtance.

35 Caſt not away therefore your confidence which hath great recompenſe of reward.

36 For ye have need of patience,that after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promiſe.

37 For yet a very [ſ] little while,and he that ſhall come, will come,and will not tarry.

38 *[12] Now the juſt ſhall live by faith: but if any withdraw himſelf, my ſoul ſhall have no pleaſure in him.

39 But we are not they which withdraw our ſelves unto perdition, but follow faith unto the conſervation of the ſoul.

CHAP. XI.

1 He declareth in the whole chapter, that the Fathers,which from the beginning of the world were approved of God,attained ſalvation no other way then by faith, that the Iewes may know, that by the ſame onely, they are knit unto the Fathers in an holy union.

NOw [1] faith is the ground of things which are hoped for,and the evidence of things which are not ſeen.

2 [2] For by it our [a] elders were well reported of.

3 *[3] Through faith we underſtand that the world was ordained by the word of God,ſo that the things which we [b] ſee, are not made of things which did appeare.

4 [4] By faith Abel * offered unto God a greater ſacrifice then Cain, by the which he obtained witneſſe that he was righteous, God teſtifying of his gifts: by *the which faith alſo he being dead, yet ſpeaketh.

5 [5] By faith was * Enoch tranſlated, that he ſhould not [c] ſee death: neither was he found: for God had tranſlated him: for before he was tranſlated, he was reported of, that he had pleaſed God.

6 But without faith it is impoſſible to pleaſe him: for he that cometh to God,muſt beleeve that God is, and that he is a [d] rewarder of them that ſeek him.

7 [6] By faith *Noe being warned of God of the things which were as yet not ſeen, moved with repentance, prepared the ark to the ſaving of his houſhold, through the which Ark he condemned the world, and was made heire of the righteouſneſſe, which is by faith.

8 [7] By faith * Abraham when he was called,obeyed God, to go out into a place, which he ſhould afterward receive for inheritance, and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

9 By faith he abode in the land of promiſe, as in a ſtrange countrey, as one that dwelt in tents with Iſaac and Jacob heires with him of the ſame promiſe:

10 For he looked for a city having a [e] foundation, whoſe builder and maker is God.

11 Through faith * Sara alſo received ſtrength to conceive ſeed, and was delivered of a childe when ſhe was paſt age, becauſe ſhe judged him faithfull which had promiſed.

12 And therefore ſprang there of one, even of one which was [f] dead, ſo many as the ſtars of the ſkie in multitude,and as the ſand of the ſea ſhore which is innumerable.

13 All theſe died in [g] faith,and received not the [h] promiſes, but ſaw them a far off, and beleeved them,and [i] received them thankfully,and confeſſed that they were ſtrangers and pilgrims on the earth.

14 For they that ſaw ſuch things,declare plainly, that they ſeek a countrey.

15 And if they had been mindfull of that countrey from whence they came out, they had leiſure to have returned.

16 But now they deſire a better, that is, [illegible]venly: wherefore God is not aſhamed of them to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city.

17 By faith * Abraham offered up Iſaac, when he was [k] tryed,and he that had received the [l] promiſes,offered his onely begotten Sonne,

18 (To whom it was ſaid, *In Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called)

19 For he conſidered that God was able to raiſe him up even from the dead: from [m] whence he received him alſo after a [n] ſort.

33 Which through faith ſubdued kingdoms, wrought righteouſneſſe, obtained the [ſ] promiſes, ſtopped the mouthes of lions,

34 Quenched the violence of fire , eſcaped the edge of the ſword, of weake were made ſtrong, waxed valiant in battell, turned to flight the armies of the aliants:

36 And others have been tryed by mockings and ſcourgings , yea , moreover by bonds, and priſonment :

37 They were ſtoned, they were hewen aſunder, they were tempted , they were ſlain with the ſword, they wandred up and down in [x] ſheeps ſkinnes , and in goats ſkinnes, being deſtitute , afflicted , and tormented:

Wherefore, * [1] let us alſo, ſeeing that we are compaſſed with ſo great a cloud of witneſſes, caſt away every thing that preſſeth down, and the ſin that [a] hangeth ſo faſt on : let us run with patience the race that is ſet before us,

1 An applying of the former examples , whereby we ought to be ſtirred up to run ye whole race , caſting away all ſtoppes and impediments.
[a] For ſin beſiegeth us on all ſides, ſo that we cannot eſcape out.

2 [2] [b] Looking unto Jeſus the authour and finiſher of our faith, who for the [c] joy that was ſet before him, endured the croſſe, and deſpiſed the ſhame, and is ſet at the right hand of the throne of God.

2 He ſetteth before us , as the marke of this race, Ieſus himſelf our captain, who willingly overcame al the roughneſſe of the ſame way.
[b] As it were upon the marke of our faith.
[c] Whereas he had all kind of bleſſedneſſe in his hand and power, yet ſuffered willingly the ignominie of the Croſſe.

3 [3] Conſider therefore him that endured ſuch ſpeaking againſt of ſinners , leſt ye ſhould be wearied and faint in your minds.

3 An amplification, taken of the circumſtance of the perſons & the things themſelves, which he compareth between themſelves : for how great is Ieſus in compariſon of us, and how farre more grievous things did he ſuffer then we ?

4 [4] Ye have not yet reſiſted unto blood, ſtriving againſt ſinne.

4 He taketh an argument of the profit which commeth to us by Gods chaſtiſements , unleſſe we be in fault. Firſt of all, becauſe ſin, or that rebellious wickedneſſe of our fleſh, is by this means tamed.

5 [5] And ye have forgotten the conſolation , which ſpeaketh unto you as unto children, * My ſon, deſpiſe not the chaſtening of the Lord, neither faint when thou art rebuked of him:

5 Secondly , becauſe they are teſtimonies of his fatherly good will toward us , in ſo much that they ſhew themſelves to be baſtards, which cannot abide to be chaſtened of God.

* Prov.3.11.

6 For whom the Lord loveth, he chaſteneth : and he ſcourgeth every ſonne that he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chaſtening, God offereth himſelf unto you as unto ſons : for what ſon is it whom the father chaſteneth not ?

8 If therefore ye be without correction, whereof all are partakers , then are ye baſtards, and not ſons.

9 [6] Moreover we have had the fathers of our bodies which corrected us , and we gave them reverence : ſhould we not much rather be in ſubjection unto the father of ſpirits, that we might live ?

10 [7] For they verely for a few dayes chaſtened us after their own pleaſure : but he chaſteneth us for our profit , that we might be partakers of his holineſſe.

11 Now no chaſtening for the preſent ſeemeth to be joyous, but grievous : but afterward, it bringeth the quiet fruit of righteouſneſſe unto them which are thereby exerciſed.

6 Thirdly, if all men yeeld this right to fathers, to whom next after God we owe this life , that they may rightfully correct their children, ſhall we not be much more ſubject to that our Father, who is the author of the ſpirituall & everlaſting life ? 7 An amplification of the ſame argument : Thoſe fathers have corrected us after their fancie , for ſome fraile and tranſitorie profit: but God chaſteneth and inſtructeth us for our ſingular profite to make us partakers of his holineſſe : which thing although theſe our ſenſes doe not preſently perceive , yet the end of the matter proveth it. 8 The concluſion, we muſt go forward couragiouſly and keep alwayes a right courſe, & (as far forth as we may) without any ſtaggering or ſtumbling.

15 [10] Take heed, that no man fall away from the grace of God: let no [f] root of bitterneſſe ſpring up and trouble you, leſt thereby many be defiled.

16 [11] Let there be no fornicatour, or prophane perſon as * Eſau, which for one portion of meat ſold his birth-right:

17 * For ye know how that afterward alſo when he would have inherited the bleſſing, he was rejected: for he found no [g] place to repentance, though he ſought that bleſſing with teares.

18 [12] For ye are not come unto the * mount that might be [h] touched, nor unto burning fire, nor to blackneſſe and darkeneſſe, and tempeſt,

19 Neither unto the ſound of a trumpet, and the voyce of words, which they that heard it, excuſed themſelves, * that the word ſhould not be ſpoken to them any more,

20 (For they were not able to abide that which was commanded, * yea, though a beaſt touch the mountain, it ſhal be ſtoned, or thruſt through with a dart:

21 And ſo terrible was the [i] ſight which appeared, that Moſes ſaid, I feare and quake)

22 But ye are come unto the mount Sion, and to the citie of the living God, the celeſtiall Hieruſalem, and to the company of innumerable Angels,

23 And to the aſſembly and Congregation of the firſt borne, which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the ſpirits of juſt and [k] perfect men,

24 And [illegible] Jeſus the Mediator of the new Teſtament, and to the blood of ſprinkling, that ſpeaketh better things then that of Abel.

25 [13] See that ye deſpiſe not him that ſpeaketh: for if they eſcaped not which refuſed him that ſpake on earth: much more ſhall we not eſcape, if we turn away from him that ſpeaketh from heaven,

26 [14] Whoſe voyce then ſhook the earth, and now hath declared, ſaying, * [l] Yet once more will I ſhake, not the earth onely, but alſo heaven.

27 And this word, Yet once more, ſignifieth the removing of thoſe things which are ſhaken, as of things which are made with hands, that the things which are not ſhaken, may remaine.

28 [15] Wherefore ſeeing we receive a kingdom, which cannot be ſhaken, let us have grace whereby we may ſo ſerve God, that we may pleaſe him with [m] reverence and [n] fear:

29 For * even our God is a conſuming fire.

4 [2] Mariage is honourable among all, and the bed undefiled: but whoremongers and adulterers God will judge.

5 [3] Let your converſation be without covetouſneſſe, and be content with thoſe things that ye have, for [b] he hath ſaid,

6 * I will not faile thee, neither forſake thee:

7 So that we may boldly ſay, * The Lord is mine helper, neither will I feare what [c] man can doe unto me.

8 [4] Remember them which have the overſight of you, which have declared unto you the word of God: whoſe faith follow, conſidering what hath been the end of their converſation, [5] Jeſus Chriſt yeſterday, and to day, the ſame alſo is for ever.

9 Be not caried about with divers and ſtrange doctrines: [6] for it is a good thing that the heart be ſtabliſhed with grace, and not with [d] meats, which have not profited them that have been [e] occupied therein.

12 Therefore even Jeſus, that he might ſanctifie the people with his own blood, ſuffered without the gate.

13 [8] Let us go forth to him therefore out of the camp, bearing his reproch.

14 * For heer have we no continuing citie, but we ſeek one to come.

[4] We have to ſet before us the example of valiant captains, whom we ought diligently to follow.

[5] He repeateth the ſumme of the doctrine, to wit, the only ground of all precepts of manners, & yͭ is this: That we ought to quiet and content our ſelves in Chriſt onely: for there was yet never any man ſaved without the knowledge of him, neither is at this day ſaved, neither ſhall be ſaved hereafter.

[6] He toucheth them which mixed an externall worſhip, and eſpecially the difference of meats, wͭ the Goſpel, which doctrine he plainly condemneth as clean repugnant to the benefit of Chriſt.

[d] By this one kinde which concerneth the difference of clean & unclean meats, we have to underſtand all the ceremoniall worſhip.

[e] Which obſerved the difference of them ſuperſtitiouſly.

[7] He refuteth their errour by an apt and fit compariſon. They which in times paſt ſerved the Tabernacle, did not eat of the ſacrifices whoſe blood was brought for ſin into the holy place by the high Prieſt. Moreover theſe ſacrifices did repreſent Chriſt our offring. Therefore they cannot be partakers of him which ſerve the Tabernacle, that is, ſuch as ſtand in the ſervice of the Law: but let us not be aſhamed to follow him out of Hieruſalem, from whence he was caſt out & ſuffered: for in this alſo Chriſt, who is the trueth, anſwereth yͤ figure, in yͭ he ſuffered without the gate. [9] Now that thoſe corporall ſacrifices are taken away, he teacheth us that the true ſacrifices of confeſſion remain, which conſiſt partly in giving of thanks, and partly in liberalitie, with which ſacrifices indeed God is now delighted.

CHAP. I.

4 He entreateth of patience, 6 of faith, 10 and of lowlineſſe of mind in rich men. 13 That tentations come not of God for our evill, 17 becauſe he is the authour of all goodneſſe. 21 In what manner the word of life muſt be received.

IAmes a ſervant of God, and of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to the twelve Tribes, which are [b] ſcattered abroad, ſalutation.

2 [1] My brethren, [c] count it exceeding joy, [2] when ye fall into divers tentations,

3 * [3] Knowing that the [d] trying of your faith bringeth forth patience,

4 [4] And let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, lacking nothing.

5 [5] If any of you lack [e] wiſedom, let him aske of God, which giveth to all men liberally, and reprocheth no man, and it ſhall be given him:

6 * But let him aske in faith, and [f] waver not: [6] for he that wavereth, is like a wave of the ſea, toſt of the wind, & caried away.

7 Neither let that man think that he ſhall receive any thing of the Lord.

8 A double minded man is unſtable in [g] all his wayes.

9 [7] Let the brother of [h] low degree rejoyce in that he is exalted:

10 [8] Again he that is [i] rich, in that he is made low: [9] for as the flowre of the graſſe, ſhall he * vaniſh away:

11 For as when the ſun riſeth with heat, then the graſſe withereth, and his flowr falleth away, and the goodly ſhape of it periſheth: even ſo ſhall the rich man wither away in all his [k] wayes.

12 [10] * Bleſſed is the man, that endureth [l] tentation: for when he is tried, he ſhall receive the crowne of life, whch the Lord hath promiſed to them that love him.

13 [11] Let no man ſay when he is [m] tempted, I am tempted of God: [12] for God cannot be tempted with evill, neither tempteth he any man:

14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawen away by his own concupiſcence, and is enticed:

b To all the beleeving Iews, of what tribe ſoever they be, and are diſperſed throw the whole world

1 The firſt place or part touching comfort in afflictions, wherein we ought not to be caſt down and be faint hearted, but rather rejoyce and be glad,

c Seeing their condition was miſerable in that ſcattering abroad, he doeth well to begin as he doeth.

2 The firſt argument, becauſe our faith is tryed through afflictions: which ought to be moſt pure, for ſo it is behooveable for us.

* *Rom.*5.3.

g In all his thought and his deeds.

7 He returneth to his purpoſe, repeating the propoſition, which is, that we muſt rejoyce in ÿ croſſe, for it doth not preſſe us down, but exalt us.

h Who is afflicted with poverty, or contempt, or with any kind of calamitie.

8 Before he concludeth, he giveth a doctrine contrary to the former: to wit, how we ought to uſe proſperitie, which is plentie of al things: to wit, ſo that no man therefore pleaſe himſelf, but be ſo much the more void of pride, i Who hath all things at his will.

9 An argument taken of the very nature of ÿ things themſelves, for ÿ they are moſt vain and uncertain.

* *Iſai.*40.6. 1 *Pet.*1.24.

3 The ſecond, Becauſe patience, a farre paſſing and moſt excellent vertue, is by this meanes ingendred in us. d That wherewith your faith is tryed, to wit, theſe manifold tentations. 4 The third argument propounded in manner of an exhortation, that true and continuall patience may be diſcerned from fained, and for a time. The croſſe is as it were the inſtrument wherewith God doth poliſh and fine us. Therefore the work and effect of afflictions, is the perfecting of us in Chriſt. 5 An anſwere to a privy objection. It is eaſily ſaid, but it is not ſo eaſily done. He anſwereth that we need in this caſe a far other manner of wiſedom, then the wiſedom of man, to judge thoſe things beſt for us, which are moſt contrary to the fleſh: but yet we ſhall eaſily obtain this gift of wiſedom, if we aske it rightly, that is, with a ſure confidence of God, who is moſt bountifull and liberall. e By wiſedom, he meaneth the knowledge of that doctrine whereof mention is made before, to wit, wherefore we are afflicted of God, and what fruit we have to reap of affliction. * *Mat.*7.7. Marke 11.25. Luke 11.9. *Iohn.*14.13. and 16.23. f Why then, what need other Mediatours? 6 A digreſſion, or going aſide from his matter, againſt prayers which are conceived with a doubting mind, whereas we have a certain promiſe of God, and this is the ſecond part of the Epiſtle.

k Whatſoever he either purpoſeth in his mind, or doeth. 10 The concluſion: therefore we muſt patiently bear the croſſe: and he addeth a fourth argument, which comprehendeth the ſum of all the former, to wit, becauſe we come by this way to the crown of life, but yet of grace according to the promiſe. * Iob 5.17. l Affliction whereby the Lord tryeth him. 11 The third part of this Epiſtle, wherein he deſcendeth from outward tentations, that is, from afflictions whereby God tryeth us: to inward, that is, to thoſe luſts whereby we are ſtirred up to doe evill. The ſumme is this: Every man is the author of theſe temptations to himſelf, and not God: for we bear about in our boſoms that wicked corruption, which taketh occaſion by what means ſoever, to ſtire up evill motions in us, whence out at length proceed wicked doings, and in concluſion followeth death, the juſt reward of them. m When he is provoked to doe evill. 12 Here is a reaſon ſhewed, why God cannot be the authot of evill doing in us, becauſe he deſireth not evill.

15 Then when luſt hath conceived, it bringeth forth [n] ſinne, and ſinne when it is finiſhed, bringeth forth death:

16 [13] Erre not, my deare brethren.

17 Every good giving, and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the [o] Father of lights, with whom is no variableneſſe, neither [p] ſhadow of turning.

18 [14] Of his owne [q] will begate he us with the word of trueth, that we ſhould be as the [r] firſt fruits of his creatures.

19 Wherefore, my deare brethren, * let every man be ſwift to heare, ſlow to ſpeak, and ſlow to wrath:

20 For the wrath of man doeth not accompliſh the [ſ] righteouſneſſe of God.

21 Wherefore lay apart all filthineſſe, and ſuperfluitie of maliciouſneſſe, and receive with [t] meekeneſſe the word that is graffed in you, which is able to ſave your ſoules.

22 * [15] And be ye doers of the word, and not hearers onely, [16] deceiving your owne ſelves:

23 [17] For if any heare the word, and doe it not, he is like unto a man, that beholdeth his [v] naturall face in a glaſſe:

24 For when he hath conſidered himſelfe, he goeth his way, and forgetteth immediatly what manner of one he was.

25 But who ſo looketh in the perfect law of libertie, and continueth therein, he not being a forgetfull hearer, but a doer of the worke, ſhall be bleſſed in his [x] deed.

26 [18] If any man among you ſeemeth religious, and refraineth not his tongue, but deceiveth his [y] owne heart, this mans religion is vaine.

27 [19] Pure religion and undefiled before God, even the Father, is this, to [z] viſite the fatherleſſe, and widowes in their adverſitie, and to keepe himſelfe unſpotted of the world.

[n] By ſinne is meant in this place, actuall ſinne.

13 Another reaſon taken of contraries: God is the author of all goodneſſe, and ſo, that he is alwaies like himſelfe: how then can he be thought to be the author of evill?

[o] From him who is the fountaine and author of all goodneſſe.

[p] He goeth on in the metaphore: for the ſunne by his manifold and ſundry kindes of turning, maketh houres, daies, moneths, yeares, light and darkeneſſe.

14 The fourth part concerning the excellencie & fruit of the word of God, The ſumme is this: we muſt heare the word of God moſt carefully and deligently, ſeeing it is the ſeed, wherewith God of his free favour and love hath begotten us unto himſelfe, picking us out of the number of his creatures. And the Apoſtle condẽneth two faults, which doe greatly trouble us in this matter, to wit, for that we ſo pleaſe our ſelves, that we had rather to ſpeake our ſelves, then heare God ſpeaking: yea we ſnuffe and are angry when we are reprehended: againſt which faults, he ſetteth a peaceable and quiet minde, and ſuch an one as is deſirous of puritie.

[q] This is it which Paul calleth gracious favour, and good will, which is the fountaine of our ſalvation.

[r] As it were an holy kind of offering, taken out of the reſidue of men.

* Prv.17.27.

[ſ] That which God appointeth. [t] By meekeneſſe, he meaneth modeſtie, and whatſoever is contrarie to an haughty and proud ſtomacke. Matth.7 21. rom 2.13. 15 Another admonition: therefore is Gods word heard, that we may frame our lives according to the preſcript thereof. 16 He addeth reaſons, & thoſe moſt weightie: Friſt, becauſe they that do otherwiſe, doe very much hurt thẽſelves. 17 Secondly, becauſe they loſe the chiefeſt uſe of Gods word, which correct not by it the faults that they know. [u] He alludeth to the naturall ſpot, to which is contrary that puritie whereunto we are borne againe, the lively image wherof we behold in the Law. [x] Behaving himſelf ſo: for works do ſhew faith. 18 The third admonition, the word of God preſcribeth a rule not only to do wel, but alſo to ſpeak wel. [y] The fountaine of all brabling, and curſed ſpeaking, and ſawcines, is this, that men know not themſelves. 19 The fourth: the true ſervice of God ſtandeth in charitie toward our neighbours (eſpecially ſuch as need others help, as the fatherleſſe and widowes) and puritie of life. [z] To have a care of them, and to helpe them as much as we can.

CHAP. II.

1 He ſaith, that to have reſpect of perſons is not agreeable to Chriſtian faith, 14 which to profeſſe in words is not enough, unleſſe 15 we ſhew it alſo in deedes of mercie and charitie, 21 after the example of Abraham.

MY [1] brethren, have not the faith of our [a] glorious Lord Jeſus Chriſt * in reſpect of perſons.

2 For if there come into your company a man with a gold ring, and in goodly apparell, and there come in alſo a poor man in vile raiment,

3 And ye have a reſpect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and ſay unto him, Sit thou heere in a [b] goodly place, and ſay unto the poore, Stand thou there, or ſit here under my footſtoole.

4 Are ye not partiall in [c] your ſelves, and are become judges of evill thoughts?

5 [2] Hearken my beloved brethren, hath not God choſen the [d] poore of this world, that they ſhould be rich in faith, and heires of the kingdome which he promiſed to them that love him?

6 But ye have diſpiſed the poore. [3] Doe not the rich oppreſſe you by tyranny, and doe not they draw you before the judgement ſeats?

7 Doe not they blaſpheme the worthy Name after which ye be [e] named?

8 [4] But if ye fulfill the [f] royall Law, according to the Scripture, which ſaith, Thou ſhalt love they neighbour as thy ſelfe, ye doe well.

9 But if ye regard the perſons, ye commit ſinne, and are rebuked of the Law, as tranſgreſſours.

10 [5] For whoſoever ſhall keepe the whole Law, and yet faileth in one point, he is guiltie of [g] all:

11 [6] For he that ſaid, Thou ſhalt not commit adulterie, ſaid alſo, Thou ſhalt not kill. Now though thou doeſt none adulterie, yet if thou killeſt, thou art a tranſgreſſour of the Law.

12 [7] So ſpeake ye, and ſo doe, as they that ſhalbe judged by the Law of libertie:

13 For there ſhall be condemnation mercileſſe to him that ſheweth not [h] mercie, and mercie reioyceth againſt condemnation.

14 [8] What availeth it, my brethren, though a man ſaith he hath faith, when he hath no works? can that faith ſave him?

15 [9] For if a brother or a ſiſter be naked and deſtitute of daily food,

16 And one of you ſay unto them, Depart in peace: warme your ſelves, and fill your bellies, notwithſtanding ye give them not thoſe things which are needfull to the body, what helpeth it?

17 Even ſo the faith, if it have no works, is dead in it ſelfe.

18 But [i] ſome man might ſay, Thou haſt the faith, and I have works: ſhew me thy faith out of thy works, and I will ſhew thee my faith by my works.

1 The fiſt: charitie which proceedeth from a true faith, cannot ſtand with the accepting of perſons: which he proveth plainly, by ſetting foorth their example, who with the reproach or diſdaine of the poore, honour the rich.

[b] In an worſhipfull and honourable place.

[c] Have ye not (which ye ought not to doe) by this meanes within your ſelves judged one man to be preferred before another?

2 He ſheweth, that they are perverſe and naughtie judges, which preferre the rich before the poore, by that ỳ God on the contrary ſide preferreth the poore, whom he hath enriched with true riches, before the rich.

[d] The needie and wretched, and (if we meaſure it after the opinion of the world) the barrieſt abiects of all men.

3 Secondly, he proveth them to be madde men: for that the rich men are rather to be holden execrable and curſed, conſidering that they perſecute the Church, and blaſpheme Chriſt: for he ſpeaketh of wicked and profane rich men, ſuch as the moſt patt of them have beene alwayes, againſt whom he ſetteth the poore and abject.

[e] Word for word, which is called upon of you.

4 The concluſion: Charitie which God preſcribeth cannot agree with the accepting of perſons, ſeeing that we muſt walk in the kings hie way.

[f] The Law is ſaid to bee royall and like the kings high way, for that it is plaine & without turnings, and that the Law calleth every one our neighbour without reſpect, whom we may helpe by any kind of duetie.

5 A new argument to proove the ſame concluſion: They doe not love their neighbors, which neglect ſome, and ambitiouſly honour others: for he doeth not obey God, which cutteth off from the commandements of God that ỳ is not ſo cõmodious for him, nay he is rather guiltie generally of the breach of the whole Law, although he obſerve the reſidue.

[a] For if we knew what Chriſts glory is, and eſteemed it as we ought to doe, there would not be ſuch reſpect of perſons as there is. * Levit.19.15. deut.1.17. and 16.19. prov.24.23.

[g] Not that all ſins are equall, but becauſe he that breaketh one tittle of the Law, offendeth the maieſtie of the Law giver. 6 A proofe: becauſe the Law maker is alwayes one and the ſelfe ſame, and the body of the Law cannot be devided. 7 The concluſion of the whole treatiſe: we are upon this condition delivered from the curſe of the Law by the mercie of God, that in like ſort we ſhould maintaine and cheriſh charity and good wil one towards another, and who ſo doth not ſo, ſhal not taſte of the grace of God. [h] He that is hard and curriſh againſt his neighbour, or elſe helpeth him not, he ſhall ſinde God an hard and rough iudge to himſelfeward. 8 The fiſt place which hangeth very well with the former treatiſe, touching a true and lively faith. And the propoſition of the place is this: Faith which bringeth not foorth workes, is not that faith whereby we are juſtified, but an image of faith: or elſe this, they are not juſtified by faith, which ſhew not the effects of faith. 9 The firſt reaſon taken of a ſimilitude: If a man ſay to one that is hungry, Fill thy belly, and yet giveth him nothing, this ſhall not be true charitie: ſo if a man ſay he beleeveth, and bringeth forth no works of his faith, this ſhall not be a true faith, but a certaine dead thing ſet out with the name of faith, whereof no man hath to brag, unleſſe he will openly incurre reprehenſion, ſeeing that the cauſe is underſtood by the effect. [i] Nay, thus may every man beate downe thy pride.

19 [10] Thou beleeveſt that there is one God: thou doeſt well: the devils alſo beleeve it, and tremble.

20 [11] But wilt thou underſtand, O thou vaine man, that the faith which is without works, is dead?

21 Was not Abraham our Father [k] juſtified through works, * when he offered Iſaac his ſon upon the altar?

22 Seeſt thou not that the faith [l] wrought with his works? and through the works, was the faith made [m] perfect.

23 And the Scripture was [n] fulfilled which faith, * Abraham beleeved God, and it was imputed unto him for righteouſneſſe: and he was called the friend of God.

24 [12] Ye ſee then how that of works a man is [o] juſtified, and not of [p] faith only.

25 [13] Likewiſe alſo was not * Rahab the harlot juſtified through works, when ſhee had received the meſſengers, and ſent them out another way?

26 [14] For as the bodie without the ſpirit is dead, even ſo the faith without works is dead.

[10] An other reaſon taken of an abſurditie: If ſuch a faith were the true faith whereby we are juſtified, the devils ſhould be juſtified, for they have that, but yet notwithſtanding they tremble, and are not juſtified therefore, neither is yͤ faith a true faith.

[11] The third reaſon taken from the example of Abraham, who no doubt had a true faith: but he in offering his ſon, ſhewed himſelf to have that faith which was not void of works, and therefore he received a true teſtimonie when it was ſaid, that faith was imputed to him for righteouſneſſe.

[k] Was he not by his workes knowen and found to be iuſtified? for he ſpeaketh not heer of the cauſes of iuſtification, but by what effects we may know that a man is iuſtified.

[l] Was effectuall and fruitfull with good workes.

[m] That the faith was declared to be a true faith, and that by workes.

[n] Then was the Scripture fulfilled, when it appeared plainly, how truely it was written of Abraham.

* Geneſ. 15.6 Rom.4.3. Galat.3.6.

[12] The concluſion: He is onely juſtified that hath that faith which hath workes following it.

[o] Is proved to be iuſt.

[p] Of that dead and fruitleſſe faith which you boaſt of.

[13] A fourth reaſon taken from a like example of Rahab the harlot, who alſo proved by her works that ſhe was juſtified by a true faith.

* Ioſh 2. 1.

[14] The concluſion repeated againe: faith which bringeth not foorth fruits and works, is not faith but a dead carkeiſe.

CHAP. III.

3 To ſhew that a Chriſtian man muſt governe his tongue with the bridle of faith and charitie, 9 he declareth the commodities and miſchief that enſue thereof, 15 and how much mans wiſedom 17 differeth from heavenly.

My [1] brethren, be not many maſters, [2] knowing that we [a] ſhall receive the greater condemnation:

2 For in many things we ‡ ſinne all. [3] If any man ſinne not in word, he is a perfit man, and able to bridle all the body.

3 [4] Behold, we put bits into the horſes mouthes, that they ſhould obey us, and we turn about all their body,

4 Behold alſo the ſhips, which though they be ſo great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very ſmall rudder, whetherſoever the governour liſteth:

5 Even ſo the tongue is a little member, and boaſteth of great things: [5] behold, how great a thing a little fire kindleth.

6 And the tongue is a fire, yea, a [b] world of wickedneſſe: ſo is the tongue ſet among our members, that it defileth the whole bodie, and [c] ſetteth on fire the courſe of nature, and it is ſet on fire of hell.

7 For the whole nature of beaſts, and of birds, and of creeping things, and things of the ſea is tamed, and hath been tamed of the nature of man:

8 But the tongue can no man tame. It is an unruly evill, full of deadly poiſon.

9 [6] Therewith bleſſe we God even the Father, and therewith curſe we men, which are made after the [7] ſimilitude of God.

10 [8] Out of one mouth proceedeth bleſſing and curſing: my brethren, theſe things ought not ſo to be.

11 Doth a fountain ſend forth at one place ſweet water and bitter?

12 Can the figge tree, my brethren, bring forth Olives, either a vine figges? ſo can no fountain make both ſalt water and ſweet.

13 [9] Who is a wiſe man and endued with knowledge among you? let him ſhew by good converſation his works in meekneſſe of wiſedom.

14 But if ye have bitter envying, and ſtrife in your hearts, rejoyce not, neither be lyars againſt the trueth.

15 Thus wiſedom deſcendeth not from above, but is earthly, ſenſuall, and deviliſh.

16 For where envying and ſtrife is, there is ſedition, and all manner of evill works.

17 But the wiſedom that is from above, is firſt pure, then peaceable, gentle, eaſie to be intreated, full [d] of mercy and good fruits, without judging, and without hypocriſie.

18 [10] And the fruit of righteouſneſſe is ſowen in peace, of them that make peace.

[1] The ſixt part or place: Let no man uſurpe (as moſt men ambitiouſly doe) authoritie to judge and cenſure others rigorouſly.

[2] A reaſon, becauſe they provoke Gods ſeveritie againſt themſelves, which do ſo curiouſly and rigorouſly condemne others, being themſelves guiltie and faultie.

[a] Unleſſe we ſurceaſe from this maſterlike and proud finding fault with others.

‡ Or, ſtumble.

[3] The ſeventh place, touching the bridling of the tongue joyned with the former, ſo that it is manifeſt that there is no man which may not juſtly be found fault withall, ſeeing it is a rare vertue to bridle the tongue.

[4] He ſheweth by two ſimilitudes the one taken from the bridles of horſes, yͤ other from the rudder of ſhips, how great matters may be brought to paſſe by the good moderation of the tongue.

[5] On the contrary part he ſheweth how great diſcommodities ariſe by the intemperancie of the tongue throughout the whole world, to the end that men may ſo much the more diligently give themſelves to moderate it.

[b] An heap of all miſchieſes.

[c] It is able to ſet the whole world on fire.

[6] Amongſt other faults of yͤ tongue, the Apoſtle chiefly reproveth backbiting and ſpeaking evill of our neighbors, even in them eſpecially which otherwiſe will ſeem godly and religious.

[7] He denyeth by two reaſons, that God can be praiſed by that man, that uſeth curſed ſpeaking, or to backbite: firſt becauſe man is the image of God, which whoſoever reverenceth not, doeth not honour God himſelf.

[8] Secondly, becauſe the order of nature which God hath ſet in things, will not ſuffer things that are ſo contrary the one to the other, to ſtand the one with the other.

[9] The eight part, which hangeth with the former, touching meekneſſe of minde, againſt which he ſetteth envy and a contentious mind. And in the beginning he ſtoppeth the mouth of the chief fountain of al theſe miſchiefs, to wit, a falſe perſwaſion of wiſedom, whereas notwithſtanding there is no true wiſedom but that is heavenly, and frameth our mindes to all kind of true moderation and ſimplicitie.

[d] He ſetteth mercie againſt the fierce and cruell nature of man, and ſheweth that heavenly wiſedom bringeth forth good fruits, for he that is heavenly wiſe, referreth all things to Gods glory, and the profit of his neighbours.

[10] Becauſe the world perſwadeth it ſelf that they are miſerable which live peaceably and ſimply: on the contrary ſide the Apoſtle pronounceth that they ſhall at the length reap the harveſt of peaceable righteouſneſſe.

CHAP. IV.

1 He reckoneth up the miſchieſes that proceed of the works of the fleſh, 7 he exhorteth to humilitie, 8 and to purge the heart 9 from pride, 10 backbiting, 14 and the forgetfulneſſe of our own infirmitie.

From [1] whence are warres and contentions among you? are they not hence, even of your pleaſures, that fight in your members?

2 Ye luſt, and have not: ye envie, and deſire immoderately, and cannot obtaine: ye fight, and warre, and get nothing, [a] becauſe ye aske not.

3 Ye aske, and receive not, becauſe ye aske amiſſe, that ye might lay the ſame out on your pleaſures.

4 [3] Ye adulterers and adultereſſes, know

[1] He goeth on forward in the ſame argument, condemning certain other cauſes of warres, and contentions, to wit, unbridled pleaſures and immoderate luſtes, by their effects, for ſo much as the Lord doth worthily make them void, ſo that they bring nothing elſe to them in whom they are, but incurable torments.

[2] He reprehendeth them by name, which are not aſhamed to go about to make God the miniſter and helper of their luſts and pleaſures, in aſking things which either are of themſelves unlawfull, or being lawfull aſke them to wicked purpoſes and uſes

[3] Another reaſon, why ſuch unbridled luſts and pleaſures are utterly to be condemned, to wit, becauſe that he that giveth himſelf to the world, divorceth himſelf from God, and breaketh the band of that holy and ſpirituall mariage.

ye not that the amitie of the world is the enimitie of God ? Whoſoever therefore will be a friend of the world, maketh himſelfe the enemie of God.

5 [4] Doe ye think that the Scripture ſaith in vaine, The Spirit that dwelleth in us, luſteth after envie ?

6 But the Scripture offereth more grace, and therefore ſaith, * God reſiſteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

7 *[5] Submit your ſelves to God : reſiſt the devill, and he will flee from you.

8 Draw neere to God, and he will drawe neere to you. Cleanſe your hands, ye ſinners, and purge your hearts, ye double minded.

9 [6] Suffer afflictions, and ſorrow ye, and weepe : let your laughter be turned into mourning, and your joy into [a] heavineſſe.

10 * Caſt down your ſelves before the Lord, and he will lift you up.

11 [7] Speake not evill one of another, brethren. He that ſpeaketh evill of his brother, or he that condemneth his brother, ſpeaketh evill of the Law, and condemneth the Law : and if thou condemneſt the Law, thou art not an obſerver of the Law, but a Judge.

12 There is one Lawgiver, which is able to ſave, and to deſtroy. * Who art thou that judgeſt another man ?

13 [8] Goe to now ye that ſay, To day or to morrow we will goe into ſuch a citie, and continue there a yeare, and buy and ſell, and get gaine,

14 (And yet ye cannot tell what ſhall be to morrow. For what is your life ? It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and afterward vaniſheth away)

15 For that yee ought to ſay, * If the Lord will, and, If we live, we will doe this or that.

16 But now ye reioyce in your boaſtings : all ſuch rejoycing is evill.

17 [9] Therefore, to him that knoweth how to doe well, and doeth it not, to him it is ſinne.

4 The taking away of an objection : In deed our mindes run headlong into theſe vices, but we ought ſo much the more diligently to take heed of them: which care and ſtudie ſhall not be in vaine, ſeeing that God reſiſteth the ſtubborne, and giveth that grace to the modeſt and humble that ſurmounteth all thoſe vices.

* *Proverb.*3.34. 1 *pet.*5.5.

* *Epheſ.*4.27.

5 The concluſion: We muſt ſet the contrary vertues againſt thoſe vices, and therefore whereas we obeyed the ſuggeſtions of ÿ devill, we muſt ſubmit our mindes to God, and reſiſt the devill, with a certaine and aſſured hope of victory. To be ſhort, we muſt employ our ſelves to come neere unto God by puritie and ſincerity of life.

6 He goeth on in the ſame compariſon of contraries, and ſetteth againſt thoſe profane joies an earneſt ſorrow of minde, and againſt pride and arrogancie, holy modeſtie.

a By this word, the Grecians meane an heavineſſe ioyned with ſhameſaſtneſſe, which is to be ſeene in a caſt downe countenance, and ſetled as it were upon the ground.

* 1 *Pet.*5.6.

7 He reprehendeth moſt ſharply another double miſchiefe of pride : the one is, in that the proud and arrogant will have other men to live according to their will and pleaſure, and therfore they doe moſt arrogantly condemne whatſoever pleaſeth them not : which thing cannot be done without great injurie to our onely Lawmaker, for by this meanes his Lawes are found fault withall, as not circumſpectly enough written, and men challenge that unto themſelves which properly belongeth to God alone, in that they lay a Law upon mens conſciences. * *Rom.*14.4. 8 The other fault is this : That men doe ſo confidenly determine upon theſe and thoſe matters and buſineſſes, as though that every moment of their life did not depend of God. * 1 *Cor.*4.19. 9 The concluſion of all the former Treatiſe. The knowledge of the will of God, doeth not onely nothing at all profit, unleſſe the life be anſwerable unto it, but alſo maketh the ſins farre more grievous.

CHAP. V.

1 He threatneth the rich with Gods ſevere judgement, for their pride, 7 that the poore hearing the miſerable end of the rich, 8 may patiently beare afflictions, 11 as Iob did, 14 even in their diſtreſſes.

GOe [1] to now, ye rich men : weepe, and howle for your miſeries that ſhall come upon you.

1 He denounceth utter deſtruction to the wicked and profane rich men, and ſuch as are drowned in their riotouſneſſe, mocking at their fooliſh confidence, when as there is nothing indeede more vaine then ſuch things.

2 Your riches are corrupt, and your garments are motheaten.

3 Your gold and ſilver is cankred, and the ruſt of them ſhalbe a witneſſe againſt you, and ſhall eate your fleſh, as it were fire. Ye have heaped up treaſure for the laſt dayes.

4 Behold, the hire of the labourers, which have reaped your fields (which is of you kept back by fraud) cryeth, and the cryes of them which have reaped, are entred into the [a] eares of the Lord of hoſtes.

5 Ye have lived in pleaſure on the earth, and in wantonneſſe. Ye have [b] nouriſhed your hearts, as in a [c] day of ſlaughter.

6 Ye have condemned and have killed the juſt, and he hath not reſiſted you.

7 [2] Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the comming of the Lord. [3] Behold, the huſbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the former, and the latter raine.

8 Be ye alſo patient therefore, and ſettle your hearts : for the comming of the Lord draweth neere.

9 [4] [d] Grudge not one againſt another, brethren, leſt ye be condemned : [5] behold, the judge ſtandeth before the doore.

10 [6] Take, my brethren, the Prophets for an enſample of ſuffering adverſitie, and of long patience, which have ſpoken in the Name of the Lord, 11 Behold, we count them bleſſed which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have knowen what [e] end the Lord made. For the Lord is very pitifull and mercifull.

12 [7] But before all things, my brethren, * ſweare not, neither by heaven, nor by earth, nor by any other oath : but let [f] your yea, be yea, and your nay, nay, leſt ye fall into condemnation.

13 [8] Is any among you afflicted ? Let him pray. Is any merry ? Let him ſing.

14 [9] Is any ſick among you ? Let him call for the Elders of the Church, and let them pray for him, and anoint him with * [g] oyle in the [h] Name of the Lord,

15 And the prayer of faith ſhall ſave the ſicke, and the Lord ſhall raiſe him up : and if he have committed [i] ſinnes, they ſhall be forgiven him.

16 [10] Acknowledge your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed : [11] for the prayer of a righteous a The, Lord who i more mightie then y are, hath heard them.

b Ye have pampered up your ſelves.

c The Hebrewes call a day that is appointed to ſolemne banketting, a day of ſlaughter, or feaſting.

2 He aplieth that to the poore, which he ſpake againſt the rich, warning them to waite for the Lords comming patiently, who will revenge the injuries which the rich men doe them.

3 The taking away of an objection : Although his comming ſeeme to linger, yet at the leaſt we muſt follow the husbandmen, who doe patiently wait for the times that are proper for the fruits of the earth. And againe, God will not deferre the leaſt jot of the time that he hath appointed.

4 He commendeth Chriſtian patience, for that whereas other through impatience uſe to accuſe one another, the faithfull on the contrarie ſide, complaine not, although they receive injurie.

d By grudging, he meaneth a certain inward complaining which betokeneth impatience.

5 The concluſion: the Lord is at ÿ doore: who will defend his owne, and revenge his enemies, and therefore we need not to trouble our ſelves.

6 Becauſe moſt men are wont to object, that it is good to repell injuries by what meanes ſoever, he ſetteth againſt that the examples of the fathers, whoſe patience had a moſt happie end, becauſe God as a moſt bountifull Father, never forſaketh his.

e What end the Lord gave.

7 Becauſe even the beſt men ſometimes through impatience breake out into oathes ſometimes leſſer, ſometimes greater, the Apoſtle warneth us to deteſt ſuch wickedneſſe, and to accuſtom our tongus to ſimple and true talke.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERALL OF PETER.

Chap. I.

1 He extolleth Gods mercie ſhewed in Chriſt which we lay holde on by faith, and poſſeſſe through hope: 10 whereof the Prophets foretold. 13 He exhorteth 15 to renounce the world, 23 and their former life, and ſo wholly yeeld themſelves to God.

Peter an Apoſtle of Jesus Christ, to the ſtrangers that dwell heere and there throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Aſia and Bithynia,

2 [1] Elect according to the [a] foreknowledge of God the Father unto [b] ſanctification of the Spirit, through obedience and ſprinkling of the blood of Jeſus Chriſt: Grace and peace be multiplyed unto you.

3 Bleſſed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us againe unto a [c] lively hope by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt from the dead,

4 To an inheritance immortall and undefiled, and that withereth not, reſerved in heaven for us,

5 [2] Which are kept by the power of God through faith unto ſalvation, which is prepared to be ſhewed in the [d] laſt time:

• 6 Wherein ye reioyce, though now for a ſeaſon (if neede require) ye are in heavineſſe, through manifold tentations,

7 That the triall of your faith, being much more precious then gold that periſheth (though it be tryed with fire) might be found unto your praiſe, and honour and glory at the [e] appearing of Jeſus Chriſt:

8 Whom ye have not ſeene, and yet love him, in whom now, though ye ſee him not, yet doe you beleeve, and reioyce with joy unſpeakable and glorious,

9 Receiving the ‡ end of your faith, even the ſalvation of your ſoules.

10 [3] Of the which ſalvation the Prophets have enquired and ſearched, which propheſied of the grace that ſhould come unto you,

11 Searching when or what time the Spirit which teſtified before of Chriſt which was in them, ſhould declare the ſufferings that ſhould come unto Chriſt, and the glory that ſhould follow:

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themſelves, but unto us they ſhould miniſter the things, which are now ſhewed unto you by them which have preached unto you the Goſpel by the holy Ghoſt [f] ſent downe from heaven, the which things the Angels deſire to behold.

13 [4] Wherefore, [g] grid up the loynes of your mind: be ſober, [5] and truſt [h] perfectly on that grace [6] that is brought unto you, [7] in the revelation of Jeſus Chriſt,

14 [8] As obedient children, not faſhioning your ſelves unto the former luſts of your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, ſo be ye holy in * all maner of converſation, 16 [9] Becauſe it is written, * Be ye holy, for I am holy.

17 [10] And if ye [i] call him Father, which without * reſpect of perſon judgeth according to every mans worke, paſſe the time of your dwelling here in feare, med

[1] Peter purpoſing to ſpeake of the dueties of a Chriſtian life, reaſoneth firſt of the principles and beginnings of all Chriſtian actions, riſing farre higher then nature, and carying us alſo farre above the ſame. For he ſheweth that we which are otherwiſe of nature ſinners, were through the free mercy of God the Father, firſt choſen from everlaſting: then according to that everlaſting decree, were by a certaine ſecond creation made his ſonnes in Chriſt his onely begotten, by whoſe Spirit we are inwardly changed, and by whoſe blood we are alſo reconciled, to the end, that as Chriſt himſelfe roſe again from the dead, we alſo might be received into that ſame heavenly and everlaſting glory.

[a] Or, according to the purpoſe of God, who never altreth nor changeth the ſame.

[b] That beeing ſet apart from the reſt of this wicked world, through the working of the holy Ghoſt, they ſhould be conſerated to God, Epheſ.1.5.

[c] Everlaſting hope.

[2] Now he ſheweth by what way we come unto that glory, to wit, through all kind of afflictions, wherein notwithſtanding faith maketh us ſo ſecure, that we are not onely not overcome with ſorow, but alſo through the beholding of God himſelfe (who otherwiſe is inviſible) with the eyes of faith, are unſpeakeably joyfull: becauſe, all ſuch things, as they are but for a time, ſo are they not applyed unto us to deſtroy us, but as it were by fire to purge us, and to make us perfit, that at the length we may obtaine ſalvation.

[d] This is that time which Daniel calleth the time of the end, when as that great reſtoring of all things ſhall be, which all creatures looke for, Rom.8.19.

[e] He ſpeaketh of the ſecond comming of Chriſt.

‡ Or, reward.

[3] He putteth a difference betweene true faith, that is to ſay, that faith which only hath an eye to the doctrine of the Prophets and Apoſtles, and falſe faith: Afterward he maketh two degrees of one and the ſelfe ſame faith, according to the manner of divers revelations, when as in deed it is but one only faith. Thirdly, he ſaith, that the preaching of the Apoſtles, is the fulfilling of the preaching of the Prophets, although the latter end of it be as yet looked for of the very Angels.

[f] He alludeth to the propheſie of Ioel, which was exhibited upon the day of Pentecoſt, in the Apoſtles, as it were in the firſt fruits of the holy Ghoſt, which this ſame our Peter declareth, Actes 2.6.

[4] He goeth from faith to hope, which is in deed a companion that cannot be ſundered from faith: and he uſeth an argument taken of compariſon: We ought not to be wearied in looking for ſo excellent a thing, which the very Angels wait for with great deſire.

[g] This is a borrowed ſpeech, taken of a common uſage amongſt them: for by reaſon that they wore long garments, they could not travaile, unleſſe they girded up themſelves: and hence it is that Chriſt ſaid, Let your loynes be girded up.

[5] He ſetteth forth very briefly, what maner of hope ours ought to be, to wit, continuall, untill we enioy the thing we hope for: then, what we have to hope for, to wit, grace (that is, free ſalvation) revealed to us in the Goſpel, and not that that men doe raſhly and fondly promiſe to themſelves.

[h] Soundly and ſincerely.

[6] An argument to ſtirre up our mindes, ſeeing that God doeth not waite till we ſeeke him, but cauſeth ſo great a benefit to be brought even unto us.

[7] He ſetteth out the end of faith, leſt any ſhould promiſe himſelfe, either ſoone or latter, that full ſalvation; to wit, the latter comming of Chriſt, and therewithall warneth us, not to meaſure the dignitie of the Goſpel according to the preſent eſtate, ſeeing that that which we are now, is not yet revealed.

[8] He paſſeth from faith and hope, to the fruits of them both, which are underſtood in the name of obedience: And it conſiſteth in two things, in renouncing our luſts, and living godly: which luſts have their beginning of that blindneſſe wherein all men are borne: but holineſſe proceedeth from the grace and favour of God which adopteth us, and therefore regenerateth us, that the father and the children may be of one diſpoſition.

* Luke 1.75.

[9] He ſheweth that ſanctification doeth neceſſarily follow adoption.

* *Levit.*11.44.and 19.2.and 20.7.

[10] As before hee diſtinguiſhed true faith and hope from falſe, ſo doeth he now obedience, ſetting the quick and ſharpe ſight of God, againſt an outward marke, and earneſt reverence againſt vaine ſeverity.

[i] If you will be called the ſons of that father.

* *Deut.*10.17.*rom.*2.11.*gal.*2.6.

[11] An exhortation, wherein he ſetteth forth the excellency and greatneſſe of the benefit of God the Father in ſanctifying us by the death of his own Son. And he partly ſetteth the purifyings of the Law againſt the thing it ſelfe, that is, againſt the blood of Chriſt, and partly alſo mens traditions, which he condemneth as utterly vaine and ſuperſtitious, be they never ſo old and ancient.

med with corruptible things, as ſilver and gold, from your vaine converſation, received by the traditions of the fathers, 23 Being borne anew, * not of mortall ſeed, but of immortall, by the word of God, who liveth and endureth for ever.

24 [14] For all * [l] fleſh is as graſſe, and all the glory of man is as the flower of graſſe. The graſſe withereth, and the flower falleth away:

25 [15] But the word of the Lord endureth for ever: and this is the word which is preached among you.

12 The taking away of an obiection: what was done to the world, before that Chriſt was ſent into the world; was there no holineſſe before, and was there no Church? The Apoſtle anſwereth, that Chriſt was ordained and appointed to redeeme and deliver mankind, before ẏ mankinde was: much leſſe was there any Church without him before his comming in the fleſh: yet we are happieſt above the reſt, to whom Chriſt was exhibited in deed, in this that he having ſuffered and overcome death for us, doeth now moſt effectually worke in us by the vertue of his Spirit, to create in us faith, hope, and charitie.

[k] From everlaſting.

13 He commendeth the practiſe of obedience, that is, charitie: earneſtly beating into their heads againe, that he ſpeaketh not of any common charitie, and ſuch as proceedeth from that our corrupt nature, but of that whoſe beginning is the Spirit of God, which purifieth our ſoules through the word laid holde on by faith, and ingendreth alſo in us a ſpirituall and everlaſting life, as God himſelfe is moſt pure and truely living. * Chap. 2.17. rom. 2.10. epheſ. 4.2. 14 A reaſon why we have need of this heavenly generation, to wit, becauſe that men, be their glory never ſo great, are of nature void of all true and ſound goodneſſe. * Eſay. 40.6. iames 1.10. [l] The word (fleſh) ſheweth the weakeneſſe of our nature, which is chiefly to be conſidered in the fleſh it ſelfe. 15 Againe, leſt any man ſhould ſeeke that ſpirituall force and vertue in fained imaginations, the Apoſtle calleth us backe to the word of God: teaching us furthermore, that there is no other word of the Lord to be looked for, then this which is preached, in which onely we muſt reſt.

CHAP. II.

1 He exhorteth the new borne in faith, to lead their lives anſwerable to the ſame: 6 and leſt their faith ſhould ſtagger, he bringeth in that which was foretold touching Chriſt. 11 Then he willeth them to be obedient to Magiſtrates, 19 and that they patiently beare adverſitie after Chriſts example.

WHerefore, * [1] laying aſide all maliciouſneſſe, and all guile, and diſſimulation, and envie, and all evill ſpeaking,

2 [2] As [a] new borne babes deſire that ſincere milke of the word, that ye may growe thereby,

3 [3] Becauſe ye ‡ have taſted that the Lord is bountifull:

4 [4] To whom comming, as unto a living ſtone diſallowed of men, but choſen of God and precious,

5 Ye alſo as lively ſtones, be made a ſpirituall houſe, [5] an holy * Prieſthood to offer up ſpirituall ſacrifices acceptable to God by Jeſus Chriſt.

* Rom. 6.4. ephe. 4.23. coloſ 3.8. hebr. 12.1.

1 Having laid for ẏ foundation the Spirit of God, effectually working by the word, and having built thereupon three vertues which are the grounds of all Chriſtian actions, to wit, faith, hope, and charitie: now he proceedeth to a generall exhortation, the firſt member whereof is, that we flee all ſhew, both of ſecret and alſo open malice.

2 The ſecond is that being newly begotten and borne of the new ſeed of the uncorrupt word, drawing and ſucking greedily the ſame word as milke, we ſhould more and more as it were grow up in that ſpirituall life. And he calleth it, ſincere, not onely becauſe it is a moſt pure thing, but alſo that we ſhould take heed of them which corrupt it. [a] As it becommeth new men. 3 He commendeth that ſpirituall nouriſhment for the ſweetneſſe and profite of it. ‡ Or, doe taſte. 4 He goeth on forward in the ſame exhortation, but uſeth another kind of borrowed ſpeach, alluding to the Temple. Therefore he ſaith, that the company of the faithfull is, as it were, a certaine holy and ſpirituall building, built of the lively ſtones, the foundation whereof is Chriſt, as a lively ſtone ſuſtaining all that are ioyned unto him, with his living vertue, and knitting them together with himſelfe, although this ſo great a treaſure be neglected of men. 5 Going forward in the ſame ſimilitude, he compareth us now to Prieſts, placed to this end in that ſpirituall Temple, that we ſhould ſerve him with a ſpirituall worſhip, that is, with holineſſe and righteouſnes: but as the Temple, ſo is the Prieſthood built upon Chriſt, in whom onely all our ſpirituall offerings are accepted. * Reve. 1.6.

6 [6] Wherefore alſo it is contained in the Scripture, * Behold, I put in Sion a chiefe corner ſtone, elect and precious: and he that beleeveth therein, ſhall not be aſhamed:

7 [7] Unto you therefore which beleeve, it is precious: but unto them which be diſobedient, the * ſtone which the builders diſallowed, the ſame is made the head of the corner,

8 And a * ſtone to ſtumble at, and a rock of offence, even to them which ſtumble at the word, being diſobedient, unto the which thing they were even ordained.

9 [8] But ye are a choſen generation, a royall * Prieſthood, an holy nation, a peole ſet at libertie, that ye ſhould ſhew forth the vertues of him that hath called you out of darkeneſſe into his marveilous light,

10 * Which in times paſt were not a people, yet are now the people of God: which in time paſt were not under mercie, but now have obtained mercie.

11 [9] Dearely beloued, [10] I beſeech you, as ſtrangers and pilgrims, * [11] abſtaine from fleſhly luſts, [12] which fight againſt the ſoule,

12 [13] * And have your converſation honeſt among the Gentiles, that they which ſpeak evill of you as of evil doers, [14] may by your * good works which they ſhall ſee, glorifie God in the day of [b] viſitation.

15 [15] * Therefore ſubmit your ſelves unto [c] all manner ordinance of man [16] for the Lords ſake, [17] whether it be unto the king, as unto the ſuperiour, 14 Or unto governours, as unto them that are ſent of him, [18] for the puniſhment of evill doers, and for the praiſe of them that doe well.

Therefore this onely remaineth, ſaith he, that by a meanes poſſible we ſet forth ſo great goodneſſe of the moſt mightie God. * Exod. 19.6 * Hoſe. 2.23. rom 2.25. 9 He returneth to that generall exhortation. 10 A reaſo why we ought to live holily, to wit, becauſe we are citizens of heaven, and therefore w ought to live according to the Laws not of this world, which is moſt corrupt, but of th heavenly citie, although we be ſtrangers in the world. * Rom. 13.14 gal. 5.16. 11 Another argument: The children of God live not according to the fleſh, that is, according t that corrupt nature, but according to the Spirit. Therefore fleſhly motions ought not t beare rule in us. 12 The third argument: For although thoſe luſtes flatter us, ye they ceaſe not to fight againſt our ſalvation. 13 The fourth argument, taken of the profit of ſo doing: for by this meanes alſo we provide for our good name and eſtimation whileſt we compell them at length to change their minds, which ſpeake evill of us * Chap. 3.16. 14 The fifth argument, which alſo is of great force; Becauſe th glory of God is greatly ſet foorth by that meanes, whileſt by example of our honeſt life even the moſt profane men are brought unto God, and ſubmit themſelves unto him * Matt. 5.16. [b] When God ſhall have mercy on them. 15 That which he ſpeak generally, he now expoundeth by parts, deſcribing ſeverally every mans duetie. And firſt o all he ſpeaketh of obedience, which is due both to the lawes, and alſo to the Magiſtrate both higher and lower. * Rom. 13.1. [c] By ordinance, is meant the framing and ordering of civ government, which he calleth ordinance of man, not becauſe man invented it, but becauſe it is proper t men. 16 The firſt argnment: Becauſe the Lord is the authour and revenger of this polici of men, that is, which is ſet amongſt men: and therefore the true ſervants of the Lord mu above all others be diligent obſervers of this order. 17 He preventeth a cavill which i made by ſome, that ſay they will obey Kings and the higher Magiſtrates, and yet contemn their Miniſters: as though their Miniſters were not armed with their authoritie which ſen them. 18 The ſecond argument taken of the end of this order, which is not onely mo profitable, but alſo very neceſſary: ſeeing that by this meanes vertue is rewarded, and vice puniſhed: wherein the quietneſſe and happineſſe of this life conſiſteth. 19 He declareth the firſt argument more amply, ſhewing that Chriſtian libertie doeth amongſt all things leaſt, or not at all, conſiſt herein, to wit, to caſt off the bridle of Lawes, (as at that tim ſome altogether unskilfull in the Kingdome of God reported) but rather in this, that livin holily according to the will of God, we ſhould make manifeſt to all men, that the Goſpel i not a cloake for ſinne and wickedneſſe, ſeeing we are in ſuch ſort free, that yet we are ſti the ſervants of God, and not of ſinne.

well doing ye may put to ſilence the ignorance of the fooliſh men, 16 As free, and not as having the libertie for a cloak of maliciouſnes, but as the ſervants of God.

17 [20] [d] Honour all men: * love [e] brotherly fellowſhip: feare God: honour the King.

18 * [21] Servants, be ſubject to your maſters with all feare, not onely to the good and courteous, but alſo to the froward:

19 * [22] For this is thanke worthy, if a man for [f] conſcience toward God endure griefe, ſuffering wrongfully.

20 For what praiſe is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye take it patiently? but & if when ye do well, ye ſuffer wrong & take it patiently, this is acceptable to God:

21 [23] For hereunto ye are called: for Chriſt alſo ſuffered for you, leaving you an [g] enſample that ye ſhould follow his ſteps,

22 * Who did no ſin, neither was there guile found in his mouth,

23 Who when he was reviled, reviled not againe: when he ſuffered, he threatned not, but [24] committed it to him [25] that judgeth righteouſly,

24 * [26] Who his own ſelfe bare our ſins in his body on the tree, that we being dead to ſin, ſhould live in righteouſneſſe: by whoſe ſtripes ye were healed.

25 For ye were as ſheep going aſtray: but are now returned unto the ſhepheard and Byſhop of your ſoules.

20 He divideth the civill life of man, by occaſion of thoſe things which he ſpake, into two generall parts: to wit, into thoſe dueties, which private men owe to private men, and eſpecially the faithfull to the faithfull, and into that ſubjection whereby inferiours are bound to their ſuperiours: but ſo, that Kings be not made equall to God, ſeeing that feare is due to God, and honour to kings.
d Be charitable and dutifull towards all men.

e The aſſembly and fellowſhip of the brethren, as Zech. 11.12.
* *Epheſ.*5.6. *Coloſſ.*3.22.
21 He goeth to the duetie of ſervants towards their maſters, which he deſcribeth with theſe bounds, that ſervants ſubmit themſelves willingly, and not by conſtraint, not only to the good and courteous, but alſo to the froward and ſharpe maſters.
* 2 *Cor.*7. 10.
22 The taking away of an objection: Indeed the condition of ſervants is hard, eſpecially if they have froward maſters: but this their ſubjection ſhalbe ſo much the more acceptable to God, if his will prevaile more with ſervants, then the maſters injuries. f Becauſe he maketh a conſcience of it, to offend God, by whoſe good will and appointment he knoweth this burden is layd upon him. 23 He mitigateth the grievouſneſſe of ſervitude, while he ſheweth plainely that Chriſt died alſo for ſervants, that they ſhould beare ſo much the more patiently this inequality betwixt men which are of one ſelfe ſame nature: moreover ſetting before them Chriſt that Lord of lords for an enſample, he ſignifieth that they cannot but ſeeme too delicate, which ſhew themſelves more grieved in bearing of injuries, then Chriſt himſelfe who was muſt juſt, and moſt ſharpely of all afflicted, yet was moſt patient. g A borrowed kind of ſpeach taken of painters and Schoolemaſters. * Eſa 53.9. 1 Iohn 3.5. 24 He ſheweth them a remedie againſt injuries, to wit, that they commend their cauſe to God, by the example of Chriſt. 25 He ſeemeth now to turn his ſpeach to maſters, which have alſo themſelves a maſter and judge in heaven, who will juſtly revenge the injuries done to ſervants, without any reſpect of perſons. * *Eſa.*53.5. *Matt.*8 17. 26 He calleth the ſervants backe from the conſideration of the injuries which they are conſtrained to beare, to thinke upon the greatneſſe and the end of the benefit received of Chriſt.

CHAP. III.

1 That Chriſtian women ſhould not contemn their husbands though they be infidels, 5 he bringeth in examples of godly women. 8 Generall exhortations, 14 patiently to beare perſecutions, 15 and boldly to yeeld a reaſon of their faith. 18 Chriſts example.

Likewiſe * [1] let the wives be ſubject to their husbands, [2] that even they which obey not the word, may without the word be wonne by the converſation of the wives,

2 While they behold your pure converſation, which is with feare:

3 * [3] Whoſe apparelling, let it not be that outward, with broided haire, and gold put about, or in putting on of apparell:

4 But let it be the [a] hid man of the heart, which conſiſteth in the corruption of a meeke and quiet ſpirit, which is [b] before God a thing much ſet by:

* *Coloſſ.*3.18. *Epheſ.*5.22.
1 In the third place he ſetteth forth the wives dueties to their husbands, commanding them to be obedient.
2 He ſpeaketh, namely, of them which had husbands that were not Chriſtians, which ought ſo much the more be ſubject to their husbands, that by their honeſt and chaſte converſation, they may gaine them to the Lord. * 1 *Tim.*2.9. 3 He condemneth the riot and exceſſe of women, & ſetteth forth their true apparelling, ſuch as is precious before God, to wit, the inward & incorruptible, which conſiſteth in a meeke and quiet ſpirit. a Which hath his ſeat faſtned in the heart: ſo that the hid man is ſet againſt the outward decking of the body. b Precious in deed, & ſo taken of God.

5 [4] For even after this manner in time paſt did the holy women, which truſted in God tire themſelves, and were ſubject to their husbands,

6 As Sara obeyed Abraham, and * called him, Sir: whoſe daughters ye are, whiles ye do wel, [5] not being afraid of any terrour.

7 * [6] Likewiſe ye husbands, [c] dwell with them as men of [d] knowledge, [7] giving [e] honour unto the woman, as unto the weaker [f] veſſell, [8] even as they which are heires together of the [g] grace of life, [9] that your prayers be not interrupted.

8 [10] Finally, be ye all of one minde: one ſuffer with another: love as brethren: be pitifull: be courteous,

9 * [11] Not rendring evill for evill, neither rebuke for rebuke: but contrariwiſe, bleſſe, [12] knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye ſhould be heires of bleſſing.

10 * [13] For if any man long after life, and to [h] ſee good dayes, let him refraine his tongue from evill, and his lippes that they ſpeake no guile,

11 * Let him eſchew evill, and doe good: let him ſeeke peace, and follow after it:

12 For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his eares are open unto their prayers: and the [i] face of the Lord is againſt them that do evill.

13 [14] And who is it that will harme you, if ye follow that which is good?

14 * Notwithſtanding bleſſed are ye, if ye ſuffer for righteouſneſſe ſake. [15] Yea, * feare not their [k] feare, neither be troubled.

15 But [l] ſanctifie the Lord God in your hearts: [16] and be ready alwayes to give an anſwere to every man that asketh you a reaſon of the hope that is in you, with meekeneſſe and reverence,

16 Having a good conſcience, that when they ſpeake evill of you as of evill doers,

4 An argument taken out of the example of women, and eſpecially of Sara, which was the mother of all beleevers.
* *Gen.*18.12.
5 Becauſe women are of nature fearefull, he giveth them to underſtand that he requireth of them that ſubjection, which is not wrung out of them either by force or feare.
* 1 *Cor.*7.3.
6 He teacheth husbands alſo their dueties, to wit, that the more underſtanding and wiſedome they have, the more wiſely and circumſpectly they behave themſelves.
c Do all the duties of wedlocke.
d The more wiſdome the husband hath, the more circumſpectly he muſt behave himſelf in bearing theſe diſcommodities, which through the womans weakenes ofttimes cauſe trouble both to the husband and the wife.
7 The ſecond argument, becauſe the wife notwithſtanding that ſhe is weaker by nature then the man, is an excellent inſtrument of the man, made to far more excellent uſes: whereupon it followeth that ſhe is not therefore to be neglected, becauſe ſhe is weake, but on the contrary part ſhee ought to be ſo much the more cared for.
e Having an honeſt care of her.
f The woman is called a veſſell after the manner of the Hebrewes, becauſe the husband uſeth her as his fellow and helper, to live faithfully before God.
8 The third argument: for that they are equal in that which is the chiefeſt (that is to ſay, in the benefit of eternall life) which otherwiſe are unequal as touching the governance and converſation at home, and therefore they are not to be deſpiſed although they be weake. g Of that gracious and free benefit whereby we have everlaſting life given us. 9 The fourth argument: All brawlings and chidings muſt be eſchewed, becauſe they hinder prayers and the whole ſervice of God, whereunto both the husband and wife are equaly called. 10 He returneth to common exhortations, and commandeth concord, and whatſoever things pertaine to the maintenance of peace and mutuall love. * *Prov.*17.13. and 20.22. *Matt.*5.39. *Rom.*12.17. 1 *Theſſ.*5.15. 11 We muſt not only not recompenſe injurie for injurie, but we muſt alſo recompenſe them with benefits. 12 An argument taken of compariſon: Seeing that we our ſelves are called of God whom we offend ſo often, to ſo great a benefit, (ſo farre is he from revenging the injuries which we do unto him) ſhall we rather make our ſelves unworthy of ſo great bountifulneſſe, then forgive one anothers faults? And from this verſe to the end of the Chapter, there is a digreſſion or going from the matter he is in hand with, to exhort us valiantly to beare afflictions. * Pſalm. 34.13. 13 A ſecret objection: But this our patience ſhall be nothing elſe but a fleſhing and hardening of the wicked in their wickedneſſe, to make them ſet upon us more boldly and deſtroy us. Nay, (ſaith the Apoſtle by the words of David) to live without doing hurt, and to follow after peace when it flieth away, is the way to that happie and quiet peace. And if ſo be any man be afflicted for doing juſtly, the Lord marketh all things, and will in his time deliver the godly, which crie unto him, and will deſtroy the wicked. h Leade a bleſſed and happie life. * Eſai. 1.16. i This word (Face) after the manner of the Hebrewes, is taken for (anger.) 14 The ſecond argument: when the wicked are provoked, they are more wayward: therefore they muſt rather be overcome with good turnes. And if they cannot be gotten by that meanes alſo, yet notwithſtanding we ſhall be bleſſed, if we ſuffer for righteouſneſſe ſake. * *Mat.*5.10. 15 A moſt certaine counſell in afflictions, be they never ſo terrible, to be of a conſtant mind, and to ſtand faſt. But how ſhall we attaine unto it? If we ſanctifie God in our mindes and hearts, that is to ſay, if we reſt upon him as one that is Almighty, that loveth mankind, that is good and true indeed. * Eſai 8.12, 13. k Be not diſmayed as they are. l Give him all praiſe and glory, and hang onely on him. 16 He will have us, when we are afflicted for righteouſneſſe ſake, to be carefull not for redeeming of our life, either with denying or renouncing the trueth, or with like violence, or any ſuch meanes: but rather to give an account of our faith boldly, and yet with a meeke ſpirit: & full of godly reverence, that the enemies may not have any thing juſtly to object, but may rather be aſhamed of themſelves.

they may be aſhamed, which ſlander your good converſation in Chriſt:

17 [17] For it is better (if the will of God be ſo) that ye ſuffer for well doing, then for evill doing:

18 * [18] For Chriſt alſo hath once ſuffered for ſins, [19] the juſt for the unjuſt, [20] that he might bring us to God, [21] and was put to death concerning the [m] fleſh, but was quickened by the Spirit,

19 [22] By ‡ the which he alſo went, and preached unto the ‡ ſpirits that are in priſon,

20 Which were in time paſſed diſobedient, when [n] once the long ſuffering of God abode in the dayes of * Noe, while the Arke was preparing, wherein few, that is, eight [o] ſoules were ſaved in the water:

21 [23] Whereof the Baptiſme that now is, anſwering that figure, (which is not a putting away of the filth of the fleſh, but a confident demanding which a good conſcience maketh to [p] God) ſaveth us alſo [24] by the reſurrection of Ieſus Chriſt,

22 Which is at the right hand of God, gone into heaven, to whom the Angels, and powers, and might are ſubject.

17 A reaſon which ſtandeth upon two general rules of Chriſtianitie, which notwithſtanding all men allow not of. The one is, if we muſt needs ſuffer afflictions, it is better to ſuffer wrongfully then rightfully: the other is this, becauſe we are ſo afflicted not by hap, but by the will of our God.

* *Rom.*5.6. *Hebr.*9.15.

18 A proofe of either of the rules, by the example of Chriſt himſelf our chiefe patterne, who was afflicted not for his own ſins (which were none) but for ours, and that according to his Fathers decree.

19 An argument taken of compariſon: Chriſt the juſt, ſuffered for us that are unjuſt, and ſhall it grieve us which are unjuſt, to ſuffer for the Iuſts cauſe?

20 Another argument, being partly taken of things coupled together, to wit, becauſe Chriſt bringeth us to his Fathet that ſame way that he went himſelfe, and partly from the cauſe efficient: to wit, becauſe Chriſt is not onely ſet before us for an example to follow, but alſo he holdeth us up by his vertue in all the difficulties of this life, untill he bring us to his Father.

21 An other argument, taken of the happie end of theſe afflictions, wherein alſo Chriſt goeth before us both in example and vertue, as one who ſuffered moſt grievous torments even unto death, although but in one part onely of him, to wit, in the fleſh, or mans nature: but yet became conquerour by the vertue of his divinitie.

m As touching his manhood, for his body was dead, and his ſoule felt the ſorrowes of death.

22 A ſecret objection: Chriſt in deed might do this, but what is that to us? Yes (ſaith the Apoſtle) for Chriſt hath ſhewed forth his vertue in all ages both to the preſervation of the godly, were they never ſo few and miſerable, and to revenge the rebellion of his enemies, as it appeareth by the hiſtorie of the flood: for Chriſt is he which in thoſe dayes (when God through his patience appointed a time of repentance to the world) was preſent, not in corporall preſence, but by his divine vertue, preaching repentance, even by the mouth of Noe himſelfe, who then prepared the Arke, to thoſe diſobedient ſpirits which are now in priſon, waiting for the full recompence of their rebellion, and ſaved thoſe few, (that is, eight onely perſons) in the water.

‡ By the vertue of which Spirit, that is to ſay, of the divinitie: therefore this word, Spirit, cannot in this place be taken for the ſoule, unleſſe we will ſay that Chriſt was raiſed up againe, and quickened by the vertue of his ſoule.

‡ He calleth them ſpirits, in reſpect of his time, not in reſpect of the time that they were in the fleſh.

n This word (once) ſheweth that there was a furthermoſt day appointed, and if that were once paſt, there ſhould be no more.

* *Gen.*6.14. *Matt.*24.38. Luke 17.26.

o Men.

23 A proportionall applying of the former example to the time which followed the comming of Chriſt: for that preſervation of Noe in the waters was a figure of our baptiſme, not as though the materiall water of baptiſme, ſaveth us, as thoſe waters which bare up the Arke ſaved Noe, but becauſe Chriſt with his inward vertue, which the outward Baptiſme ſhadoweth, preſerveth us being waſhed, ſo that we may call upon God with a good conſcience.

p The conſcience being ſanctified, may freely call upon God.

24 That ſelfe ſame vertue, whereby Chriſt roſe againe, and now being caried up into heaven, hath received all power, doeth at this day defend and preſerve us.

C H A P. IV.

1 He bringeth in Chriſts example, and applieth it 6 to the mortifying of the fleſh, eſpecially commending charitie: 12 And ſo entreateth of patience. 17 That it is neceſſary that correction begin at the Church,

FOraſmuch [1] then as Chriſt hath ſuffered for us in the fleſh, arme your ſelves likewiſe with the ſame minde, which is, that he which hath ſuffered in the fleſh, hath ceaſed from ſin,

2 That he henceforward ſhould live (as much time as [a] remaineth in the fleſh) not after the luſts of men, but after the will of God.

3 * [2] For it is ſufficient for us that we have ſpent the time paſt of the life, after the [b] luſt of the Gentiles, walking in wantonneſſe, luſtes, drunkenneſſe, in gluttonie, drinkings, and in abominable idolatries,

4 [3] Wherein it ſeemeth to them [c] ſtrange, that ye run not with them unto the ſame exceſſe of riot: therefore ſpeake they evill of you,

5 Which ſhall give accounts to him, that is ready to judge quicke and dead:

6 [4] For unto this purpoſe was the Goſpel preached alſo unto the dead, that they might be condemned, according to men in the fleſh, but might live according to God in the ſpirit.

7 [5] Now the end of all things is at hand. Be ye therefore ſober, and watching in prayer.

8 [6] But above all things, have fervent love among you: * for love ſhall cover the multitude of ſins.

9 [7] Be ye * harberous one to another, without grudging.

10 [8] * Let every man as he hath received the gift, miniſter the ſame one to another, [9] as good diſpoſers of the manifold graces of God.

11 [10] If any man ſpeake, let him ſpeake as the words of God, If any man miniſter, let him doe it as of the abilitie which God miniſtreth, that God in all things may be glorified through Ieſus Chriſt, to whom is praiſe and dominion for ever, and ever, Amen.

12 [11] Dearely beloved, thinke it not [d] ſtrange, [12] concerning the fierie trial, which is among you to prove you, as though ſome ſtrange thing were come unto you:

13 [13] But rejoyce, in as much as ye are partakers of Chriſts ſuffrings, that when his glory ſhall appeare, ye may be glad and rejoyce.

14 * [14] If ye be railed upon for the Name of Chriſt, bleſſed are ye: for the [e] Spirit of glory, and of God reſteth upon you, which on their part is evill ſpoken of: but on your part is glorified.

15 [15] But let none of you ſuffer as a mur-

1 Having ended his digreſſion, and ſliding from his matter, now he returneth to the exhortation which he brake off, taking occaſion by that which he ſaid touching the death and reſurrection of Chriſt, ſo defining our ſanctification, that to be ſanctified, is all one as to ſuffer in the fleſh, that is to ſay, to leave off from our wickedneſſe, and viciouſneſſe: and to riſe againe to God, that is to ſay, to be renewed by the vertue of the holy Ghoſt, that we may lead the reſt of our life which remaineth, after the wil of God.

a So much of this preſent life as remaineth yet to be paſſed over.

* *Epheſ.*4.22.

2 By putting us in minde of the diſhoneſtie of our former life led in the filth of ſin, he calleth us to earneſt repentance.

b Wickedly and licentiouſly after the manner of the Gentiles.

3 That we be not moved with the enemies perverſe and ſlanderous judgements of us, we have to ſet againſt them that laſt judgement of God which remaineth for them: for none, whether they be then found living, or were dead before, ſhall eſcape it.

c They thinke it a new and ſtrange matter.

4 A digreſſion: becauſe he made mention of the laſt generall judgment. And he preventeth an objection, that ſeeing Chriſt came very lately, they may ſeem to be excuſeable which died before. But this the Apoſtle denieth: for (ſaith he) this ſelfe ſame Goſpel was preached unto them alſo (for he ſpeaketh unto the Iewes) and that to the ſame end that I now preach it unto you, to wit, that the fleſh being aboliſhed and put a way (that is to ſay, that wicked and naughtie corruption which reigneth in men) they ſhould ſuffer themſelves to be governed by the vertue of the Spirit of God.

5 He returneth to his purpoſe, uſing an argument taken from the circumſtance of the time. Becauſe the laſt end is at hand, and therefore we muſt ſo much the more diligently watch and pray, with true ſobrietie of minde.

6 He commendeth charitie of one towards another, becauſe it doeth as it were burie a multitude of ſins, and therefore preſerveth and maintaineth peace and concord: for they that love one another, do eaſily forgive one another their offences.

* Prov. 10.12.

7 Of all the dueties of Charitie, he commendeth one, namely, which was at that time moſt neceſſarie, to wit, hoſpitalitie, which he will have to be voluntarie, and moſt courteous and bountifull.

* *Rom.*12.13. *Hebr.*13.2.

8 He ſheweth the uſe of charitie, to wit, that every man beſtow that gift which he hath received, to the profit of his neighbour.

* Rom. 12.6. *Phil.*2.14.

9 A reaſon: Becauſe that whatſoever gift we have, we have received it of God upon this condition, to be his diſpoſers and ſtewards.

10 He reckoneth up two kindes of theſe gifts as chiefe, to wit, the office of teaching in the Church, & the other Eccleſiaſticall functions, wherein two things eſpecially are to be obſerved: to wit, that the pure word of God be taught, and whatſoever is done, be referred to the glory of God the Father in Chriſt, as to the proper marke.

11 Becauſe the croſſe is joyned with the ſincere profeſſion of Religion, the Apoſtle fitly repeateth that which he touched before, warning us not to be troubled at perſecutions and afflictions, as at a new and ſtrange thing.

d As though ſome new thing had befallen you, which you never thought of before.

12 The firſt reaſon: Becauſe the Lord meaneth not to conſume us with this fire (as it were) but to purge us of our droſſe, and make us perfit.

13 Another reaſon: Becauſe the afflictions of the godly and the wicked differ very much, and chiefly in three points. Firſt, becauſe the godly communicate with Chriſt in their afflictions, and therefore ſhall in their time be partakers alſo of his glory.

* Matth. 5. 10.

14 Secondly, becauſe that although the infidels thinke far otherwiſe, who in afflicting the godly, blaſpheme God, yet the godly in that they are ſo railed upon, are honoured of God with the true ſpirituall glory, and their adoption is ſealed to them by the Spirit of God.

e By ſpirit, he meaneth the gifts of the Spirit.

15 The third difference: for the godly are not afflicted for their evill doings, but for righteouſneſſe ſake as Chriſtians: whereby it commeth to paſſe that the croſſe, ſeeing it is a teſtimony unto them of faith and righteouſneſſe, miniſtreth to them not an occaſion of ſorrow, but of unſpeakeable joy: now the Apoſtle propounded this third difference under the forme of an exhortation.

therer, or as a chiefe, or an evill doer, or as a buſie bodie in other mens matters.

16 But if any man ſuffer as a Chriſtian, let him not be aſhamed : but let him glorifie God in this behalfe :

17 [16] For the time is come, that judgement muſt begin at the houſe of God. [17] If it firſt begin at us , what ſhall the end be of them which obey not the Goſpel of God?

18 * And if the righteous ſcarcely be ſaved, where ſhall the ungodly and the ſinner appeare?

19 [18] Wherefore let them that ſuffer according to the will of God, commit their ſoules to him in well doing, as unto a faithfull Creator.

16 The third reaſon : Becauſe the Lord of all the world being eſpecially carefull for them of his houſhold, doeth therefore chaſtiſe them firſt of all, yet ſo that he keepeth a meaſure in his greateſt ſeveritie. And as he hath alwayes uſed to doe heretofore, ſo doeth he now, eſpecially when as he exhibited himſelfe in perſon to his Church.

17 Leſt the godly ſhould be offended & ſtumble at that vaine ſhadow of felicitie of the wicked, as though God were not the governour of the world, for that the wicked are in good caſe, and the godly in evill, the Apoſtle teacheth by an Argument of a compariſon of them together, that God who ſpareth not his own, but nourtureth them under the Croſſe, will at length in his time handle the rebellious and wicked farre otherwiſe , whom he hath appointed to utter deſtruction.

* Prov.2.31.

18 The concluſion: Seeing the godly are not afflicted by chance, but by the will of God, they ought not to deſpaire, but go forward notwithſtanding in the way of holineſſe and well doing, commending themſelves to God their faithfull Creator, that is to ſay, their Father.

CHAP. V.

1 He warneth the Elders not to uſurpe authoritie over the Church, 5 willing the yonger ſort to be willing to be taught, and to be modeſt, 8 to be ſober and watchfull to reſiſt the cruell adverſarie.

THe [1] Elders which are among you, [2] I beſeech, which am alſo an Elder, and a witneſſe of the ſufferings of Chriſt, and alſo a partaker of the glory that ſhall be revealed.

2 [3] [a] Feed the [4] flock of God, which [5] dependeth upon you , [6] caring for it not by conſtraint, but willingly : not for filthy lucre, but of a ready minde :

3 Not as though ye were lords over Gods [b] heritage , but that ye may be enſamples to the flock:

4 [7] And when that chiefe ſhepherd ſhall appeare, ye ſhall receive an incorruptible crown of glory.

5 [8] Likewiſe ye yonger, ſubmit your ſelves unto the Elders , and ſubmit your ſelves every man, one to another: * deck your ſelves inwardly in lowlineſſe of mind: [9] for * God reſiſteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

6 Humble * your ſelves therefore [10] under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time.

7 * Caſt all your care on him: for he careth for you.

8 [11] Be ſober, and watch: for * your adverſarie the devil as a roaring Lion walketh about, ſeeking whom he may devour:

9 Whom reſiſt ſtedfaſt in the faith, [12] knowing that the ſame afflictions are accompliſhed in your [c] brethren which are in the world.

10 [13] And the God of all grace , which hath called us unto his eternall glory by Chriſt Ieſus , after that ye have ſuffered a little, make you perfit, confirme, ſtrengthen and ſtabliſh you:

11 To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever, Amen.

12 [14] By Sylvanus a faithfull brother unto you, as I ſuppoſe, have I written briefly, exhorting and teſtifying how that this is the true grace of God, wherein ye ſtand.

13 [15] The Church that is at [d] Babylon, elected together with you, ſaluteth you, & Marcus my ſon.

14 Greet ye one another with the * kiſſe of love. Peace be with you all which are in Chriſt Ieſus, Amen.

1 He deſcribeth peculiarly the office of the Elders, that is to ſay, of them that have the care of the Church.

2 He uſeth a preface touching the circumſtance of his own perſon: to wit, that he as their companion communeth with them not of matters which he knoweth not, but wherein he is as well experienced as any, and prepoundeth unto them no other condition but that which he himſelf hath ſuſtained before them, and doeth ſtill take the ſame paines, and alſo hath one ſelfe ſame hope together with them.

3 The firſt rule: He that is a ſhepherd let him feed the flocke.

a He ſaith not, offer for the quicke and the dead, and ſing patched ſhreds in a ſtrange tongue, but (feed.)

4 The ſecond: Let the ſhepherds conſider , that the flock is not his, but Gods.

5 The third: Let not the ſhepheards invade other mens flocks, but let them feed that which God hath committed unto them.

6 Let the ſhepherds govern the Church with the word, and example of godly and unblameable life, not by conſtraint, but willingly, not for filthy lucre, but of a ready minde, not as lords over Gods portion and heritage, but as his miniſters.

b Which is the Chriſtian people.

7 That the ſhepherds mindes be not overcome either with the wickedneſſe of men , or their cruelty, he warneth them to caſt their eyes continually upon that chiefe ſhepherd: and the crown which is layd up for them in heaven.

8 He commendeth many peculiar Chriſtian vertues, and eſpecially modeſtie: which admonition all of us ſtand in need of, but eſpecially the yonger ſort, by reaſon of the untowardneſſe and pride of that age.

* Rom. 12.10.

9 Becauſe pride ſeemeth to many to be the way unto the glory of this life, the Apoſtle witneſſeth on the contrary ſide, that ignominie and ſhame is the reward of pride, and glory the reward of modeſtie.

* Iames 4.6.

* Iam 4.10.

10 Becauſe thoſe proud and loftie ſpirits threaten the modeſt and humble, the Apoſtle warneth us to ſet the power of God againſt the vanitie of proud men, and to hang wholly upon his providence.

* Pſal.55. 23. Matt.6.25. Luke 12.22.

11 The cruelty of Satan, who ſeeketh by all meanes to devoure us, is overcome by watchfulneſſe and faith.

* Luke 22.31.

12 The perſecutions which Satan ſtirreth up, are neither new nor proper to any one man, but from old and ancient time common to the whole Church , and therefore we muſt ſuffer that patiently, wherein we have ſuch and ſo many fellowes of our conflicts and combats.

c Amongſt your brethren which are diſperſed throughout the world.

13 He ſealeth up as it were with a ſeale the former exhortation with a ſolemn prayer, againe willing them to aske increaſe of ſtrength at his hands, of whom they had the beginning , and hope to have the accompliſhment: to wit, of God the Father in Chriſt Ieſus, in whom we are ſure of the glory of eternall life.

14 Continuance & perſeverance in the doctrine of the Apoſtles, is the onely ground and foundation of Chriſtian ſtrength : Now the ſum of the Apoſtles doctrine, is ſalvation freely given of God.

THE SECOND EPISTLE GENERALL OF PETER.

Chap. I.

3 Having ſpoken of the bountifulneſſe of God, 5 and of the vertues of faith, 6 He exhorteth them to holineſſe of life, 12 and that his counſell may be the more effectuall, 14 He ſheweth that his death is at hand, 16 and that himſelfe did ſee the power of Chriſt which he opened unto them.

Simon [1] Peter a ſervant and an Apoſtle of Ieſus Chriſt, to you which have obtained like precious faith with us by the [a] righteouſneſſe of our God, and Saviour Ieſus Chriſt:

2 Grace and peace be multiplied unto you,[2] through the acknowledging of God, and of Jeſus our Lord,

3 [3] According as his [b] divine power hath given unto us all things that pertaine unto [c] life and godlineſſe, through the [d] acknowledging of him that hath called us unto glory and vertue,

4 [4] Whereby moſt great and precious promiſes are given unto us, that by them ye ſhould be partakers of the [e] divine nature, in that ye flee the corruption, which is in the [f] world through [g] luſt.

5 [5] Therefore give even all diligence thereunto: [h] joyne moreover vertue with your faith: and with vertue, knowledge:

6 [6] And with knowledge, temperance: and with temperance, patience: and with patience, godlineſſe:

7 And, with godlineſſe, brotherly kindneſſe: and with brotherly kindneſſe, love.

8 [7] For if theſe things be among you, and abound, they will make you that ye neither ſhall be idle, nor unfruitfull in the knowledge of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt:

9 For he that hath not theſe things, is blinde, and [i] cannot ſee farre off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old ſins.

10 [8] Wherefore, brethren, give rather diligence to make your calling and election ſure: for if ye doe theſe things, ye ſhall never fall.

11 For by this meanes an entring ſhall be miniſtred unto you abundantly into the everlaſting kingdome of our Lord and Saviour Ieſus Chriſt.

12 [9] Wherefore, I will not be negligent to put you alwayes in remembrance of theſe things, though that ye have knowledge, and be ſtabliſhed in the preſent trueth.

13 For I thinke it meet as long as I am in this [k] tabernacle, to ſtirre you up by putting you in remembrance, 14 Seeing I know that the time is at hand that I muſt lay down this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Ieſus Chriſt hath * ſhewed me.

15 I will endevour therefore alwayes, that ye alſo may be able to have remembrance of theſe things after my departing:

16 * [10] For we followed not deceiveable fables when we opened unto you the power, and comming of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, but with our eyes we ſaw his Majeſtie:

17 For he received of God the Father honour and glory, when there came ſuch a voyce to him from that excellent glory, * This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed.

18 And this voyce we heard when it came from heaven, being with him in the holy mount.

19 [11] We have alſo a moſt ſure word of the Prophets, [12] to the which ye doe well that ye take heed, as unto a light that ſhineth in a darke place untill the day [l] dawn, and the [m] day-ſtarre ariſe in your hearts.

20 * [13] So that ye firſt know this, that no prophecie of the [n] Scripture is of any [o] private interpretation:

21 For the prophecie came not in old time by the will of man: but [p] holy men of God ſpake as they were [q] mooved by the holy Ghoſt.

---

[1] A ſalutation, wherein he giveth them to underſtand, that he dealeth with them as Chriſts ambaſſadour, and otherwiſe agreeth with them in one ſelfe ſame faith which is grounded upon the righteouſneſſe of Ieſus Chriſt, our God and Saviour.

[a] In that that God ſtanding to his promiſes, ſhewed himſelfe faithfull, and therefore juſt unto us.

[2] Faith is the acknowledging of God and Chriſt, from whence all our bleſſedneſſe iſſueth and floweth.

[3] Chriſt ſetteth forth himſelf unto us plainely, in the Goſpel, and that by his onely power, and giveth us all things which are requiſite both to eternall life, wherein he hath appointed to glorifie us, and alſo to godlines, in that he doth furniſh us with true vertue.

[b] He ſpeaketh of Chriſt, whom he maketh God, and the only Saviour.

[c] Unto ſalvation.

[d] This is the ſum of true religion, to be led by Chriſt to the Father, as it were by the hand.

[4] An explication of the former ſentence, declaring the cauſes of ſo great benefits, to wit, God & his free promiſe, from whence all theſe benefits proceed, I ſay, theſe moſt excellent benefits, whereby we are delivered from the corruption of the world, (that is, from the wicked luſts which we carie about us) and are made after a ſort, like unto God himſelfe.

[e] By the divine nature he meaneth not the ſubſtance of the Godhead, but the partaking of thoſe qualities, whereby the image of God is reſtored in us.

[f] In men.

[g] For luſt is the ſeate of corruption, and hath his place even in our very bowels and inmoſt parts.

[5] Having layd the foundation, (that is, having declared the cauſes of our ſalvation, and eſpecially of our ſanctification) now he beginneth to exhort us to give our minds wholly to the true uſe of this grace. And he beginneth with faith, without which nothing can pleaſe God, and he warneth us to have it full fraught with vertue, (that is to ſay, with good and godly manners) being joyned with the knowledge of Gods will, without which, there is neither faith, neither any true vertue.

[h] Supply alſo and ſupport or ayde.

[6] He reckoneth up certaine other principall vertues, whereof ſome pertaine to the firſt Table of the Law, others to the laſt.

[7] As thoſe fruits doe ſpring from the true knowledge of Chriſt, ſo in like ſort the knowledge it ſelfe is foſtered, and groweth by bringing forth ſuch fruits, in ſo much that he that is unfruitfull, did either never know the true light, or hath forgotten the gift of ſanctification which he hath received.

[i] He that hath not an effectuall knowledge of God in him, is blind as touching the kingdome of God, for he cannot ſee things that are afarre off, that is to ſay, heavenly things.

[8] The concluſion: Therefore ſeeing our calling and election is approoved by thoſe fruits, and is confirmed in us, & moreover ſeeing this is the onely way to the everlaſting kingdome of Chriſt, it remaineth that we caſt our mindes wholly that way.

[9] An amplifying of the concluſion joyned with a modeſt excuſe, wherein he declareth his love towards them, and foretelleth them of his death which is at hand.

[k] In this body.

* Iohn 21. 18.

* 1 Cor. 1. 17. and 2. 1.

[10] Another amplification taken both of the great certaintie, and alſo excellencie of his doctrine, as whereof our Lord Ieſus Chriſt the Son of God is author, whoſe glory the Apoſtle himſelfe both ſaw and heard.

* Matth. 17. 5.

[11] The trueth of the Goſpel is hereby alſo manifeſt, in that it agreeth wholly with the foretellings of the Prophets.

[12] The doctrine of the Apoſtles doeth not ſhut out the doctrine of the Prophets, for they confirme each other, by each others teſtimonies, but the Prophets were as candles which gave light unto the blinde, untill the brightneſſe of the Goſpel began to ſhine.

[l] A more full and open knowledge, then was under the ſhadowes of the Law.

[m] That clearer doctrine of the Goſpel.

* 2 Tim. 3. 16.

[13] The Prophets are to be read, but ſo, that we aske of God the gift of interpretation, for he that is the authour of the writings of the Prophets, is alſo the interpreter of them.

[n] He joyneth the Scripture and Prophecie together, to diſtinguiſh true prophecies from falſe.

[o] For all interpretation commeth from God.

[p] The godly interpreters and meſſengers.

[q] Inſpired of God: and theſe their motions were in very good order, and not ſuch as were the motions of the prophane ſoothſayers, and foretellers of things to come.

Chap.

Chap. II.

1 He foretelleth them of falſe teachers, 3 whoſe wicked ſleights and deſtruction he declareth. 12 He compareth them to bruit beaſts, 17 and to wells without water, 20 becauſe they ſeek to withdraw men from God to their old filthineſſe.

BUt [1] there were falſe prophets alſo among the [a] people, even as there ſhalbe falſe teachers among you: which privily ſhall bring in damnable hereſies, even denying the Lord that hath bought them, and bring upon themſelves ſwift damnation.

2 [2] And many ſhall follow their deſtructions, by whom the way of truth ſhall be evill ſpoken of,

3 [3] And through covetouſneſſe ſhall they with fained words [b] make merchandiſe of you, [4] whoſe condemnation long ſince reſteth not, and their deſtruction ſlumbereth not.

4 For if God ſpared not the * Angels that had ſinned, but caſt them down into [c] hell, and delivered them into [d] chaines of darkneſſe, to be kept unto damnation:

5 Neither hath ſpared the [e] old world, but ſaved * Noe the eigth perſon, a [f] preacher of righteouſneſſe, and brought in the flood upon the world of the ungodly,

6 And * turned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrhe into aſhes, condemned them, and overthrew them, and made them an enſample unto them that after ſhould live ungodly,

7 And delivered juſt Lot vexed with the uncleanly converſation of the wicked:

8 (For he being righteous, and dwelling among them, in [g] ſeeing and hearing, [h] vexed his righteous ſoul from day to day with their unlawfull deeds)

9 The Lord [i] knoweth to deliver the godly out of temptation, and to reſerve the unjuſt unto the day of judgement under puniſhment,

10 [5] And chiefly them that walk after the fleſh in the luſt of uncleanneſſe, and deſpiſe government, which are bold, and ſtand in their own conceit, and feare not to ſpeak evill of them that are in [k] dignitie,

11 Whereas the Angels which are greater both in power and might, give not railing judgement againſt them before the Lord:

12 [6] But theſe, as naturall bruit beaſts, led with ſenſuality and [l] made to be taken and deſtroyed, ſpeake evill of thoſe things which they know not, and ſhall periſh through their [m] own corruption,

13 And ſhall receive the wages of unrighteouſnes, as they which count it pleaſure daily to live deliciouſly. ‡Spots they are and blots, delighting themſelves in their deceivings, [n] in feaſting with you,

14 [7] Having eyes full of adultery, and that cannot ceaſe to ſin, beguiling unſtable ſouls: they have hearts exerciſed with covetouſneſſe, they are the children of curſe:

15 Which forſaking the right way, have gone aſtray, following the way * of Balaam, the ſon of Boſor, which loved the wages of unrighteouſneſſe:

16 But he was rebuked for his iniquitie: for the dumbe beaſt ſpeaking with mans voice, forbad the fooliſhneſſe of the Prophet.

17 * [8] Theſe are [o] wells without water, and clouds caried about with a tempeſt, to whom the [p] black darkneſſe is reſerved for ever.

18 For in ſpeaking [q] ſwelling words of vanitie, they [r] beguile with wantonneſſe through the luſts of the fleſh them that were [ſ] cleane eſcaped from them which are wrapped in errour,

19 Promiſing unto them liberty, and are themſelves the * ſervants of corruption: for of whomſoever a man is overcome, even unto the ſame is he in bondage.

20 [9] * For if they, after they have eſcaped from the filthines of the world, through the acknowledging of the Lord and of the Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, are yet tangled again therein, and overcome, the latter end is worſe with them then the beginning:

21 For it had been better for them, not to have acknowledged the way of righteouſneſſe, then after they have acknowledged it, to turn from the holy commandement given unto them,

22 But it is come unto them, according to the true Proverb, * The dog is returned to his own vomit: and, The ſow that was waſhed, to the wallowing in the myre.

Chap. III.

1 He ſheweth that he writeth the ſame things again, 2 becauſe they muſt often be ſtirred up, 4 becauſe dangers hang over their heads through certain mockers. 8 Therefore he warneth the godly that they do not after the judgement of the fleſh, 12 appoint the day of the Lord, 14 but that they think it alwayes at hand, 15 in which doctrine he ſheweth that Paul agreeth with him.

THis [1] ſecond Epiſtle I now write unto you, beloved, wherewith I ſtirre up, and warn your pure mindes,

2 To call to remembrance the words which were told before of the holy Prophets, and alſo the commandment of us the Apoſtles of the Lord and Saviour.

3 * [2] This firſt underſtand, that there ſhal come in the laſt dayes, [a] mockers, which will walk after their luſts,

---

[1] As in times paſt there were two kinds of prophets, the one true, the other falſe, ſo Peter foretelleth thẽ, that there ſhall be ſome true, & ſome falſe teachers in the Church, in ſo much that Chriſt himſelf ſhal be denied of ſome, which notwithſtanding ſhall call him Redeemer.

[a] Vnder the law while the State and police of the Iewes was yet ſtanding.

[2] There ſhall not onely be hereſies but alſo many followers of them.

[3] Covetouſneſſe for the moſt part is a companion of hereſie, & maketh merchandiſe even of ſouls.

[b] They will abuſe you, and ſell you, as they ſell cattell in a Faire.

[4] A comfort for the godly: God who caſt the Angels that fel away from him, headlong into the darkneſſe of hel, at length to be judged: and who deſtroyed the old world with the flood, and preſerved Noe the eight perſon: and who burned Sodom, & ſaved Lot, will deliver his elect from theſe errours, and wil utterly deſtroy thoſe unrighteous.

* Iob 4. 18. Iude 6.

[c] So the Grecians called the deep dungeons under the earth, which ſhould be appointed to torment the ſouls of the wicked in.

[d] Bound them with darkneſſe as it were with chaines: and by darkneſſe he meaneth that moſt miſerable ſtate of life that is full of horrour.

[e] Which was before the flood: not that God made a new world, but becauſe the world ſeemed new

* Gen. 7. 1.

[f] For he ceaſed not the ſpace of an hundreth and twenty yeares to warn the wicked both by word and deed, what wrath of God hanged over their heads.

* Gen. 19. 13, 24.

[g] Which way ſoever he looked, and turned his eares.

[h] He had a troubled ſoul, and being vehemently grieved, lived a painfull life.

[i] Hath been long practiſed in ſaving and delivering the righteous.

[5] He goeth to another ſort of corrupt men, which notwithſtanding are within the boſome of the Church, which are wickedly given, and do ſeditiouſly ſpeake evill of the authority of Magiſtrates (which the Angels themſelves that miniſter before God, do not diſpraiſe.) A true and lively deſcription of the Romiſh clergy (as they call it.)

[k] Princes and great men, be they never ſo high in authority.

[6] A lively painting out of the ſame perſons, wherein they are compared to beaſts which are made to ſnare themſelves to deſtruction, while they give themſelves to fill their bellies: for there is no greater ignorance then is in theſe men: although they moſt impudently finde fault with thoſe things which they know not: and it ſhall come to paſſe that they ſhall deſtroy themſelves as beaſts with thoſe pleaſures wherewith they are delighted, and diſhonour and defile the company of the godly.

[l] Made to this end to be a prey to others: So do theſe men willingly caſt themſelves into Satans ſnares.

[m] Their own wicked manners ſhall bring them to deſtruction.

‡ Or, little rocks.

[n] When as by being amongſt the Chriſtians in the holy banquets which the Church keepeth, they would ſeem by that meanes to be true members of the Church, yet they are indeed but blots of the Church.

[7] He condemneth thoſe men, as ſhewing, even in their behaviour and countenance an unmeaſurable luſt, as making merchandiſe of the ſouls of light perſons, as men exerciſed in all the crafts of covetouſneſſe, to be ſhort, as men that ſell themſelves for money, to curſe the ſons of God after Balaams example, whom the dumbe beaſt reproved.

* Num. 22. 23.

* Iude 12.

[8] Another note, whereby they may be well known what manner of men they are, becauſe they have inwardly nothing but either utterly vain or very hurtfull, although they make a ſhew of ſome great goodnes, but they ſhall not eſcape unpuniſhed for it, becauſe under pretence of falſe liberty, they draw men into moſt miſerable ſlavery of ſinne.

[2] He voucheth the ſecond coming of Chriſt againſt the Epicures by name.

[a] Monſtrous men, who would ſeem wiſe by their contempt of God, and wicked boldneſſe.

4 [3] And ſay, Where is the promiſe of his coming? for ſince the fathers died, all things continue alike from the beginning of the creation:

5 [4] For this they willingly know not, that the heavens were of old, and the [b] earth that was of the water and by the water, by the word of God.

6 [5] Wherefore the world that then was, periſhed, overflowed with the [c] water.

7 [6] But the heavens and the earth, which are now, are kept by the ſame word in ſtore, and reſerved unto fire againſt the day of condemnation, and of the deſtruction of ungodly men.

8 [7] Dearely beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord *as a thouſand yeares, and a thouſand yeares as one day.

9 [8] The Lord of that promiſe is not ſlack (as ſome men count ſlackneſſe) [9] but is patient toward us, and * would have no man to periſh, but would all men to come to repentance.

10 [10] But the *day of the Lord wil come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens ſhall paſſe away with a [d] noiſe, and the elements ſhal melt with heate, and the earth with the works that are therein, ſhall be burnt up.

11 [11] Seeing therefore that all theſe things muſt be diſſolved, what manner of perſons ought ye to be in holy converſation and godlineſſe, 12 Looking for, and [e] haſting unto the coming of that day of God, by which the heavens being on fire, ſhal be diſſolved, and the elemens ſhall melt with heate.

13 But we look for *new heavens, and a new earth, according to his promiſe, [f] wherein dwelleth righteouſneſſe.

14 Wherefore, beloved, ſeeing that ye look for ſuch things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in [g] peace, without ſpot and blameleſſe.

15 * And ſuppoſe that the long ſuffering of our Lord is ſalvation, [12] even as our beloved brother Paul according to the wiſdome given unto him, wrote unto you,

16 As one that in all his Epiſtles ſpeaketh of theſe things: [13] among the ‡ which ſome things are hard to be underſtood, which they that are unlearned and unſtable, wreſt, as they do alſo other Scriptures unto their own deſtruction.

17 Ye therefore beloved, ſeeing ye know theſe things before, beware, leſt ye be alſo plucked away with the errour of the wicked, and fall from your own ſteadfaſtneſſe.

18 But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt: to him be glory both now and evermore, Amen.

[12] Pauls Epiſtles are allowed by the expreſſe teſtimony of Peter.

[13] There be certain of theſe things obſcure and darke, whereof the unlearned take occaſion to overthrow ſome men that ſtand not faſt, wreſting the teſtimonies of the Scripture to their own deſtruction. But this is the remedy againſt ſuch deceit, to labour that we may daily more and more grow up and increaſe in the knowledge of Chriſt.

‡ That is to ſay, among the which things: for he diſputeth not here whether Pauls Epiſtles be plain or dark, but ſaith, that amongſt thoſe things which Paul hath written of in his Epiſtles, and Peter himſelf in theſe two of his own, there are ſome things which cannot be ſo eaſily underſtood, and therefore are of ſome drawn to their own deſtruction: and this he ſaith to make us more attentive and diligent, and not to remove us from the reading of holy things, for to what end ſhould they have written vain ſpeculations?

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERALL OF JOHN.

Chap. I.

1 He teſtifieth that he bringeth the eternall word wherein is life, 5 and light: 9 God will be mercifull unto the faithfull, if groaning under the burden of their ſinnes, they learne to flee unto his mercy.

That [1] which was from the beginning, which we have [a] heard, which we have ſeen with theſe our eyes, which we have looked upon, and theſe hands of ours have handled of that [b] word of life,

2 (For that life was made manifeſt, and we have ſeen it, and beare witneſſe, and [c] ſhew unto you that eternall life, which was with the Father, and was manifeſt unto us.)

3 That, I ſay, which we have ſeen and heard, declare we unto you, [2] that ye may alſo have fellowſhip with us, and that our fellowſhip alſo may be with the Father, and with his Sonne IESVS Chriſt.

4 And theſe things write we unto you, that your joy may be full.

5 [3] This then is the meſſage which we have heard of him, and declare unto you: that God * is light, and in him is no darkneſſe.

6 If we ſay that we have fellowſhip with him, and walk in darkneſſe, we lie, and do not truly:

7 But if we walk in the [d] light as he is in the light, we have fellowſhip one with another, [4] and the * blood of Jeſus Chriſt his Sonne clenſeth us from all ſinne.

8 [5] * If we ſay that we have no ſinne, we [e] deceive our ſelves, and [f] truth is not in us.

9 [6] If we acknowledge our ſinnes, he is [g] faithfull and juſt, to [h] forgive us our ſinnes, and to clenſe us from all unrighteouſneſſe.

10 [7] If we ſay we have not ſinned, we make him [i] a liar, and his [k] word is not in us.

[1] He beginneth with the deſcription of the perſon of Chriſt, whom he maketh one and not two: and him both God from everlaſting (for he was with the Father from the beginning, and is ÿ eternall life) and alſo made true man, whom John himſelf and his companions, both heard, and beheld, and handled.

[a] I heard him ſpeak, I ſaw him my ſelf with mine eyes, I handled with mine hands him that is very God, being made very man, and not I alone, but others alſo that were with me.

[b] That ſame everlaſting Word by whom all things are made, and in whom onely there is life.

[c] Being ſent by him: and that doctrine is rightly ſaid to be ſhewed, for no man could ſo much as have thought of it, if it had not been thus ſhewed.

[2] The uſe of this doctrine is this, that all of us being coupled and joyned together with Chriſt by faith, might become the ſons of God: in which thing onely conſiſteth all happineſſe.

[3] Now he entreth into a queſtion, whereby we may underſtand that we are joyned together with Chriſt, to wit, if we be governed with his light, which is perceived by the ordering of our life. And thus he reaſoneth: God is in himſelf moſt pure light, therefore he agreeth well with them which are lightſome, but with them that are darkſome he hath no fellowſhip. * Iohn. 8. 12.

[d] God is ſaid to be light of his own nature, and to be in light, that is to ſay, in that everlaſting infinite bleſſedneſſe: and we are ſaid to walk in light in that the beames of that light do ſhine unto us in the Word.

[4] A digreſſion, or going from the matter he is in hand with, to the remiſſion of ſinnes: for this our ſanctification which walk in the light, is a teſtimony of our joyning and knitting together with Chriſt: but becauſe this our light is very dark, we muſt needs obtain another benefit in Chriſt, to wit, that our ſinnes may be forgiven us being ſprinkled with his blood: and this in concluſion is the prop and ſtay of our ſalvation. * Hebr. 9. 28. 1 Pet. 1. 19. Revel. 1. 5.

[5] There is none but needeth this benefit, becauſe there is none that is not a ſinner. * 1 Kings 8. 46. 2 Chron. 6. 36. Prov. 20. 9.

[e] This place doth fully refute that perfitneſſe and works of ſupererogation, which the Papiſts dreame of.

[f] So then, Iohn ſpeaketh not thus for modeſties ſake, as ſome ſay, but becauſe it is ſo indeed.

[6] Therefore the beginning of ſalvation is to acknowledge our wickedneſſe, and to require pardon of him, who freely forgiveth all ſinnes, becauſe he hath promiſed ſo to do, and he is faithfull and juſt.

[g] So then our ſalvation hangeth upon the free promiſes of God, who becauſe he is faithfull and juſt, wil perform that which he hath promiſed.

[h] Where are then our merits? for this is our true felicity.

[7] A rehearſall of the former ſentence, wherein he condemned all of ſinne without exception: inſomuch that if any man perſwade himſelf otherwiſe, he doth as much as in him lieth, make the word of God himſelf vain, and to no purpoſe, yea, he maketh God a liar: for to what end, either in times paſt needed ſacrifices, or now Chriſt and the Goſpel, if we be not ſinners?

[i] They do not onely deceive themſelves, but are blaſphemous againſt God.

[k] His doctrine ſhall have no place in us: that is, in our hearts.

Chap. II.

1 He declareth that Chriſt is our Mediatour and Advocate, 3 and ſheweth that the knowledge of God conſiſteth in holineſſe of life, 12 which appertaineth to all ſorts, 14 that depend on Chriſt alone: 15 Then having exhorted them to contemn the world, 18 He giveth warning that Antichriſts be avoyded, 24 and that the known truth be ſtood unto.

My [1] little children, theſe things write I unto you, that ye ſin not: and if any man ſin, we have an [a] Advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the Juſt.

2 And he is the [b] reconciliation for our ſinnes: and not for ours onely, but alſo for the ſinnes of the [c] whole world.

3 [2] And hereby we are ſure that we [d] know him, [e] if we keep his commandments.

4 [3] He that ſaith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

5 [4] But he that keepeth his word, in him is the [f] love of God perfect indeed: hereby we know that we are in [g] him.

6 [5] He that ſaith he remaineth in him, ought even ſo to walk, as he hath walked.

7 [6] Brethren, I write no new commandement unto you, but an old commandement which ye have had from the beginning: this old commandement is that word, which ye have heard from the beginning.

8 [7] Again, a new commandment I write unto you, that [h] which is true in him, and alſo in you: for the darkneſſe is paſt, and that true light now ſhineth.

[1] It followeth not hereof, that we muſt give our wicked nature the bridle, or ſinne ſo much the more freely, becauſe our ſinnes are cleanſed away by the blood of Chriſt, but we muſt rather ſo much the more diligently reſiſt ſin. And yet we muſt not deſpaire becauſe of our weakneſſe, for we have an advocate and a purger, Chriſt Jeſus the juſt, and therefore acceptable unto his Father.

[a] In that he nameth Chriſt, he ſhutteth forth all other.

[b] Reconciliation and interceſſion go together, to give us to underſtand that he is both advocate and high Prieſt.

[c] For men of all ſorts, of all ages, and all places, ſo that this benefit belongeth not to the Iewes onely, of whom he ſpeaketh, as appeareth, verſe 7. but alſo to other nations.

[2] He returneth to the teſtimony of our conjunction with God, to wit, to ſanctification, declaring what it is to walk in the light, to wit, to keep Gods commandements. Whereby it followeth that holines doth not conſiſt in thoſe things which men have deviſed, neither in a vain profeſſion of the Goſpel.

[d] This muſt be underſtood of ſuch a knowledge as hath faith with it, and not of a common knowledge.

[e] For the tree is known by the fruit.

[3] Holineſſe, that is, a life ordered according to the preſcript of Gods commandements, how weake ſo ever we be, is of neceſſitie joyned with faith, that is, with the true knowledge of the Father in the Son.

[4] He that keepeth Gods commandements loveth God indeed: He that loveth God, is in God, or is joyned together with God. Therfore he that keepeth his commandments is in him.

[f] Wherwith we love God.

[g] He meaneth our connunction with Chriſt.

[5] He that is one with Chriſt, muſt needs live his life, that is, muſt walk in his ſteps.

[6] The Apoſtle going about to expound the commandment of charity one towards another, telleth firſt, that when he urgeth holines, he bringeth no new trade of life (as they uſe to do which deviſe tradition one after another) but putteth them in minde of that ſame law which God gave in the beginning, to wit, by Moſes, at that time that God began to make laws to his people.

[7] He addeth that the doctrine indeed is old, but it is now after a ſort new, both in reſpect of Chriſt, and alſo of us, in whom he through the Goſpel, engraveth his law effectually, not in tables of ſtone, but in our mindes.

[h] Which thing, (to wit, that the doctrine is new which I write unto you) is true in him, and in you.

9 [8] He that ſaith that he is in that light, and hateth his brother, is in darkneſſe untill this time.

10 * He that loveth his brother, abideth in that light, and there is none occaſion of evill in him.

11 But he that hateth his brother, is in darkneſſe, and walketh in darkneſſe, and knoweth not whither he goeth, becauſe that darkneſſe hath blinded his eyes.

12 [9] Little children, [i] I write unto you, becauſe your ſinnes are forgiven you, for his [k] Names ſake.

13 [10] I write unto you, fathers, becauſe ye have known him that is from the beginning. [11] I write unto you, young men, becauſe ye have overcome that wicked one. [12] I write unto you little children, becauſe ye have known the Father.

14 [13] I have written unto you, fathers, becauſe ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, becauſe ye are ſtrong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome that wicked one.

15 [14] Love not this [l] world, neither the things that are in this world. If any man love this world, the [m] love of the Father is not in him:

16 For all that is in this world (as the luſt of the fleſh, the luſt of the eyes, and the pride of life) is not of the Father, but is of this world.

17 [15] And this world paſſeth away, and the luſt thereof: but he that fulfilleth the will of God, abideth ever.

18 [16] [n] Little children, [17] it is the laſt time, [18] and as ye have heard that Antichriſt ſhall come, even now there are many Antichriſts: whereby we know that it is the laſt time.

19 [19] They went out from us, but they were not of us: for if they had been of us, [o] they ſhould have continued with us. [20] But this cometh to paſſe, that it might appeare, that they are not all of us.

8 Now he cometh to ẏ ſecond table, that is, to charity one towards another, and denieth that, that man hath true light in him, or is indeed regenerate and the ſon of God, which hateth his brother: and ſuch an one wandereth miſerably in darkneſſe, brag he of never ſo great knowledg of God, for that wittingly and willingly he caſteth himſelf headlong into hell.

* Chap. 3.14.

9 He returneth again from ſanctification to remiſſion of ſins, becauſe that free reconciliation in Chriſt is ẏ ground of our ſalvation, whereupon afterwards ſanctification muſt be built as upon a foundation.

i Therefore I write unto you, becauſe you are of their number whom God hath reconciled to himſelf.

k For his own ſake: And in that he nameth Chriſt, he ſhutteth out all other, whether they be in heaven or earth.

10 He ſheweth that this doctrine agreeth to all ages, and firſt of all ſpeaking to old men, he ſheweth that Chriſt and his doctrine are paſſing ancient, and therefore if they be delighted with old things, nothing ought to be more acceptable unto them.

11 He advertiſeth young men, if they be deſirous to ſhew their ſtrēgth, that they have a moſt glorious combate ſet here before them, to wit, Satan the worſt enemy, who muſt be overcom: willing them to be as ſure of the victroy as if they had already gotten it.

12 Finally, he ſheweth to children, that that true Father from whom they have to look for al good things, is ſet forth unto them in the Goſpel.

13 He addeth afterward in like order, as many exhortations: as if he ſhould ſay, Remember, you fathers, as I wrot even now, that the everlaſting Sonne of God is revealed to us. Remember ye young men, that that ſtrength whereby I ſaid that you put Satan to flight, is given you by the word of God which dwelleth in you. 14 The world which is full of wicked deſires, luſts or pleaſures, and pride, is utterly hated of our heavenly Father. Therefore the Father and the world cannot be loved together: and this admonition is very neceſſary for green and flouriſhing youth. l He ſpeaketh of the world, as it agreeth not with the will of God, for otherwiſe God is ſaid to love the world with an infinite love, Iohn 3. 16. that is to ſay, thoſe whom he choſe out of the world. m Wherewith the Father is loved. 15 He ſheweth how much better it is to obey the Fathers will, then the luſts of the world, by both their natures and unlike event. 16 Now, he turneth himſelf to little children, which notwithſtanding are well inſtructed in the ſum of Religion, and willeth them by divers reaſons to ſhake off ſlothfulneſſe, which is too familiar with that age. n He uſeth this word (Little) not becauſe he ſpeaketh to children, but to allure them the more by uſing ſuch ſweet words. 17 Firſt, becauſe the laſt time is at hand, ſo that the matter ſuffereth no delay. 18 Secondly, becauſe Antichriſts, that is, ſuch as fall from God, are already come, even as they heard that they ſhould come. And it was very requiſite to warn that unheedy and warileſſe age of that danger. 19 A digreſſion againſt certain offences and ſtumbling blocks whereat that rude age eſpecially might ſtumble and be ſhaken. Therefore that they ſhould not be terrified with the foule falling back of certain, firſt he maketh plain unto them, that although ſuch as fall from God and his religion had place in the Church, yet they were never of the Church: becauſe the Church is the company of the elect, which cannot periſh, and therefore cannot fall from Chriſt. o So then the elect can never fall from grace. 20 Secondly, he ſheweth that theſe things fall out to the profit of the Church, that hypocrites may be plainly known.

20 [21] But ye have an [p] oyntment from that [q] Holy one, and know all things.

21 [22] I have not written unto you, becauſe ye know not the truth: but becauſe ye know it, and that no ly is of the truth.

22 [23] Who is a liar, but he that denieth that Jeſus is [r] that Chriſt? the ſame is that Antichriſt that denieth the Father and the Sonne.

23 [ſ] Whoſoever denieth the Sonne, the ſame hath not the Father.

24 [24] Let therefore abide in you that ſame which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning, ſhall remain in you, ye alſo ſhall continue in the Sonne, and in the Father.

25 And this is the promiſe that he hath promiſed us, even that eternall life.

26 [25] Theſe things have I written unto you, concerning them that deceive you.

27 But that [t] anoynting which ye received of him, dwelleth in you: and ye [v] need not that any man teach you: but as the ſame [x] anointing teacheth you of all things, and it is true, and it is not lying, and as it taught you, ye ſhall abide in him.

28 [26] And now, little children, abide in him, that when he ſhal appeare, we may be bold, and not be aſhamed before him at his coming.

29 [27] If ye know that he is righteous, know ye that he which doth righteouſly, is born of him.

24 The whole preaching of the Prophets and Apoſtles is contrary to that doctrine, Therefore it is utterly to be caſt away, and this wholly to be holden, and kept, which leadeth us to ſeek eternall life in the free promiſe, that is to ſay, in Chriſt alone, who is given us of the Father. 25 The ſame Spirit which indueth the elect with the knowledge of the truth and ſanctifieth them, giveth them therewithall the gift of perſeverance, to continue to the end. t The Spirit which you have received of Chriſt, and which hath led you into all truth. v You are not ignorant of thoſe things, and therefore I teach them not as things that were never heard of, but call them to your remembrance as things which you do know. x He commendeth both the doctrine which they had embraced, and alſo highly praiſeth their faith, and the diligence of ſuch as taught them, yet ſo, that he taketh nothing from the honour due to the holy Ghoſt. 26 The concluſion both of the whole exhortation, and alſo of the former treatiſe. 27 A paſſing over to the treatiſe following, which tendeth to the ſame purpoſe, but yet is more ample, and handleth the ſame matter after another order, for before he taught us to go up from the effects to the cauſe, and in this that followeth, he goeth down from the cauſes to the effects: And this is the ſum of this argument, God is the fountain of all righteouſneſſe, and therefore they that give themſelves to righteouſneſſe, are known to be born of him, becauſe they reſemble God the Father.

CHAP. III.

1 Setting down the ineſtimable glory of this, that we are Gods ſonnes, 7 He ſheweth that newneſſe of life muſt be teſtified by good works, whereof Charitie is a manifeſt token 19 of faith, 22 and praying unto God.

BEhold, [1] [a] what love the Father hath given to us, that we ſhould be [b] called the ſonnes of God: [2] for this cauſe this world knoweth you not, becauſe it knoweth not him.

2 [3] Dearely beloved, now are we the ſonnes of God, but yet it is not made manifeſt what we ſhall be: and we know that when he ſhalbe made manifeſt, we ſhall be [c] like him: for we ſhall ſee him [d] as he is.

1 He beginneth to declare this agreement of the Father and the Son, at the higheſt cauſe, to wit, at ẏ free love of God towards us, wherwith he ſo loveth us, that alſo he adopteth us to be his children.

a What a gift, of how great love.

b That we ſhould be the ſons of God, and ſo that all the world may perceive we are ſo.

2 Before he declareth this adoption, he ſaith two things: the one, that this ſo great a dignity, is not to be eſteemed according to the judgement of the fleſh, becauſe it is unknown to the world, for the world knoweth not God the Father himſelf. 3 The other, this dignity is not fully made manifeſt to us our ſelves, much leſſe to ſtrangers, but we are ſure of the accompliſhment of it, inſomuch that we ſhall be like unto the Son of God himſelf, and ſhall enjoy his ſight indeed, ſuch as he is now, but yet notwithſtanding this is deferred until his next coming. c Like, but not equall. d For now we ſee as in a glaſſe, 1 Cor. 13. 12.

3 [3] And every man that hath this hope in him, purgeth himſelfe, even [e] as he is pure.

4 [5] Whoſoever [f] committeth ſin, tranſgreſſeth alſo the Law: for [g] ſin is the tranſgreſſion of the Law.

5 [6] And ye know that he was made maniſeſt, that he might * take away our ſins, and in him is no ſin.

6 Whoſoever abideth in him, ſinneth not: whoſoever [h] ſinneth, hath not ſeene him, neither hath knowen him.

7 [7] Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doth righteouſneſſe, is righteous, as he is righteous.

8 [8] He that * committeth ſin, is of the [i] devill: for the devill [k] ſinneth from the [l] beginning: for this purpoſe was made maniſeſt that Son of God, that he might looſe the works of the devill.

9 Whoſoever is born of God, ſinneth not: for his [m] ſeed remaineth in him, neither can he ſin, becauſe he is born of God.

10 [9] In this are the children of God knowen, and the children of the devill: whoſoever doeth not righteouſneſſe, is not of God, [10] neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 [11] For this is the meſſage, that ye heard from the beginning, that * we ſhould love one another.

12 [12] Not as * [n] Cain which was of that wicked one, and ſlew his brother: [13] and wherfore ſlew he him? becauſe his own works were evill, and his brothers good.

13 Marvell not, my brethren, though this world hate you.

14 [14] We [o] know that we are tranſlated from death unto life, becauſe we love the brethren: * he that loveth not his brother, abideth in death.

15 [15] Whoſoever hateth his brother, is a manſlayer: and ye know that no manſlayer hath eternall life abiding in him.

16 * [16] Hereby have we perceived love, that he layd down his life for us: therefore we ought alſo to lay down our lives for the brethren.

[4] Now he deſcribeth this adoption, (the glory whereof as yet conſiſteth in hope) by the effect, to wit, becauſe that whoſoever is made the Son of God, endevoureth to reſemble the Father in purity.

[e] This word ſignifieth a likeneſſe, but not an equality.

[5] The rule of this purity can from no whence elſe be taken but from the Law of God, the tranſgreſſion whereof is that which is called ſin.

[f] Giveth not himſelfe to pureneſſe.

[g] A ſhort definition of ſin.

[6] An argument taken from the materiall cauſe of our ſalvation: Chriſt in himſelfe is moſt pure, and he came to take away our ſins by ſanctifying us with the holy Ghoſt. Therefore whoſoever is truely partaker of Chriſt, doth not give himſelfe to ſin, and contrariwiſe he that giveth himſelfe to ſin, knoweth not Chriſt.

* *Iſa.*53.6.9.11. 1 *Pet.*2.22.24.

[h] He is ſaid to ſin, that giveth not himſelfe to purenes, and in him ſin reigneth: but ſin is ſaid to dwell in the faithfull, and not to reigne in them.

[7] An other argument of things coupled together: He that liveth juſtly, is juſt, and reſembleth Chriſt that is juſt, and by that is knowen to be the Son of God.

[8] An argument taken of contraries, the devill is the authour of ſin, & therfore he is of the devil, or is ruled by the inſpiration of the devill, that ſerveth ſin: and if he be the devils ſon, then is he not Gods ſon: for the devill and God, are ſo contrary the one to the other, that even the Son of God was ſent to deſtroy the workes of the devill. Therfore on the contrary ſide, whoſoever reſiſteth ſin, is the Son of God, being born againe of his Spirit as of new ſeed, in ſo much, that of neceſſity he is now delivered from the ſlavery of ſin.

* Iohn 8.44.

[i] Reſembleth the devill, as the child doth the father, and is governed by his Spirit.

[k] He ſaith not ſinned, but ſinneth, for he doth nothing elſe but ſin.

[m] The holy Ghoſt is ſo called of the effect he worketh, becauſe by his vertue and mighty working, as it were by ſeed, we are made new men.

[9] The concluſion: By a wicked life they are knowen, which are governed by the ſpirit of the devill: and by a pure life, which are Gods children.

[10] He beginneth to commend charity towards the brethren, as another marke of the ſons of God.

[11] The firſt reaſon taken of the authority of God which giveth the commandement.

* *Iohn.*13.34. and 15.12.

[12] An amplification taken of the contrary example of Cain which ſlew his brother.

* *Gen.*4.8.

[n] He bringeth forth a very fit and very old example, wherein we may behold both the nature of the Sons of God, and the ſons of the devill, and what ſtate and condition remaineth for us in this world, and what ſhalbe the end of both at length.

[13] A ſhort digreſſion: Let us not marvell that we are hated of the world for doing our duety, for ſuch was the condition of Abel who was a juſt perſon: and who would not rather be like him them Cain?

[14] The ſecond reaſon: Becauſe charity is a teſtimony that we are tranſlated from death to life: and therefore hatred towards the brethren is a teſtimony of death: and whoſoever nouriſheth it, doth as it were foſter death in his boſome.

[o] Love is a token that we are tranſlated from death to life, foraſmuch as by the effects the cauſe is knowen.

* *Chap.*2.10. *Levit.*19.17.

[15] A confirmation: Whoſoever is a murtherer, is in eternall death: who ſo hateth his brother is a murtherer, therfore is in death. And thereupon followeth the contrary: He that loveth his brother hath paſſed to life, for indeed we are born dead.

* Iohn 15.13. *Ephe.*5.2.

[16] Now he ſheweth how farre chriſtian charity extendeth, even ſo farre, that according to the example of Chriſt, every man forget himſelfe, to provide for, and helpe his brethren.

17 * [17] And whoſoever hath this [p] worlds good, and ſeeth his brother have need, and [q] ſhutteth up his compaſſion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

18 [18] My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue onely, but in deed and in trueth.

19 [19] For thereby we know that we are of the trueth, [20] and ſhall before him aſſure our hearts.

20 For [r] if our heart condemne us, God is greater then our heart, and knoweth all things.

21 [21] Beloved, if our heart condemne us not, then have we boldneſſe toward God.

22 * [22] And whatſoever we aske we receive of him, becauſe we keep his commandement, and doe thoſe things which are pleaſing in his ſight.

23 * This is then his commandement, That we beleeve in the Name of his Son Jeſus Chriſt, and love one another as he gave commandement:

24 * For he that keepeth his commandements, dwelleth in him, and he in him: and hereby we know that he abideth in us, even by that [ſ] Spirit which he hath given us.

* Luke 3.11.

[17] He reaſoneth by compariſons: for if we are bound even to give our life for our neighbours, how much more are we bound to helpe our brothers neceſſitie with our goods and ſubſtance.

[p] Wherewith this life is ſuſtained.

[q] Openeth not his heart to him, nor helpeth him willingly and cheerfully.

[18] Chriſtian charitie ſtandeth not in words but in deede, & proceedeth from a ſincere affection.

[19] He commendeth charitie, by a triple effect: for firſt of all, by it we know that we are indeede the ſons of God, as he ſhewed before.

[20] Therefore it commeth that we have a quiet conſcience, as on the contrary ſide, he that thinketh that he hath God for a judge, becauſe he is guilty to himſelfe, either he is never, or els very rarely, quiet, for God hath a farre quicker ſight then we, & judgeth more ſeverely.

[r] If an evill conſcience convinceth us, much more ought the iudgement of God condemne us, who knoweth our hearts better then we our ſelves doe.

[21] A third effect alſo riſeth of the former, that in theſe miſeries we are ſure to be heard, becauſe we are the ſons of God: as we underſtand by the grace of ſanctification, which is proper to the elect.

* *Matt.*21.22. *Ioh.*15.7. and 16.23. *Chap.*5.14.

[22] The concluſion. That faith in Chriſt, and love one towards another, are things joyned together, and therefore the outward teſtimonies of ſanctification muſt, and doe anſwere that inward teſtimonie of the Spirit given unto us.

* *Ioh.*6.23. and 17.3.

* Iohn 13.34. and 15.10.

[ſ] He meaneth the Spirit of ſanctification, whereby we are born a new and live unto God.

Chap. IV.

1 Having ſpoken ſomewhat touching the trying of ſpirits: 4 For ſome ſpeake after the world, 5 and ſome after God: 7 He returneth to charitie, 11. 19 and by the example of God he exhorteth to brotherly love.

Dearely [1] beloved, beleeve not every [a] ſpirit, but trie the ſpirits whether they are of God: for many falſe prophets are gone out into this world.

2 [2] Heereby ſhall ye know the ſpirit of God, [b] Every ſpirit which confeſſeth that [c] Jeſus Chriſt is come in the [d] fleſh, is of God.

3 And every ſpirit that confeſſeth not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, is not of God: but this is the ſpirit of Antichriſt, of whom ye have heard, how that he ſhould come, and now already he is in this world.

4 [3] Little children, ye are of God, and have overcome them, for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in this world.

5 [4] They are of this world, therfore

[1] Taking occaſion left by the name of the Spirit, love and charity ſhould be ſeparated from the worſhip of God, which chiefly dependeth of his true knowledge, he returneth to that which he ſpake of in the ſecond chapter, touching the taking heed of Antichriſts. And he will have us here to take heed of two things, the one is, that ſeeing there be many falſe prophets, we doe not lightly give credit to every man: the other is, that becauſe many men teach falſe things, we ſhould not therefore beleeve any. We muſt then obſerve a meane, that we may be able to diſcerne the Spirit of God which are altogether to be followed, from impure ſpirits which are to be eſchewed.

[a] This is ſpoken by the figure Metonymie, and it is, as if he had ſaid, Beleeve not every one that ſaith, that he hath a gift of the holy Ghoſt to doe the office of a Prophet.

[2] He giveth a certaine and perpetuall rule to know the doctrine of Antichriſt by, to wit, if either the divine or humane nature of Chriſt, or the true uniting of them together be denied: or if the leaſt jot that may be, be derogated from his office who is our onely King, Prophet, and everlaſting high Prieſt.

[b] He ſpeaketh ſimply of the doctrine, and not of the perſon.

[c] The true Meſſias.

[d] Is true man.

[3] He comforteth the elect with a moſt ſure hope of victory: but yet ſo, that he teacheth them that they fight not with their own vertue, but with the vertue and power of God.

[4] He bringeth a reaſon why the world receiveth theſe teachers more willingly then the true: to wit, becauſe they breathe out nothing but that which is worldly: which is another note alſo to know the doctrine of Antichriſt by.

ſpeake they of this world, and this world heareth them.

6 [5] We are of God: * he that knoweth God, heareth us: he that is not of God, heareth us not. Hereby know we the [c] ſpirit of trueth, and the ſpirit of errour.

7 [6] Beloved, let us love one another: [7] for love commeth of God, and every one that loveth, is born of God, and knoweth God.

8 He that loveth not, knoweth not God: [8] for God is [f] love.

9 * Herein was that love of God made manifeſt among us, becauſe God ſent that his onely begotten Son into this world, that we might live through him.

10 Herein is that love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and ſent his Son to be a reconciliation for our ſins.

11 [9] Beloved, if God ſo loved us, we ought alſo to love one another.

12 * [10] No man hath ſeene God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is [g] perfect in us.

13 Hereby know we, that we dwell in him, and he in us: becauſe he hath given us of his Spirit.

14 [11] And we have ſeene, and doe teſtifie, that the Father ſent that Son to be the Saviour of the world.

15 Whoſoever [h] confeſſeth that Jeſus is the Son of God, in him dwelleth God, and he in God.

16 And we have knowen, and beleeved the love that God hath in us. [12] God is love, and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him.

17 [13] Herein is that love perfect in us, that we ſhould have boldneſſe in the day of judgement: for [i] as he is, even ſo are we in this world.

18 There is no [k] feare in love, but perfect love caſteth out feare: for feare hath painfulneſſe: and he that feareth, is not perfect in love.

19 [14] We love him, becauſe he loved us firſt.

20 [15] If any man ſay, I love God, and hate his brother, he is a liar: [16] for how can he that loveth not his brother whom he hath ſeene, love God whom he hath not ſeene?

21 [17] And this commandement have we of him, that he that loveth God, ſhould love his brother alſo.

5 He teſtifieth unto them, that his doctrine, and the doctrine of his fellowes, is the aſſured word of God, which of neceſſity we have boldly to ſet againſt all the mouthes of the whole world, and thereby diſcerne the trueth from falſehood.

* Iohn 8.47.

c True Prophets, againſt whom are ſet falſe prophets, that is, ſuch as erre themſelves, and leade other into errour.

6 He returneth to the commending of brotherly love and charitie.

7 The firſt reaſon: Becauſe it is a very divine thing, & therefore very meete for the ſons of God: ſo that whoſoever is voide of it, can not be ſaid to know God aright.

8 A confirmation: for it is the nature of God to love men, whereof we have a moſt manifeſt proofe above all other, in that, that of his onely free and infinite good will towards us his enemies, he delivered unto death, not a common man, but that his own Son, yea, his onely begotten Son, to the end that we being reconciled through his blood might be made partakers of his everlaſting glory.

f In that he calleth God, Love, he ſaith more then if he had ſayd that he loveth us infinitely.

* Iohn 3.16.

9 An other reaſon by compariſon: if God ſo loved us, ſhall not we his children love one another?

* Iohn 1.18. 1 Tim.6.16.

10 A third reaſon: Becauſe God is inviſible, therefore by this effect of his ſpirit, to wit, by charitie, he is underſtood, yea, and to be not out of us, but joyned with us, and in us, in whom he is ſo effectually working.

g Is ſurely in us in deede, and in trueth.

11 He underlayeth this charitie with another foundation, to wit, faith in Ieſus, which joyned us indeed with him, even as charity witneſſeth that we are joyned with him. Furthermore he teſtifieth of Chriſt, as who had ſeene him with his eyes.

h With ſuch a confeſſion as commeth from true faith, and is accompanied with love, ſo that there be an agreement of all things.

12 A fourth reaſon: God is the fountaine and well ſpring of charity, yea charity it ſelfe, therefore whoſoever abideth in it, hath God with him.

13 Againe (as a little before) he commendeth love, for that, ſeeing that by our agreement with God in this thing, we have a certaine teſtimony of our adoption, it commeth thereby to paſſe, that without feare wee looke for that latter day of judgement, ſo that trembling, and that torment of conſcience is caſt out by this love.

i This ſignifieth a likeneſſe, not an equalitie.

k If we underſtand by love, that we are in God, and God in us, that we are ſons, and that we know God, and that everlaſting life is in us: he concludeth aright, that we may well gather peace and quietneſſe thereby.

14 Leſt any man ſhould thinke that that peace of conſcience proceedeth from our love, as from the cauſe, he goeth backe to the fountaine, to wit, to the free love wherewith God loveth us, although we deſerved and doe deſerve his wrath. And hereof ſpringeth another double charity, which both are tokens and witneſſes of that firſt, to wit, that therewithall we love God who loved us firſt, and then for his ſake our neighbours alſo.

15 As he ſhewed that the love of our neighbour cannot be ſeparate from the love wherewith God loveth us, becauſe this laſt engendreth the other: ſo he denyeth that the other kind of love wherewith we love God, can be ſeparate from the love of our neighbour: whereof it followeth, that they lie impudently, which ſay they worſhip God, and yet regard not their neighbours.

16 The firſt reaſon taken of compariſon, why we cannot hate our neighbour, and love God, to wit, becauſe that he that cannot love his brother, whom he ſeeth: how can he love God whom he ſeeth not?

* Iohn 13.34. and 15.12.

17 A ſecond reaſon, why God cannot be hated, and our neighbour loved, becauſe the ſelfe ſame Law maker commandeth both to love him and our neighbour.

CHAP. V.

1 He ſheweth that brotherly love and faith, are things inſeparable: 10 And that there is no faith towards God, but by beleeving in Chriſt. 14 Hence proceedeth calling upon God with aſſurance, 16 and alſo that our prayers be availeable for our brethren.

WHoſoever [1] beleeveth that Jeſus is that [a] Chriſt, is born of God: and every one that loveth him, which begate, loveth [b] him alſo which is begotten of him:

2 [2] In this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his [c] commandements.

3 [3] For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandements: [4] and * his commandements are not [d] burdenous.

4 [5] For all that is born of God, overcommeth this world: [6] and this is the victory that [e] hath overcome this world, even our [f] faith.

5 * [7] Who is it that overcommeth this world, but he which beleeveth that Ieſus is that Son of God?

6 [8] This is that Jeſus Chriſt that came by water and blood: [9] not by water onely, but by water and blood: and it is that [g] Spirit, that beareth witneſſe: for that Spirit is trueth.

7 For there are three, which beare record in heaven, the Father, the [h] Word, and the holy Ghoſt: and theſe three are [i] one,

8 And there are three, which beare record in the earth, the ſpirit, and the water, and the blood: and theſe three agree in one.

1 He goeth on forward in the ſame argument, ſhewing how both thoſe loves come into us, from that love wherewith God loveth us, to wit, by Ieſus our Mediatour, laid hold on by faith, in whom we are made the children of God, and doe love the Father, of whom we are ſo begotten, and alſo our brethren, which are begotten with us.

a Is the true Meſſias.

b By one he meaneth all the faithfull.

2 The love of our neighbour doth ſo hang upon the love wherewith we love God, that this laſt muſt needes go before the firſt: whereof it followeth, that that is not to be called love, when men agree together to doe evill, neither that, when as in loving our neighbours, we reſpect not Gods commandement.

c There is no love where there is no true doctrine.

3 The reaſon: for to love God, is to keep his commandements, which being ſo, & ſeeing that both the loves are commanded of one & the ſelfe ſame Lawmaker, (as he taught before) it followeth alſo, that we doe not love our neighbours, when we breake Gods commandements.

4 Becauſe experience teacheth us, that there is no abilitie in our fleſh, neither yet will to performe Gods commandements, therefore leſt the Apoſtle ſhould ſeeme, by ſo often putting them in minde of the commandements of God, to require things that are impoſſible, he pronounceth that the commandements of God are not in ſuch ſort grievous or burdenſome, that we can be oppreſſed with the burden of them.

* Matt.11.30.

d To them that be regenerate, that is to ſay, born anew, which are led by the Spirit of God, and are through grace delivered from the curſe of the Law.

5 A reaſon: Becauſe by regeneration we have gotten ſtrength to overcome the world, that is to ſay, whatſoever ſtriveth againſt the commandements of God.

6 He declareth what that ſtrength is, to wit, faith.

e He uſeth the time that is paſt, to give us to underſtand, that although we be in the battell, yet undoubtedly we ſhall be conquerours, and are moſt certaine of the victory.

f Which is the inſtrumentall cauſe, and as a meane and hand whereby we lay hold on him, who indeede doeth performe this, that is, hath and doth overcome the world, even Chriſt Ieſus.

* 1 Cor.15.57.

7 Moreover, he declareth two things, the one, what true faith is, to wit, that which reſteth upon Ieſus Chriſt the Son of God alone: whereupon followeth the other, to wit, that this ſtrength is not proper to faith, but by faith as an inſtrument is drawen from Ieſus Chriſt the Son of God.

8 He proveth the excellencie of Chriſt, in whom onely all things are given us, by ſix witneſſes, three heavenly, and three earthly, which wholly and fully agree together. The heavenly Witneſſes are, the Father, who ſent the Son, the Word it ſelfe, which became fleſh, and the holy Ghoſt. The earthly witneſſes are water, (that is, our ſanctification) blood, (that is, our juſtification) the Spirit, (that is, acknowledging of God the Father in Chriſt by faith through the teſtimony of the holy Ghoſt.)

9 He warneth us not to ſeparate water from blood (that is ſanctification from juſtification, or righteouſneſſe begunne, from righteouſneſſe imputed) for we ſtand not upon ſanctification, but ſo farre foorth as it is a witneſſe of Chriſts righteouſneſſe imputed unto us: and although this imputation of Chriſts righteouſneſſe be never ſeparated from ſanctification, yet is it the only matter of our ſalvation.

g Our ſpirit which is the third witneſſe, teſtifieth that the holy Ghoſt is trueth, that is to ſay, that that is true which he telleth us, to wit, that we are the ſons of God.

h Looke Iohn. 8.14.

i Agree in one.

9 [10]

9 [10] If we receive the witneſſe of men, the witneſſe of God is greater: for [k] this is the witneſſe of God, which he teſtified of his Son.

10 * [11] He that beleeveth in that Son of God, hath the witneſſe in himſelfe: he that beleeveth not God, hath made him a liar, becauſe he beleeved not the record, that God witneſſed of that his Son.

11 [12] And this is that record, towit, that God hath given unto us eternall life, and this life is in that his Son.

12 He that hath that Son, hath that life: and he that hath not that Son of God, hath not that life.

13 [13] Theſe things have I written unto you that beleeve in the Name of that Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternall life, and that ye may beleeve in the Name of that Son of God.

14 [14] And this is that aſſurance that we have in him, * that if we aske any thing according to his will, he heareth us.

15 And if we know that he heareth us, whatſoever we aske, we know that we have the petitions, that we have deſired of him.

16 [15] If any man ſee his brother ſinne a ſin that is not unto death, let him [l] aske, and he ſhall give him life for them that ſin not unto death. * There is a ſin unto death: I ſay not that thou ſhouldeſt pray for it.

17 [16] All unrighteouſneſſe is ſin, but there is a ſin not unto death.

18 [17] We know that whoſoever is born of God, ſinneth not: but he that is begotten of God, keepeth himſelfe, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

19 [18] We know that we are of God, and this whole word lieth in wickedneſſe.

20 But we know that that Son of God is * come, and hath given us a minde to know him, which is true: and we are in him, that is true, that is, in that his Son Ieſus Chriſt: this ſame is that very [m] God and that eternall life.

21 [19] Little children keep your ſelves from idoles, Amen.

10 He ſheweth by an argument of compariſon, of what great weight the heavenly teſtimony is, that the Father hath given of the Son, unto whom agreeth both the Son himſelfe and the holy Ghoſt.

k I conclude thus aright: for that teſtimony which I ſaid is given in heaven, commeth from God, who ſetteth forth his Son.

* Ioh.3.36.

11 He proveth the ſureneſſe of the earthly witneſſes by every mans conſcience, having that teſtimony in it ſelfe, which conſcience, he ſaith, cannot be deceived, becauſe it conſenteth to the heavenly teſtimonie which the Father giveth of the Son: for otherwiſe yͤ Father muſt needes be a lyar, if the conſcience which accordeth and aſſenteth to the Father, ſhould lie.

12 Now at length he ſheweth what this teſtimonie is, that is confirmed with ſo many witneſſes: to wit, that life, or everlaſting felicity is the meere and onely gift of God, which is in the Son, and proceedeth from him unto us, which by faith are joyned wͭ him, ſo that without him, life is no where to be found. 13 The concluſion of the Epiſtle, wherein he ſheweth firſt of all, that even they which already beleeve, doe ſtand in need of this doctrine, to the end that they may grow more and more in faith: that is to ſay, to the end that they may be daily more and more certified of their ſalvation in Chriſt, through faith. 14 Becauſe we doe not yet in effect obtaine that which we hope for, the Apoſtle joyneth invocation or prayer with faith, which he will have to proceed from faith, and moreover to be conceived in ſuch ſort, that nothing be asked but that which is agreable to the will of God: and ſuch prayers cannot be vaine. * Chap.3.22.

15 We are to make prayers not onely for our ſelves, but alſo for our brethren which doe ſin, that their ſins be not unto them, to death: and yet he excepteth that ſin which is never forgiven, or the ſin againſt the holy Ghoſt, that is to ſay, an univerſall and wilfull falling away from the knowen trueth of the Goſpel.

l This is as much as if he ſaid, let him deſire the Lord to forgive him, and he will forgive him being ſo deſired.

* Matt.12.31. Marke 3.29.

16 The taking away of an objection: Indeed all iniquitie is comprehended under the name of ſin: but yet we muſt not deſpaire therefore, becauſe every ſin is not deadly, and without hope of remedy.

17 A reaſon why not all, nay rather why no ſin is mortall to ſome: to wit, becauſe they be born of God, that is to ſay, made the ſons of God in Chriſt, & being indued wͭ his Spirit, they do not ſerve ſin, neither are deadly wounded of Satan. 18 Every man muſt particularly applie to himſelfe the generall promiſes, that we may certainely perſwade our ſelves, that whereas all the world is by nature loſt, we are freely made the ſons of God, by the ſending of Ieſus Chriſt his ſon unto us, of whom we are lightned with the knowledge of the true God and everlaſting life. * Luke 24.45. m The divinitie of Chriſt is moſt plainely proved by this place. 19 He expreſſeth a plaine precept of taking heed of idoles: which he ſetteth againſt the onely true God, that with this ſeale as it were he might ſeale up all the former doctrine.

THE SECOND EPISTLE
OF JOHN.

1 This Epiſtle is written to a woman of great renown, 4 who brought up her children in the feare of God: 6 he exhorteth her to continue in Chriſtian charity, 7 that ſhe accompany not with Antichriſts, 10 but avoid them.

THe Elder to the [a] elect [b] Lady, and her children, [1] whom I love in the trueth, and not I onely, but alſo all that have knowen the trueth,

2 For the trueths ſake which dwelleth in us, and ſhall be with us for ever:

3 Grace be with you, mercie and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt the Son of the Father, with [c] trueth and love.

4 [2] I rejoyced greatly, that I found of thy children walking in [d] trueth, as we have received a commandement of the Father.

5 And now beſeech I thee, Lady, (not as writing a new commandement unto thee, but that ſame which we had from the beginning) that we * love one another.

6 And this is that love, that we ſhould walke after his commandements. This commandement is, that as ye have heard from the beginning, ye ſhould walke in it.

7 [3] For many deceivers are entred into this world, which confeſſe not that Ieſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh. He that is ſuch one, is a deceiver and an Antichriſt.

8 [4] [e] Looke to your ſelves, that we loſe not the things which we have done, but that we may receive a full reward.

9 Whoſoever tranſgreſſeth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Chriſt, hath not God. He that continueth in the doctrine of Chriſt, he hath both the Father and the Son.

10 [5] If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, * receive him not to houſe, a This is no proper name, but to be taken as the word ſoundeth, that is to ſay, to the worthy and noble Lady.

b Excellent and honourable dame.

1 The bond of Chriſtian conjunction, or linking together, is the true and conſtant profeſſion of the trueth.

c With true knowledge which hath alwayes love ioyned with it, and following it.

2 This true profeſſion conſiſteth both in love one towards another, which the Lord hath commanded, and alſo eſpecially in wholſome and ſound doctrine, which alſo is delivered unto us: for the commaundement of God is a ſound and ſure foundation, both of the rule of manners, and of doctrine, and theſe cannot be ſeparated the one from the other. d According as the trueth directeth them.

* Ioh.15.12.

3 Antichriſts, fighting againſt the perſon and office of Chriſt, were already crept into the Church, in the time of the Apoſtles.

4 He that maketh ſhipwracke of doctrine, looſeth all.

e Beware, & take good heed.

5 We ought to have nothing to doe with them that defend perverſe doctrine.

* Rom.16.17.

houſe, neither bid him, God ſpeed:

11 For he that biddeth him, God ſpeed, is partaker of his evill deeds. Although I had many things to write unto you, yet I would not write with paper and ynke: but I truſt to come unto you, and ſpeake mouth to mouth, that our joy may be full.

12 The ſons of thine elect ſiſter greet thee, Amen.

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF JOHN.

1 He commendeth Gajus for hoſpitalitie, 9 and reprehendeth Diotrephes for vaine glory: 10 he exhorteth Gajus to continue in well doing: 12 and in the end commendeth Demetrius.

THe [1] Elder unto the beloved Gajus, whom I love in the trueth.

2 Beloved, I wiſh chiefly that thou proſperedſt and faredſt well as thy ſoule proſpereth.

3 For I rejoyced greatly when the brethren came, and teſtified of the trueth that is in thee, how thou walkeſt in the trueth.

4 I have no greater joy then [a] theſe, that is, to heare that my ſons walke in veritie.

5 Beloved, thou doeſt [b] faithfully, whatſoever thou doeſt to the brethren, and to ſtrangers,

6 Which bare witneſſe of thy love before the Churches. Whom if thou [c] bringeſt on their journey as it beſeemeth, according to God, thou ſhalt doe well,

7 Becauſe that for his Names ſake they went forth, and tooke nothing of the Gentiles.

8 Wee therefore ought to receive ſuch, that we might be [d] helpers to the trueth.

9 [2] I wrote unto the Church: but Diotrephes which loveth to have the preeminence among them, receiveth us not:

10 Wherefore if I come, I will call to your remembrance the deeds which he doth, pratling againſt us with malicious words, and not therewith content, neither he himſelfe receiveth the brethren, but forbiddeth them that would, & thruſteth them out of the Church.

11 Beloved, follow not that which is evill, but that which is good: he that doth well, is of God: but he that doeth evill, hath not [e] ſeene God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the trueth it ſelfe: yea, and we our ſelves beare record, and ye know that our record is true.

13 I have many things to write: but I wil not with ynke and pen write unto thee:

14 For I truſt I ſhall ſhortly ſee thee, and we ſhall ſpeake mouth to mouth. Peace be with thee. The friends ſalute thee. Greet the friends by name.

[1] An example of a Chriſtian gratulation.

[a] Then theſe joyes.

[b] As becommeth a beleever, and a Chriſtian.

[c] He commendeth to Gajus, either thoſe ſelfe ſame men whom he had entertained before, returning now againe to him, about the affaires of the Church, or elſe ſome other which had like buſineſſe.

[d] That we our ſelves may helpe ſomewhat to the preaching of the trueth.

[2] Ambition and covetouſneſſe, two peſtilent plagues (eſpecially in them which have any Eccleſiaſticall function) are condemned in Diotrephes perſon.

[e] Hath not knowen God.

THE GENERALL EPISTLE OF JUDE.

3 He warneth the godly to take heede of ſuch men, 4 that make the grace of God a cloak for their wantonneſſe: 5 and that they ſhall not ſcape unpuniſhed, for the contempt of that grace, 6. 7, he proveth by three examples: 14 and alledgeth the prophecie of Enoch. 20 Finally, he ſheweth the godly a meane, to overthrow all the ſnares of thoſe deceivers.

IVDE a ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, and [a] brother of James, to them which are called and ſanctified [b] of God the Father, and [c] reſerved to Jeſus Chriſt:

2 Mercie unto you, and peace and love be multiplied.

3 [1] Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the [d] common ſalvation, it was needfull for mee to write unto you to exhort you, that ye ſhould [e] earneſtly contend for the maintenance of the faith, which was [f] once given unto the Saints.

4 [2] For there are certaine men crept in, which were before of old ordained to this condemnation: [3] ungodly men they are, which turn the grace of God, into wantonneſſe, and *denie God the onely Lord,

[a] This is put to make a difference betweene him and Iudas Iſcarioth.

[b] By God the Father.

[c] Set apart by the everlaſting counſell of God, to be delivered to Chriſt to be kept.

[1] The end and marke whereat he ſhooteth in this Epiſtle, is that he confirmeth the godly againſt certaine wickedmen, both in wholeſome doctrine and good manners.

[d] Of thoſe things that pertaine to the ſalvation of all of us.

[e] That ye ſhould defend the faith by all the might you can, both by true doctrine and good example of life.

[f] Which was once ſo given, that it may never be changed.

[2] It is by Gods providence and not by chance: that many wicked men creep into the Church,

[3] He condemneth this firſt in them, that they take a pretence or occaſion to waxe wanton, by the grace of God: which cannot be, but the chiefe empire of Chriſt muſt be abrogated, in that ſuch men give up themſelves to Satan, as at this day the ſect of Anabaptiſts doth, which they call Libertines.

* 2 Pet.2.1,

Lord, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

5 [4] I will therefore put you in remembrance, foraſmuch as ye once knew this, how that the Lord, after that he had delivered the people out of Egypt, * deſtroyed them afterward which beleeved not.

6 [5] The * Angels alſo which kept not their firſt eſtate, but left their own habitation, he hath reſerved in everlaſting chaines under darkneſſe unto the judgement of the great day.

7 As * Sodom and Gomorrhe, and the cities about them, which in like manner as they did, [g] committed fornication, and followed [h] ſtrange fleſh, are ſet forth for an enſample, and ſuffer the vengeance of eternall fire.

8 Likewiſe notwithſtanding, theſe [i] ſleepers alſo defile the fleſh, [6] and deſpiſe [k] government, and ſpeake evill of them that are in authority.

9 [7] Yet Michael the Archangel, when he ſtrove againſt the devill, and diſputed about the body of Moſes, durſt not blame him with curſed ſpeaking, but ſaid, The Lord rebuke thee:

10 [8] But theſe ſpeake evill of thoſe things which they know not: and whatſoever things they know naturally, as beaſts, which are without reaſon, in thoſe things they corrupt themſelves.

11 [9] Wo be unto them: for they have followed the way of * Cain, and are caſt away by the deceit * of Balaams wages, and periſh in the gainſaying * of Core.

12 [10] Theſe are rocks in your [l] feaſts of charitie when they feaſt with you, without [m] all feare, feeding themſelves: * clouds they are without water, caried about of winds, corrupt trees, and without fruit, twiſe dead, and plucked up by the roots.

[4] He ſetteth forth the horrible puniſhment of them which have abuſed the grace of God to follow their own luſts.

* Num. 14. 37.

[5] The fall of the Angels was moſt ſeverely puniſhed, how much more then will the Lord puniſh wicked and faithleſſe men?

* 2 Pet. 2. 4.

* Gen. 19. 24.

[g] Following the ſteps of Sodom and Gomorrhe.

[h] Thus he covertly ſetteth forth their horrible and monſtrous luſts.

[i] Which are ſo blockiſh and void of reaſon, as if all their ſenſes and wits were in a moſt dead ſleep.

[6] Another moſt pernicious doctrin of theirs, in that they take away the authoritie of Magiſtrates, and ſpeak evill of them, as at this day the Anabaptiſts do.

[k] It is a greater matter to deſpiſe government then the governours, that is to ſay, the matter it ſelf, then the perſons.

[7] An argument of compariſon: Michael one of the chiefeſt Angels, was content to deliver Satan, although a moſt curſed enemy, to the judgment of God to be puniſhed: and theſe pervers men are not aſhamed to ſpeake evil of the powers which are ordained of God.

[8] The concluſion: Theſe men are in a double fault, to wit both for their raſh folly in condemning ſome, and for their impudent & ſhameleſſe contempt of ỹ knowledge, which when they had gotten, yet notwithſtanding they lived as bruit beaſts, ſerving their bellies.

[9] He foretelleth their deſtruction, becauſe they reſemble or ſhew forth Cains ſhameles malice, Balaams filthy covetouſneſſe, and to be ſhort, Cores ſeditious and ambitious head.

* *Gen.*4.8. * *Num.*22.21. 2 *Pet.*2.15. * *Num.*16.1.

[10] He rebuketh moſt ſharply with many other notes and marks, both their diſhoneſty or filthineſſe, and their ſawcineſſe, but eſpecially, their vain bravery of words and moſt vain pride, joyning therewithal a moſt grave and heavy threatning out of a moſt ancient propheſie of Enoch touching the judgement to come.

[l] The feaſts of charitie were certain banquets, which the brethren which were members of the Church kept altogether, as Tertullian ſetteth them forth in his Apologie, chap.39.

[m] Impudently, without all reverence either to God or man.

* 2 Pet. 2. 17.

13 They are the raging waves of the ſea, foming out their own ſhame: they are wandring ſtarres, to whom is reſerved the [n] blackneſſe of darkneſſe for ever.

14 And Enoch alſo the ſeventh from Adam, propheſied of ſuch, ſaying, * Behold, the Lord [o] cometh with thouſands of his Saints, 15 To give judgement againſt all men, and to rebuke all the ungodly among them of all their wicked deeds, which they have ungodly committed, and of their cruell ſpeakings, which wicked ſinners have ſpoken againſt him.

16 Theſe are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own luſts: * whoſe mouthes ſpeake proud things, having mens perſons in admiration, becauſe of advantage.

17 [11] But, ye beloved, remember the words which were ſpoken before of the Apoſtles of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, 18 How that they told you that there ſhould be mockers * in the laſt time, which ſhould walk after their own ungodly luſts.

19 [12] Theſe are they that ſeparate themſelves from other, naturall, having not the Spirit:

20 But ye beloved, edifie your ſelves in your moſt holy faith, praying in the holy Ghoſt,

21 And keep your ſelves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, unto eternall life:

22 [13] And have compaſſion of ſome, in putting difference:

23 And other ſave with [p] feare, pulling them out of the fire, and hate even that [q] garment which is ſpotted by the fleſh.

24 [14] Now unto him that is able to keep you that ye fal not, and to preſent you faultleſſe, before the preſence of his glory with joy, 25 That is, to God onely wiſe, our Saviour, be glory, and majeſtie, and dominion, and power, both now and for ever, Amen.

[n] Moſt groſſe darkneſſe.

* Revel. 1. 7.

[o] The preſent time, for the time to come.

* Pſal. 17. 10.

[11] The riſing up of ſuch monſters was ſpoken of before, ỹ we ſhould not be troubled at the newnes of the matter.

* 1 Tim. 4. 1.
2 Tim. 3. 1.
2 Pet. 3. 3.

[12] It is the property of Antichriſts to ſeparate themſelves from the godly, becauſe they are not governed by the Spirit of God: and contrariwiſe, it is the property of Chriſtians to edifie one another through godly prayers, both in faith, and alſo in love, untill the mercy of Chriſt appeare to their full ſalvation.

[13] Amongſt them which wander and go aſtray, the godly have to uſe this choiſe, that they handle ſome of them gently, and that otherſome being even in the very flame, they endevour to ſave ỽ ſevere and ſharp inſtruction of the preſent danger: yet ſo, that they do in ſuch ſort abhorre the wicked and diſhoneſt, that they eſchew even the leaſt contagion that may be.

[q] An amplification, taken from the forbidden things of the law which did defile.

[14] He commendeth them to the grace of God, declaring ſufficiently that it is God onely that can give us that conſtancie which he requireth of us.

THE REVELATION OF SAINT JOHN THE APOSTLE AND Evangeliſt, with the Annotations of FRANCIS JUNIUS.

CHAP. I.

1 He declareth what kinde of doctrine is here handled, 8 Even his, that is the beginning and ending: 12 Then the myſterie of the ſeven candleſticks and ſtarres 20 is expounded.

The [1] [a] Revelation of [b] Jeſus Chriſt, which God gave unto him to ſhew unto his ſervants things which muſt ſhortly be done: which he ſent, and ſhewed by his Angel unto his ſervant John,

2 Who bare record of the word of God, and of the Teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt, and of all things that he ſaw.

3 Bleſſed is he that readeth, and they that heare the words of this propheſie, and keep thoſe things which are written therein: for the time is at hand.

4 [2] John to the ſeven Churches which are in Aſia: Grace be with you, and peace [3] from him, [c] Which * is, and which was, and which is to come, and from [4] the [d] ſeven Spirits which are before his Throne,

5 And from Jeſus Chriſt, [5] which is that * faithfull witneſſe, and * that firſt begotten of the dead, and that Prince of the kings of the earth, unto him that loved us, and waſhed us from our ſinnes in his * blood,

6 And made us * kings and Prieſts unto God even his Father, to him, I ſay, be glory and dominion for evermore, Amen.

7 Behold, he cometh with * clouds, and every [e] eye ſhall ſee him: yea, even they which pierced him thorow: and all kinreds of the earth ſhall waile before him. Even ſo, Amen.

8 [6] I * am [f] Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, ſaith the Lord, Which is, and which was, and which is to come, even the Almighty.

9 [7] I John, even your brother and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdome and patience of Jeſus Chriſt, was in the Iſle [g] called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the witneſſing of Jeſus Chriſt:

10 And I was raviſhed in [h] ſpirit on the [i] Lords day, and heard behinde me a great voyce, as it had been of a trumpet,

11 Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, that firſt and that laſt: and that which thou ſeeſt, write in a book, and ſend it unto the ſeven

[1] This chapter hath two principal parts, the title or inſcription which ſtandeth in ſtead of an exordium: and a narration going before the whole propheſie of this book. The inſcription is double, generall and particular. The generall containeth the kind of propheſie, the authour, end, matter, inſtrumēts, and manner of communicating the ſame, in the firſt verſe: the moſt religious faithfulneſſe of the Apoſtle as a publick witneſſe, verſe 2. And the uſe of communicating the ſame taken from the promiſe of God, and from the circumſtance of the time, verſ. 3.

[a] An opening of a hid and ſecret thing.

[b] Which the Son opened to us out of his Fathers boſome by Angels.

[2] This is the particular or ſingular inſcription, wherein ſalvation is written unto certain Churches by name, which repreſent the Church Catholick: and the certaintie and truth of the ſame is declared, from the Authour thereof. unto the eight verſe.

[3] That is, from God the Father, eternall, immortall, immutable: whoſe unchangeableneſſe, Saint John declareth by a form of ſpeech which is undeclined. For there is no incongruitie in this place, where, of neceſſity the words muſt be attempted unto the myſteries, and not the myſteries corrupted or impaired by the words.

[c] By theſe three times, Is, Was, and ſhall be, is ſignified this word Iehovah, which is the proper name of God. * Exod. 3. 14.

[4] That is, from the holy Ghoſt which proceedeth from the Father and the Sonne. This Spirit is one in perſon according to his ſubſtance: but in communication of his vertue, and in demonſtration of his divine works in thoſe ſeven Churches, doth ſo perfectly manifeſt himſelf, as if there were ſo many ſpirits, every one perfectly working in his own Church. Wherefore after, Chapter 5. 6. they are called the ſeven horns and ſeven eyes of the Lambe, as much to ſay, as his moſt abſolute power and wiſedome: and Chapter 3. 1. Chriſt is ſaid to have thoſe ſeven Spirits of God, and Chapter 4. 5. it is ſaid, that ſeven lampes do burn before his throne, which alſo are thoſe ſeven Spirits of God. That this place ought to be ſo underſtood, it is thus proved. For firſt, grace and peace is asked by prayer of this Spirit, which is a divine work, and an action incommunicable in reſpect of the moſt high Deitie. Secondly, he is placed between the Father and the Sonne, as ſet in the ſame degree of dignitie and operation with them, beſides, he is before the throne, as of the ſame ſubſtance with the Father and the Sonne: as the ſeven eyes and the ſeven horns of the Lambe, Moreover, theſe Spirits are never ſaid to adore God, as all other things are. Finally, that is the power whereby the Lambe openeth the book, and looſed the ſeven ſeales thereof, when none could be found amongſt all creatures by whom the book might be opened, Chap. 5. Of theſe things long ago Maſter Iohn Luide of Oxford wrote learnedly unto me. Now the holy Ghoſt is ſet in order of words before Chriſt, becauſe there was in that which followeth a long proceſſe of ſpeach to be uſed concerning Chriſt.

[d] Theſe are the ſeven Spirits, which are afterward, chap. 5. verſe 6. called the horns and eyes of the Lambe, and are now made as a guard waiting upon God.

[5] A moſt ample & grave commendation of Chriſt, firſt, frō his offices, the Prieſthood and kingdom: ſecondly, from his benefits, as his love toward us, and waſhing us with his blood, in this verſ. and communication of his kingdome, and Prieſthood with us: thirdly, from his eternall glory and power, which is alwayes to be celebrated of us, verſ. 6 Finally, from the accompliſhment of all things once to be effected by him, at his ſecond coming, what time he ſhall openly deſtroy the wicked, and ſhall comfort the godly in the truth, verſe 7.

[e] All men.

[6] A confirmation of the ſalutation aforegoing, taken from the words of God himſelf: in which he avoucheth his operation in every ſingular creature, the immutable eternitie that is in himſelf, and his omnipotencie in all things: and concludeth in the unitie of his own eſſence, that Trinity of perſon which was before ſpoken of.

* Chap. 21. 6. and 22. 13.

[f] I am he before whom there is nothing, yea, by whom every thing that is made, was made, and ſhall remain though all they ſhould periſh.

[7] The narration, opening the way to the declaring of the authority and calling of Saint Iohn the Evangeliſt in this ſingular Revelation, and to procure faith and credit unto this propheſie. This is the ſecond part of this Chapter, conſiſting of a propoſition, and an expoſition, The propoſition ſheweth, firſt who was called unto this Revelation, in what place, and how occupied, verſe 9. Then at what time, and by what meanes, namely, by the Spirit, and the word, and that on the Lords day, which day ever ſince the reſurrection of Chriſt, was conſecrated for Chriſtians unto the religion of the Sabbath: that is to ſay, to be a day of reſt, verſe 10. Thirdly, who is the authour that calleth him, and what is the ſum of his calling.

[h] This is that holy raviſhment expreſſed, wherewith the Prophets were raviſhed, and being as it were caried out of the world, were converſant with God: and ſo Ezekiel ſaith often, that he was caried from place to place of the Lords Spirit, and that the Spirit of the Lord fell upon him.

[i] He calleth it the Lords day, which Paul calleth the firſt day of the week. 1 Cor. 16. 2.

Churches, which are in Aſia, unto Epheſus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamus, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea.

12 [8] Then I turned back to [k] ſee the voyce that ſpake with me: [9] and when I was turned, I ſaw ſeven golden candleſticks.

13 And in the mids of the ſeven candleſticks one like unto the Sonne of man, clothed with a garment down to the feet, and girded about the paps with a golden girdle:

14 His head, and haires were white as white wooll, and as ſnow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire,

15 And his feet like fine braſſe, burning as in a furnace: and his voyce as the ſound of many waters:

16 And he had in his right hand ſeven ſtars: and out of his mouth went a ſharp two edged ſword: and his face ſhone as the Sun ſhineth in his ſtrength.

17 [10] And when I ſaw him, I fell at his feet as dead: [11] then he laid his right hand upon me, ſaying unto me, Feare not: [12] I am the * firſt and the laſt, 18 And am alive, but I was dead: and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen: and I have the keyes of hell and of death.

19 [13] Write the things which thou haſt ſeen, and the things which are, and the things which ſhall come hereafter.

20 [14] The myſterie of the ſeven ſtarres which thou ſaweſt in my right hand, and the ſeven golden candleſticks, is this, The ſeven ſtarres are the [l] Angels of the ſeven Churches: and the ſeven candleſticks which thou ſaweſt, are the ſeven Churches.

[8] The expoſition declaring the third and laſt point of the propoſition (for the other points are evident of thẽſelves) wherein is ſpoken, firſt, of the Authour of his calling, unto the 17. verſe, ſecondly, of the calling it ſelf, unto the end of the chapter. And firſt of all the occaſion is noted in this verſe, in that Saint John turned himſelf towards the viſion: after is ſet down the deſcription of the Author, in the verſes following, 13, 14, 15, 16.

[k] To ſee him whoſe voice I had heard.

[9] The deſcription of the Author, which is Chriſt: by the candleſticks ÿ ſtand about him, that is, the Churches that ſtand before him, and depend upon his direction in this verſe: by his properties, that he is one furniſhed ŵ wiſdome and dexterity to the atchivings of great things, verſe 13. ŵ ancient gravity & moſt excellent ſight of the eye, verſe 14. with ſtrength invincible, and with a mighty word, verſe 15. By his operations that he ruleth the miniſtery of his ſervants in the Church, giveth effect thereunto by the ſword of his word, and enlightening al things by his countenance, doth moſt mightily provide for every one by his divine providence, verſe 16.

[10] A religious feare that goeth before the calling of the Saints, and their full confirmation to take upon them the vocation of God. [11] A divine confirmation of this calling, partly by ſignes, and partly by word of power. [12] A moſt elegant deſcription of this calling contained in three things, which are neceſſary unto a juſt vocation: Firſt, the authority of him that calleth, for that he is the beginning and end of all things, in this verſe, for that he is eternall and omnipotent, verſe 18. Secondly, the ſum of this Propheticall calling and revelation, verſe 19. Laſtly, a declaration of thoſe perſons unto whom this propheſie is by the commandment of God, directed in the deſcription thereof, verſe 20. * Eſai. 41. 4. [13] The ſum of this propheſie, that the Apoſtle muſt write whatſoever he ſhould ſee, adding nothing, nor taking away any thing, verſe 2. Hereof there are two parts: one is a narration of thoſe things which are, that is, which then were at that time, contained in the ſecond and third chapter: the other part is of thoſe things which were to come, contained in the reſt of this booke. [14] That is, the thing which was myſticall, ſignified by the particulars of the viſion before going. [l] By Angels he meaneth the Miniſters of the Church.

Chap. II.

1 Iohn is commanded to write thoſe things which the Lord knew neceſſary to the Churches of Epheſus, 8 of the Smyrnians, 12 of Pergamus, 18 and of Thyatira, 25 that they keep thoſe things which they received of the Apoſtles.

Unto [1] the Angel of the Church of Epheſus write, [2] Theſe things ſaith he that holdeth the ſeven ſtarres in his right hand, and walketh in the mids of the ſeven golden candleſticks,

2 [3] I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canſt not beare with them which are evill, and haſt examined them which ſay they are Apoſtles, and are not, and haſt found them liars.

3 And thou waſt burdened, and haſt patience, and for my names ſake haſt laboured, and haſt not fainted.

4 Neverthelesse, I have ſomewhat [a] againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt left thy firſt love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the firſt works: or elſe I wil come againſt thee ſhortly, and will remove thy candleſtick out of his place, except thou amend.

6 But this thou haſt, that thou hateſt the works of the Nicolaitanes, which I alſo hate.

7 [4] Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit ſaith unto the Churches: To him that overcometh, will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in [5] the mids of the [b] Paradiſe of God.

8 ¶ [6] And unto the Angel of the Church of the [c] Smyrnians, write, Theſe things ſaith he that is firſt, and laſt, which was dead and is alive,

9 [7] I know thy works and tribulation, and poverty (but thou art rich) and I know the blaſphemy of them, which ſay they are Jewes, and are not, but are the ſynagogue of Satan.

10 Feare none of thoſe things, which thou ſhalt ſuffer: behold, it ſhall come to paſſe, that the devill ſhall caſt ſome of you into priſon, that ye may be tryed, and ye ſhall have [8] tribulation ten dayes: be thou faithfull unto the death, and I will give thee the crown of life.

11 [9] Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit ſaith to the Churches. He that overcometh, ſhall not be hurt [10] of the ſecond death.

12 [11] And to the Angel of the Church, which is at [d] Pergamus write, This ſaith he which hath that ſharpe ſword with two edges, 13 [12] I know thy works, and where thou dwelleſt, even where Satans throne is, and thou keepeſt my Name, and haſt not denyed my faith, even in [e] thoſe dayes when Antipas my faithfull martyr was ſlain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

[1] The former part of this booke is compriſed in a narration of thoſe things which thẽ were, as S. John taught us, chap. 1. 19. it belongeth wholly unto inſtruction, and in theſe two next chapters, containeth ſeven places, according to the number and condition of thoſe Churches which were named before, chap. 1. 11. figured verſe 12, and diſtributed moſt aptly into their paſtors and flocks, verſe 20. which verſe of that chapter is as it were a paſſage unto the firſt part. Every one of theſe ſeven places hath three principall members: an Exordium taken from the perſon of the authour: a propoſition, in which is praiſe and commendation of that which is good, reprehenſion of that which is evill: and inſtruction, containing either an exhortation alone, or withall a diſwaſion oppoſite unto it, and a concluſion ſtirring up unto attention, by divine promiſes. And this firſt place is unto the Paſtors of the Church of Epheſus. [2] The Exordium, wherein are contained the ſpeciall praiſes of Chriſt Ieſus the authour of this prophecie, out of the 6. and 13. verſes of the firſt chapter.

[3] The propoſition firſt commending the Paſtour of this Church, verſe 2, 3. then reproving him, verſe 4. after informing him, & withall, threatning that he will tranſlate the Church to another place, ver. 5. This commination, or threat, Chriſt mitigateth by a kinde of correction, calling to minde the particular vertue and piety of that Church, which God never leaveth without recompenſe, verſe 6. Concerning the Nicolaitanes, ſee after upon the 15. verſe.

[a] To deale with thee for.

[4] The concluſion containing a commandment of attention, and a promiſe of everlaſting life, ſhadowed out in a figure, of which Gen. 2. 9.

[5] That is, in Paradiſe after the manner of the Hebrew phraſe.

[b] This Chriſt ſpeaketh as he is Mediatour.

[6] The ſecond place is unto the Paſtors of the Church of the Smyrnians. The Exordium is taken out of the 17. and 18. verſes of the firſt chapter.

[7] The propoſition of praiſe is in this verſe, and of exhortation joyned with promiſe, is in the next verſe.

[8] That is, of ten yeares. For ſo commonly both in this book, and in Daniel, yeares are ſignified by the name of dayes that God thereby might declare, that the ſpace of time is appointed by him, and the ſame very ſhort. Now becauſe Saint John wrote this booke in the end of Domitian ÿ Emperour his reigne, as Juſtinus and Ireneus doe witneſſe, it is altogether neceſſary that this ſhould be referred unto that perſecution which was done by the authority of the Emperour Trajan: who began to make havock of the Chriſtian Churches in the tenth yeare of his reigne, as the Hiſtoriographers do write: and his bloody perſecutiõ continued untill Adrian the Emperour had ſucceeded in his place: The ſpace of which time is preciſely ten yeares, which are here mentioned.

[9] The concluſion, verſe 7. [10] See chap 20. 6. [11] The third place is unto the Paſtours of Pergamus. The Exordium is taken out of the 16. verſe of the firſt chapter. [d] Pergamus was the name of a famous city in old time in Aſia, where the kings of the Attalians were alwayes reſident. [12] The propoſition of praiſe, is in this verſe, of reprehenſion in the two following, and of exhortation joyned with a conditionall threat, verſe 16. Now this Antipas was the Angel or miniſter of the Church of Pergamus, as Aretas writeth. [e] The faith of them of Pergamus is ſo much the more highly commended, becauſe they remained conſtant even in the very heate of perſecution. * Num. 24. 14. and 25. 1.

14 But I have a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt there them that maintain the doctrine of * Balaam, which taught Balac to put a ſtumbling block before the children of Iſrael, that they ſhould [f] eat of things ſacrificed unto Idoles, and commit fornication,

15 Even ſo haſt thou them, that maintain the doctrine of the [13] Nicholaitanes, which thing I hate, 16 Repent thy ſelf, or elſe I will come unto thee ſhortly, and wil fight againſt thee with the ſword of my mouth.

17 [14] Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit ſaith unto the Churches. To him that overcommeth, will I give to eat [15] of the [g] Manna that is hid, and will give him a [h] [16] white ſtone, and in the ſtone, a new [17] name written, which no man knoweth ſaving he that receiveth it.

18 ¶ And unto [18] the Angel of the Church which is at Thyatira write, Theſe things ſaith the Son of God, which hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet like fine braſſe.

19 I know [19] thy works, and thy love, and [i] ſervice, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works, and that they are moe at the laſt, then at the firſt.

20 Notwithſtanding, I have a few things againſt thee, that thou ſuffereſt the woman Jezabel, which calleth her ſelf a propheteſſe, to teach and to deceive my ſervants, to make them commit [k] fornication, and to eat meat ſacrificed unto idoles.

21 And I gave her ſpace to repent of her fornication, but ſhe repented not.

22 Behold, I will caſt her into a bed, and them that commit fornication with her, into great affliction, except they repent them of their works.

23 And I wil kil her children with death, and all the Churches ſhall know that I am he which * ſearch the reines and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according unto your works.

24 And unto you I ſay, the reſt of them of Thyatira, As many as have not this learning, neither have knowen the [l] deepneſſe of Satan (as they ſpeak) I will [m] put upon you none other burden,

25 But that which ye have already: hold faſt till I come:

26 [20] For he that overcommeth and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give [21] power over nations,

27 * And he ſhall rule them with a rod of yron: and as the veſſels of a potter, ſhall they be broken.

28 Even as I received of my Father, ſo will I give him the [22] morning ſtar.

29 Let him that hath an eare, hear what the Spirit ſaith to the Churches.

CHAP. III.

1 The fift Epiſtle ſent to the Paſtours of the Church of Sardis, 7 of Philadelphia, 14 and of the Laodiceans, 16 that they be not luke-warme, 20 But endevour to further Gods glory.

AND [1] write unto the Angel of the Church which is at [a] Sardis, Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſeven Spirits of God, and the ſeven ſtars, [2] I know thy works: for thou haſt a [b] name that thou liveſt, but thou art dead.

2 Be awake, and ſtrengthen the things which remaine, that are [c] readie to die: for I have not found thy works perfect before God.

3 Remember therefore, how thou haſt received and heard, and hold faſt and repent. * If therefore thou wilt not watch, I will come on thee as a thiefe, and thou ſhalt not know what houre I will come upon thee.

4 Notwithſtanding thou haſt a few names yet in Sardis, [3] which have not defiled their garments: and they ſhall walke with me in [4] white: [5] for they are [d] worthy.

5 He that overcommeth ſhal be cloathed in white aray, and I will not put out his name out of the * book of life, but I will confeſſe his name before my Father, and before his Angels.

6 Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit ſaith unto the Churches.

7 ¶ [6] And write unto the Angel of the Church, which is of Philadelphia, Theſe things ſaith he that is Holy and True, which hath the [e] key of David, which openeth, and no man ſhutteth, and ſhutteth, and no man openeth.

8 [7] I know thy works: behold I have ſet before thee an open doore, and no man can ſhut it: for thou haſt a little ſtrength, and haſt kept my word, and haſt not denyed my Name.

9 Behold, I will make them [f] of the Synagogue of Satan, which call themſelves Jews, and are not, but do lie: behold, I ſay, I will make them that they ſhall come [8] and worſhip before thy feet, and ſhall know that I have loved thee.

10 Becauſe thou haſt [g] kept the word of my patience, therefore I wil deliver thee from the houre of tentation, which will [14] The concluſion, ſtanding of exhortation as before, and of promiſe.

[15] The bread of life, inviſible, ſpirituall, & heavenly, which is kept ſecretly with God, from before all eternitie.

[18] The fourth place is unto the Paſtors of Thyatira. The Exordium is taken out of the fourteenth & fifteenth verſes of the firſt Chapter.

[19] The propoſition of praiſe is in this verſe of reprehenſion, for ẏ they tolerated ẇ them the doctrine of unrighteouſneſſe and ungodlineſſe, is verſe 20. the authors whereof, though they were called back of God, yet repented not, verſe 21. whereunto is added a moſt heavy threatning, verſe 22. and 23. of a conditionall promiſe, and of exhortation to hold faſt the trueth, in the two verſes following.

[20] The concluſion, wherein Chriſt allureth unto his ſervants the communion of his kingdome and glory in this verſe, and that following: and commandeth an holy attention in the laſt verſe.

[21] That is, I will make him a king, by communion with me, and my fellow heire, as it is promiſed, Matth. 19.28. & 25.34. Rom. 8.17. & 1 Cor. 6.3. Epheſ.2.6. and 2 Tim.2.12. and Apoc.3.21. and 4.4.

[a] Sardis is the name of a moſt flouriſhing and famous citie, where the kings of Lydia kept their courts.

[2] The propoſition of the proofe is in this verſe: of exhortation joyned with a threatning in the two verſes that follow, and of qualification by way of correction, unto the comfort of the good which yet remained there verſe 4.

[b] Thou art ſaid to live, but art dead indeed.

[5] The concluſion ſtanding upon a promiſe & a commandement, as before.

[7] The propoſition of praiſe is in this verſe: of promiſes, to bring home again them that wander, verſe 9. and to preſerve the godly, verſe 10. and of exhortation, verſe 11.

[f] I will bring them to that caſe.

[8] That is, fall down and worſhip, either thee civilly, or Chriſt religiouſly at thy feet (and thus I had rather take it) whether here in the Church (which ſeemeth more proper to the argument of this place) or there in the world to come. For Chriſt verely ſhall fulfill his word.

11 Behold, I come ſhortly : hold that which thou haſt that no man take thy crown.

12 [9] Him that overcommeth, wil I make a pillar in the Temple of my God, and he ſhall go no more out: [10] and I will write upon him the Name of my God, and the name of the citie of my God, which is, the new Hieruſalem, which commeth down out of heaven from my God, and I will write upon him my new Name.

13 Let him that hath an eare, hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the Churches.

14 [11] And unto the Angel of the Church of the Laodiceans write, Theſe things ſaith [h] Amen, the faithfull and true witneſſe, that [i] beginning of the creatures of God.

15 [12] I know thy workes, that thou art neither cold nor hote: I would thou wereſt cold or hote.

16 Therefore, becauſe thou art luke warm, and neither cold nor hote, it will come to paſſe, that I ſhal ſpue thee out of my mouth.

17 For thou ſayeſt, I am rich and increaſed with goods, and have need of nothing, and knoweſt not how thou art wretched and miſerable, [13] and poore and blind, and naked.

18 I counſell thee to buy of me gold tryed by the fire, that thou mayeſt be made rich: and white rayment that thou mayeſt be clothed, and that thy filthy nakedneſſe do not appeare : and annoint thine eyes with eye ſalve, that thou mayeſt ſee.

20 Behold, I ſtand at the doore, and knock, [14] If any man heare my voice, and open the doore, I will come in unto him, and will ſup with him, and he with me.

21 [15] To him that overcommeth, will I graunt to ſit with me in my throne, even as I overcame, and ſit with my Father in his throne.

22 Let him that hath an eare, hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the Churches.

CHAP. IV.

1 Another viſion containing the glory of Gods Majeſtie: 8 which is magnified of the four beaſts, 10 and the foure and twentie Elders.

AFter [1] this I looked, and beholde a doore was open in heaven, and the firſt voice which I heard, was as it were of a trumpet talking with me, ſaying, Come up hither, and I will ſhew thee things which muſt be done hereafter.

2 And [2] immediatly I was raviſhed [a] in the ſpirit, [3] and behold, a throne was ſet in heaven, and one ſate upon the throne.

3 [4] And he that ſate, was to looke upon, like unto a Jaſper ſtone, and a Sardine, and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in ſight like to an emeraud.

4 [5] And round about the throne were four and twentie ſeats, and upon the ſeats I ſaw foure and twentie Elders ſitting, cloathed in white raiment, and had on their heads crowns of gold.

5 [6] And out of the throne proceeded lightnings, and thundrings, and voices, and there were ſeven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the ſeven Spirits of God.

6 [7] And before the throne there was a ſea of glaſſe like unto cryſtall : and in the mids of the throne, and round about the throne were four beaſts, full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the firſt beaſt was like a lion, and the ſecond beaſt like a calfe, and the third beaſt had a face as a man, and the fourth beaſt was like a flying eagle.

8 And the [b] four beaſts had each one of them ſix wings about him, and they were full of eyes within, and they ceaſed not [8] day nor night, ſaying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God almighty, Which was, and Which is, and Which is to come.

9 And when thoſe beaſts [c] gave glory, and honour, and thanks to him that ſate on the throne, which liveth for ever and ever,

10 [9] The foure and twenty Elders fell down before him that ſate on the throne, and worſhipped him that liveth for evermore, and caſt their crowns before the throne, ſaying,

11 [10] Thou art * worthy, O Lord, to [11] receive glory, and honour, and power : for thou haſt created all things, and for thy wils ſake they are, and have been created.

CHAP. V.

1 The booke ſealed with ſeven ſeales, 3 which none could open, 6 That Lambe of God 9 is thought worthy to open, 12 even by the conſent of all the company of heaven.

---

[9] The concluſion which containeth a promiſe and a commandement.

[10] That is, the new man ſhall be termed after his father, mother, and head, Chriſt.

[11] The ſeventh place is unto the Paſtours of the Church of Laodicea. The exordium is taken out of the 15 verſe of the firſt chapter.

[h] Amen, ſoundeth as much in the Hebrew tongue, as Truely, or Trueth it ſelf.

[i] Of whom all things that are made, have their beginning.

[12] The propoſition of reproofe is in this verſe, whereunto is adjoyned a threatning, verſe 16. with a confirmation declaring the ſame, verſe 17. and of exhortation unto faith and repentance, verſe 18. 19. whereunto is adjoined a conditionall promiſe, verſe 20.

[13] The ſpirituall miſery of men is metaphorically expreſſed in three points: unto which are matched, as correſpondent, thoſe remedies which are offered, verſe 18.

* Prov.3.12. Hebr.12.5.

[k] Zeal is ſet againſt them which are neither hote nor cold.

[14] This muſt be taken after the manner of an allegorie; as John 14.23.

[15] The concluſion conſiſting of a promiſe, as chap. 2. verſe 26. and of an exhortation. Hitherto hath been the firſt part of the booke of the Apocalypſe.

[1] Hereafter followeth the ſecond part of this book, altogether prophetical, foretelling thoſe things which were to come, as was ſaid before, chap.1.19. This is divided into two hiſtories : one common unto the whole world, unto the 9 chapter : and another ſingular of the Church of God, thence unto the 22 chap. and theſe hiſtories are ſaid to be deſcribed in ſeverall bookes, Chap.5.1. and 10.2. Now this firſt verſe, is as it were a paſſage from the former part unto the ſecond : where it is ſaid, that the heaven was opened, that is, that heavenly things were unlocked, and that a voyce of a trumpet ſounded in heaven, to ſtirre up the Apoſtle, and call him to the underſtanding of things to come. The firſt hiſtorie hath two parts : one of the cauſes of things done, and of this whole Revelation, in this and the next Chapter. Another of the Acts done in the next foure chapters. The principall cauſes according to the diſtinction of perſons in the unitie of the divine eſſence, & according to the œconomie or diſpenſation thereof, are two : One the beginning, which none ſhall approach unto, that is, God the Father, of whom is ſpoken in this chapter. The other, the Son, who is the mean cauſe, eaſie to be approched unto, in reſpect that he is God and man in one perſon, of whom, Chap.5.

[2] The manner of Revelation, as before, 1.10.

[3] A deſcription of God the Father, & of his glory in the heavens, framed unto the manner of men by his office, nature, company, attending, effect, inſtruments, & events, that follow afterwards. In this verſe he is preſented in office a Judge, as Abraham ſaid, Gen.18. which is declared by his throne, as an enſigne of judgement, and his ſitting thereupon.

[4] By his nature, in that he is the Father, moſt glorious in his own perſon, and with his glory overſhining all other things.

[5] By the company attending about him, in that, as that moſt high Judge, he is accompanied with the moſt honorable attendance of Prophets and Apoſtles both of the old & new Church, whome Chriſt hath made to be Prieſts and Kings, Chap.1.6. and 5.10.

[6] By effects, in that moſt mightily he ſpeaketh all things by his voice, and word, as Pſal.29.3. and with the light of his ſpirit and prudence peruſeth & paſſeth through all.

[7] By inſtruments uſed, in that he both hath a moſt ready treaſury, and as it were a workhouſe excellently furniſhed withall things, unto the executing of his will, which things flow from his commandement, as is repeated, Chap.15.2. and hath alſo the Angels moſt ready adminiſters of his counſels and pleaſure, unto all parts of the world, continually watching (in this verſe) working by reaſon otherwiſe then the inſtruments without life laſt mentioned, couragious as lions, mighty as buls, wiſe as men, ſwift as egles, verſe 7. moſt apt unto all purpoſes, as furniſhed with wings on every part, moſt piercing of ſight, and finally, pure and holy ſpirits alwayes in continuall motion, verſe 8.

[b] Every beaſt had ſix wings.

[8] By events, in that for all the cauſes before mentioned, God is glorified both of Angels, as holy, Judge, omnipotent, eternall, and immutable, verſe 8. and alſo after their example he is glorified of holy men, verſe 9. in ſigne and in ſpeach, verſe 10.11.

[c] God is ſaid to have glory, honour, kingdome, and ſuch like, given unto him, when we godly and reverently ſet forth that which is properly and only his.

[9] Three ſignes of divine honor given unto God, proſtration or falling down, adoration and caſting their crowns before God: in which the godly, though made kings by Chriſt, do willingly empty themſelves of all glory, moved with a religious reſpect of the majeſtie of God.

[10] The ſumme of their ſpeach : that all glory muſt be given unto God : the reaſon, becauſe he is the eternall beginning of all things, from whoſe onely will they have their being, and are governed : and finally, in all reſpect are that which they are.

* Chap.5.12.

[11] That is, that thou ſhouldeſt challenge the ſame to thy ſelfe alone. But as for us we are unworthy, that even by thy goodneſſe we ſhould be made partakers of this glorie. And hitherto hath been handled the principall cauſe unapproachable which is God.

ANd [1] I ſaw in the [2] right hand of him that ſate upon the throne, [3] a booke written within, and on the backſide ſealed with ſeven ſeales.

2 And I ſaw a ſtrong Angel which preached with a lowd voyce, Who is worthy to open the booke, and to looſe the ſeales thereof?

3 [4] And no man in heaven nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

4 Then I wept much, becauſe no man was found worthy to open, and to read the book, neither to looke thereon.

5 [5] And one of the Elders ſaid unto me, Weep not: behold, that *[6] Lion which is of the tribe of Juda, that root of David, hath obtained to open the booke, and to looſe the ſeven ſeales thereof.

6 Then I beheld, and loe, [7] in the mids of the throne, and of the four beaſts, and in the mids of the Elders ſtood a Lambe, as though he had been killed, which had ſeven hornes and ſeven eyes, which are the ſeven Spirits of God, ſent into all the world.

7 [8] And he came, and took the book out of the right hand of him that ſate upon the throne.

8 [9] And when he had taken the book, the four beaſts, and the four and twenty Elders fell down before the Lambe, having every one [10] harps and golden vials ful of odours, which are the [a] prayers of the Saints,

9 And they ſung a [b] new [11] ſong, ſaying, [12] Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the ſeales thereof, becauſe thou waſt killed, and haſt redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kinred, and tongue, and people, and nation.

10 And haſt made us unto our God, * Kings, and Prieſts, and we ſhall reigne on the earth.

11 [13] Then I beheld, and I heard the voice of many Angels round about the throne, and about the beaſts and the Elders, [14] and there were * [c] ten thouſand times ten thouſand, and thouſands of thouſands, 12 Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lambe that was killed, to [d] receive power, and riches, and wiſedom, and ſtrength, and honour, and glory, and prayſe.

13 [15] And all the creatures which are in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and in the ſea, and al that are in them, heard I, ſaying, Praiſe, and honour, and glory, and power be unto him that ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lambe for evermore.

14 [16] And the four beaſts ſaid, Amen: and the four and twentie Elders fell down, and worſhipped him that liveth for evermore.

CHAP. VI.

1 The Lambe openeth the firſt ſeale of the book, 3 the ſecond, 5 the third, 7 the fourth, 9 The fifth, 12 and the ſixth, and then ariſe murthers, famine, peſtilence, outcries of Saints, earthquakes, and divers ſtrange ſights in heaven.

AFter, [1] I beheld when the Lambe had opened one of the ſeales, and I heard one of the four beaſts ſay, as it were the noiſe of thunder, Come and ſee.

2 Therefore [2] I beheld, and loe, there was a white horſe, and he that ſate on him had a bow, and a crown was given unto him, and he went forth conquering that he might overcome.

3 And [3] when he had opened the ſecond ſeale, I heard the ſecond beaſt ſay, Come and ſee.

4 And there went out another horſe, that was red, and power was given to him that ſate thereon, to take peace from the earth, and that they ſhould kil one another, and there was given unto him a great ſword.

5 [4] And when he had opened the third ſeale, I heard the third beaſt ſay, Come and ſee. Then I beheld, and loe, a black horſe, and he that ſate on him had balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the middes of the foure beaſts ſay, A [a] meaſure of wheat for a peny, and three meaſures of barley for a peny, [5] and oyle, and wine hurt thou not.

7 [6] And when he had opened the fourth

[1] A paſſing unto the ſecond principall cauſe, which is the Son of God, God and man, the mediatour of all, as the eternall word of God the Father, manifeſted in the fleſh. This Chapter hath two parts: one that prepareth the way unto the Revelation, by rehearſall of the occaſions that did occurre in the firſt 4 verſes. Another, the hiſtory of the Revelation of Chriſt, thence unto the end of the Chapter.

[2] That is, in the very right hand of God.

[3] Heer are ſhewed the occaſions for which the principall cauſe, and this Revelation was alſo neceſſarie: the ſame are three, the firſt a preſent viſion of the book of the counſels of God, concerning the government of this whole world, which book is ſaid to be laid up with the Father as it were in his hand: but ſhut & unknowen to all creatures, in this verſe. The ſecond is a religious deſire of the Angels of God to underſtand the myſteries of this book, verſe 2. whereof ſee 1 Pet.1.12. The third is a lamentation of S. John and all the godly, moved by the ſame deſire, verſe 4. when they ſaw that it was a thing unpoſſible for any creature to effect: which is declared in verſ.3.

[4] Thus neither of them that are in heaven, nor of them which are in the earth, &c. And this I like better. Now this enumeration of parts is ſufficient to the denying of the whole: For of the creatures, one ſort is in heaven, above the earth: another in the earth, and another under the earth in the ſea, as is afterward declared, Verſe 13.

[5] The ſecond part of this Chapter, in which is ſet down the Revelation of the Son, as before was ſaid. This part containeth firſt an hiſtory, of the manner how God prepared S.Iohn to underſtand this Revelation, in this verſe. Secondly, the Revelation of the Sonne himſelfe, unto the 7 verſe. Thirdly, the accidents of this Revelation, in the reſt of the chapter. The manner how, is here deſcribed in two ſorts: one from without him, by ſpeech, in this verſe: another within, by opening the eyes of S.Iohn (which before were held) that he might ſee, in the verſe following.

* Gen.49.9.

[6] That is, the moſt mighty and moſt approved Prince: according to the uſe of the Hebrew ſpeech.

[7] The ſumme of this Revelation: Chriſt the mediatour taketh and openeth the booke, verſe 6.7. Therefore in this Revelation is deſcribed the perſon of Chriſt, in this verſe. His fact in the next verſe. The perſon is thus deſcribed: Chriſt the mediatour between God, Angels, and men, as the eternall word of God, and our redeemer: as the Lamb of God, ſtanding as ſlain, and making interceſſion for us by the vertue and merit of his everlaſting ſacrifice, is armed with the Spirit of God in his own perſon, that is, with the power and wiſedome of God effectually unto the government of this whole world.

[8] The fact of Chriſt the Mediator: that he commeth unto the throne of the Father, of which Chap.4. and taketh the book out of his hand to open it. For that he opened it, it is firſt expreſſed, chap.6.1. &c.

[9] Now follow in the end the accidents of the Revelation laſt ſpoken of: that all the holy Angels & men did ſing unto him: both the chief, verſe 9.10. & ẏ common order of Angels, verſe 11.12. and of all things created, verſe 13. the Princes of both ſorts agreeing thereunto, verſe 14.

[10] The Symbols or ſignes of praiſe, ſweet in ſavour and acceptable unto God, See chap.8.3.

[a] Looke cap.8.3.

[b] No common ſong.

[11] That is, compoſed according to the preſent matter, the Lambe having received the book as it were with his feet, and opened it with his hornes, as it is ſaid in the Canticle.

[12] The ſong of the Nobles or Princes ſtanding by the throne, conſiſting of a publication of the praiſe of Chriſt, & a confirmation of the ſame from his benefits, both which we have received of himſelf (as are the ſuffring of his death, our redemption upon ẏ croſſe by his blood, in this verſe: and our communion with him in Kingdome and Prieſthood, which long ago he hath granted unto us with himſelfe) and which we hereafter hope to obtain, as our kingdom to come, in Chriſt, in the verſe following.

* Chap.1.6. 1 Pet.2.9.

[13] The conſent of the common order of Angels, anſwering in melody unto their Princes that ſtood by the throne.

[14] A number finite, but almoſt infinite, for one infinite, indeed, as Dan.7.10.

* Dan.7.10.

[c] By this is meant a great number.

[d] To have all praiſe given to him as to the mightieſt and wiſeſt, &c.

[15] The conſent of all the common multitude of the creatures.

[16] A confirmation of the praiſe before going, from the conteſtation of the nobles, expreſſed in word and ſignes, as once or twiſe before this.

[1] This is the ſecond part of this firſt hiſtorie (which I ſaid was common, and of the whole world) of the works of God in the government of all things. Of this there are generally 3 members: the foreſignifying, the caution, and the execution of all the evils, which God powreth out upon this world, which hath moſt hardly deſerved of him. The foreſignifying is ſet down in this chapter, the caution for preſerving the Church is in the next chapter, and the execution is deſcribed, chap.8.9. In every part of the foreſignifying, there are three branches: ẏ ſeverall and expreſſe calling of Saint John, to prepare himſelfe to take knowledge of the things that were to be ſhewed unto him in the opening of the ſeals: the ſigne, & ẏ word expounding the ſigne: And albeit the expreſſe calling of S.John, be uſed only in four of the ſignes, yet the ſame is alſo to be underſtood in the reſt that follow. The author of the foreſignifyings, is the Lambe, as that word of the Father made the Mediator, opening the ſeales of the book, The inſtruments are the Angels in moſt of the viſions, who expound the ſigne & the words thereof. Now this firſt verſe containeth an expreſſe calling of S Iohn to marke the opening of the firſt ſeale.

[2] The firſt ſigne joyned with declaration, is, that God for the ſinnes and horrible rebellion of the world, wil invade the ſame: and firſt of all will as a farre off, with his darts of peſtilence moſt ſuddenly, mightily, and glorioully, beat down the ſame as Judge, and tryumph over it as conquerour.

[3] The ſecond ſigne joyned with words of declaration (after the expreſſe calling of S. John as before) is, ẏ God being provoked unto wrath by the obſtinacie & hard heartedneſſe of ẏ world, not repenting for ẏ former plague: as ſetting upon the ſame at hand, will kindle the fire of debate amongſt men, and will deſtroy the inhabitants of this world, one by the ſword of another.

[4] The third ſigne with declaration, is; that God will deſtroy the world with famine, withdrawing all proviſion: which is by the figure Synecdoche comprehended in wheate, barly, wine, and oyle.

[a] Hereby is ſignified what great ſcarcitie of corne there was, for the word here uſed is a kind of meaſure of dry things, which is in quantitie but the eight part of a buſhel, which was an ordinary portion uſed to be given to ſervants for their ſtint of meat for one day.

[5] I had rather diſtinguiſh and read the words thus, And the wine & the oyle thou ſhalt not deale unjuſtly. In this ſenſe likewiſe the oyle and the wine ſhal be ſold a very little for a peny. Thou ſhalt not deale unjuſtly, namely, when thou ſhalt meaſure out a very little for a great price: ſo is the place evident: otherwiſe ẏ is moſt true, which the wiſe man ſaith, That who witholdeth the corne, ſhalbe curſed of the people, Prov.11.26.

[6] The fourth ſigne joyned with words of declaration, is, that God will addict the fourth part of the world indifferently, unto death and hel, or the grave, by all thoſe meanes at once, by which before ſeverally and in order he had recalled their minds unto amendment. Unto theſe are alſo added the wilde and cruel beaſts of the earth, out of Levit. 26.22. Thus doth God according to his wiſedom, diſpenſe the treaſures of his power, juſtly towards all, mercifully towards the good, and with patience or long ſufferance toward his enemies.

ſeale, I heard the voyce of the fourth beaſt ſay, Come and ſee.

8 And I looked, and behold, a pale horſe, and his name that ſate on him was Death, and Hell followed him, and power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kil with ſword, and with hunger, & with death, and with the beaſts of the earth.

9 [7] And when he had opened the fifth ſeal, I ſaw under the altar the ſoules of them that were killed for the word of God, and for the teſtimonie which they maintained.

10 And they cryed with a loud voyce, ſaying, How long, Lord, which art holy and true! doeſt not thou judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?

11 And long [8] white robes were given unto every one, and it was ſaid unto them, that they ſhould reſt for a little ſeaſon untill their fellow ſervants, and their brethren that ſhould be killed even as they were, were [b] fulfilled.

12 [9] And I beheld when he had opened the ſixt ſeal, and loe, there was a great earthquake, and the Sun was as black as [c] ſackcloth of hair, and the Moon was like blood

13 And the ſtars of heaven fell unto the earth, as a fig tree caſteth her green figges, when it is ſhaken of a mighty wind.

14 And heaven departed away as a ſcroul, when it is rolled, and every mountain and yle were moved out of their places.

15 [10] And the Kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chiefe captaines, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman hid themſelves in dens, and among the rocks of the mountains,

16 And ſaid to the mountains and rocks, [11] * fall on us, and hide us from the preſence of him that ſitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lambe:

17 For the great day of his wrath is come, and who can ſtand?

CHAP. VII.

1 The Angels comming to hurt the earth, 3 are ſtayed untill the elect of the Lord 5 of all tribes were ſealed. 13 Such as ſuffered perſecution for Chriſts ſake, 16 have great felicitie, 17 and joy.

AND [1] after that, I ſaw four Angels ſtand on the [a] foure corners of the earth, holding the foure winds of the earth, that the winds ſhould not blow on the earth, neither on the ſea, [2] neither on any tree.

2 [3] And I ſaw [4] another Angel come up from the Eaſt, which had the ſeale of the living God, and he cryed with a loud voice to the four Angels, to whom power was given to hurt the earth, and the ſea, ſaying,

3 Hurt ye not the earth, neither the ſea, neither the trees, till we have ſealed the ſervants of our God in their foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of them, which were ſealed, and there were ſealed [5] an hundred an foure and fortie thouſand of all the tribes of the children of Iſrael.

5 Of the tribe of Juda were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Reuben were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Gad were ſealed twelve thouſand.

6 Of the tribe of Aſer were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Nephtali were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Manaſſes were ſealed twelve thouſand.

7 Of the tribe of Simeon were ſealed twelve thouſand. [6] Of the tribe of [b] Levi were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Iſſachar were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Zebulon were ſealed twelve thouſand.

8 Of the tribe of [c] Joſeph were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were ſealed twelve thouſand.

9 After theſe things I beheld, and loe, a great multitude, [7] which no man could number, of all nations, and kinreds, and people, and tongues [8] ſtood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with long white robes, and palms in their hands,

10 [9] And they cryed with a loud voice, ſaying, Salvation commeth of our God, that ſitteth upon the throne, and of the Lamb.

11 And all the Angels ſtood round about the throne, and about the Elders, and the four beaſts, and they fell before the throne on their faces, & worſhipped God, 12 Saying, Amen, Praiſe, and glory, and wiſedom, and thanks, and honour, and power, and might, be unto our God for evermore, Amen.

13 [10] And one of the Elders ſpake, ſaying unto me, What are theſe which are arayed in long white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I ſaid unto him, Lord, thou knoweſt. And he ſaid unto me, [11] Theſe are they which came out of great tribulation, and

[7] The fift ſigne is, that the holy Martyrs which are under ÿ altar, whereby they are ſanctified, that is, received into the truſt and tuition of Chriſt (into whoſe hands they are committed) ſhall cry out for the juſtice of God, in an holy zeale to advance his kingdom, and not of any private perturbation of the mind, in this and the next verſe, and that God will in deed, ſigne, and word comfort them, verſ.11.

[8] As before 3.4.

[b] Vntill their number be fulfilled.

[9] The ſixt ſigne, the narration whereof hath two parts: the ſigne, & the event. The ſigne is, that the earth, heaven, and the things that are in them, for horror of the ſins of the world upon thoſe moſt heavie foretellings of God, & complaint of the Saints ſhall be ſhaken moſt vehemently, trembling in horrible manner, & loſing their light, in this verſe: falling from on high, verſe 13, withdrawing themſelves, and flying away for the greatneſſe of ÿ trouble, verſ.14. So holily do all creatures depend upon the will of God, and content themſelves in his glory.

[c] So they called in old time thoſe woven works that were of haire.

[10] The event of the ſigne afore going: that there is no man ÿ ſhall not be aſtoniſhed at that generall commotion, flee away for fear, and hide himſelf, in this verſe, & wiſh unto himſelf moſt bitter death, for exceeding horror of the wrath of God, and of the Lambe, at which before he was aſtoniſhed. Now this perplexitie is not of the godly but of the wicked, whoſe portion is in this life, as the Pſalmiſt ſpeakerh, Pſal.17.14. Not that ſorrow which is according unto God, which worketh repentance, unto ſalvation, whereof a man ſhall never repent him, but that worldly ſorrow that bringeth death, 2 Cor.7.9. as their wiſhings do declare: for this hiſtory of the whole world, is ſevered from the hiſtory of the Church, as I have ſhewed before, Chap.4.1

[11] Theſe are words of ſuch as deſpaire of their eſcape: of which deſpaire there are two arguments, the preſence of God, and of the Lambe provoked to wrath againſt the world, in this verſe: and the conſcience of their own weakneſſe, whereby men feel that they are no way able to ſtand in the day of the wrath of God, Verſe 17, as it is ſaid, Eſay 14.27.

* Eſay 2.19. Hoſe, 10.8. Luke 23.30.

[1] The ſecond member of this part, is a preventing of danger, as we diſtinguiſhed the ſame before, chap.6.1. that is, of the caution whereby God took care before hand & provided for his, that after the example of the Iſraelites of old, Exod.8.23. the faithfull might be exempted from ÿ plagues of this wicked world. This whole place is a certain interlocution and bringing in for this whole chapter by occaſion of the prediction and argument of the ſixt ſeal. For firſt that evill is prevented in the elect, unto the 9 verſe. Then thankes are given by the elect for that cauſe verſe 10,11,12. Laſtly, the accompliſhment of the things is ſet forth unto the end of the Chapter. The firſt verſe is a tranſition, ſpeaking of the Angels which keep the inferiour parts from all evill, untill God do command. For (as it is excellently figured by Ezek.ch.1.11.12.) their faces & their wings are reached upwards, continually waiting upon & beholding ÿ countenance of God for their direction, & every of them goeth into ÿ part ÿ is right before his face: whitherſoever ÿ Spirit ſhal go, they go, they ſtep not out of the way, that is, they depart not ſo much as a foot breadth from ÿ path commanded them of God.

[a] On the four quarters or coaſts of the earth.

[2] That is: neither into the aire, into which the tops of trees are advanced

[3] Now God provideth againſt the danger of his elect, by his commandement, verſe 2 & 3. and by ſigne or figure, both for thoſe of the nation of the Jews, thence unto the 8 verſe, and alſo of the Gentiles, verſe 9,

[4] Not onely another, or differing in number from the common Angels of God, but alſo in eſſence, office and operation exceeding all Angels: that is, Chriſt Jeſus the eternall Angel or word of God, and mediatour of the covenant. So hereafter chap.8.3. and 10.15.

[5] That is, of the Jews a number certain in it ſelfe before God, and ſuch as may be numbred of us: for which cauſe alſo the ſame is here ſet down as certain. But of the elect which are of the Gentiles, the number indeed is in it ſelf certain with God, but of us not poſſibly to be numbred, as God, Gen.15.5. and often elſewhere, and Eſay figured moſt excellently, Chap.49. and 60. This therefore is ſpoken with reſpect, when a certaine number is put for an uncertaine. Conferre this with verſe 9.

[b] He skipped Dan, and reckeneth Levi.

[c] Of Ephraim who was Ioſephs other ſonne, and had the birthright given him, whereof he is called Ioſeph.

[6] Here the tribe of Levi is reckoned up in common with the reſt, becauſe all the Iſraelites were equally made Prieſts with them in Chriſt by his Prieſthood, Chap.1.6. and 5.10. and Rom.12.1. and 1 Pet.2.9. The name of Dan is not mentioned, becauſe the Danites long before forſaking the worſhip of God, were fallen away from the fellowſhip of Gods people, unto the part of the Geniles: which evil many ages before, Iacob foreſaw, Gen.49.18. for which cauſe alſo there is no mention made of this tribe in the firſt book of the Chronicles.

[7] See before upon the 4 verſe.

[8] As Prieſts, kings, & glorious conquerours by martyrdom: which things are noted by their proper ſignes in this verſe.

[9] The praiſe of God, celebrated firſt by the holy men in this verſe, then by the heavenly Angels, in the two verſes following.

[10] A paſſage over unto the expounding of the viſion, of which the Angel enquirerh of S. Iohn to ſtir him up withall, in this verſe, & Iohn in the form of ſpeech, both acknowledgeth his own ignorance, attributing knowledg unto the Angel, and alſo in moſt modeſt manner requeſteth the expounding of the viſion.

[11] The expoſition of the viſion, wherein the Angel telleth firſt the Acts of the Saints, ÿ is, their ſuffrings & work of faith in Chriſt Ieſus, in this verſe. Secondly, their glory: both preſent, which conſiſteth in two things, that they miniſter unto God, & that God protecteth them, verſe 15, & to come in their perfect deliverance from all annoiances, verſe 16. & in participation of all good things which even the memory of former evils ſhall never be able to diminiſh. verſe 17. The cauſe efficient, & which containeth all theſe things, is only one, even the Lambe of God, the Lord, the Mediator, and the Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.

and have waſhed their long robes, and have made their long robes white in the blood of the Lambe.

15 Therefore are they in the preſence of the throne of God, and ſerve him [d] day and night in his Temple, and he that ſitteth on the throne will dwell [e] among them:

16 * They ſhall hunger no more, neither thirſt any more, neither ſhall the ſunne light on them, neither any heat,

17 For the Lambe which is in the mids of the throne ſhall governe them, and ſhall lead them unto the lively fountaines of waters, and * God ſhall wipe away all teares from their eyes.

d He alludeth to the Levites, which ſerved day and night, for elſe there is no night in heaven.

e Or, upon them whereby is meant Gods defence and protection, as it were toward them, who are as ſafe, as men in the Lords tents.

* Eſai 25.8. chap. 21.4.

Chap. VIII.

1 After the opening of the ſeventh ſeale, 3 the Saints prayers are offered up with odours. 6 The ſeven Angels come forth with trumpets. 7 The foure firſt blow, and fire falleth on the earth, 8 the ſea is turned into blood, 10. 11 the waters wax bitter, 12 and the ſtarres are darkened.

AND [1] when he had opened the ſeventh ſeale, there was ſilence in heaven about halfe an houre.

2 [2] And I ſaw the ſeven Angels, which [a] ſtood before God, and to them were given ſeven trumpets.

3 [3] Then another Angel came and ſtood before the altar, having a golden cenſer, and much odours was given unto him, that he ſhould offer with the prayers of all Saints upon the golden altar, which is before the throne.

4 And the ſmoke of the odors with the prayers of the Saints, [b] went up before God, out of the Angels hand.

5 And the Angel took the cenſer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and caſt it into the earth, and there were voyces, and thunderings, and lightenings, and earthquake.

6 [4] Then the ſeven Angels, which had the ſeven trumpets, prepared themſeves to blow the trumpets.

7 [5] So the firſt Angel blew the trumpet, and there was haile and fire mingled with blood, and they were caſt into the earth, and the third part of trees was burnt, and all greene graſſe was burnt.

8 [6] And the ſecond Angel blew the trumpet, and as it were a great mountaine, burning with fire, was caſt into the ſea, and the third part of the ſea became blood.

9 And the third part of the creatures, which were in the ſea, and had life, died, and the third part of the ſhips were deſtroyed.

10 [7] Then the third Angel blew his trumpet, and there fell a great ſtarre from heaven, burning like a torch, aud it fell into the third part of the rivers, and into the fountaines of waters.

11 And the name of the ſtarre is called [8] wormwood: therefore the third part of the waters became wormwood, and many men died of the waters, becauſe they were made bitter.

12 [9] And the fourth Angel blew the trumpet, and the third part of the ſun was ſmitten, and the third part of the moone, and the third part of the ſtarres, ſo that the third part of them was darkened: and the day was ſmitten, that the third part of it could not ſhine, and likewiſe the night.

13 And I beheld, and heard one Angel flying thorow the middes of heaven, ſaying with a loud voice, [10] Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitans of the earth, becauſe of the ſounds to come of the trumpet of the three Angels, which were yet to blow the trumpets.

[1] He returneth to the hiſtory of the ſeales of the book, which the Lambe opened. The ſeventh ſeale is the next foreſignification, and a preciſe commandement of the execution of the moſt heavie judgements of God upon this wicked world, which foreſignification being underſtood by the ſeale, all things in heaven are ſilent, and in horror through admiration, untill commandement of execution be ſeverally given of God unto the miniſters of his wrath. So he paſſeth unto the third member, of which I ſpake before in Chap. 6. verſe. 1. which is of the execution of thoſe evils wherewith God moſt juſtly determined to afflict the world.

[2] Now followeth the third branch of the common hiſtory, as even now I ſaid: which is the executions of the judgements of God upon the world. This is the firſt, generally prepared unto the 6. verſe: then by ſeverall parts expounded according to the order of thoſe that adminiſtred the ſame, unto the end of the Chapter following. Unto the preparation of this execution, are declared theſe things: firſt, who are the adminiſters and inſtruments thereof in this verſe. Secondly, what is the worke both of the Prince and Angels, giving order for this execution, thence unto the 5. verſe, and of his adminiſters in the 6. verſe. The adminiſters of the execution are ſaid to be ſeven Angels: their inſtruments, trumpets, whereby they ſhould, as it were, ſound the alarm at the conmmandement of God. They are propounded ſeven in number, becauſe it pleaſed God not at once to powre out his wrath upon the rebellious world, but at divers times, and by piecemeale, and in ſlow order, and as with an unwilling minde to exerciſe his judgements upon his creatures, ſo long called upon both by word and figures, if happily they had learned to repent.

a Which appeareth before him as his miniſters.

[3] This is that great Emperour the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, our King and Saviour, who both maketh interceſſion to God the Father for the Saints, filling the heavenly ſanctuarie with moſt ſweet odour, and offering up their prayers, as the calves and burnt ſacrifices of their lips, in this verſe: in ſuch ſort as every one of them (ſo powerfull is that ſweet ſavour of Chriſt, and the efficacie of his ſacrifice) are held in reconcilement with God and themſelves, made moſt acceptable unto him, verſe 4. And then alſo out of his treaſurie, and from the ſame ſanctuarie powreth forth upon the world the fire of his wrath, adding alſo divine tokens thereunto: and by that meanes (as of olde the heralds of Rome were wont to doe) he proclaimeth warre againſt the rebellious world.

b Our prayers are nothing worth unleſſe that true and ſweet ſavour of that onely oblation be eſpecially and before all things with them, that is to ſay, unleſſe we being firſt of all iuſtified through faith in his Son be acceptable unto him.

[4] This is the work of the adminiſters. The Angels the adminiſters of Chriſt, onely by ſounding trumpet and voyce (for they are onely as heraldes) doe effectually call foorth the inſtruments of the wrath of God, through his power. Hitherto have been things generall. Now followeth the narration of things particular, which the Angels ſixe in number wrought in their order, ſet out in the 19. verſe of the next Chapter, and is concluded with the declaration of the event which followed upon theſe things done in the worlds end, in the 10. and 11. Chapters.

[5] The firſt execution at the ſound of the firſt Angel, upon the earth, that is, the inhabitants of the earth (by metonymie) and upon all the fruits thereof: as the comparing of this verſe with the ſecond member of the 9. verſe doth not obſcurely declare.

[6] The ſecond execution upon the ſea, in this verſe and all things that are therein, in the next verſe.

[7] The third execution upon the floods and fountaines, that is, upon all freſh waters, in this verſe: the effect whereof is, that many [illegible] deſtroyed [illegible] bitterneſſe [illegible] ters, in the [illegible] following.

[8] This is ſpoken by a [illegible] of the [illegible] moſt bitter [illegible] and common[illegible] knowen: [illegible] perhaps a man following thoſe that note the derivation of words had rather expound it adjectively, for that which by reaſon of bitterneſſe cannot be drunke, or which maketh the liquor into which it is powred, more bitter, then that any man can drink the ſame.

[9] The fourth execution upon theſe lightſome bodies of heaven, which miniſter unto this inferiour world.

[10] A lamentable prediction or foretelling of thoſe parts of the divine execution which yet are behinde, which alſo is a paſſage unto the argument of the next Chapter. Of all theſe things in a manner, Chriſt himſelfe expreſly foretold in the 21. Chapter of S. Luke, Verſe 24. &c. and they are common plagues generally denounced, without particular note of time.

Chap. IX.

1 The fift Angel bloweth his trumpet, 3 and ſpoiling locuſts come out. 13 The ſixt Angel bloweth, 16 and bringeth forth horſemen, 20 to deſtroy mankind.

AND [1] the fift Angel blew the trumpet, and I ſaw a [2] ſtarre fall from heaven unto the earth, [3] and to him was given the key of the [a] bottomleſſe pit.

2 [4] And he opened the bottomleſſe pit, and there aroſe the ſmoke of the pit, as the ſmok of a great fornace, and the ſun, and the ayre were darkened by the ſmok of the pit.

3 [5] And there came out of the ſmoke, locuſts upon the earth, and unto them was given power, as the ſcorpions of the earth have power.

[1] The fift execution upon the wicked men inhabiting the earth (as a little before the Angel ſaid) wrought by the infernall powers is declared in this place unto verſ. 11. and after the ſixt execution thence unto verſe 19. And laſtly, is ſhewed the common event that followed the former execution in the world, in the two laſt verſes.

[2] That is that the Angel of God glittering with glory, as a ſtarre fell downe from heauen. Whether thou take him for Chriſt, who hath the keyes of hell of himſelfe, and by princely anthority, Chap. 1. verſe 18. or whether for ſome inferiour Angel, who hath the ſame key permitted unto him, and occupieth it miniſterially, or by office of his miniſtery here, and Chap. 21, ſo the word, falling, is taken, Gen. 14.10, & 24.46. and Heb. 6.6.

[3] The key was given to this ſtar. For thoſe powers of wickedneſſe are thruſt downe into hel, and bound with chaines of darkneſſe: and are there kept unto damnation, unleſſe God for a time doe let them looſe. 2 Pet 2.4 Iude 6. and of this booke, Chap 21, 20, the hiſtorie of which Chapters hath agreement of time with this preſent Chapter.

a By the bottomleſſe pit, he meaneth the deepeſt darkneſſe of hell.

[4] Unto this is added, the ſmoke of the helliſh and infernall ſpitits, all darke, and darkening all things in heaven and in earth. The ſpirituall darkeneſſes are the cauſes of all diſorder and confuſion. For the devill at a certaine time (whereof verſe the fift) ſent theſe darkeneſſes into his kingdome, that he might at once and with one impreſſion overthrow all things, and pervert, if it were poſſible the elect themſelves. By this darknes, all ſpirituall light, both active as of the ſunne, and paſſiue, as of the aire which is lightened by the ſunne, is taken away: and this is that which goeth before the ſpirits: it followeth of the ſpirits themſelves.

[5] A deſcription of the malignant ſpirits invading the world, taken from their nature, power, forme, and order. From their nature, for that they are like unto certaine locuſts, in quickneſſe, ſubtilty, hurtfulneſſe, number, and ſuch like, in this verſ. From their power, for that they are as the ſcorpions of ẏͤ earth of a ſecret force to doe hurt: for our battel is not here with fleſh and blood, but with powers, &c. Ephe. 6.12. This place of the power of the devils generally noted in this verſ, is particularly declared afterwards in the three next verſes.

4 [6] And it was commanded them that they ſhould not hurt the graſſe of the earth, neither any greene thing, neither any tree: but only thoſe men which have not the ſeale of God in their foreheads.

5 And to them was commanded, that they ſhould not kill them, but that they ſhould be vexed five months, and that their paine ſhould be as the paine that commeth of a ſcorpion, when he hath ſtung a man.

6 * Therefore in thoſe dayes ſhall men ſeek death, and ſhall not find it, and ſhall deſire to die, and death ſhall flee from them.

7 [7] And the forme of the locuſts was like unto horſes prepared unto battel, &on their heads were as it were crowns, like unto gold, and their faces were like the faces of men:

8 And they had haire as the haire of women, &their teeth were as the teeth of lions.

9 And they had habergeons, like unto habergeons of yron, and the ſound of their wings was like the ſound of charets when many horſes runne unto battell.

10 And they had tailes like unto ſcorpions, and there were ſtings in their tailes, and their power was to hurt five moneths.

11 [8] And they have a king over them, which is the Angel of the bottomleſſe pit, whoſe name in Hebrew is Abbaddon, and in Greek he is named Apollyon, that is, deſtroying.

12 [9] One woe is paſt, and behold, yet two woes come after this.

13 ¶ [10] Then the ſixt Angel blew the trumpet, [11] and I heard a voice from the [b] foure hornes of the golden altar which is before God,

14 Saying to the ſixt Angel, which had the trumpet, [12] Looſe the foure Angels, which are bound in the great river Euphrates.

15 [13] And the four Angels were looſed, which were prepared at an houre, at a day, at a moneth, and at a yeare to ſlay the third part of men.

16 And the number of horſemen of warre were twentie thouſand times ten thouſand: for I heard the number of them.

17 And thus I ſaw the horſes in a viſion, and them that ſate on them, having fiery habergions, and of Jacinth, and of brimſton, and the heads of the horſes were as the heads of lions: and out of their mouthes went forth fire, and ſmoke, and brimſtone:

18 Of theſe three was the third part of men killed, that is, of the fire, and of the ſmok, and of the brimſtone, which came out of their mouthes:

19 For their power is in their mouthes, and in their tailes: [14] for their tailes were like unto ſerpents, and had heads wherewith they hurt,

20 [15] And the remnant of the men which were not killed by the plagues, repented not of the works of their hands, that they ſhould not worſhip devils, and * idoles of gold, and of ſilver, and of braſſe, and of ſtone, and of wood, which neither can ſee, neither heare, nor goe.

21 Alſo they repented not of their murther, and of their ſorcerie, neither of their fornication, nor of their theft.

[6] Here that power of the devils is particularly deſcribed according to their actions and the effects of the ſame. Their actions are ſaid to be bounded by the counſel of God: both becauſe they hurt not all men, but onely the repobate (for the godly and elect in whom there is any part of a better life, God guardeth by his decree) whom Chriſt ſhall not have ſealed, in this verſe: and alſo becauſe they neither had all power, nor at al times, no not over thoſe that are their owne, but limited in maner and time, by the preſcript of God, verſ.5. So their power to afflict the Godly is none, and for the wicked it is limited in acte and in effect by the wil of God: for the manner was preſcribed unto them that they ſhould not ſlay, but torment the wretched world. The time is for five moneths, or for a hundred and fifty dayes, that is, for ſo many yeares, in which the devils have indeed mightily perverted all things in the world: and yet without that publike and unpuniſhed licence of killing, which afterwards they uſurped, when the ſixt Angel had blowen his trumpet, as ſhalbe ſaid upon verſe 13. Now this ſpace is to be accounted from the end of that thouſand yeares mentioned, Chap.20.3. and that is from the Popedome of that Gregory the 7. a moſt monſtrous Necromancer, who before was called Heldebrandus Senenſis: for this man being made altogether of impiety and wickedneſſe, as a ſlave of the devill, whom he ſerved, was the moſt wicked firebrand of the world: he excommunicated the Emperor Henry the fourth: : went about by all manner of treacherie to ſet up and put downe Empires and kingdomes as liked himſelfe, and doubted not to ſet Rodolph the Sweden over the Empire inſtead of Henry before named, ſending unto him a crowne, with this verſe annexed unto it: Petra dedit Petro, Petrus diadema Rodolpho: that is, The rocke to Peter gave the Crown, and Peter Rodolph doth renowne. Finally, he ſo finely beſtirred himſelfe in his affaires, as he miſerably ſet all Chriſtendome on fire, and conveyed over unto his ſucceſſors the burning brand of the ſame: who enraged with like ambition, never ceaſed to nouriſh that flame, and to enkindle it more and more: whereby cities, Common weales, and whole kingdomes ſet together by the eares amongſt themſelves by moſt expert cutthroats, came to ruine, whiles they miſerably wounded one another. This terme of an hundred and fifty yeares, taketh end in the time of Gregory the 9. or Hugolinus Anaguienſis (as he was before called) who cauſed to be compiled by one Raimond his Chapleine and confeſſor, the body of Decertals, and by ſufferance of the Kings and Princes, to be publiſhed in the Chriſtian world, and eſtabliſhed for a law: for by this ſlight at length the Popes arrogated unto themſelves licence to kill whom they would, whiles others were unwares: and without feare eſtabliſhed a buchery out of many of the wicked Canons of the Decertals, which the trumpet of the fift Angel had expreſly forbidden, and had hindered untill this time. The effects of theſe bloody actions are declared upon the ſixt verſe: that the miſerable world languiſhing in ſo great calamities, ſhould willingly run together unto death, and preferre the ſame before life, by reaſon of the grievouſnes of the miſeries that oppreſſed them. * *Chap.*6.16.*Iſai.*2.19.*hoſe.*10.8.

[7] The forme of theſe helliſh ſpirits and adminiſters is ſhadowed out by ſignes and viſible figures in this ſort: that they are very expert and ſwift: that whereſoever they are in the world, the kingdome is theirs: that they manage all their affaires with cunning and skill in this verſe: that making ſhew of mildneſſe and tender affection to draw on men withal, they moſt impudently rage in all miſchiefe: that they are moſt mighty to doe hurt, verſe 8, that they are freed from being hurt of any man, as armed with the colour of religion and ſacred authority of priviledge: that they fill all things with horror, verſ. the 9. that they are fraudulent: that they are venemons and extremely noyſome, though their power be limitted, verſe 10. All which things are properly in the infernall powers, and communicated by them unto their miniſters and vaſſals.

[8] The order of powers of maliciouſneſſe: that they are ſubiect to one infernall King, whom thou mayeſt call in Engliſh, The Deſtroyer: who driveth that whole world both Iewes and Gentiles into the deſtruction that belongeth unto himſelfe. And I cannot tell whether this name have reſpect unto the Etymologicall interpretation of Heldebrand, by a figure often uſed in the holy Scripture; which albeit it may otherwiſe be turned of the Germanes (as the ſenſe of compound words is commonly ambiguous) yet in very deed it ſignifieth as much as if thou ſhouldeſt call him, The firebrand, that is, he that ſetteth on fire thoſe that be faithfull unto him.

[9] A paſſage unto the next point and the hiſtory of the time following.

[10] The ſixt execution done upon the world by the tyrannicall powers thereof, working in the foure parts of the earth, that is, in moſt cruell manner executing their tyrannous dominion thorow the whole world: and killing the miſerable people without puniſhment, which before was not lawfull for them to do in that ſort, as I ſhewed upon the fourth verſe. This narration hath two parts: a commandement from God, in the 14. verſe, and an execution of the commandemeut, in the verſe following.

[11] The commandement given by Chriſt himſelfe, who is governour over all.

[b] Hee alludeth to the altar of incenſe, which ſtood in the Court which the Prieſts were in, over againſt the Arke of the Covenant, having a vaile betwixt them.

[12] As if he ſhould have ſaid, theſe hitherto have bin ſo bound by the power of God, that they ſhould not freely run upon all men as themſelves luſted, but were ſtayed and reſtained at that great flood of Euphrates, that is, in their ſpirituall Babylon (for this is a periphraſis of the ſpirituall Babylon, by the limites of the viſible Babylon long ſince overthrowne) that they might not commit thoſe horrible ſlaughters, which they long breathed after. Now, goe to, let looſe thoſe foure Angels, that is, adminiſters of the wrath of God, in that number that is convenient for the ſlaughtering of the foure quarters of the world: ſtirre them up, and give them the bridle, that ruſhing out of that Babylon of theirs, which is the ſeat of the wicked ones, they may flee upon all the world: therein to rage, and moſt licentiouſly to practiſe their tyrannie, as God hath ordained. This was done when Gregorie the ninth by publique authoritie ſtabliſhed for Lawe, his owne Decretals, by which he might freely lay traines for the life of ſimple men. For who is it that ſeeth not that the lawes Decretall, moſt of them are ſnares to catch ſoules withall? Since that time (O good God) how great ſlaughters have bene? how great maſſacres? All hiſtories are full of them: and this our age aboundeth with moſt horrible and monſtrous examples of the ſame.

[13] The execution of the commandement is in two points: one, that thoſe butchers are let looſe, that out of their tower of the ſpirituall Babylon they might with furie runne abroad through all the world, as well the chiefe of that crew which are moſt prompt unto all aſſayes, in this verſe, as their multitudes both moſt copious, of which a number certaine is named for a number infinite, verſ.16. and in themſelves by al meanes fully furniſhed to hide and to hurt verſe the 17. as being armed with fire, ſmoke and brimſtone, as appeareth in the colour of this armour, which dazleth the eyes of all men, and have the ſtrength of Lyons to hurt withall, from which (as out of their mouth) the firie, ſmokie, and ſtinking darts of the Pope are ſhot out, ver. 18. The other point is, that theſe butchers have effected the Commandement of God by fraud and violence, in the two verſes following.

[14] That is, they are harmefull every way: on what part ſoever thou put thine hand unto them, or they touch thee, they doe hurt. So the former are called ſcorpions, verſe 3.

[15] Now remaineth the event (as I ſaid upon the firſt verſe) which followed of ſo many and ſo grievons judgements in the moſt wicked world, namely an impenitent obfirmation of the ungodly in their impietie and unrighteouſnes, though they feele themſelves moſt vehemently preſſed with the hand of God: for their obſtinate ungodlineſſe is ſhewed in this verſe: and their unrighteouſneſſe in the verſe following. Hitherto hath beene the generall hiſtorie of things to be done univerſally in the whole world: which becauſe it doeth not ſo much belong to the Church of Chriſt is therefore not ſo expreſly diſtinguiſhed by certaintie of time and other circumſtances, but is woven, as they ſay, with a ſlight hand. Alſo there is none other cauſe why the hiſtorie of the ſeventh Angel is paſſed over in this place, then for that the ſame more properly appertaineth unto the hiſtory of the Church. But this is more diligently ſet out according to the time thereof, Chap.11.and 16.as ſhall appeare upon thoſe places.

* Pſal. 115.4.and 135.15.

CHAP. X.

1 Another Angel appeareth clothed with a cloud, 2 holding a booke, 3 and cryeth out, 8 A voice from heaven commandeth Iohn to take the booke. 10 He eateth it.

And

1 Now S. Iohn paſſeth unto the other Propheticall hiſtorie which is of the Church of God, as I ſhewed that this book ſhould be diſtinguiſhed, Chapter. 4.1. This ſtorie reacheth hence unto the two and twentieth Chapter. And this whole Chapter is but a tranſition from the common hiſtory of the world unto that which is particular of the Church. There are in this tranſition or paſſage, two preparatives, as it were, unto the Church ſtorie comprifed in this whole chapter. One is the authoritie of Chriſt, revealing his myſteries, and calling his ſervant unto the ſeventh verſe. The other is S.Iohn his calling proper unto this place, and repeated from before unto the end of this Ghapter. Authoritie is given unto this Revelation, by theſe things: firſt, by the appearing from heaven in this habite and countenance, ſtrong, ready, glorious, ſurveying all things by his providence, and governing them by his omnipotencie, verſe 1. Secondly, that he brought not by chance, but out of a booke, this open Revelation, ſet foorth unto the eye, to ſignifie the ſame unto the ſea, and land, as the Lord over all, verſe 2. Thirdly, that he offered the ſame not whiſpering or muttering in a corner (as falſe Prophets do) but crying out with a loud voice unto them which ſleepe, and with a lioniſh & terrible noiſe rouſed up the ſecure: the very thunders themſelves giving teſtimny thereunto, verſe 3. Laſtly, for that he confirmed all by an oathe verſe 5.6.7.

ANd [1] I ſaw [2] another mightie Angel come downe from heaven, clothed with a cloud, and the raine bowe upon his head, and his face was as the ſunne, and his feet as pillars of fire.

2 And he had in his hand a [3] little book open, and he put his right foote upon the ſea, and his left on the earth,

3 And cryed with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cryed, ſeven thunders uttered their voices.

4 [4] And when the ſeven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: but I heard a voice from heaven, ſaying unto me, [a] Seale up thoſe things which the ſeven thunders have ſpoken, and write them not.

5 And the Angel which I ſaw ſtand upon the ſea, and upon the earth, [b] lift up his hand to heaven,

6 And ſware by him that liveth for evermore, which created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the ſea, and the things that therein are, [5] that [c] time ſhould be no more.

7 But in the dayes of the [6] voices of the ſeventh Angel, when he ſhall beginne to blow the trumpet, even the myſterie of God ſhall be finiſhed, as he hath declared to his ſervants the Prophets.

8 [7] And the voice which I heard from heaven, ſpake unto me againe, and ſaid, Goe, and take the little book which is open in the hand of the Angel, which ſtandeth upon the ſea, and upon the earth.

9 So I went unto the Angel, and ſaid unto him, Give me the little booke. And he ſaid unto me, Take it, and eate it up, and it ſhall make thy belly bitter, but it ſhall be in thy mouth as ſweet as hony.

10 Then I took the little booke out of the Angels hand, and ate it up, and it was in my mouth as ſweet as hony: but when I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

11 [8] And he ſaid unto me, Thou muſt propheſie againe among the people and nations, and tongues, and to many Kings.

2 Chriſt Ieſus, ſee Chapter 7.verſ2. 3 Namely, a ſpeciall booke of the affaires of Gods Church: For the book that containeth things belongiug unto the whole world, is ſaid to be kept with the Creator, Chapter 5.verſe 1. but the book of the Church, with the Redeemer: and out of this book is taken the reſt of the hiſtory of this Apocalyps. 4 A godly care is laudable, but muſt be joyned with knowledge. Therefore nothing is to be taken in hand but by calling, which muſt be expected and waited for of the godly. a Keepe them cloſe. b This was a geſture uſed of one that ſweareth, which men doe now a dayes uſe. 5 Neither time it ſelfe, nor the things that are in time: but that the world to come is at hand which is altogether of eternitie, and beyond all times. c There ſhall never be any more time 6 Whereof Chap. 11. 15. and 16. 17. 7 The other part of this chap. concerning the particular calling of S.Iohn to the receiving of the propheſie following, which is enioyned him, firſt by ſigne, in three verſes, then in plaine words in the laſt verſe. Unto the ſetting downe of the ſigne, belong theſe things: That S.Iohn is taught from heaven to demand the book, of the prophecie in this verſe, for theſe motions and deſires God doeth inſpire, that demanding the book, he is charged to take it in a figurative manner, the uſe wherof is expounded verſe the ninth, (as in the ſecoud chapter of Ezechiel, and the ninth verſe) whence this ſimilitude is borrowed: laſtly, for that S.Iohn at the commandement of Chriſt tooke the booke, and found by experience that the ſame, as proceeding from Chriſt, was moſt ſweet, but in that it foretelleth the afflictions of the Church, it was moſt bitter unto his ſpirit. 8 A ſimple and plaine declaration of the ſigne before going, witneſſing the divine calling of S.Iohn and laying upon him the neceſſitie thereof.

C HAP. XI.

1 The Temple is commanded to be meaſured, 3 The Lord ſtirreth up two witneſſes, 7 whom the beaſt murthereth, 9 and no man burieth them. 11 God raiſeth them to life, 12 and calleth them up to heaven. 13 The wicked are terrified 15 by the trumpet of the ſeventh Angel: the reſurrection, 18 and judgement is deſcribed.

THen [1] was given me a reede like unto a rodde, and the Angel ſtood by, ſaying, Riſe and [2] mete the Temple of God, and the altar, and them that worſhip therein:

2 [3] But the [a] court which is without the Temple, [b] caſt out, and mete it not: for it is given unto the [4] Gentiles, and the holy Citie ſhall they treade under foote, [5] two and fourtie moneths.

3 But [6] I will give power unto my two witneſſes, and they ſhall [7] propheſie a thouſand two hundreth and threeſcore dayes, clothed in ſackcloth.

4 Theſe [8] are two olive trees, and two candleſtickes, ſtanding before the God of the earth.

5 [9] And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouthes, and de-

1 The authority of the intended revelation being declared, together with the neceſſitie of that calling which was particularly impoſed upon S.Iohn: hereafter foloweth the hiſtory of the eſtate of Chriſt his Church, both conflicting or warfaring, and overcomming in Chriſt. For both the true Church of Chriſt is ſaid to fight againſt that which is falſly ſo called, over the which Antichriſt ruleth, Chriſt Jeſus overthrowing Antichriſt by the ſpirit of his mouth: and Chriſt is ſaid to overcome moſt gloriouſly untill he ſhall ſlay the Antichriſt by the appearance of his comming, as the Apoſtle excellently teacheth, 2.Theſ.2.8. So this hiſtory hath two parts: one of the ſtate of the Church conflicting with the temptaions, unto the 16.Chap. the other of the ſtate of the ſame Church obtaining victory, thence unto the 20. Chapt. The firſt part hath two members moſt conveniently diſtributed into their times, whereof the firſt containeth an hiſtory of the Chriſtian Church for 1260. yeares, what time the Goſpel of Chriſt was as it were taken up from amongſt men into heaven: the ſecond containeth an hiſtory of the ſame Church unto the victory perfected. And theſe two members are briefly, though diſtinctly, propounded in this Chapter, but are both of them more at large dicourſed after in due order. For we underſtand the ſtate of the Church conflicting, out of Chapters 12.and 13.and of the ſame growing out of afflictions, out of the 14.15.and 16.Chapters. Neither did S.Iohn at unwares joyne together the hiſtory of theſe two times in this Chapter, becauſe here is ſpoken of propheſie, which all confeſſe to be but one juſt and immutable in the Church, and which Chriſt commanded to be continuall. The hiſtory of the former time reacheth unto the 14 verſe: the latter is ſet downe in the reſt of this Chapter. In the former are ſhewed theſe things; the calling of the ſervants of God in 4.verſes: the conflicts which the faithful muſt undergoe in their calling for Chriſt and his Church, thence unto the 10 verſe, and their reſurrection, and receiving up into heaven, unto the fourreenth verſe. In the calling of the ſervants of God are mentioned two things: the begetting and ſetling of the Church in two verſes, and the education thereof in two verſes. The begetting of the Church is here commended unto S.Iohn by ſigne, and by ſpeach: the ſigne is a meaſuring rod, and the ſpeach a commandement to meaſure the Temple of God, that is, to reduce the ſame unto a new forme: becauſe the Gentiles are already entred into the Temple of Jeruſalem, and ſhall ſhortly defile and overthrowe the ſame utterly. 2 Either that of Jeruſalem, which was a figure of the Church of Chriſt, or that heavenly exemplar, whereof verſe 19. but the firſt liketh me better, and the things following doe all agree thereunto. The ſenſe thereof is, Thou ſeeſt all things in Gods houſe, almoſt from the paſſion of Chriſt, to be diſordered: and that not onely the city of Jeruſalem, but alſo the court of the Temple is trampled underfoote of the nations, and of prophane men whether Jewes or ſtrangers: and that only the Temple, that is, the body of the Temple, with the Altar, and a ſmall company of good men which truely worſhip God, do now remaine, whom God doth ſanctifie and confirme by his preſence. Meaſure therefore this, even this true Church, or rather the true type of the true Church, omitting the reſt, and ſo deſcribe all things from mee, that the true Church of Chriſt may be as it were a very little center, and the Church of Antichriſt as the circle of the center, every way in length and breadth compaſſing about the ſame, that by way of propheſie thou mayeſt ſo declare openly, that the ſtate of the Temple of God, and the faithfull which worſhip him, that is, of the Church, is much more ſtreight then the Church of Antichriſt. 3 As if he ſhould ſay, It belongeth nothing unto thee, to judge thoſe which are without, 1.Corinth, 5.12. which be innumerable: looke unto thoſe of the houſhould onely, or unto the houſe of the living God. a He ſpeaketh of the outer court which was called the peoples court, becauſe all men might come into that. b That is, counted to be caſt out, which in meaſuring is refuſed as profane. 4 To profane perſons, wicked and unbeleeves, adverſaries unto the Church. 5 Or a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore dayes, as is ſaid in the next verſe: that is, a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore yeares. a day for a yeare, as often in Ezechiel and Daniel, which thing I noted before 2.10. The beginning of theſe thouſand two hundreth and threeſcore yeares, we account from the paſſion of Chriſt, whereby (the partition wall being broken downe) we were made of two, one, Epheſ.2.14. I ſay, one flock, under one ſhepheard, Iohn 10.16, and the end of theſe yeares preciſely falleth into the Popedome of Boniface the eight, who a little before the end of the yeare of Chriſt, a thouſand two hundreth ninety foure, entred the Popedome of Rome, in the feaſt of Sant Lucie (as Bergomenſis ſayeth) having put in priſon his predeceſſonr Coeleſtinus, whom by fraude, under colour of Oracle he deceived: for which cauſe that was well ſaid of him, Intravit ut vulpes, regnavit ut leo, mortuus eſt ut canis. That is, He entred like a foxe, reigned like a lyon, and died like a dogge. For if from a thouſand two hundreth ninetie foure yeares, thou ſhalt take the age of Chriſt, which he lived on the earth, thou ſhalt finde there remaineth juſt one thouſand two hundreth and threeſcore yeares, which are mentioned in this place and many others. 6 I had rather tranſlate it illud then illam, The Temple, then the Citie: for God ſayth, I will give that Temple, and commit it unto my two witneſſes, that is, unto the miniſters of the word, who are few in deede, weake and contemptible: but yet two, that is, of ſuch a number as one of them may helpe another, and one confirme the teſtimonie of another unto all men, that from the mouth of two or three witneſſes every word may be made good amongſt men, 2 Corinth. 13.1. 7 They ſhall exerciſe their office enioyned by me, by the ſpace of thoſe thouſand two hundred and ſixtie yeares, in the middeſt of afflictons though never ſo lamentable, which is figuratively ſhewed by the mourning garment. 8 That is, the ordinary and perpetuall inſtruments of ſpirituall grace, peace, and light in my Church, which God by his onely power preſerved in this Temple. So Zacharie 4.3. 9 The power and efficacie of the holy miniſtery, and which is truely Evangelicall, is declared both in earth and in heaven, protecting the adminiſters thereof, and deſtroying the enemies, in this verſe, vertue indeed divine, moſt mightily ſhewing it ſelfe foorth in heaven, earth, and the ſea, verſe 6.as it is deſcribed, 2.Corinthians 10.4.according to the promiſe of Chriſt, Marke 16.17. And this is the ſecond place (as I ſaid before) of the combats which the ſervants of God muſt needs undergoe in the executing of their calling, and of the things that follow the ſame combats. In the combats or conflicts are theſe things, to overcome, in theſe two verſes: to be overcome and killed, Verſe 7. After the ſlaughter, follow theſe things, that the carkeiſes of the godly are laid abroade, verſe 8. being unburied, are made a matter of ſcorne, together of curſing and bitter execrations, Verſe 9. and that therefore gratulations are publikely and privately made, Verſe 10.

voureth their enemies: for if any man will hurt them, thus muſt he be killed.

6 Theſe have power to ſhut heaven, that it raine not in the dayes of their prophecying, and have power over waters to turne them into blood, to ſmite the earth with all manner of plagnes as often as they will.

7 [10] And when they have [c] finiſhed their teſtimonie, [11] the beaſt that commeth out of the bottomleſſe pit, ſhall make warre againſt them, and ſhall [12] overcome them, and kill them.

8 And their corpſes ſhall lie in the [13] ſtreets of the great citie, which [d] ſpiritually is called Sodom, and Egypt, [14] where our Lord alſo was crucified.

9 And they of the people and kinreds, and tongues, and Gentiles ſhall ſee their corpſes [15] three dayes and an halfe, and ſhall not ſuffer their carkeiſes to be put in graves.

10 And they that dwell upon the earth, [16] ſhall reioyce over them and be glad, and ſhall ſend gifts one to another: for theſe two Prophets [17] vexed them that dwelt on the earth.

11 [18] But after [19] three dayes and an halfe, [20] the ſpirit of life comming from God, ſhall enter into them, and they [21] ſhall ſtand up upon their feet: and great feare ſhall come upon them which ſaw them.

10 And they ſhall heare a great voice from heaven, ſaying unto them, [22] Come up hither. And they ſhall aſcend up to heaven in a cloud, [23] and their enemies ſhal ſee them.

13 [24] And the ſame houre ſhall there be a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the citie ſhall fall, and in the earthquake ſhall be ſlaine in number ſeven thouſand: and the remnant were ſore feared, [25] and [e] gave glory to the God of heaven.

14 [26] The ſecond woe is paſt, and behold, the third woe will come anone.

15 [27] And the ſeventh Angel blew the trumpet, and there were great voyces in heaven, ſaying, [28] the kingdoms of the world are our Lords and his Chriſts, and he ſhall reigne for evermore.

16 [29] Then the foure and twentie Elders, which ſate before God on their ſeates, fell upon their faces, and worſhipped God, 17 Saying, We give thee thanks, Lord God Almightie, Which art, and Which waſt, and Which art to come: for thou haſt received thy great might, and haſt obtained thy Kingdome.

18 [30] And the Gentiles were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they ſhould be judged, and that thou ſhouldeſt give reward unto thy ſervants the Prophets, and to the Saints, and to them that feare thy Name, to ſmall and great, and ſhouldeſt deſtroy them, which deſtroy the earth.

19 Then the Temple of God was [31] opened in heaven, and there was ſeene in his Temple the Arke of his Covenant: and there were lightnings, and voyces, and thundrings, and earthquake, and much haile.

[10] That is, when they have ſpent thoſe thouſand two hundreth and ſixtie yeares, mentioned Verſe. 2. and 3. in publiſhing their reſtimony according to their office.

[c] When they have done their meſſage.

[11] Of which, after Chap. 13. &c. That beaſt is the Romane Empire, made long agoe of civill, Eccleſiaſticall: the chiefe head whereof was then Boniface the eight, as I ſaid before: who lifted up himſelfe in ſo great arrogancie, (ſayth the author of Faſciculus temporum) that he called himſelfe, Lord of the whole world, as well in temporall cauſes, as in ſpirituall: There is an extant of that matter, written by the ſame Boniface moſt arrogantly, ſhal I ſay, or moſt wickedly, Cap. Vnam ſanctā, extra de maioritate & obedientia. And in the ſixt of the Decretals (which is from the ſame author) many things are found of the ſame argument.

[12] He ſhall perſecute moſt cruelly the holy men, and put them to death, and ſhall wound and pierce through with curſings, both their names and writings. And that this was done to very many godly men, by Boniface, and others, the hiſtories doe declare, eſpecially ſince the time that the odious and condemned name amongſt the multitude, firſt, of the brethren Waldenſes or Lugdunenſes, then alſo of the Fratricels, was pretended, that good men might with more approbation be maſſacred. [13] That is, openly at Rome where at that time was a moſt great concourſe of people, the yeare of Iubile being then firſt ordained by Boniface unto the ſame end, in the yeare of Chriſt 1300. example whereof is read Chap. 1. Extra, de pœnitentiis & remiſſionibus. So by one acte he committed double injurie againſt Chriſt, both aboliſhing his trueth by the reſtoring of the type of the Iubile, and triumphing over his members by moſt wicked ſuperſtition. O religious heart! Now, that we ſhould underſtand the things of Rome. S. Iohn himſelfe is the authour, both after in the 17. chapter almoſt thoughout, and alſo in the circumſcription now next following, when he ſaith, it is that great Citie (as Cha. 17.18. he calleth it) and is ſpiritually tearmed Sodom and Egypt: and that ſpiritually (for that muſt here againe be repeated from before) Chriſt was there crucified. For the two firſt appellatious ſignifie ſpirituall wickedneſſe: the latter ſignifieth the ſhew and pretence of good, that is, of Chriſtian and ſound religion. Sodom ſignifieth moſt licentious impietie and injuſtice: Egypt, moſt cruell perſecution of the people of God: and Jeruſalem ſignifieth the moſt confident glorying of that city, as it were in true religion, being yet full of falſhood and ungodlineſſe. Now who is ignorant that theſe things doe rather, and more agree unto Rome, then unto any other city; The commendations of the city of Rome for many yeares paſt, are publikely notorious, which are not for me to gathet together. This onely I will ſay, that he long ſince did very well ſee what Rome is, who taking his leave thereof, uſed theſe verſes:

Roma vale, vidi, ſatis eſt vidiſſe: revertar
Quum leno, meretrix, ſcurra, cinædus ero.
Now farewell Rome, I have thee ſeene, it was enough to ſee:
I will returne when as I meane, bawd, harlot, knave to be.

[d] After a more ſecret kind of meaning and underſtanding [14] Namely in his members, as alſo he ſaid unto Saul, Actes 9.5. [15] That is, for three yeares and a halfe: for ſo many yeares Boniface lived after his Iubile, as Bergomenſis witneſſeth. [16] So much the more ſhal they by this occaſion exerciſe the jolity of their Iublile. [17] The Goſpel of Chriſt is the affliction of the world, and the miniſterie thereof, the ſavour of death unto death, to thoſe that periſh. 2 Cor. 2.16. [18] The thitd place as I noted before, is of the riſing againe of the Prophets from the dead, and their carying up into heaven. For their reſurrection is ſhewed in this verſe: their calling and liſting up into heaven, in the verſe following. [19] That is, what time God ſhall deſtroy that wicked Boniface. [20] That is, the Prophets of God ſhall in a ſort riſe againe, not the ſame in perſon (as they ſay) but in ſpirit: that is, in the power and efficacie of their miniſtery, which S. Iohn expreſſed before, verſe 5. and 6. And ſo the propheſie that is ſpoken of Elias, is interpreted by the Angel to be underſtood of Iohn the Baptiſt, Luke 1.17. For the ſame Boniface himſelſe, who ſought to kill and deſtroy them, was by the fire of Gods mouth (which the holy miniſtery ſheweth and exhibiteth) devoured, and died miſerably in priſon, by the endeavour of Sarra Columnenſis and Nogaretus a French knight, whom Philip the faire King of France ſent into Italy, but with a very ſmal power. [21] That is, the moſt grievons heat of afflictions and perſecution ſhall ſtay for a while, for the great amaze that ſhall ariſe upon that ſudden and unlooked for judgment of God. [22] They were called by God into heaven, and taken out of this malignant world, into the heavenly Church, which alſo lyeth hidden here in the earth, to exerciſe their calling ſecretly: as of whom this wretched world was unworthy, Heb. 11.38. For the Church of the wicked is by compariſon called the earth, or the world, and the Church of the godly, heaven. So in ancient time amongſt the godly Iſraelites: ſo amongſt the Iewes in the dayes of Manaſſes, and other kings, when the earth refuſed the heires of heaven, we read that they lay hidden as heaven in the earth.

[23] Yet could th not hinder the ſecret ones of th Lord (as the Pſalmiſt called them Pſal. 83.4.) but they that went o foward in his worke.

[24] Bergomenſis ſaith, in the year of our Lord, 1201 this yeare a blaſin ſtarre foretelling great calamity t come, appeare in heaven: in which yeare upo the feaſt of S Andrew, ſo grea an earthquake aroſe, as never before: which alſ continuing by times, for man dayes, overthre many ſtately houſes. This ſaith he of the yeare nex following the Iubile: which S Iohn ſo many age before, expreſſe word for word.

[25] They were indeed broken wit preſent aſtoniſhment of minde but did not earneſtly repent a they ought to have done.

[e] Glorified God b confeſsing his Name.

[26] He paſſeth unto the ſecond hiſtory, which is th ſecond part of thi Chapter. S. Iohn calleth theſe th ſecond and thir woe, having reſpect unto Chap 9.12.

[27] Of whoſe ſounding the trumpet, Chriſt expreſly foretold, Chap. 10 7. and this is th ſecond part of thi Chapter, containing a genera hiſtorie of the Chriſtian Church, from the time of Boniface 8. unto the conſummation of the victori declared by voyce from heaven. In this hiſtorie there are three branches, a preparation by the ſound of the Angels trumpet: a narration by the voyces of heavenly Angels and Elders, and a confirmation by ſigne. [28] The narration hath two parts: an acclamatio of the heavenly creatures in this verſe, and both an adoration by all the Elders, verſe 16 and alſo a moſt ample thankſgiving, Verſe 17.18. The ſence of the acclamation is, Now the Lord is entred on his Kingdome, and hath reſtored his Church, in which moſt mightily recovered from the prophanation of the Gentiles, he may glorifie himſelfe. Namely, that, which the Lord ordained, when firſt he ordained his Church, that the faith of th Saints doeth now behold as accompliſhed. [29] As before, 7.11. This giving of thanks is altogether of the ſame content with the words going before. [30] A ſpeach of th Hebrew language, as much to ſay, as Gentiles being angry, thine inflamed wrath came upo them, and ſhewed it ſelfe from heaven, occaſioned by their anger and furie. [31] This is the confirmation of the next prophecie before going, by ſignes exhibited in heaven and that of two ſorts, whereof ſome are viſible, as the paſſing away of the heaven, th opening of the Temple, the Arke of the Covenant appearing in the Temple, & teſtifying th glorious preſence of God, and the lightnings: others apprehended by eare and ſuch dul ſence, which beare witneſſe in heaven and earth to the truth of the judgements of God.

CHAP. XII.

1 A woman 2 appeareth travailing with child, 4 whoſe child the dragon would devoure, 7 but Michael overcommeth him, 9 and caſteth him out, 13 and the more he is caſt downe and vanquiſhed, the more fiercely he exerciſeth his ſubtilties.

AND [1] there appeared a great wonder in heaven: [2] A woman clothed with [1] Hitherto hat bene the genera prophecie, comprehended in two parts, as I ſhewed upon Chap. 11. Now ſhalbe declared the firſt part of this prophecie, in thi and the next chapter, and the latter part in the 14.15. and 16. chap. Vnto the firſt part, whic is of the conflicting or militant Church, belong two things. The beginning and the progreſſ of the ſame in conflicts and Chriſtian combats. Of which two, the beginning or up-ſpring o the Church is deſcribed in this chapter, and the progreſſe thereof in the chaprer following. The beginning of the Chriſtian Church we define to be from the firſt moment of the conception of Chriſt, until that time wherein this Church was as it were weaned & taken awa from the breaſt or milk of her mother: which is the Time when the Church of the Iewe with their city and Temple was overthrowen by the judgement of God. So we have in thi chapter the ſtory of 69. yeares and upwards. The parts of this chapter are three. The firſt, i the hiſtorie of the conception and bearing in wombe, in 4. verſes. The ſecond, a hiſtorie of the birth from the 5. verſe unto the 12. The third is, of the woman that ha brought forth, unto the end of the chap. And theſe ſeverall parts have every one thei conflicts. Therefore in that firſt part are two things contained, one, the conception an bearing in wombe, in two verſes: and another of the laying in wait of the Dragon again that ſhould be brought forth, in the next two verſes. In the firſt point are theſe things, th deſcription of the mother, verſe 1. and the dolours of child-birth, verſe 2. all ſhewed unt John from heaven. [2] A type of the true holy Church which then was in the nation o the Iewes. This Church (as is the ſtate of the holy Church Catholique) did in it ſelfe ſhine about with glory given of God, trode under feet mutablitie and changeableneſſe, and poſſeſſed the kingdome of heaven as the heire thereof.

the ſun,and the moone was under her feet, and upon her head a crowne of twelve ſtarres.

2 And [3] ſhe was with child, and cried travailing in birth, and was pained ready to be delivered.

3 And there appeared another wonder in heaven: [4] for behold a great red dragon having [5] ſeven heads, and ten [6] hornes, and ſeven crownes upon his heads:

4 [7] And his taile drew the third part of the ſtarres of heaven,and caſt them to the earth. And the dragon [8] ſtood before the woman, which was ready to be delivered, [9] to devoure her child, when ſhe had brought it forth.

5 [10] So ſhe brought forth a man [11] child, which ſhould rule all nations with a rod of yron: and that her childe was taken up unto God and to his throne.

6 [12] And the woman fled into the wilderneſſe, where ſhee hath a place prepared of God, that [13] they ſhould feed her there a thouſand two hundred & threeſcore dayes.

7 And there was a battel in heaven, [14] Michael and his Angels fought againſt the dragon,and the dragon fought and his angels.

8 [15] But they prevailed not, neither was their [a] place found any more in heaven.

9 And the great dragon, that old ſerpent, called the devill and Satan was caſt out, which deceiveth all the world: he was even caſt into the earth, and his angels were caſt out with him.

10 Then I heard a loud voice in heaven, ſaying, [16] Now is ſalvation,and ſtrength, & the kingdome of our God, and the power of his Chriſt: for the accuſer of our brethren is caſt down which accuſed them before our God day and night.

11 But they overcame him by that blood of the Lambe, and by that word of their teſtimonie, and they [b] loved not their lives unto the death.

12 Therfore rejoyce,ye heavens,and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabitants of the earth,and of the ſea: for the devill is come down unto you, which hath great wrath, knowing that he hath but a ſhort time.

13 And when [17] the dragon ſaw that he was caſt unto the earth, he perſecuted the woman which had brought forth the man child.

14 [18] But to the woman were given two wings of a great Eagle, that ſhe might flee into the wildernes, into her [c] place, where ſhe is nouriſhed for a [19] time,and times,and half a time,from the preſence of the ſerpent.

15 [20] And the ſerpent caſt out of his mouth water after the woman,like a flood,that he might cauſe her to be caried away of the flood.

16 [21] But the earth holpe the woman: and the earth opened her mouth,and ſwallowed up the flood, which the dragon had caſt out of his mouth.

17 [22] Then the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went and made war with the remnant of her ſeed, which keep the commandements of God, and have the teſtimony of Ieſus Chriſt.

18 [23] And I ſtood on the ſea ſand.

---

[3] For this is that barren woman that brought not forth, of the which Eſai 45.1. and Gal.4.27. ſhe cried out for good cauſe,and was tormented at that time, when in the judgement of all ſhe ſeemed neere unto death, and in manner ready to give up the ghoſt, by reaſon of her weakeneſſe and povertie.

[4] That is,the devill or Satan (as is declared,verſe 9.) mighty,angry,and full of wrath.

[5] Thereby to withſtand thoſe ſeven Churches ſpoken of, that is, the Catholike Church, and that with kingly furniture and tyrannicall magnificence: ſignified by the crownes ſet upon his heads, as if the ſame without controverſie belonged unto him by the proper right: as alſo he boaſted unto Chriſt, Matth.4.9. See after upon Chap.13.1.

[6] More then are the hornes of the Lambe, or then the Churches are: ſo well furniſhed doth the tyrant brag himſelfe to be unto all manner of miſchiefe.

[7] After the deſcription of Satan, followeth this action,that is, his batteil offered unto the Church, partly,to that which is viſible, wherein the wheate is mingled with the chaffe,& the good fiſh with that which is evill: a good part thereof though in appearance it ſhined as the ſtars ſhine in heaven, he is ſayed to be thruſt down out of heaven,and to pervert: for if it were poſſible he would pervert even the elect, Matt.24,24. and partly, to the elect members of the holy Catholike Church in the ſecond part of this verſe. Many therefore of the members of this viſible Church (ſaith S. Iohn) he overthrew and triumphed upon them.

[8] He withſtood that elect Church of the Iewes which was now ready to bring forth the Chriſtian Church, and watched for that ſhe ſhould bring forth. For the whole Church, and whole body is compared unto a woman: and a part of the Church unto that which is brought forth, as we have noted at large upon Can.7.6.

[9] Chriſt myſticall (as they call him) that is, the whole Church, conſiſteth of the perſon of Chriſt as the head,and of the body united thereunto by the Spirit, ſo is the name of Chriſt taken, 1 Cor.12.12.

[10] The ſecond hiſtory of this Church delivered of childe: in which firſt the conſideration of the child born, and of the mother is deſcribed in two verſes: ſecondly, the battell of the dragon againſt the yong child, and the victory obtained againſt him in 3. verſes following: laſt of all is ſung a ſong of victory, unto the 12 ver. Now S.Iohn in conſideration of the child born, noteth two things: for he deſcribeth him, and his ſtation or place in this verſe.

[11] That is Chriſt the head of the Church joyned with his Church (the beginning roote and foundation whereof is the ſame Chriſt) indowed with kingly power, and taken up into heaven out of the jawes of Satan (who as a Serpent did bite him upon the croſſe) that ſitting upon the celeſtiall throne, he might reigne over all.

[12] The Church of Chriſt which was of the Iewes, after his aſſumption into heaven,hid it ſelf in the world as in a wilderneſſe, truſting in the only defence of God, as witneſſeth S.Luke in the Acts of the Apoſtles.

[13] Namely,the Apoſtles and ſervants of God ordained to feed with the word of life,the Church collected both of the Iewes & Gentiles, unles that any man wil take the word alerent imperſonally, after the uſe of the Hebrewes, in ſtead of aleretur: but I like the firſt better. For hee hath reſpect unto thoſe two Prophets,of whom cha.11.3. as for the meaning of the 1260 dayes. looke the ſame place.

[14] Chriſt is the prince of Angels,and the head of the Church,who beareth that yron rod, ver. 5. See the notes upon Daniel.chap.12.1. In this verſe a deſcription of the battell, and of the victory in the 2. verſes following. The Pſalmiſt had reſpect unto this battel, Pſal.68.19.& Paul, Eph.4.8.& Col.2.15.

[15] The deſcription of the victory, by denying of one thing in this verſe, and by affirming the contrary in the next ver. As that Sathan gained nothing in heaven,but was by the power of God thrown down into the world wherof he is the prince; Chriſt himſelf and his elect members ſtanding ſtill by the throne of God.

[a] They were caſt out ſo, that they were never ſeen any more in heaven.

[16] The ſong of victory or triumph containing,firſt, a propoſition of the glory of God and of Chriſt ſhewed in that victory: Secondly, it containeth a reaſon of the ſame propoſition,taken from the effects, as that the enemie is overcome in battell, in this verſe, and that the godly are made conquerours (and more then conquerours, Rom.8.37.) verſe 11. Thirdly, a concluſion wherein is an exhortation unto the Angels,and to the Saints: and unto the world, a propheſie of great miſery, and of deſtruction procured by the devill againſt mankind, leſt himſelſe ſhould ſhortly be miſerable alone, verſe 12.

[b] He is ſaid in the Hebrew tongue, to love his life, that eſteemeth nothing more precious then his life: and on the other ſide, he is ſayd not to love his life, who doubteth not to hazard it, whereſoever need requireth.

[17] The third part: an hiſtory of the woman delivered, conſiſting of two members, the preſent battell of Satan,againſt the Church of the Iewiſh nation,in foure verſes: and the battell intended againſt the ſeed thereof, that is,againſt the Church of the Gentiles,which is called holy, by reaſon of the Goſpel of Chriſt,in the two laſt verſes.

[18] That is, being ſtrengthened with divine power: & taught by oracle, ſhee fled ſwiftly from the aſſault of the devill, and from the common deſtruction of Ieruſalem, and went into a ſolitary Citie beyond Iorden called Pella, as Euſebius telleth in the 5. chap. of the 3. booke of his Eccleſiaſticall hiſtorie: which place God had commanded her by revelation.

[c] Into that place which God had appointed for her.

[19] That is, for three yeares and an halfe: ſo the ſame ſpeach is taken, Dan.7.25. This ſpace of time is reckoned in manner from that laſt and moſt grievous rebellion of the Iewes, unto the deſtruction of the citie and Temple, for their defection or falling away, began in the twelfth yeare of Nero,before the beginning wherof, many foreſignes and predictions were ſhewed from heaven,as Ioſephus writeth, lib.7.cap.12. and Hegeſippus lib.5.cap.44. amongſt which this is very memorable, then in the feaſt of Pentecoſt not only a great ſound and noiſe was heard in the Temple, but alſo a great voyce was heard of many out of the Sanctuary, which cried out unto all, Let us depart hence. Now three yeares and a halfe after this defection was begun of the Iewes,and thoſe wonders happened, the citie was taken by force, the Temple overthrowen, and the place forſaken of God: and this compaſſe of time S. Iohn noted in this place.

[20] That is, he inflamed the Romanes and nations,that they perſecuting the Iewiſh people with cruell armes; might by the ſame occaſion invade the Church of Chriſt,now departed from Ieruſalem, and out of Iudea. For it is an uſuall thing in Scripture, that the raging tumults of the nations ſhould be compared unto waters.

[21] That is,there was offered in their place other Iewes, unto the Romanes and nations raging againſt that people, and it came to paſſe thereby, that the Church of God was ſaved whole from that violence, that moſt raging flood of perſecution, which the Dragon vomited out being altogether ſpent in the deſtruction of thoſe other Iewes.

[22] Being ſet on fire by this meanes, he began to be more mad, and becauſe he perceived that his purpoſe againſt the Chriſtian Church of the Iewiſh remnant was come to nought, he reſolved to fall upon her ſeed, that is, the Church gathered alſo by God of the Gentiles,and the holy members of the ſame. And this is that other branch,as I ſaid upon the thirteenth verſe,in which the purpoſe of Satan is ſhewed, ver. 17. and his attempt, ver.18.

[23] That is, a moſt mightie tempeſt that he ruſhed upon the whole world (whoſe prince he is) to raiſe the floods,and provoke the nations, that they might with their furious Billowes toſſe up and down,drive here and there, and finally, deſtroy the Church of Chriſt with the holy members of the ſame. But the providence of God reſiſted his attempt, that he might favour the Church of the Gentiles,yet tender,and as it were greene. The reſt of this ſtory of the Dragon is excellently proſecuted by the Apoſtle S. Iohn hereafter in the 20. chapter. For here the Dragon endevouring to doe miſchiefe, was by God caſt into priſon.

CHAP. XIII.

1 The beaſt with many heads is deſcribed, 12 which draweth the moſt part of the world to idolatry. 11 The other beaſt riſing out of the earth, 15 giveth power into him.

AND [1] I ſaw a beaſt riſe [2] out of the ſea, having ſeven heads, and [3] ten hornes, and upon his hornes were ten crownes, [4] and upon his head [5] the name of blaſphemie.

---

[1] The Apoſtle having declared the ſpringing up of the Chriſtian Church,& the eſtate of the Church from which ours taketh her beginning, doth now paſſe unto the ſtory of the progreſſe therof, as I ſhewed in the entrance of the former chapter. And this hiſtory of the progreſſe of the Church and the battels therof, is ſet down in this chapter,but diſtinctly in two parts, one is of the civil Romane Empire, unto ver. 10. Another of the body Eccleſiaſticall or prophetical, thence unto the end of the chapter. In the former part are ſhewed theſe things. Firſt, the ſtate of that Empire,in 4. verſes: then the acts therof in 3. verſes: after the effect: which is exceeding great glory, ver. 8. And laſt of all is commended the uſe, & the inſtruction of the godly againſt the evils that ſhal come from the ſame, ver.9.10. The hiſtory of the ſtate,containeth a moſt ample deſcription of the beaſt, firſt entire, ver. 1.2 & then reſtored after hurt, ver.3.4.

[2] On the ſand whereon ſtood the devill practiſing new tempeſts againſt the Church, in the ver. next before going: what time the Empire of Rome was endangered by domeſtical diſſenſions, & was mightily toſſed, having ever and anon new heads, and new Emperours. See in the 17. chap. & ver.8.

[3] Having the ſame inſtruments of power, providence, and moſt expert government which the Dragon is ſaid to have had, in the 12. chapter and the third verſe.

2 And the beaſt which I ſaw, was [6] like a Leopard, and his feet like a beares, and his mouth as the mouth of a lyon: [7] and the dragon gave him his power & his throne, and great authoritie.

3 [8] And I ſaw one of his heads as it were wounded to death, but his deadly wound was healed, and all the world wondered and followed the beaſt.

4 And they worſhipped the dragon which gave the power unto the beaſt, and they worſhipped the beaſt, ſaying, Who is like unto the beaſt! who is able to warre with him!

5 [9] And there was given unto him a mouth, that ſpake great things and blaſphemies, and power was given unto him, [10] to doe two and fourtie moneths.

6 And he opened his mouth unto blaſphemy againſt God to blaſpheme his Name, [11] and his tabernacle, [12] and them that dwel in heaven.

7 And it was given him to make warre with the Saints, and to overcome them, and power was given him over every kinred, and tongue, and nation.

8 Therefore all that dwell upon the earth, ſhall worſhip him: [13] whoſe names are not written in the Booke of Life of that Lambe, which was ſlaine from the beginning of the world.

9 [14] If any man have an eare, let him heare.

10 If any leade into captivitie, he ſhall go into captivitie: * if any man kill with a ſword, he muſt be killed by a ſword: heere is the patience, and the faith of the Saints.

11 [15] And I beheld another beaſt comming up out of the earth, [16] which had two hornes like the Lambe, but he ſpake like the dragon, 12 [17] And he did all that the firſt beaſt could do before him, and he cauſed the earth, and them which dwell therein, [18] to worſhip the firſt beaſt, whoſe deadly wound was healed.

13 [19] And he did great wonders, ſo that

---

[4] We reade in the twelft Chapter and 3. verſe, that the dragon had 7. crownes ſet upon 7 heads, becauſe the thiefe avoucheth himſelfe to be proper Lord and Prince of the world, but this beaſt is ſaid to have ten crownes ſet upon ſeverall, not heads but horns: becauſe the beaſt is beholden for all unto the dragon, ver. 2. and doeth not otherwiſe reigne, then by law of ſubjection given by him, namely, that he employ his hornes againſt the Church of God. The ſpeach is taken from the ancient cuſtome and forme of dealing in ſuch caſe: by which they that were abſolute kings, did weare the diademe upon their heads: but their vaſſals, and ſuch as reigned by grace from them, wore the ſame upon their hoods: for ſo they might commodiouſly lay down their diademes when they came into the preſence of their Sovereignes: as alſo their Elders are ſaid when they adored God which ſate upon the throne, to have caſt down their crownes before him, Chap. 4. ver. 10. 5 Contrary to that which God of old commanded ſhould be written in the head-piece of the high Prieſt, that is, Sanctitas Iohovæ, Holineſſe unto the Lord. The name of blaſphemie impoſed by the Dragon, is (as I thinke) that which S. Paul ſaith in the ſecond Chapter of his 2 Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, the fourth verſe: He ſitteth as God, and boaſteth himſelfe to be God. For this name of blaſphemie both the Romane Emperours did then challenge unto themſelves, as Suetonius and Dion do report of Caligula and Domitian: and after them the Popes of Rome did with full mouth profeſſe the ſame of themſelves, when they challenged unto themſelves Sovereigntie in holy things: of which kinde of ſayings the ſixt book of the Decretals, the Clementines, and the Extravagants, are very full. For theſe men were not content with that which Anglicus wrote in his Poetria, (the beginning whereof is, Papa ſtupor mundi, The Pope is the wonder of the world) Nec Deus es, nec homo, ſed neuter es inter utrumque: Thou art not God, ne art thou man, but neuter mixt of both: as the gloſſe witneſſeth upon the ſixt booke: But they were bold to take unto themſelves the very name of God: and to accept it given of other: according as almoſt an hundred and twenty yeares ſince, there was made for Sixtus the fourth, when he ſhould firſt enter into Rome in his dignitie Papall, a Pageant of triumph, & cunningly fixed upon the gate of the citie he ſhould enter at, having written upon it this blaſphemous verſe:

Oraclo vocis mundi moderaris habenas,
Et merito in terris crederis eſſe Deus.

THAT IS,

By oracle of thine own voyce, the world thou governſt all,
And worthily a God on earth men thinke and doe thee call.

Theſe and ſix hundreth the like, who can impute unto that modeſty whereby good men of old would have themſelves called the ſervants of the ſervants of God? Verely either this is a name of blaſphemie, or there is none at all. 6 Swift as the Leopard, eaſily claſping all things, as the Beare doth with his foot, and tearing and devouring all things with the mouth as doth the Lyon. 7 That is, he lent the ſame unto the beaſt to uſe, when he perceived that himſelfe could not eſcape, but muſt needs be taken by the hand of the Angel, and caſt into the bottomleſſe pit, Chap. 20. yet did not he abandon the ſame utterly from himſelfe, but that he might uſe it as long as he could. 8 This is the other place that appartaineth to the deſcription of the beaſt of Rome: that beſides that naturall dignity, and amplitude of the Romane Empire, which was ſhadowed in the two former verſes, there was added this alſo as miraculous, that one head was wounded, as it were, unto death, and was healed againe, as from heaven, in the ſight of all men. This head was Nero the Emperour, in whom the race of the Cæſars fell from the imperiall dignitie, and the government of the Common weale was tranſlated unto others: in whoſe hands the Empire was ſo cured and recovered unto health, as it ſeemed unto all ſo much the more deepely rooted and grounded faſt, then ever before. And hence followed thoſe effects, which are next ſpoken of: Firſt an admiration of certaine power, as it were, ſacred and divine, ſuſtaining the Empire and governing it: Secondly, the obedience and ſubmiſſion of the whole earth, in this verſ. Thirdly, the adoration of the Dragon, and moſt wicked worſhipping of devils, confirmed by the Romane Emperours: Laſtly, the adoration of the beaſt himſelfe, which grew into ſo great eſtimation, as that both the name & worſhip of a god was given unto him, verſe the fourth, Now there were two cauſes which brought in the mindes of men this Religion: the ſhew of excellencie, which bringeth with it reverence: and the ſhew of power invincible, which bringeth feare. Who is like (ſay they) unto the beaſt? Who ſhall be able to fight with him? 9 The ſecond member containing an hiſtorie of the actes of the beaſt, as I ſaid verſe 1. The hiſtorie of them is concluded in two points: the beginning, and the manner of them. The beginning is the gift of the Dragon, who put and inſpired into the beaſt both his impiety againſt God, and his immanitie and injuſtice againſt all men, eſpecially againſt the godly, and thoſe that were of the houſhold of faith, verſe the fift. The manner of the actes, or actions done, is of two ſorts, both impious in minde, and blaſphemous in ſpeach againſt God, his Church, and the godly, verſe the ſixt: and alſo moſt cruell and injurious in deedes, even ſuch as were done of moſt raging enemies, and of moſt inſolent and proud conquerours, verſe the ſeventh. 10 Namely his actions, and manner of dealing. As concerning thoſe two and fourty moneths, I have ſpoken of them before in the 12. Chapter, and ſecond verſe. 11 That is, the holy Church, the true houſe of the living God 12 That is, the godly in ſeverall who hid themſelves from his cruelty. For this bloody beaſt ſurcharged thoſe holy ſoules moſt falſly with innumerable accuſations for the Name of Chriſt, as we reade in Iuſtine Martyr, Tertullian, Arnobius, Minutius, Euſebius, Auguſtine, and others: which examples the latter times followed moſt diligently, in deſtroying the flock of Chriſt: and we in our own memory have found by experience, to our incredible griefe. Concerning heaven, See in the eleventh chapter and in the twelft verſe.

[13] That is, ſuch as are not from everlaſting, elected in Chriſt Ieſus. For this is that Lambe ſlaine, of which, Chapter the fift, verſe the ſixt. Theſe words I doe with Aretas, diſtinguiſh in this manner: Whoſe names are not written from the laying of the foundation of the world, in the Booke of Life of the Lambe ſlaine. And this diſtinction is confirmed by a like place hereafter, chap. 17. 8.

[14] The concluſion of this ſpeach of the firſt beaſt, conſiſting of two parts. An exhortation to attentive audience, in this verſe: and a foretelling, which partly containeth threatnings againſt the wicked, & partly comforts for thoſe which in patience and faith ſhall waite for that glorious comming of our Lord and Saviour Chriſt, verſe the tenth. * Geneſ. 9. 6. Matt. 26. 52. 15 The ſecond member of the viſion, concerning the Eccleſiaſticall dominion, which in Rome ſucceeded that which was politike, and is in the power of the corporation of falſe prophets, and of the forgers of falſe doctrine. Wherefore the ſame beaſt, and the ſame body, or corporation is called by S. Iohn by the name of falſe prophet, Chap. 16. verſ. 13. and 19. ver. 20. The forme of this beaſt is firſt deſcribed in this verſe, then his acts in the verſes following: & the whole ſpeach is concluded in the laſt verſe. This beaſt is by his breed, a ſon of the earth (as they ſay) obſcurely born, and by little and little creeping up out of his abject ſtate. 16 That is, in ſhew he reſembled the Lambe (for what is more milde or more humble then to be the ſervant of the ſervants of God?) but in deed he played the part of the Dragon, and of the Wolfe, Matth. 7. 15. For even Satan changeth himſelfe into an Angel of light, 2 Cor. 11. 14. & what ſhould his honeſt diſciples and ſervants doe? 17 The hiſtorie of the actes of this beaſt containeth in ſum three things, hypocriſie, the witneſſe of miracles, and tyrannie: of which the firſt is noted in this verſe, the ſecond in the 3 verſes following, the third in the ſixteenth & ſeventeenth verſes. His hypocriſie is moſt full of leaſing, whereby he abuſeth both the former beaſt and the whole world: in that albeit he hath by his cunning, & as it were by lime, made of the former beaſt a moſt miſerable σκίλετον, or anatomie, uſurped all his authority unto himſelfe, and moſt impudently exerciſeth the ſame in the ſight and view of him: yet he carieth himſelfe ſo, as if he honoured him with moſt high honour, and did in very good trueth cauſe him to be reverenced of all men. 18 For unto this beaſt of Rome, which of a civil Empire is made an Eccleſiaſticall hierarchie, are given divine honours, and divine authority ſo farre, as he is beleeved to be above the Scriptures, which the gloſſe upon the Decretals declareth by this deviliſh verſe:

Articulos ſoluit, ſynodumque facit generalem.

THAT IS,

He changeth the Articles of Faith, and giveth authoritie to generall Councels.

Which is ſpoken of the Papal power. So the beaſt is by birth, foundation, ſeat, and finally ſubſtance, one: onely the Pope hath altered the forme and manner thereof, being himſelfe the head both of that tyrannical Empire, and alſo of the falſe prophets: for the Empire hath he taken unto himſelf, and thereunto hath added this cunning device. Now theſe words, whoſe deadly wound was cured, are put here for diſtinction ſake. as alſo ſometimes afterwards: that even at that time the godly readers of this prophecie, might by this ſigne be brought to ſee the things as preſent: as if it were ſaid, that they might adore this very Empire that now is, whoſe head we have ſeene in our own memory to have been cut off, and to be cured againe. 19 The ſecond point of the things done by the beaſt, is the credit of great wonders or miracles, and pertaining to the ſtrengthening of this impietie: of which ſignes ſome were given from above, as it is ſaid, that fire was ſent down from heaven by falſe ſorcerie, in this verſe. Others were ſhewed here below in the ſight of the beaſt, to eſtabliſh idolatry, and deceive ſoules: which part Saint Iohn ſetteth forth, beginning (as they ſay) at that which is laſt, in this manner: Firſt, the effect is declared in theſe words: He deceiveth the inhabitants of the earth. Secondly, the common manner of working, in two ſorts: one of miracles, For the ſignes which were given him to doe in the preſence of the beaſt: the other of the words added to the ſignes, and teaching the idolatrie by thoſe ſignes, Saying unto the inhabitants of the earth, that they ſhould make an image unto the beaſt, which, &c. Thirdly, a ſpeciall manner is declared. That it is given unto him to put life unto the image of the beaſt: and that ſuch a kinde of quickening, that the ſame both ſpeaketh by anſwere unto thoſe that aske counſell of it, and alſo pronounceth death againſt all thoſe that doe not obey nor worſhip it: all which things oftentimes by falſe miracles through the procurement and inſpiration of the devill, have been effected and wrought in images. The hiſtories of the Papiſts are full of examples of ſuch miracles, the moſt of them fained, many alſo done by the devill in images, as of old in the Serpent, Geneſis the third Chapter, and the firſt verſe. By which examples is confirmed not the authority of the beaſt, but the trueth of God and theſe propheſies.

he made fire to come down from heaven on the earth, in the ſight of men, 14 And deceived them that dwell on the earth by the ſignes, which were permitted him to doe in the ſight of the beaſt, ſaying to them that dwell on the earth, that they ſhould make the [20] image of the [21] beaſt which had the wound of a ſword, and did live.

15 [22] And it was permitted to him to give a [a] ſpirit unto the image of the beaſt, ſo that the image of the beaſt, ſhould ſpeake, and ſhould cauſe that as many as would not worſhip the image of the beaſt, ſhould be killed.

16 [23] And he made all both ſmall and great, rich and poore, free and bond, to receive [24] a [b] marke in their right hand or in their foreheads,

17 And that no man might [25] buy or ſel, ſave he that had the [26] marke or the name of the beaſt, or the number of his name.

18 [27] Here is wiſedome, Let him that hath wit, count the number of the beaſt: for it is the [28] number of a man, and his number is ſix hundreth threeſcore and ſix.

Chap. XIV.

1 The Lambe ſtandeth on mount Sion, 4 with his chaſte worſhippers. 6 One Angel preacheth the Goſpel, 8 another foretelleth the fall of Babylon: 9 the third warneth that the beaſt be avoided. 13 A voyce from heaven pronounceth them happie who die in the Lord. 16 The Lords ſickle is thruſt into the harveſt, 18 and into the vintage.

THen I looked, & lo, a Lambe [1] ſtood on mount Sion, & with him [2] an hundreth, fourty & foure thouſand, having his Fathers [3] Name written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voyce from heaven as the ſound of many waters, and as the ſound of a great thunder: and I heard the voyce of harpers, harping with their harpes,

3 And they ſung as it were a new ſong before the throne, & before the foure beaſts, & the Elders: and no man could learne that ſong, but the hundreth fourty and foure thouſand, which were bought from the earth.

4 Theſe are they which are not defiled with women: for they are virgins: theſe follow the Lambe whitherſoever he goeth: theſe are bought from men, being the firſt fruits unto God, and to the Lambe:

5 And in their mouthes was found no guile: for they are without ſpot before the throne of God.

6 ¶ [4] Then I ſaw [5] another Angel flie in the mids of heaven, having an everlaſting Goſpel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kinred, and tongue, and people,

7 [6] * Saying with a loud voice, Feare God, and give glory to him: for the houre of his judgement is come: and worſhip him that made * heaven and earth, and the ſea, and the fountaines of waters.

8 And there followed another Angel, ſaying, * Babylon that great citie is fallen, it is fallen: for ſhe made all nations to drink of the wine of the [a] wrath of her fornication.

9 ¶ And the third Angel followed them, ſaying with a lowd voice, [7] If any man

[20] That is, images, by enallage or change of the number: for the worſhip of them ever ſince the ſecond counſel of Nice, hath been ordained in the Church by publike credite and authoritie, contrary to the Law of God.

[21] In the Greeke the word is of the Dative caſe, as much to ſay, as unto the worſhip, honour and obeying of the beaſt, for by this maintenance of images, this pſeudo-propheticall beaſt doeth mightily profit the beaſt of Rome, of whom long agoe he received them. Wherefore the ſame is hereafter very fitly called the image of the beaſt, for that images have their beginning from the beaſt, and have their forme or manner from the will of the beaſt, and have their end and uſe fixed in the profit and commoditie of the beaſt.

[22] And of this miracle of the images of the beaſt, (that is, which the beaſt hath ordained to eſtabliſh idolatry) which miraculouſly ſpeake, and give judgement, or rather marvailouſly, by the fraud of the falſe prophets, the Papiſts bookes are full fraughted.

[a] To give life, as Iannes and Iambres imitated the wonders that Moſes wrought.

[23] The third place, is a moſt wicked and moſt inſolent tyranny, as was ſayde before, uſurped over the perſons of men, in this verſe: and over their goods and actions, in the next verſe. For he is ſayd both to bring upon all perſons a tyrannous ſervitude ſo ye as bondſlaves they might ſerve the beaſt: and alſo, to exerciſe over all their goods & actions, a Pedler-like abuſe of indulgences and diſpenſations (as they terme them) amongſt their friends, and againſt others, to uſe moſt violent interdictions, and to ſhoote out curſings, even in naturall and civill, private and publike contracts, wherein all good faith ought to have place.

[24] That is, their Chriſme, by which in the Sacrament (as they call it) of Confirmation, they make ſervile unto themſelves, the perſons and doings of men, ſigning them in their forehead and hands, and as for the ſigne left by Chriſt (Of which Chapter 7.3.) and the holy ſacrament of Baptiſme they make as voyde. For whom Chriſt hath joyned unto himſelfe by Baptiſme, this beaſt maketh callenge unto them by his greaſie Chriſme, which he doubteth not to preferre before Baptiſme, both in authoritie and in efficacie.

[b] The marke of the name of the beaſt.

[25] That is, have any traffique or entercourſe with men, but they onely which have this anointing and conſecrating of Clearkly tonſure, as they call it. Reade Gratian De conſecratione, diſtinctione tertia, c. omnes ſpiritus ſanctus, &c. of theſe matters.

[26] Here the falſe prophets doe require three things, which are ſet downe in the order of their greatnes, a character, a name, & the number of the name. The meaning is, that man that hath not their firſt anointing, & clericall tonſure or ſhaving: ſecondly, holy orders, by receiving whereof is communicated the name of the beaſt: or finally, hath not attained that high degree of Pontificall knowledge, and of the Law (as they call it) Canonicall, and hath not as it were made up in account and caſt the number of the myſteries thereof: for in theſe things conſiſteth the number of that name of the beaſt. And this is excellently ſet forth in the next verſe.

[27] That is, in this number of the beaſt conſiſteth that Popiſh wiſedome, which unto them ſeemeth the greateſt of all others. In theſe words Saint Iohn expoundeth that ſaying, which went before of the number of the beaſt, what it hath above his marke or cogniſance and his name. Theſe things, ſaith Saint Iohn, the marke and the name of the beaſt doe eaſily happen unto any man, but to have the number of the beaſt, is wiſedome: that is, onely the wiſe and ſuch as have underſtanding, can come by that number: for they muſt be moſt illuminate doctours that attaine thereunto, as the words following doe declare.

[28] How great and of what denomination this number of the beaſt is, by the which the beaſt accounteth his wiſedome, Saint Iohn declareth in theſe words, Doeſt thou demaund how great it is? it is ſo great that it occupieth the whole man: he is alway learning, and never commeth to the knowledge thereof: he muſt be a man indeede that doeth attaine unto it. Askeſt thou of what denomination it is? verely it ſtandeth of ſixe throughout, and perfectly riſeth of all the parts thereof in their ſeveral denominations (as they terme them:) it ſtandeth of ſix by unities, tens, hundreds, &c. ſo as there is no one part in the learning and order Pontificall, which is not either referred unto the head, and, as it were, the toppe thereof, or contained in the ſame: ſo fitly doe all things in this hierarchie agree one with another, and with their head, Therefore that cruell beaſt Boniface the eight, doeth commend by the number of ſixe thoſe Decretals which he perfected, in the prooeme of the ſixt booke. Which booke (ſaith he) being to be added to five other bookes of the ſame volume of Decretals, we thought good to name Sextum, the ſixt: that the ſame volume by addition thereof containing a ſenarie, or the number of ſix bookes (which is a number perfect) may yeeld a perfect forme of managing all things, and perfect diſcipline of behaviour. Here therefore is the number of the beaſt, who powreth from himſelfe all his parts, and bringeth them all backe againe unto himſelfe by his diſcipline in moſt wiſe and cunning manner. If any man deſire more of this, let him reade the gloſſe upon that place. I am not ignorant that other interpretations are brought upon this place: but I thought it my duetie, with the good favour of all, and without the offence of any, to propound mine opinion in this point. And for this cauſe eſpecially, for that it ſeemed ~~unto~~ me neither profitable, nor like to be a true, that the number of the beaſt, or of the name of the beaſt ſhould be taken as the common ſort of interpreters doe take it. For this number of the beaſt teacheth, giveth out, imprinteth, as a publike marke of ſuch as be his, and eſteemeth that marke above all others, as the marke of thoſe whom he loveth beſt. Now thoſe other expoſitions ſeeme rather to be farre remooved from this propertie and condition of that number: whether you reſpect the name Latinus, or Titan, or any other. For theſe the beaſt doeth not teach, nor give forth, nor imprint, but moſt diligently forbiddeth to be taught, and and aciouſly denieth: he approoveth not theſe, but reproveth them: and hateth them that thinke ſo of this number, with an hatred greater then that of Vatinius.

[1] The hiſtorie of the Church of Chriſt being finiſhed for more then a thouſand & three hundreth yeares, at which time Boniface the eight lived, as before hath been ſaid: there remaineth the reſt of the hiſtory of the conflicting or militant Church, from thence unto the time of the laſt victorie in three Chapters. For firſt of all, as the foundation of the whole hyſtory, is deſcribed, the ſtanding of the Lambe with his armie and retinue in five verſes, after his worthy acts which he hath done, and yet doth in moſt mighty manner, whileſt he overthroweth Antichriſt with the ſpirit of his mouth, in the reſt of this chapter, & in the two following. Vnto the deſcription of the Lambe, are propounded three things, his ſituation, place and attendance: for the reſt are expounded in the former viſions, eſpecially upon the fift Chapter.

[2] As ready girt to doe his office (as Acts 7.56.) in the midſt of the Church, which a foretime mount Sion did prefigure.

[3] As before 7.2. This retinue of the Lambe is deſcribed firſt by divine marke (as before 7.2.) in this verſe. Then by divine occupation, in that all and every one in his retinue moſt vehemently and ſweetly (verſe 2.) doe glorifie the Lambe with a ſpeciall ſong before God & his elect Angels: which ſong fleſh & blood cannot heare, nor underſtand, ver 3. Laſtly, by their deeds done before, and their ſanctification in that they were virgins pure from ſpirituall and bodily fornication, that is, from impietie and unrighteouſneſſe, that they followed the Lambe as a guide unto all goodnes, and cleaved unto him: that they are holy unto him, as of grace redeemed by him: that in truth & ſimplicitie of Chriſt they have exerciſed all theſe things, ſanctimonie of life, the direction of the Lambe, a thankful remembrance of redemption by him: finally (to conclude in a word) that they are blameleſſe before the Lord, ver. 4. 5.

[4] The other part (as I ſaid on the firſt verſe) is of the actes of the Lambe, the manner whereof is delivered in two ſorts, of his ſpeach and of his facts, His ſpeaches are ſet forth unto the 13 verſe of this chapter, and his facts unto the 16. chap. In the ſpeach of the Lamb, which is ye word of the Goſpel, are taught in this place theſe things: The ſervice of the godly conſiſting inwardly of reverence towards God, and outwardly of the glorifying of him: the viſible ſigne of which is adoration, ver. 7. The overthrowing of wicked Babylon, verſe 8. and the fall of every one of the ungodly which worſhip the beaſt, ver. 9. 10. 11. Finally, the ſtate of the holy ſervants of God, both preſent, ver. 11. & to come, moſt bleſſed, according to the promiſe of God, ver. 13.

[5] This Angel is a type or figure of the good and faithfull ſervants of God, whom God eſpecially from ye time of Boniface the 8 hath raiſed up to the publiſhing of the Goſpel of Chriſt, both by preaching & by writing. So God firſt, neere unto the time of ye ſame Boniface, uſed Peter Caſſidorus an Italian: after Arnold, de villa nova, a Frenchman, then Occam, Dante, Petrarch, after that, Iohannes de rupe ceſſa, a Franciſcane: after againe: Iohn Wicklife an Engliſhman, and ſo continually one or another unto the reſtoring of the trueth, and enlarging of his Church.

[6] That is, Babylon is deſtroyed by the ſentence and judgment of God: the execution whereof S. Iohn deſcribeth, Chap. 18. And this voice of the miniſters of Chriſt hath continued ſince the time that Babylon (which is Rome) hath by deliberate counſel and manifeſt malice oppugned the light of the Goſpel offered from God.

* Pſal. 145. 6. * Acts 14. 15. * Iſa. 21. 9. Ier. 51. 8. Chap. 8. 2.

[a] Of her fornication, whereby God was provoked to wrath.

[7] That is, ſhall not worſhip God alone, but ſhall transferre his divine honour unto this beaſt, whether he doe it with his heart, or counterfetting in ſhew. For he (ſaith Chriſt) that denieth me before men, him will I denie before my Father and his Angels, Mat. 10. 32. And this is that voice of the holy miniſtery, which at this time is very much uſed of the holy and faithfull ſervants of God. For having now ſufficiently found out the publike obſtinacie of Babylon, they labour not any longer to thunder out againſt the ſame: but to ſave ſome particular members by terror (as S. Iude ſpeaketh) and to plucke them out of the publike flame: or els by vehement commiſeration of their eſtate to lead them away, they ſet before them eternall death, into which they ruſh unwares, unleſſe in good time they return unto God: but the godly which are of their own flocke, they exhort unto patience, obedience, and faith in ye Lord Ieſus, & charge them to give light by their good example, of good life unto others.

worſhip the beaſt and his image, & receive his marke in his forehead, or on his hand,

10 The ſame ſhall drinke of the wine of the wrath of God, yea, of the pure wine, which is powred into the cup of his wrath, and he ſhall be tormented in fire and brimſtone before the holy Angels, and before the Lambe.

11 And the ſmoke of their torment ſhall aſcend evermore: and they ſhall have no reſt day nor night, which worſhip the beaſt and his image, and whoſoever receiveth the print of his name.

12 [8] Here is the patience of Saints: here are they that keep the Commandements of God, and the faith of Jeſus.

13 Then I heard a voice from heaven, ſaying unto me, Write, The dead which die [b] in the Lord, are fully bleſſed. Even ſo ſayeth the Spirit: for they reſt from their labours, and their [c] works follow them.

14 ¶ [9] And I looked, and beholde, a [10] white cloude, and upon the cloude one ſitting like unto the Son of man, [11] having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a [12] ſharpe ſickle.

15 [13] And another Angel came out of the Temple, crying with a loud voyce to him that ſate on the cloude, * Thruſt in thy ſickle, and reape: for the time is come to reape: for the * harveſt of the earth is ripe.

16 And he that ſat on the cloud, thruſt in his ſickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17 [14] Then another Angel came out of the Temple, which is in heaven, having alſo a ſharpe ſickle.

18 And another Angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire, & cryed with a loud crie to him that had the ſharpe ſickle, and ſaid, Thruſt in thy ſharpe ſickle, and gather the cluſters of the vineyard of the earth: for her grapes are ripe.

19 And the Angel thruſt in his ſharpe ſickle on the earth, & cut down the vines of the vineyard of the earth, and caſt them into that great wine-preſſe of the wrath of God.

20 And the wine-preſſe was troden without the citie, [15] & blood came out of the wine-preſſe unto the horſe-bridles, by the ſpace of a thouſand and ſix hundreth furlongs.

8 The patience, ſanctification, and juſtification by faith: the conſequence whereof are, reſt, felicitie, and glory eternall in the heavenly fellowſhip of God and his Angels.

b That is, for the Lord

c By works, is meant the reward which followeth good works.

9 The ſecond part of this chapter, as I ſaid ver. 1. Of the actes and doings of Chriſt, in overthrowing of Antichriſt and his Church by the Spirit of his divine mouth: ſeeing that having been called backe by word both publikely & privately unto his duety, and admoniſhed of his moſt certain ruine: he yet ceaſeth not to maintaine and protect his own adherents, that they may doe him ſervice: and to afflict the godly with moſt barbarous perſecutions. Of thoſe things which Chriſt doth, there are 2 kinds: one common or generall in the reſt of this chap, another particular againſt that ſavage and rebellious beaſt & his worſhippers, chap. 15.16. That common kind, is the calamity of wars, ſpread abroad through the whol earth, and filling all things with blood, and that without reſpect of any perſon. This is figured or ſhadowed out in 2. types, of the harveſt and vintage. Since the time that the light of the Goſpel began to ſhine out, and ſince prophecie or preaching by the grace of God was raiſed up againe, how horrible wars have bin kindled in yͤ world: how much humane fleſh hath beene throwen to yͤ earth by this divine reaping? how much blood (alas for wo) hath overflown for theſe 100. yeares almoſt? all hiſtories do cry out, & this our age (if ever before) is now in horror by reaſon of the rage of that ſickle which Antichriſt calleth for. In this place is the firſt type, that is of the harveſt. 10 Declaring his fierceneſſe by his colour, like unto that which is in the white or milke circle of heaven 11 As one that ſhall reigne from God, and occupie the place of Chriſt in this miſerable execution. 12 That is, a moſt fit and commodious inſtrument of execution, deſtroying all by hewing and thruſting through: for who may ſtand againſt God? 13 Chriſt giveth a commandement in this verſe, and the Angel executeth it in the next verſe. * Ioel 3. 13. * Matt. 13. 39. 14 The other type (as I ſayd verſ. 14.) is the vintage: the manner whereof is one with that which went before, if thou except this, that the grape gathering is more exact in ſeeking out every thing, then is the harveſt labour. This is therefore a more grievous judgment, both becauſe it ſucceedeth the other, and becauſe it is underſtood to be executed with great diligence. 15 That is, it overflowed very deep, and very farre and wide: the ſpeech is hyperbolicall or exceſſive, to ſignifie the greatneſſe of the ſlaughter. And theſe be thoſe pleaſant fruits forſooth, of the contempt of Chriſt, and deſiring of Anti~~chriſt rather th~~en him, which the miſerable, mad, and blind world doeth at this time reape.

C H A P. XV.

1 The ſeven Angels having the ſeven laſt plagues. 3 They that conquered the beaſt, praiſe God. 6 To the ſeven Angels, 7 ſeven vials full of Gods wrath, are delivered.

AND [1] I ſaw another ſigne in heaven, great and marveilous, ſeven [2] Angels, having the ſeven laſt plagues: for by them is fulfilled the wrath of God.

2 [3] And I ſaw [4] as it were a glaſſie ſea, mingled with fire, and [5] them that had gotten victory of the beaſt, and of his image, and of his marke, and of the number of his Name, [6] ſtand at the glaſſie ſea, having the harpes of God,

3 And they ſung [7] the ſong of Moſes the [a] ſervant of God, & the ſong of the Lambe, ſaying, [8] Great and marveilous are thy workes, Lord God Almightie: juſt and true are thy * [b] wayes, King of Saints.

4 * Who ſhall not feare thee, O Lord, and glorifie thy Name! for thou onely art holy, and all nations ſhal come and worſhip before thee: before thy judgements are made manifeſt.

5 [9] And after that I looked, and behold, the Temple of the Tabernacle of Teſtimonie was open in heaven.

6 And the ſeven Angels came out of the Temple, which had the [10] ſeven plagues, clothed in [11] pure and bright linnen, and having their breaſts [12] girded with golden girdles.

7 And one of the [13] foure beaſts gave unto the ſeven Angels ſeven golden vials full of the wrath of God, which liveth for evermore.

8 And the Temple was full of the ſmoke of the glory of God, and of his power, [14] and no man was able to enter into the Temple, till the ſeven plagues of the ſeven Angels were fulfilled.

1 This is that other place of the acts of Chriſt, as I noted before 14. 14. Now therefore is ſhewed a ſingular worke of the judgement of God belonging to the overthrow of Antichriſt and his forces, of which divine worke the preparation is deſcribed in this Chapter: and the execution in the next. The preparation is firſt ſet down generally and in type in this verſe: and is after particularly ſet foorth in the reſt of the Chapter.

2 Of which Chap. 8. 9. in powring forth the plagues of the world: for even theſe plagues do for the moſt part agree with thoſe.

3 There are two parts of the narration: one, the confeſſion of the Saints, glorifying God, when they ſaw the preparation of the judgments of God, unto the 4. verſe: another the vocation, inſtruction, and confirmation of thoſe inſtruments which God hath ordained for the execution of his judgements, in foure other verſes.

4 This part of the viſion alludeth unto yͤ ſea, or large veſſel of braſſe, in which the Prieſts waſhed themſelves in the entrance of the temple: for in the entrance of yͤ heavenly Temple (as it is called ver. 5.) is ſaid to have bin a ſea of glaſſe, moſt lightſome & cleare, unto yͤ commoditie of choiſe mixt with fire, yͭ is, as containing the treaſury of the judgements of God, which he bringeth forth and diſpenſeth according to his own pleaſure: for out of the former, the Prieſts were cleanſed of old: and out of this the ungodly are deſtroyed now, Chap. 4.6. 5 That is, the godly Martyrs of Chriſt, who ſhall not give place even in miracles unto that beaſt: of theſe ſee before, Chap. 13. 17. and 14. 9. 10. 6 Glorifying God, from the particular obſervation of the weapons and inſtruments of Gods wrath, floting in the ſea of glaſſe. 7 That ſong of triumph, which is Exod. 15. 2. a So is Moſes called for honours ſake, as it is ſet forth, Deut. 34. 10. 8 This ſong hath two parts: one a confeſſion, both particular, in this verſe, and generall, in the beginning of the next verſe: another, a narration of cauſes belonging to the confeſſion, wherof one kinde is eternall in it ſelfe, and moſt preſent unto the godly, in that God is both holy, and alone God: another kind is future, and to come, in that the elect taken out of the Gentiles (that is, out of the wicked ones and unbeleeving: as Chap. 11. 2.) were to be brought unto the ſame ſtate of happineſſe, by the magnificencie of the judgement of God in the next verſe. * Pſa. 145. 17. b Thy doings. * Iere. 10. 7. 9 The ſecond part of the narration (as was noted ver. 2.) wherein firſt, the authoritie of the whole argument and matter thereof is figured, by a forerunning type of a Temple opened in heaven. as Chap. 11, 19. namely, that all thoſe things are divine and of God, that proceed from thence, in this verſe. Secondly, the adminiſters or executers, come foorth out of the Temple, ver. 6. Thirdly, they are furniſhed with inſtruments of the judgements of God, and weapons fit for the manner of the ſame judgements, ver. 7. Finally, they are confirmed by teſtimony of the viſible glory of God, in the laſt verſe. A like teſtimony whereunto was exhibited of old in the law. Exod. 40. 34. 10 That is, commandements to inflict thoſe ſeven plagues. Here is the figure called Metonymia. 11 Which was in old time a ſigne of the kingly or princely dignitie. 12 This girding was a ſigne of diligence, and the girdle of gold was a ſigne of ſinceritie, and truſtineſſe in taking in charge the commandements of God. 13 Of theſe before, Chap. 4. 7. 14 None of thoſe 7. Angels might return, till he had performed fully the charge committed unto him, according to the decree of God.

C H A P. XVI.

2 and 17 The Angels powre out the ſeven vials of Gods wrath given unto them, & ſo divers plagues ariſe in the world, 18 To terrifie the wicked, 19 and the inhabitants of the great citie.

AND [1] I heard a great voice out of the Temple, ſaying to the ſeven Angels, Go your wayes, and powre out the ſeven vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.

1 In the former Chapter was ſet down the preparation unto the worke of God: here is delivered the execution thereof. And in this diſcours of the execution, is a generall commandement in this verſe, then a particular recitall in order of the execution done by every of the ſeven Angels, in the reſt of the chapter. This ſpeciall execution againſt Antichriſt and his crew, doth in manner agree unto that which was generally done upon the whole world, Ch. 8. & 9. & belongeth (if my conjecture faile me not) unto the ſame time. Yet herein they do differ one from another, that this was particularly effected upon the Princes and ring-leaders of the wickedneſſe of the world, the other generally againſt the whole world being wicked. And therfore theſe judgements are figured more grievous then thoſe

2 [2] And the firſt went and powred out his viall upon the earth: and there fell a noyſome & a grievous ſore upon the men, which had the [3] mark of the beaſt, and upon them which worſhipped his image.

3 [4] And the ſecond Angel poured out his viall upon the ſea, and it [a] became as the blood of a dead man: and every living thing died in the ſea.

4 [5] And the third Angel powred out his viall upon the rivers and fountaines of waters, and they became blood.

5 And I heard the Angel of the waters ſay, Lord, Thou art juſt, Which art, and which waſt: and holy, becauſe thou haſt judged theſe things:

6 For they ſhed the blood of the Saints, and Prophets, and therefore haſt thou given them blood to drink: for they are worthy.

7 [6] And I heard another out of the Sanctuary ſay, Even ſo, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgements.

8 [7] And the fourth Angel powred out his viall on the Sunne, and it was given to him to torment men with the heate of fire:

9 And men boyled in great heate, and blaſphemed the Name of God, which hath power over theſe plagues, and they repented not to give him glory.

19 [8] And the fift Angel powred out his viall upon the throne of the beaſt, and his kingdome waxed dark, and they gnawed their tongues for ſorrow, 11 And blaſphemed the God of heaven for their paines, and for their ſores, and repented not of their works.

12 [9] And the ſixt Angel powred out his viall upon the great river [10] Euphrates, and [11] the water thereof dried up, [12] that the way of the kings of the Eaſt ſhould be prepared.

13 And I ſaw [13] three unclean ſpirits [14] like frogs come out of the mouth of that [15] dragon, and out of the mouth of that [16] beaſt, and out of the mouth of that [17] falſe prophet:

14 For they are ſpirits of devils, working miracles, to go unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battel of that great day of God Almighty.

15 [18] (* Behold, I come as a thief. Bleſſed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, leſt he walk nakedly, and men ſee his filthineſſe)

16 [19] And they gathered them together into a place called in Hebrew, [20] Armagedon.

17 ¶ [21] And the ſeventh Angel powred out his viall into the [22] ayre, and there came a loud voice out of the temple of heaven from [23] the throne, ſaying, [24] It is done.

18 ¶ [25] And there were voyces, and thundrings, and lightnings, and there was a great earthquake, ſuch as was not ſince men were upon the earth, even ſo mighty an earthquake.

19 [26] And the great citie was divided into three parts: and the cities [27] of the nations fell: and that great [28] Babylon came in remembrance before God, * to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceneſſe of his wrath.

20 And every iſle fled away, and the mountaines [29] were not [b] found.

21 [30] And there fell a great haile, like [c] talents, out of heaven upon the men, and men blaſphemed God, becauſe of the plague of the haile: for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

Chap. XVII.

1 That great whore is deſcribed, 2 with whom the kings of the earth committed fornication. 6 She is drunken with the blood of Saints. 7 The myſtery of the woman, and the beaſt that caried her, expounded. 11 Their deſtruction. 14 The Lambes victorie.

Then [1] there came one of the ſeven Angels, which had the ſeven vials, and talked with me, ſaying unto me, Come: I will

[2] The hiſtory of of the firſt Angel, whoſe plague upon the earth is deſcribed almoſt in the ſame words with that ſixt plague of the Egyptians, Ex. 9.9. But it doth ſignifie a ſpirituall ulcer, and that torture or butchery of conſcience, ſeared with an hot yron, which accuſeth the ungodly within, and both by truth of the word (the light wherof God hath now ſo long ſhewed forth) and by bitterneſſe ſtirreth up & forceth out the ſword of Gods wrath.

[3] See chap. 13.16.

[4] The hiſtory of the ſecond Angel, who troubleth and moleſteth the ſeas, that he may ſtir up the conſcience of men ſleeping in their wickedneſſe, See Chap. 8. 8.

[a] It was turned into rotten, and filthy blood, ſuch as is in dead bodies.

[5] The ſtory of the third Angel ſtriking the rivers in this verſe, who proclaiming the juſtice of God, commendeth the ſame by a moſt grave comparison of the ſins of men, with the puniſhment of God: which is common to this place, and that which went before. Wherefore alſo this praiſing is attributed to the Angel of the waters, a name common to the ſecond and third Angels, according as both of them are ſaid to be ſent againſt the waters, albeit the one of the ſea, the other of the rivers, in two verſes.

[6] A confirmation of the praiſe before going, out of the Sanctuary of God, whether immediatly by Chriſt, or by ſome one of his Angels, for Chriſt alſo is called another Angel, chap. 7.2, 3, 8. and 12.1.

[7] The ſtory of the fourth Angel, who throweth the plague upon the heaven and upon the ſun, of which, Luke 21. 26. the effects whereof are noted two, The one peculiar, that it ſhall ſcorch men with heat in this verſe. The other proceeding accidentally from the former, that their fury ſhall ſo much the more be enraged againſt God, in the next verſe, when yet (O wonderfull mercie and patience of God) all other creatures are firſt ſtriken often and grievouſly by the hand of God before mankinde, by whom he is provoked: as the things before going do declare.

[8] The ſtory of the fift Angel, who ſtriketh the kingdome of the beaſt with two plagues, abroad with darkneſſe, within with biles and dolours moſt grievous, throughout his whole kingdome, that therby he might wound the conſcience of the wicked, and puniſh that moſt perverſe obſtinacie of the idolaters: whereof aroſe perturbation, and thence a furious indignation and deſperate madneſſe, raging againſt God and hurtfull, unto it ſelf.

[9] The ſtory of the ſixt Angel, divided into his act, and the event thereof. The act is, that the Angel did caſt out of his mouth the plague of a moſt glowing heate, wherwith even the greateſt floods, and which moſt were wont to ſwell and overflow (as Euphrates) were dried up, by the counſell of God in this verſe. The event is, that the meere madneſſe wherewith the wicked are inraged, that they may ſcorn the judgements of God, and abuſe them furiouſly to ſerve their own turn, and to the executing of their own wicked outrage.

[10] The bond of the ſpirituall Babylon, and to the fortreſſes of the ſame, Chap. 9. 14.

[11] So the Church of the ungodly, and kingdome of the beaſt, is ſaid to be left naked, all the defences thereof in which they put their truſt, being taken away from it.

[12] That is, that even they which dwell further off, may with more commoditie make haſt unto that ſacrifice which the Lorſt hath appointed.

[13] That is, every of them bent their whole force, and conſpired that by wonders, word and work, they might bring into the ſame deſtruction, all kings, princes and potentates of the world, curſedly bewitched of them by their ſpirits, and teachers of the vanity and impurity of the beaſt that committed fornication with the kings of the earth. And this is a right deſcription of our times.

[14] Croking with all importunity, and continually day and night provoking and calling forth to armes, as the trumpets and furies of wars, as is declared in the next verſe.

[15] That is, the devill, as chap. 11.5.

[16] Whereof chap. 13.1.

[17] That is, that other beaſt, of which chap. 13.11. for ſo is he called alſo, chap. 19.20. and 20.10.

[18] A parentheſis for admonition, in which God warneth his holy ſervants, who reſt in the expectation of Chriſt, alwayes to addreſſe their minds unto his coming, and to look unto themſelves, that they be not ſhamefully made naked and circumvented of theſe unclean ſpirits, and ſo they be miſerably unprepared at the comming of the Lord, ſo Matth. 24.29. and 25.13.

* Chap. 3. 3. Matth. 24. 44. Luke 12. 39.

[19] Namely, the Angel, who holily according to the commandment of God, was to do ſacrifice: notwithſtanding that thoſe impure ſpirits doe the ſame wickedly, as ſervants, not unto God, but unto the beaſt that hath ſeven heads.

[20] That is (to ſay nothing of other expoſitions) the mountain it ſelf, or mountain places of Megiddon. Now it is certain by the holy Scriptures, that Megiddon is a citie and territorie in the tribe of Manaſſes, bordering upon Iſſachar and Aſher, and was made famous by that lamentable overthrow of king Joſias, whereof 2 Reg. 22. 30. and 2 Chron. 35, 22. and Zach. 12. 11. In this mountain country God ſaith by figure, or type, that the kings of the peoples which ſerve the beaſt, ſhall meet together, becauſe the Gentiles did alwayes caſt that lamentable overthrow in the teeth of the Church of the Jewes, unto their great reproch: and therefore were perſwaded that that place ſhould be moſt fortunate unto them (as they ſpeake) and unfortunate unto the godly. But God here pronounceth, that that reproch of the Church, and confidence of the ungodly ſhall by himſelf be taken away, in the ſelf ſame place where the nations perſwaded themſelves, they ſhould mightily exult and triumph againſt God and his Church.

[21] The ſtory of the ſeventh Angel unto the end of the chapter in which firſt is ſhewed by ſigne and ſpeach, the argument of this plague, in this verſe, and then is declared the execution thereof in the verſes following.

[22] From whence he might move the heaven above, and the earth beneath.

[23] That is, from him that ſitteth on the throne, by the figure called Metonymia.

[24] That is, Babylon is undone, as is ſhewed verſe 19. and in the chapters following. For the firſt onſet (as I might ſay) of this denunciation, is deſcribed in this chapter: and the laſt containing a perfect victory, is deſcribed in thoſe that follow.

[25] Now is declared the execution (as is ſaid in verſe 27) and the things that ſhall laſt come to paſſe in heaven and in earth before the overthrow of the beaſt of Babylon: both generally, verſe 18, and particularly in the curſed city, and ſuch as have any familiaritie therewith, in the three laſt verſes.

[26] The ſeate or ſtanding place of Antichriſt.

[27] Of all ſuch as cleave unto Antichriſt, and fight againſt Chriſt.

[28] That harlot, of whom in the next chapter following. Now this phraſe, to come into remembrance, is after the common uſe of the Hebrew ſpeach, borrowed from men, and attributed unto God.

* Jer. 25.15.

[29] That is, were ſeen no more, or were no more extant. A borrowed Hebraiſme.

[b] Appeared not, which the Hebrewes utter after this ſort, were not, Gen. 5. 24.

[30] The manner of the particular execution, moſt evidently teſtifying the wrath of God by the originall and greatneſſe thereof: the event thereof is the ſame with that which is Chap 9.13. and that which hath been mentioned in this chapter, from the execution of the fourth Angel hitherto, that is to ſay, an incorrigible pertinacie of the world in their rebellion, and an heart that cannot repent, verſe 9. and 11.

[c] As it were about the weight of a talent, and a talent was threeſcore pound, that is, ſix hundreth groats, whereby is ſignified a marveilous and ſtrange weight.

[1] The ſtate of the church militant being declared, now followeth the ſtate of the Church overcoming & getting victory, as I ſhewed before in the beginning of the tenth chapter. This ſtate is ſet forth in foure chapters. As in the place before going I noted, that in that hiſtory the order of time was not alwayes exactly obſerved, ſo the ſame is to be underſtood in this hiſtory, that it is diſtinguiſhed according to the perſons of which it treateth, and that in the ſeverall ſtories of the perſons is ſeverally obſerved in the time thereof. For firſt is delivered the ſtory of Babylon deſtroyed in this and the next Chapter, (for this Babylon, out of all doubt, ſhall periſh before the two beaſts and the Dragon) Secondly, is delivered the deſtruction of both the two beaſts, Chap. 19. And laſtly of the Dragon, Chap. 18. In the ſtory of the ſpirituall Babylon, are diſtinctly ſet forth the ſtate thereof in this Chapter, and the overthrow done from God. Chap. 18. In this verſe and that which followeth, is a tranſition or paſſage unto the firſt argument, conſiſting of the particular calling of the Prophet (as often heretofore) and a generall propoſition.

ſhew [2] thee the [a] damnation of the great whore that ſitteth upon many waters,

2 With whom have committed fornication the kings of the earth, and the inhabitants of the earth are drunken with the wine of her fornication.

3 [3] So he caried me away into the wilderneſſe in the Spirit, and I ſaw a woman ſit upon a [b] ſcarlet coloured beaſt, ful of names of blaſphemie, which had ſeven heads and ten horns.

4 And the [4] woman was arayed [5] in purple, and ſcarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious ſtones, and pearles, and had [6] a cup of gold in her hand full of abomination and filthineſſe of her fornication.

5 [7] And in her forehead was a name written, A myſterie, [8] that great Babylon that mother of whoredomes, and abominations of the earth.

6 [9] And I ſaw the woman drunken with the blood of Saints, and with the blood of the Martyres of Jesvs, [10] and when I ſaw her, I wondered with great marvell.

7 [11] Then the Angel ſaid unto me, Wherefore marveileſt thou? I will ſhew thee the myſterie of that woman, and of that beaſt that beareth her, which hath ſeven heads, and ten horns.

8 [12] The beaſt that thou haſt ſeen, [13] was, & is not, and [14] ſhal aſcend out of the bottomles pit, and ſhal go into perdition, and they that dwell on the earth ſhall wonder (whoſe names are not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world) [15] when they behold the beaſt that was, and is not, and yet is.

9 [16] Here is the minde that hath wiſdome. The [c] ſeven heads [17] are ſeven mountaines, whereon the woman ſitteth: [18] they are alſo ſeven kings, 10 [19] Five are fallen, [20] and one is, [21] and another is not yet come: and when he cometh, he muſt continue a ſhort ſpace.

11 [22] And the beaſt that was, and is not, is even [23] the eight, and is [24] one of the ſeven, [25] and ſhall go into deſtruction.

12 [26] And the ten horns which thou ſaweſt, are [27] ten kings, which yet have not received a kingdome, but ſhall receive power, as kings [28] at one houre with the beaſt.

13 [29] Theſe have one minde, and ſhall give their power, and authority unto the beaſt.

14 Theſe ſhall fight with the [30] Lambe, and the Lambe ſhall overcome them: * for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are on his ſide, called and choſen, and faithfull.

15 [31] And he ſaid unto me, The waters

[2] That is, that damnable harlot, by a figure called hyppalagie. For Saint Iohn as yet had not ſeen her. Although another interpretation may be born, yet I like this better.

[a] The ſentence that is pronounced againſt this harlot.

[3] Henceforth is propounded the type of Babylon & the ſtate thereof, in foure verſes. After, a declaration of the type, in the reſt of this chapter. In the type are deſcribed two things, the beaſt (of whom chapter 13) in the 3 verſ and the woman that ſitteth upon the beaſt, verſe 4. 5. 6. The beaſt in proceſſe of time hath gotten ſomewhat more then was expreſſed in the former viſiō. Firſt, in that it is not reade before that he was appareled in ſcarlet, a robe imperiall and of triumph. Secondly, in that that this is ful of names of blaſphemy: the other caried the name of blaſphemy onely in his heads. So God did teach that this beaſt is much increaſed in impietie and injuſtice, and doth in this laſt age, triumph in both theſe more inſolently & proudly then ever before.

[b] A ſcarlet colour, that is, with a red and purple garment: and ſurely it was not without cauſe that the Romiſh Clergie were ſo much delighted with this colour.

[4] That harlot, the ſpirituall Babylon which is Rome. She is deſcribed by her attyre, profeſſion and deeds. [5] In attire moſt glorious, triumphant, moſt rich, and moſt gorgeous. [6] In profeſſion the nouriſher of all, in this verſe, and teaching her myſteries unto all, verſ. 5, ſetting forth all things moſt magnificently: but indeed moſt pernicioſly beſotting miſerable men with her cup, and bringing upon them a deadly giddineſſe. [7] Deceiving with the title of religion, and publick inſcription of myſtery: which the beaſt in times paſt did not beare. [8] An expoſition in which S. Iohn declareth what manner of woman this is. [9] In manner of deeds: She is red with blood, and ſheddeth it moſt licenciouſly, & therefore is coloured with the blood of the Saints, as on the contrary part, Chriſt is ſet forth imbrued with the blood of his enemies, Eſai. 63 1. [10] A paſſage unto the ſecond part of this chapter, by occaſion given of S. Iohn, as the words of the Angel do ſhew in the next verſe. [11] The ſecond part or place as I ſaid verſ. 1. The enarration of the viſion promiſed in the verſe following. Now there is delivered firſt an enarration of the beaſt and his ſtory, unto the 14. verſe. After, of the harlot, unto the end of the chapter. [12] The ſtory of the beaſt hath a triple deſcription of him. The firſt is a diſtinction of this beaſt from all that ever have bin at any time: which diſtinction is contained in this verſe. The ſecond is a delineation or a painting out of the beaſt by things preſent, by which he might even at that time be known of the godly: and this delineation is according to his heads, verſ. 12. 13. 14. This beaſt is that Empire of Rome, of which I ſpake chap. 13. 11. according to the mutations and changes whereof, which then had already hapned, the holy Ghoſt hath diſtinguiſhed and ſet out the ſame. The Apoſtle diſtinguiſheth this beaſt from all others in theſe words: The beaſt which thou ſaweſt, was, and is not. For ſo I expound the words of the Apoſtle for the evidencie ſake, as I will further declare in the notes following. [13] The meaning is, that beaſt which thou ſaweſt before (chap. 13. 1.) and which yet thou haſt now ſeen, was, (was I ſay) even from Iulius Cæſar in reſpect of beginning, riſing up, ſtation, glory, dominion, manner and ſtock: from the houſe of Iulius: and yet is not now the ſame, if thou looke unto the houſe and ſtock: for the dominion of this family was tranſlated unto another, after the death of Nero from that other unto a third, from a third unto a fourth, and ſo forth, was varied and altered by innumerable changes. Finally, the Empire is one, as it were one beaſt: but exceedingly varied by kinreds, families, and perſons. It was therefore (ſaith S. Iohn) in the kinred or houſe of Iulius: and now it is not in that kinred, but tranſlated unto another. [14] As if he ſhould ſay, Alſo this ſame that is, ſhall ſhortly not be: but ſhall aſcend out of the depth, or out of the ſea (as was ſaid, chap. 13. 1.) that is, ſhall be a new ſtock from amongſt the nations without difference and ſhall in the ſame ſtate go unto deſtruction, or run and periſh: and ſo ſhall ſucceſſively new Princes or Emperours come and go, a riſe and fall, the body of the beaſt remaining ſtill, but toſſed with ſo many and often alterations as no man can but marvell that this beaſt was able to ſtand and hold it out, in ſo many mutations, verely no Empire that ever was toſſed with ſo many changes, and as it were with ſo many tempeſts of the ſea, ever continued ſo long. [15] That is, as many as have not learned the providence of God, according to the faith of the Saints, ſhall marvell at theſe grievous and often changes: when they ſhall conſider the ſelf ſame beaſt which is the Romane Empire, to have been, and not to be, and to be, and ſtill moleſted with perpetuall mutation, and yet in the ſame to ſtand and continue. This in mine opinion, is the moſt ſimple expoſition of this place confirmed by the event of the things themſelves. Although the laſt change alſo, by which the Empire, that before was civill, became Eccleſiaſticall, is not obſcurely ſignified in theſe words, of which two, the firſt exerciſed cruelty upon the bodies of the Saints: the other alſo upon their ſouls: the firſt by humane order and policy, the other under the colour of the law of God, and of religion, raged and imbrued it ſelf with the blood of the godly.

[16] An exhortation, preparing unto audience by the ſame argument, with that of Chriſt: He that hath eares to heare, let him heare. Wherefore for mine own part, I had rather reade in this place, Let there be here a mind, &c. So the Angel paſſeth fully unto the ſecond place of this deſcription.

[c] Very children know what the ſeven hilled citie is, which is ſo much ſpoken of, and whereof Virgil thus reporteth, And compaſſeth ſeven towers in one wal: that citie it is, that when Iohn wrote theſe things, had rule over the kings of the earth. It was and is not, and yet it remaineth to this day, but it is declining unto deſtruction.

[17] This is the painting out of the beaſt by things preſent (as I ſaid before) whereby S. Iohn endevoured to deſcribe the ſame, that he might be both known of yͤ godly in that age, and be further obſerved & marked of yͤ poſterity afterwards. This delineation hath one type, that is, his heads, but a double deſcription or application of the type: one permanent, from the nature it ſelf, the other changeable, by the working of men. The deſcription permanent, is by the ſeven hils, in this verſe, the other that fleeteth, is from the ſeven kings, verſe 10. 11. And here it is worthy to be obſerved, that one type hath ſometime two or more applications, as ſeemeth good to the holy Ghoſt to expreſſe, either one thing by divers types, or divers things by one type. So I noted before of the ſeven Spirits, chap. 1. 4. Now this woman that ſitteth upon ſeven hills, is the city of Rome, called in times paſt of the Grecians, ἑπταλοφός .i. of ſeven tops or creſts, and of Varro ſepticeps. i. of her ſeven heads (as here) or ſeven heads, and of others, ſeptemcollis. i. ſtanding upon ſeven hills. [18] The beginning of theſe Kings or Emperors, is almoſt the ſame with the beginning of the Church of Chriſt, which I ſhewed before, Chap. 11. 1. Namely, from the yeare 25. after the paſſion of Chriſt, what time the temple and church of the Iewes was overthrown. In which yeare it came to paſſe by the providence of God, that that ſaying, The beaſt was, and is not, was fulfilled before the deſtruction of the Iewes immediatly following, came to paſſe. That was the yeare from the building of the citie of Rome, 809 from which yeare S. Iohn both numbreth the Emperours which hitherto had been, when he wrote theſe things, and foretelleth of two others next to come: and that with this purpoſe that when this particular prediction or foretelling of things to come, ſhould take effect, the truth of all other predictions in the Church, might be the more confirmed. Which ſigne God of old mentioned in the Law, Deut. 18. and Ieremie confirmeth, Chapter 28. 8. [19] Whoſe names are theſe: the firſt, Servius Sulpitius Galba, who was the ſeventh Emperour of the people of Rome, the ſecond, Marcus Salvius Otho, the third Aulus Vitellius, the fourth, Titus Flavius Veſpaſianus, the fifth, Titus Veſpaſianus his ſonne, of his own name. [20] Flavius Domitian, ſonne of the firſt Veſpaſian. For in the latter end of his dayes, S. Iohn wrote theſe things, as witneſſeth Irenæus, Lib. 5. adverſus hæreſes. [21] Nerva, The Empire being now tranſlated from the family of Flavius. This man reigned onely one yeare, foure moneths, and nine dayes, as the hiſtory writers do tell. [22] This is ſpoken by the figure Synecdoche, as much to ſay, as that head of the beaſt which was and is not, becauſe it is cut off, and Nerva in ſo ſhort time extinguiſhed. How many heads there were, ſo many beaſts there ſeemed to be in one. See the like ſpeech in the third verſe of the thirteenth Chapter. [23] Nerva Trajanus, who himſelf in divers reſpects is called here the ſeventh and the eighth. [24] Though in number and order of ſucceſſion he be the eighth, yet he is reckoned together with one of theſe heads, becauſe Nerva and he were one head. For this man obtained authority together with Nerva, and was conſul with him, when Nerva left his life. [25] Namely, to moleſt with perſecutions the Churches of Chriſt, as the Hiſtories do accord, and I have briefly noted, Chapter 2. 10. [26] The third place of this deſcription, as I ſaid verſe 8. is a propheticall prediction of things to come, which the beaſt ſhould do, as in the words following Saint John doth not obſcurely ſignifie, ſaying, Which have not yet received the kingdome, &c. For there is an Antitheſis or oppoſition between theſe kings, and thoſe that went before. And firſt the perſons are deſcribed in this verſe, then their deeds in the two verſes following. [27] That is, ariſing with their kingdomes out of the Romane beaſts: at ſuch time as that politicall Empire began by the craft of the Popes, greatly to fall. [28] Namely, with that ſecond beaſt, whom we called before a falſe prophet, which beaſt aſcending out of the earth, got unto himſelf all the authority and power of the firſt beaſt, and exerciſeth the ſame before his face, as was ſaid, Chapter 14. 11, 12. For when the politicall Empire of the Weſt began to bow downwards, there both aroſe thoſe ten kings, and the ſecond beaſt took the opportunitie offered, to uſurpe unto himſelf all the power of the former beaſt. Theſe kings long agoe, many have numbred and deſcribed to be ten, and a great part of the events plainly teſtifieth the ſame in this our age. [29] That is, by conſent and agreement, that they may conſpire with the beaſt, and depend upon his beck. Their ſtorie is divided into three parts, counſels, acts, and events. The counſellers ſome of them conſiſt in communicating of judgements and affections: and ſome in communicating of power, which they are ſaid to have given unto this beaſt, in this verſe. [30] With Chriſt and his Church, as the reaſon following doth declare, and heere are mentioned the facts and events, which followed for Chriſt his ſake, and for the grace of God the Father towards thoſe that are called, elected, and are his faithfull ones in Chriſt. * Chap. 19. 16. 1 Tim. 6. 15. [31] This is the other member of the enarration, as I ſaid verſe 7. belonging unto the harlot, ſhewed in the viſion, verſe 3. In this hiſtory of the harlot, theſe three things are diſtinctly propounded, what is her magnificency, in this verſe, what is her fall, & by whom it ſhall happen unto her in the 2 verſes following: and laſtly, who that harlot is, in the laſt verſe. This place which by order of nature ſhould have been the firſt, is therfore made the laſt, becauſe it was more fit to be joyned with the next chapter.

which thou ſaweſt, where the whore ſitteth, [32] are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues.

16 And the ten [33] hornes which thou ſaweſt upon the beaſt, are they that ſhall hate the whore, and ſhal make her deſolate, and naked, and ſhall eat her fleſh, and burn her with fire:

17 [34] For God hath put in their hearts to fulfill his will, and to do with one conſent for to give their kingdome unto the beaſt, untill the words of God be fulfilled.

18 And that woman which thou ſaweſt, is that [35] great citie which reigneth over the kings of the earth.

[32] That is, as unconſtant and variable as are the waters. Upon this foundation ſitteth this harlot as queen, a vain perſon, upon ẏ which is vain.

[33] The ten kings, as verſe 12. The accompliſhment of this fact and event is daily increaſed in this our age, by the ſingular providence and moſt mighty government of God. Wherefore the facts are propounded in this verſe, and the cauſe of them in the verſe following.

[34] A reaſon rendred from the chief efficient cauſe, which is the providence of God, by which alone Saint Iohn by inverſion of order affirmeth to have come to paſſe, both that the kings ſhould execute upon the harlot that which pleaſed God, and which he declared in the verſe next before going: and alſo that by one conſent and counſell, they ſhould give their kingdome unto the beaſts, &c. ver. 13, 14. for as theſe being blinded have before depended upon the beck of the beaſt that lifteth up the harlot, ſo it is ſaid, that afterward it ſhall come to paſſe, that they ſhall turn back, and ſhall fall away from her, when their hearts ſhall be turned into better ſtate by the grace and mercy of God.

[35] That is, Rome, that great city, or onely city (as Iuſtinian calleth it) the king and head whereof was then the Emperour, but now the Pope, ſince that the condition of the beaſt was changed.

Chap. XVIII.

2 The horrible deſtruction of Babylon is ſet out. 11. 16. 18. The merchants of the earth, who were enriched with the pomp and luxuriouſneſſe of it, weep and waile: 20 But all the elect rejoyce for that juſt vengeance of God.

And [1] after theſe things, I ſaw another [2] Angel come down from heaven, having great power, ſo that the earth was lightened with his glory.

2 And he cried out mightily with a loud voice, [3] ſaying, * It is fallen, it is fallen, Babylon that great city, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of all foul ſpirits, and a cage of every uncleane and hatefull bird:

3 For all nations have drunken of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich of the abundance of her pleaſures.

4 [4] And I heard another voice from heaven ſay, [5] Go out of her, my people, that ye [6] be not partakers of her ſinnes, and that ye receive not of her plagues:

5 For her ſinnes are [a] come up into heaven, and God hath remembred her iniquities.

[1] The ſecond place (as I ſaid before chap. 17.1.) of the hiſtorie of Babylon is of the wofull fal and ruine of that whore of Babylon. This hiſtoricall prediction concerning her, is threefold. The firſt a plain and ſimple foretelling of her ruine, in 3 verſes. The ſecond a figurative prediction by the circumſtances, thence unto the 20 verſe. The third, a confirmation of the ſame by ſigne or wonder, unto the end of the chapter.

[2] Either Chriſt the eternall word of God the Father (as often elſewhere) or a created Angel, and one deputed unto this ſervice, but throughly furniſhed with greatneſſe of power, and with light of glory, as the enſigne of power.

[3] The prediction or foreſhewing of her ruine, containing both the fall of Babylon, in this verſe, and the cauſe therof uttered by way of allegorie concerning her ſpirituall and carnall wickednes, that is, her moſt great impietie and unjuſtice in the next verſe: her fall is firſt ſimply declared of the Angel, and then the greatneſſe thereof is ſhewed here, by the events, when he ſaith, it ſhall be the ſeate and habitation of devils, of wilde beaſts, and of curſed foules, as of old. Eſay 13. 21. and often elſewhere.

* Chap. 14. 8. Iſai. 21. 9. Ier. 51. 8.

[4] The ſecond prediction, which is of the circumſtances of the ruine of Babylon: of theſe there are two kindes: one going before it, as that beforehand the godly are delivered, unto the ninth verſe: the other following upon her ruine, namely, the lamentation of the wicked, and rejoycing of the godly, unto the twentieth verſe.

[5] Two circumſtances going before the ruine, are commanded in this place: one is, that the godly depart out of Babylon: as I mentioned chap, 12. to have been done in time paſt, before the deſtruction of Ieruſalem, this charge is given here, and in the next verſe. The other is, that every one of them occupie themſelves in their own place in executing the judgement of God, as it was commanded the Levites of old, Exod. 32. 27. and that they ſanctifie their hands unto the Lord, Verſ. 6. 7. 8.

[6] Of this commandment there are two cauſes: to avoid the contagion of ſin, and to ſhun the participation of thoſe puniſhments that belong thereunto.

[a] He uſeth a word which ſignifieth the following of ſinnes one after another, and riſing one of another in ſuch ſort, that they grew at length to ſuch an heape, that they came up even to heaven.

6 [7] Reward her, even as ſhe hath rewarded you, and give her double according to her works: and in the cup that ſhe hath filled to you, fill her the double.

7 Inaſmuch as ſhe glorified her ſelf and lived in pleaſure, ſo much give ye to her torment and ſorrow: for ſhe ſaith [b] in her heart, I ſit being a Queen, and am [c] no widow, and ſhall [d] ſee no mourning.

8 Therefore ſhall her plagues come at [e] one day, death, and ſorrow, and famine, and ſhe ſhall be burnt with fire: for that God which condemneth her, is a ſtrong Lord.

9 And [8] the kings of the earth ſhall bewaile her, and lament for her, which have committed fornication, and lived in pleaſure with her, when they ſhal ſee that ſmoke of that her burning,

10 And ſhall ſtand afarre off for feare of her torment, ſaying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city: for in one houre is thy judgement come.

11 [9] And the merchants of the earth ſhall weep and waile over her: for no man buyeth their ware any more.

12 The ware of gold, and ſilver, and of precious ſtones, and of pearles, and of fine linnen, and of purple, and of ſilk, and of ſcarlet, and of all manner of Thyne wood, and of all veſſels of ivorie, and of all veſſels of moſt precious wood, and of braſſe, and of iron, and of marble.

13 And of cynnamom, and odours, and ointments, and frankincenſe, and wine, and oyle, and fine floure, and wheate, and beaſts, and ſheep, and horſes, and charets, and ſervants, and ſouls of men.

14 ([10] And the [f] apples that thy ſoul luſted after, are departed from thee, and all things which were fat and excellent, are departed from thee, and thou ſhalt find them no more)

15 The merchants of theſe things which were waxed rich, ſhall ſtand afar off from her, for feare of her torment, weeping and wailing,

16 And ſaying, Alas, alas, that great city that was clothed in fine linnen and purple, and ſcarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious ſtones, and pearles:

17 [11] For in one houre ſo great riches are come to deſolation. And every ſhipmaſter, and all the people that occupie ſhips, and ſhipmen, and whoſoever traffique on the ſea, ſhall ſtand a farre off,

18 And crie, when they ſee that ſmoke of that her burning, ſaying, What citie was like unto this great citie?

19 And they ſhall caſt duſt on their heads, and cry, weeping, and wailing, and ſay, Alas, alas, that great citie, wherein were made rich all that had ſhips on the ſea by her coſtlines: for in one houre ſhe is made deſolate.

[7] The provocation of the godly, and the commandment of executing the judgements of God, ſtand upon three cauſes which are here expreſſed: the unjuſt wickedneſſe of the whore of Babylon, in this verſe, her curſed pride, oppoſing it ſelf againſt God, which is the fountain of all evill actions, verſ. 7. and her moſt juſt damnation by the ſentence of God, verſe 8.

[c] I am full of people and mighty.

[d] I ſhall taſt of none.

[8] The circumſtances following the fall of Babylon, or the conſequents thereof (as I diſtinguiſhed them, verſe 4.) are two: Namely the lamentation of the wicked, unto the 19. verſe, and the rejoycing of the godly, verſe 20. This moſt ſorrowfull lamentation, according to the perſons of them that lament, hath three members: the firſt whereof is, the mourning of the kings and mighty men of the earth, in two verſes: The ſecond is, the lamentation of the merchants that traffick by land, thence unto the 16. verſe: The third is, the wailing of thoſe that merchandiſe by ſea verſ. 16. 17. 18. In every of thoſe the cauſe and manner of their mourning is deſcribed in order, according to the condition of thoſe that mourn, with obſervation of that which beſt agreeth unto them.

[9] The lamentation of thoſe that trade by land, as I diſtinguiſhed immediatly before.

[10] An apoſtrophe, or turning of the ſpeech by imitation: uſed for more vehemencie, as if thoſe merchants, after the manner of mourners, ſhould in paſſionat ſpeech ſpeake unto Babylon, though now utterly fallen and overthrown. So Eſay 12. 9, and in many other places.

[f] By this is meant that ſeaſon which is next before the fall of the leaf, at what ſeaſon fruits ripen, and the word ſignifieth ſuch fruits as are longed for.

[11] The manner of mourning uſed by them that trade by ſea.

20 [12] O heaven, rejoyce of her, and ye holy Apoſtles and Prophets: for God hath puniſhed her, to be revenged on her for your ſakes, 21 [13] Then a mighty Angel took up a ſtone like a great milſtone, *and caſt it into the Sea, ſaying, With ſuch violence ſhall that great citie Babylon be caſt, and ſhall be found no more.

22 [14] And the voice of harpers, and muſitians, and of pipers, and trumpeters ſhall be heard no more in thee, and no craftſman, of whatſoever craft he be, ſhall be found any more in thee: and the ſound of a milſtone ſhall be heard no more in thee:

23 And the light of a candle ſhall ſhine no more in thee: and the voice of the bridegrome and of the bride ſhall be heard no more in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth: and with thine inchantment were deceived all nations.

24 And in her was found the [15] blood of the Prophets, [16] and of the Saints, and of all that were ſlain upon the earth.

[12] The other conſequent upon the other ruine of Babylon, is the exultation or rejoycing of the godly in heaven and in earth, as was noted verſe 9.

[13] The third prediction, as I ſaid verſe 1. ſtanding of a ſigne, and the interpretation thereof: the interpretation thereof is in two ſorts, firſt by a ſimple propounding of the thing it ſelf, in this verſe, and then by declaration of the events, in the verſes following.

* Ier 51. 63.

[14] The events are two, the one of them oppoſite unto the other for amplification ſake. There ſhall be, ſaith he, in Babylon no mirth nor joy at all, in this and the next verſe, but all heavy and lamentable things, from the bloody ſlaughters of the righteous, and the vengeance of God coming upon it for the ſame.

[15] That is ſhed by bloody maſſacres, and calling for vengeance. [16] That is, proved and found out, as if God had appointed a juſt inquirie concerning the impiety, unnaturalneſſe, and unjuſtice of theſe men.

CHAP. XIX.

1 The heavenly company praiſe God for avenging the blood of his ſervants on the whore. 9 They are written bleſſed, that are called to the Lambs ſupper. 10 The Angel will not be worſhipped. 11 The mighty King of kings appeareth from heaven. 19 The battell. 20 wherein the beaſt is taken, 21 and caſt into the burning lake.

AND [1] after theſe things I heard a great voice of a great multitude in heaven, ſaying, [a] [2] Hallelu-jah, ſalvation, and glory, and honour, and power be to the Lord our God:

2 For true and righteous are his judgements: for he hath condemned that great whore which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his ſervants ſhed by her hand.

3 And again they ſaid, [3] Hallelu-jah: aud that her ſmoke roſe up for evermore.

4 And the foure and twenty Elders, and the foure beaſts fell down, and worſhipped God that ſate on the throne, ſaying, Amen, Hallelu-jah.

5 [4] Then a voice came out of the [5] throne, ſaying, Praiſe our God, all ye his ſervants, and ye that feare him, both ſmall and great.

[1] This chapter hath in ſum two parts, one tranſitory, or of paſſage unto the things that follow, unto the tenth verſe, another hiſtoricall of the victory of Chriſt gotten againſt both the beaſts, unto the end of the chapter: which I ſaid was the ſecond hiſtory of this argument, Chap. 17. 1. The tranſition hath two places, one of praiſing God for the overthrow done unto Babylon in 4. verſes: and another likewiſe of praiſe, and Propheticall, for the comming of Chriſt unto his kingdome, and his moſt royall marriage with his Church, thence unto the 10. verſe. The former praiſe hath three branches, diſtinguiſhed after the ancient manner of thoſe that ſing: προσφώνεσις, that is, an invitation, or provokement in two verſes: ἀντιφονία, a reſponſe or anſwer in the third verſe: and συνῳδία, a cloſe or joyning together in harmony: all which I thought good of purpoſe to diſtinguiſh in this place, leſt any man ſhould with Porphyrius, or other like dogs, object unto Saint Iohn, or the heavenly Church, a childiſh and idle repetition of ſpeech: a Praiſe the Lord. 2 The propoſition of praiſe with exhortation in this verſe, and the cauſe thereof, in the next verſe. 3 The ſong of the Antiphonie or reſponſe, containing an amplification of the praiſe of God, from the perpetuall and moſt certain teſtimony of his divine judgement as was done at Sodom and Gomorrha, Gen. 19. 4 The ſecond place of praiſe, as I ſaid, verſe 1. which firſt is commanded from God in this verſe: and then is in moſt ample manner pronounced of the creatures, both becauſe they ſee that kingdome of Chriſt to come, which moſt they deſire, verſe 6. alſo becauſe they ſee that the Church is called forth to be brought home into the houſe of her husband by holy marriage, unto the fellowſhip of his kingdome, verſe 7. 8. Wherefore Saint Iohn is commanded to write in a book the Epiphonema, or acclamation joyned with a divine teſtimony. verſe 9. 5 Out of the Temple from God, as 11. 19.

6 And I heard [6] like a voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of ſtrong thundrings, ſaying, Hallelu-jah: for the Lord that God, that Almighty one hath reigned.

7 Let us be glad and rejoyce, and give glory to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath [7] made her ſelf ready.

8 And to her was granted, that ſhe ſhould be arayed with [8] pure fine linnen and ſhining, for the fine [9] linnen is the [b] righteouſneſſe of Saints.

9 [10] Then he ſaid unto me, Write, *Bleſſed are they which are called unto the Lambes ſupper. And he ſaid unto me, Theſe words of God are true.

10 [11] And I fell before his feet, *to worſhip him: but he ſaid unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow ſervant, and one of thy brethren, which have the [c] teſtimony of Jeſus, worſhip God: for the teſtimony of [d] Jeſus is the Spirit of prophecie.

11 [12] And I ſaw [13] heaven open, and behold a white horſe, and he that ſat upon him, was called faithfull and true, and he judgeth and fighteth righteouſly.

12 And his eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns: and he had a name written, that no man knew but himſelf.

13 And he was clothed with a garment dipt in blood, and his name was called THE VVORD OF GOD.

14 [14] And the hoſts which were in heaven followed him upon white horſes, clothed with fine linnen white and pure.

15 [15] And out of his mouth went out a ſharp ſword, that with it he ſhould ſmite the heathen: for he ſhall * rule them with a rod of iron: for he it is that treadeth the wine-preſſe of the fierceneſſe and wrath of Almighty God.

16 [16] And he hath upon his garment, and upon his thygh a name written, * THE KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

17 [17] And I ſaw an Angel ſtand in the [18] ſun, who cried with a loud voice, ſaying to all the fowles that did flie by [19] the mids of heaven, Come, and gather your ſelves together unto the ſupper of the great God,

[6] Without the Temple in heaven.

[7] Namely, unto ÿ holy mariage, both her ſelf in perſon in this verſe, and alſo furniſhed of her ſpouſe with marriage gifts princely and divine, is adorned & prepared in the next verſe.

[8] As an enſigne of kingly and prieſtly dignitie: which dignity Chriſt beſtoweth upon us, Chap. 1. 6.

[9] This is a gift given by the husbad for marriage ſake, and a moſt choice ornament which Chriſt beſtoweth upon us, as upon his ſpouſe.

[b] Good works which are lively teſtimonies of faith.

[10] Namely, the Angel, as appeareth by the next verſe.

* Matth. 22. 2.

[11] The particular hiſtorie of this verſe is brought in by occaſion, and as it were beſides the purpoſe, that Saint Iohn might make a publick example of his own infirmity, and of the modeſt ſanctimony of the Angel, who both renounced for himſelf the divine honours, and recalled all the ſervants of God unto the worſhip of him alone: as alſo 22. 8.

* Chap. 22. 8.

[c] Which are commanded to beare witneſſe of Ieſus.

[d] For Ieſus is the marke that all the prophecies ſhoot at.

[12] The ſecond place of this chapter (as I ſaid verſe 1.) is of the victory gotten by Chriſt againſt both the beaſts: in which firſt, Chriſt is deſcribed as one ready to fight, unto the 16. verſe, then is ſhewed the battell to be begun, thence unto the 18. verſe. Laſtly, is ſet forth the victory, unto the end of the Chapter. In this place do ſhine forth moſt excellent properties of Chriſt as our heavenly judge and revenger, according to his perſon, company, effects and names. 13 Properties belonging to his perſon, that he is heavenly, judge, faithfull, true, juſt, in this verſe, ſearching out all things, ruling over all, to be ſearched out of none, verſe 12. the triumpher, and the very eſſentiall word of God, verſe 13. 14 The company or retinue of Chriſt, holy, innumerable, heavenly, judiciall, royall, and pure. 15 The effects of Chriſt prepared unto battell, that with his mouth he ſtriketh the Gentiles, ruleth and deſtroyeth. * Pſal. 2. 9. 16 The name agreeing unto Chriſt, according to the former properties, expreſſed after the manner of the Hebrewes. * Chap. 17. 14. 1 Tim. 6. 15. 17 The ſecond member, as I ſaid verſe 11. A reprochfull calling forth of his enemies unto battell: in which not themſelves (for why ſhould they be called forth of the king of the world, or provoked being his ſubjects? for that were not comely) but in their hearing the birds of the ayre are called to eat their carkeiſes. 18 That is, openly, and in ſight of all, as Num. 25. 4. and 2 Sam. 12. 11. 19 That is, through the inferiour heaven, and which is neerer unto us: an Hebrew phraſe.

18 That ye may eat the fleſh of kings, and the fleſh of high captains, and the fleſh of mighty men,and the fleſh of horſes, & of them that ſit on them,& the fleſh of all free men,and bond men,and of ſmall and great.

19 [20] And I ſaw the beaſt, and the kings of the earth, and their hoſts gathered together to make battell againſt him that ſate on the horſe, and againſt his armie.

20 But the beaſt [21] was taken, and with him that falſe prophet that wrought miracles before him, whereby he deceived them that received the beaſts [22] marke, and them that worſhipped his image. Theſe both were alive caſt into a lake of fire burning with brimſtone.

21 And the remnant were ſlain with the ſword of him that ſitteth upon the horſe, which commeth out of his mouth, and all the fowls were filled full with their fleſh.

[20] The third member (as was ſaid verſe 11) of the victorie obtained by Chriſt. Vnto this apperteineth two things: his buckling with the beaſt and his forces, in this verſe: and the event moſt magnificent, deſcribed after the manner of men, in the verſes following. All theſe things are plain.

[21] Namely, that beaſt with ſeven heads, of which before Chapter 13.1, and 17.3.

[22] That is, that beaſt with two heads, of which 13.11. Looke more, Chapter 16.14.

Chap. XX.

1 The Angel 2 bindeth Sathan for a thouſand years: 8 Being looſed, he ſtirreth up Gog and Magog, that is, privie and open enemies againſt the Saints, 11 but the vengeance of the Lord cutteth off their inſolencie. 12 The books are opened, by which the dead are judged.

AND [1] I ſaw an Angel come down from heaven, having the key [2] of the bottomleſſe pit, and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he took the dragon that old ſerpent,which is the devill and Satan, and he bound him [3] a thouſand years:

3 And caſt him into the bottomleſſe pit, and he ſhut him up,and ſealed the doore upon him, that he ſhould deceive the people [4] no more, till the thouſand years were fulfilled: for after that he muſt be looſed for [5] a little ſeaſon.

4 [6] And I ſaw [a] ſeats: and they ſate upon them,and [7] judgment was given unto them, and I ſaw the ſouls of them that were [8] beheaded for the witneſſe of Jeſus, and for the word of God, and which [9] did not worſhip the beaſt,neither his image,neither had taken his marke upon their foreheads, or on their hands: and they lived,and reigned with Chriſt a thouſand year.

5 [10] But the reſt of the dead men [11] ſhall not live again,untill the thouſand years be finiſhed: this is the firſt reſurrection.

6 Bleſſed and holy is he that hath part in the firſt reſurrection: for on ſuch the [12] ſecond death hath no power:but they ſhal be the Prieſts of God and of Chriſt, [13] and ſhall reigne with him a thouſand year.

7 [14] And when the [15] thouſand years are expired, Satan ſhalbe looſed out of his priſon,

8 [16] And ſhall go out to deceive the people, which are in the four quarters of the earth, even [*] Gog and Magog,to gather them together to battell, whoſe number is as the ſand of the Sea.

9 And they went up into the [b] plain of the earth, and they compaſſed the tents of the Saints about,and the beloved citie: but [17] fire came down from God out of heaven,and devoured them.

10 [18] And the devill that deceived them, was caſt into a lake of fire and brimſtone, where that beaſt and that falſe prophet are, and ſhall be tormented even day and night for evermore.

11 [19] And I ſaw a great [20] white throne, and one that ſate on it, [21] from whoſe face fled away both the earth and heaven, and their place was no more found.

12 And I ſaw the dead, both great and ſmall ſtand before [22] God:and the [23] books were opened, [*] and another book was opened, which is the book [24] of life, and the dead were judged of thoſe things, which were written in the books, according to their workes.

13 [25] And the ſea gave up her dead,which were in her, and death and hell delivered up the dead,which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their workes.

14 [26] And death and hell were caſt into the lake of fire : this is the ſecond death.

15 And whoſoever was nor found written in the booke of life, was caſt into the lake of fire.

---

[1] Now followeth the third place of the propheticall hiſtory, which is of the victory whereby Chriſt overcame the dragon,as I noted, Chap.7.1. This place muſt neceſſarily be ioyned with the end of the 12 chapter, and be applied unto the iuſt underſtanding thereof. This chapter hath two parts, one of the dragon overcome unto the 10 verſe: the other of the reſurrection and laſt iudgement, unto the end of the chapter. The ſtory of the dragon is doubled: Firſt,of the firſt victory, after which he was bound by Chriſt,unto the 6 verſe. The ſecond is of the laſt victory, whereby he was throwen down into everlaſting puniſhment, thence unto the 16 verſe. This firſt hiſtory hapened in the firſt time of the Chriſtian Church, when the dragon throwen down from heaven by Chriſt,went about to moleſt the new birth of yͤ Church in the earth,Chap.12.17.18. For which cauſe I gave warning,that this ſtory of the Dragon muſt be annexed unto that place. [2] That is, of hell whither God threw down the Angels which had ſinned,and bound them in chaines of darkneſſe to be kept unto damnation, 2 Pet.2.4. Iude 6. [3] The firſt whereof (continuing this hiſtory with the end of the 12 chapter) in the 36 year from the paſſion of Chriſt, when the Church of the Iews being overthrowen,Satan aſſayed to invade the Chriſtian Church gathered of the Gentiles, and to deſtroy part of her ſeed,Chap.12.17. The thouſandth year falleth preciſely upon the times of that wicked Hildebrand, who was called Gregorie the ſeventh,a moſt damnable Necromancer and ſorcerer, whom Satan uſed as an inſtrument when he was looſed out of bonds, thence forth to annoy the Saints of God with moſt cruel perſecutions, and the whole world with diſſentions and moſt bloody warres: as Benno the Cardinall reporteth at large. And this is the firſt victory gotten over the Dragon in the earth. [4] Namely, with that publike and violent deceit which he attempted before, Chap.12. and which after a thouſand years (a lack for woe) he moſt mightily procured in the Chriſtian world. [5] Which being once expired,the ſecond battell and victory ſhalbe,of which,Verſe 7.8 [6] A deſcription of the common ſtate of the Church of Chriſt in earth, in that ſpace of a thouſand years, for which the devill was in bonds: in which firſt,the authoritie,life, and common honor of the godly is declared,Verſe 4. Secondly,newneſſe of life is preached unto others by the Goſpel, after that ſpace,Verſe 5. Finally,he concludeth with promiſe,Verſe 7. [a] For iudgement was committed to them,as to members ioyned to the head: not that Chriſts office was given over to them. [7] This was a type of the authority of the good & faithfull ſervants of God in the Church, taken from the manner of men. [8] Of the Martyrs which ſuffred in thoſe firſt times. [9] Of yͤ Martyrs which ſuffred after that both the beaſts were now riſen up,chap.15. for there,theſe things are expounded. [10] Whoſoever ſhall lie dead in ſinne, and not know the trueth of God. [11] They ſhall not be renewed with that newneſſe of the life by the enlightning of the Goſpel of the glory of Chriſt. For this is the firſt reſurrection, by which the ſouls of the dead do riſe from their death, in the ſecond reſurrection their bodies ſhall riſe again.

[12] That whereby both body and ſoule,that is,the whole man is addicted and delivered unto eternall death, See chap. 2.11.

[13] A return unto the intended hiſtory. by reſuming the words which are in the end of the fourth verſe.

[14] The ſecond hiſtorie, of the latter victory of Chriſt, as was ſaid verſe 1. In which are ſummarily deſcribed the work, overthrow, and eternall puniſhment of Satan.

[15] Of which I ſpake, verſe 2. Then therefore ſhall be given unto him liberty to rage againſt the Church, and to moleſt the Saints for the ſinnes of men: unto whom the faithfull ſhall have aſſociated themſelves more then was meet,taſting with them of their impuritie of doctrine and life.

[16] The worke,or act of Satan (which is the firſt member as I diſtinguiſhed in the verſe before going) to deceive the whole world, even unto the uttermoſt nations thereof: to arme them againſt the people of God, in this verſe,and to beſiege and oppreſſe the Church, with his whole ſtrength, in the verſe following.

[17] The wrath of God, conſuming the adverſaries, & overthrowing all their enterpriſes. Heb,10.27. And this is the ſecond member mentioned verſe 7. the overthrow of Satan. [18] The third member, eternall deſtruction againſt thoſe that are overcome: as I noted in the ſame place. [19] The ſecond part of this chapter, in which is deſcribed the judge,in this verſe,and the laſt judgement in the verſe following. [20] That is, a tribunall ſeat moſt Princelike and glorious: for ſo doth the Greek word alſo ſignifie. [21] That is,Chriſt, before whom when he commeth unto judgement, heaven and earth ſhall periſh for the greatneſſe of his majeſty, 2 Pet.3.7.10,&c. [22] That is, Chriſt the Iudge. 2 Cor.5.10. [23] As it were his books of reckoning or accompts, that is, the teſtimony of our conſcience, and of our workes, which by no means can be avoided. This is ſpoken after the manner of men. [*] Chap.5.3.and 21.27. Philip.4.3. [24] The booke of the eternall decree of God, in which God the Father hath elected in Chriſt according to the good pleaſure of his will, thoſe that ſhall be heires of life. This alſo is ſpoken according to the manner of men. [25] This is a prevention or an anſwer to an objection: for happily ſome man will ſay, But they are dead, whom the ſea,death and the grave hath conſumed,how ſhall they appear before the judge, S.Iohn anſwereth, By reſurrection from death, whereunto all things (howſoever repugnant) ſhall miniſter and ſerve at the commandement of God,as Dan.12. [26] The laſt enemie which is death ſhalbe aboliſhed by Chriſt (that he may no more make any attempt againſt us) 1 Cor.15.16. and death ſhall feed upon the reprobate in hell for evermore,according to the righteous judgment of God, in the next verſe.

Chap. XXI.

2 He deſcribeth new Hieruſalem deſcending from heaven, 9 the bride the Lambs wife, 12 and the glorious building of the citie, 19 garniſhed with precious ſtones, 22 whoſe Temple the Lamb is.

AND [1] I ſaw * a new heaven, and a new earth: for the * firſt heaven, and the firſt earth were paſſed away, and there was no more ſea.

2 [2] And I John ſaw the holy citie new Hieruſalem come down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride trimmed for her huſband.

3 [3] And I heard a great voice out of heaven, ſaying, Behold, the Tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them: and they ſhall be his people, and God himſelf ſhall be their God with them.

4 * And God ſhall wipe away all teares from their eyes: and there ſhal be no more death, neither ſorrow, neither crying, neither ſhall there be any more pain: for the firſt things are paſſed.

5 [4] And he that ſate upon the throne, ſaid, * Behold, I make all things new: and he ſaid unto me, Write: for theſe words are faithfull and true.

6 And he ſaid unto me, * [5] It is done, I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end: I wil give to him that is a thirſt of the well of the water of life freely.

7 He that overcommeth, ſhall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he ſhall be my ſonne:

8 But the fearfull & the unbeleeving, and the abominable and murtherers, & whoremongers, and ſorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars ſhall have their [a] part in the lake, which burneth with fire and brimſtone, which is the ſecond death.

9 [6] And there came unto me one of the ſeven Angels, which had the ſeven vials full of the ſeven laſt plagues, and talked with me, ſaying, Come, I will ſhew thee the bride, the Lambs wife.

10 And he caried me away in the ſpirit to a great and [7] an high mountain, and he ſhewed me [8] that great citie, that holy Hieruſalem, deſcending out of heaven from God,

11 Having the glory of God: and her ſhining was like unto a ſtone moſt precious, as a jaſper ſtone clear as chryſtall,

12 [9] And had a great wall and high, and had [10] twelve gates, and at the gates [11] twelve Angels, and the names written which are the twelve tribes of the children of Iſrael:

13 On the Eaſt part there were three gates, and on the North ſide three gates; on the South ſide three gates, and on the Weſt ſide three gates.

14 And the wall of the citie had [12] twelve foundations, and in them the names of the Lambs twelve Apoſtles.

15 [13] And he that talked with me, had a golden reede, to meaſure the citie withall, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof.

16 [14] And the citie lay [b] foureſquare, and the length is as large as the breadth of it, and he meaſured the citie with the reed, twelve thouſand furlongs: and the length, and the breadth, and the height of it are equall.

17 And he meaſured the wall thereof, an hundred forty and four cubits, by the meaſure of man, that is, of the [c] Angel.

18 [15] And the building of the wall of it was of jaſper: and the citie was pure gold, like unto clear glaſſe.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the citie were garniſhed with all manner of precious ſtones: the firſt foundation was jaſper: the ſecond of Saphire: the third of a Chalcedonie: the fourth of an Emeraud:

20 The fiſt of a Sardonix: the ſixt of a Sardius: the ſeventh of a Chryſolite: the eight of a Beril: the ninth of a Topaz: the tenth of a Cryſopraſus: the eleventh of a Jacinth: the twelfth an Amethyſt.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls, and every gate is of one pearle, and the [d] ſtreet of the citie is pure gold, as ſhining glaſſe.

22 And I ſaw no Temple therein: for the Lord God Almightie and the Lamb are the Temple of it.

23 * [16] And this citie hath no need of the ſun, neither of the moon to ſhine in it: for the glory of God did light it: and the Lamb is the light of it.

24 * And the people which are ſaved, ſhal walke in the light of it: and the kings of the earth ſhall bring their glory and honor unto it.

25 * And the gates of it ſhall not be ſhut by day: for there ſhall be no night there.

26 And the glory and honour of the Gentiles ſhalbe brought unto it.

27 And there ſhall enter into it none unclean thing, neither whatſoever worketh abomination or lies: but they which are written in the Lambs * book of life.

CHAP. XXII.

1 The river of the water of life is ſhewed, 2 and the tree of life: 6.7. Then followeth the concluſion of this prophecie, 8 where Iohn declareth, that the things herein contained, are moſt true. 13 And now the third time repeateth theſe words, All things come from him who is the beginning and the end.

And

[1] Now followeth the ſecond part of the hiſtory propheticall (as I ſaid Chapter 1. & 11. 1) of the future eſtate of the Church in heaven after the laſt judgment, unto the fift verſe of the next chapter. In this are two things briefly declared: The ſtation, ſeat, or place thereof, verſe 1. Then her ſtate and condition, in the verſes following. before the ſtate of the Church deſcribed, is ſet down the ſtate of the whole world, that there ſhall be a new heaven, and a new earth, as Eſa. 65.7. and 66.12. and 2 Pet. 3.13. and this is the ſeat or place of the Church, in which righteouſneſſe ſhall dwell.

* Eſa. 65.17. and 66.22.

* 2 Pet. 3.13.

[2] The ſtate of this glorious Church, is firſt deſcribed generally, unto the 8 verſe, and then ſpecially, and by parts, in the verſes following. The generall deſcription conſiſteth in a viſion, ſhewed a far off, verſe 2. and in ſpeach ſpoken from heaven. In the generall theſe things are common, that the Church is holy, new, the workmanſhip of God, heavenly, moſt glorious: the ſpouſe of Chriſt, and partaker of his glory in this verſe.

[3] The Church is deſcribed by ſpeach, firſt of an Angel, in two verſes, then of God himſelf, in four verſes. The Angels ſpeach deſcribeth the glorie of the Church, by a moſt familiar cohabitation of God therewith, by communication of all manner good things according to the covenant, in this verſe: and by removing or putting far away of all evill things, in the verſe following.

* Chap. 7.17. Eſai. 25.8.

[4] In the ſpeach of God himſelf deſcribing the Church, is firſt a certain exordium, or entrance, verſe 5, Then followeth a magnificent deſcription of the Church, by the preſent and future good things of the ſame, in three verſes following, In the exordium God challengeth unto himſelf the reſtoring of all the creatures, of which verſe 1. and witneſſeth the calling of Saint Iohn unto the writing of theſe things, in this verſe.

* Eſay 43.19. 2 Corint. 5. 17.

* Chap. 1.8. and 22.13.

[5] The deſcription of the Church is of three ſorts, by aboliſhing of old things, by the being of preſent things in God, that is, of things eternall: and by the communication of all good things with the godly, verſe 6. If ſo be they ſhall ſtrive manfully, verſe 7. But the reprobate are excluded from thence, verſe 8.

[a] Their lot, and inheritance as it were.

[6] A tranſition unto the particular deſcribing of the heavenly Church, by the expreſſe calling of S. Iohn in this verſe, and his rapting up by the Spirit, in confirmation of the trueth of God in the verſe following.

[7] He meaneth the place and ſtately ſeat of the Church, ſhadowed out in a mountain.

[8] A type of that Church which is one, ample, or Catholike, holy, celeſtiall, built of God, in this verſe: and glorious, in the verſe following. This type propounded, generally, is after particularly declared, verſe 12, &c.

[9] A particular deſcription (as I noted verſe 2) of the celeſtiall Church. Firſt, by the eſſentiall parts of the ſame, under the ſimilitude of a citie, unto verſe 22. Secondly, by the forreine accidents, unto the end of the Chapter. Thirdly, by the effects, in the beginning of the next Chapter, the eſſentiall parts are noted, the matter and the form in the whole worke: of theſe the ſuperficies and foundation of the wall are entire parts (as they uſe to be called) which parts are firſt deſcribed in figure, unto the 14 verſe, afterwards more exactly.

[10] According to the number of the tribes, of which, Chap. 7. For heer the outward part is attributed unto the old Teſtament, and the foundation to the new Teſtament.

[11] He meaneth the Prophets, who are the meſſengers of God, and watchmen of the Church.

[12] That is, foundation ſtones, according to the number of the gates, as is ſhewed, Verſe 19, [13] A tranſition unto a more exquiſite deſcription of the parts of the Church, by finding out of the meaſure of the ſame, by the Angel that meaſured them.

[14] The meaſure and forme moſt equall, in two verſes.

[b] A fourſquare figure hath equall ſides, and outright corners, and therefore the Grecians call by this name theſe things that are ſteady, and of continuance, and perfect.

[c] He addeth this, becauſe the Angel had the ſhape of a man.

[15] The matter moſt precious and glittering, which the preſence of God maketh moſt glorious.

[d] By ſtreet, he meaneth the broadeſt place of the citie.

* Eſay 60.19.

[16] The ſecond forme of particular diſcription (as I ſaid verſe 12) from forrein and outward accidents which are theſe. Light from God himſelf in this verſe: glory from men, ver. 24. perfit ſecuritie from all harme, ver. 25. Finally, ſuch truth and incorruption of glory (ver. 26.) as can bear and abide with it, nothing that is inglorious, verſe the laſt.

* Eſay 60.3.

* Eſay 60.11.

* Chap. 3.5. and 20.12. Phil. 4.3.

And [1] he ſhewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as cryſtal, proceeding out of the throne of God, and of the Lamb.

2 In the midſt of the ſtreet of it, and of either ſide of the river, was the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and gave fruit every moneth : and the leaves of the tree ſerved to heal the nations with.

3 And there ſhall be no more curſe, but the throne of God and of the Lamb ſhall be in it, and his ſervants ſhall ſerve him.

4 And they ſhall ſee his face, and his Name ſhall be in their foreheads.

5 * And there ſhall be no night there, and they need no candle, neither light of the ſun: for the Lord God giveth them light, and they ſhall reigne for evermore.

6 [2] And he ſaid unto me, Theſe words are faithfull and true : and the Lord God of the holy Prophets ſent his Angel to ſhew unto his ſervants the things which muſt ſhortly be fulfilled.

7 Behold, I come ſhortly. Bleſſed is he that keepeth the words of the prophecie of this book.

8 And I am John, which ſaw and heard theſe things : and when I had heard and ſeen * I fell down to worſhip before the feet of the Angel which ſhewed me theſe things.

9 But he ſaid unto me, See thou doe it not : for I am thy fellow ſervant, and of thy brethren the Prophets, and of them which keep the words of this booke : worſhip God.

10 [3] And he ſaid unto me, [4] Seal not the words of the prophecie of this book : for the time is at hand.

11 [5] He that is unjuſt, let him be unjuſt ſtill : and he that is filthy, let him be filthy ſtill : and he that is righteous, let him be righteous ſtill : and he that is holy, let him be holy ſtill.

12 [6] And behold, I come ſhortly, and my reward is with me, * to give to every man according as his worke ſhall be.

13 I am * Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the firſt and the laſt.

14 Bleſſed are they, that do his Commandements, [7] that their right may be in the tree of Life, and may enter in through the gates into the Citie:

15 For without ſhallbe dogs and enchanters, and whoremongers, and murtherers, and idolaters, and whoſoever loveth or maketh lies.

16 [8] I Jeſus have ſent mine Angel, to teſtifie unto you theſe things in the Churches : I am the root and the generation of David, and the bright morning Starre.

17 And the Spirit and the bride ſay, Come. And let him that heareth, ſay, Come: and let him that is a thirſt, come : and * let whoſoever will, take of the water of life freely.

18 [9] For I proteſt unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecie of this booke, If any man ſhall adde unto theſe things, God ſhall adde unto him the plagues that are written in this book.

19 And if any man ſhall diminiſh of the words of the book of this prophecie, God ſhall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy citie, & from thoſe things, which are written in this book.

20 [10] He which teſtifieth theſe things, ſaith, Surely I come quickly, Amen. Even ſo, come Lord Jeſus.

21 [11] The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all, Amen.

[1] Here is abſolved and finiſhed the deſcription of the celeſtiall Church (as I ſhewed before, Chap.21.12.) by the effects in 5 verſes, & then this book is concluded in the reſt of the chap. The effects proceeding from God, who dwelleth in the Church, are theſe : the everlaſting grace of God, in this verſe, the eternall living of the godly, as Chap.2.7. the eternall fruits which the godly bring forth unto God, themſelves & others, Verſe 2. freedom & immunitie from all evil, God himſelf taking pleaſure in his ſervants, and they likewiſe in their God, Verſe 3. The beholding and ſight of God, and ſealing of yͤ faithfull from all eternitie, verſe 4. the light of God & an everlaſting kingdom & glory, ver. 5

* Eſay 60.19.

[2] This whole book is concluded and made up by a confirmation & a ſalutation. The confirmation hath three places: The words of the Angel unto the 15 verſe, the words of Chriſt, verſe 16, 17. and the obteſtation made by Saint Iohn from divine authority, thence unto the 20 verſe. By the ſpeach of the Angel this prophecie is confirmed, unto the 8 verſe, and then he ſpeaketh of the uſe of this book in the verſes following. The prophecie is firſt confirmed by the Angel from the nature thereof, that it is faithfull and true: Secondly, from the nature of the efficient cauſe, both principall which is God, and inſtrumentall, which is the Angel in this verſe. Thirdly, from the promiſes of God concerning his comming to effect all theſe things, and concerning our ſalvation, Verſe 7. Fourthly, from the teſtification of Saint Iohn himſelf, Verſe 8. The reſt of yͤ ſpeach of the Angel tending to the ſame end. Saint Iohn interrupted or brake off by his vnadviſed act of worſhpping him, in the ſame verſe which the Angel forbidding, teacheth him that adoration muſt be given not to him, but only to God, as for himſelf, that he is of ſuch nature & office, as he may not be adored: which thing alſo was in like manner done, Chap.16.verſe 10.

* Chap. 19.10.

[3] The Angel returneth unto his former ſpeech : in which he teacheth the uſe of this book both towards our ſelves, in this and the next verſe : and in reſpect of God for declaration of his trueth, thence unto the 15 verſe.

[4] That is propound this prophecie openly unto all, and conceale no part of it. The contrary whereunto is commanded, Eſa.8. 6. and Dan.8.26

[5] An objection prevented. But there will be ſome that will abuſe this occaſion unto evill, and will wreſt this Scripture unto their own deſtruction, as Peter ſaith. What then ſaith the Angel, the myſteries of God muſt not therefore be concealed, which it hath pleaſed him to communicate unto us. Let them be hurtfull unto others, let ſuch be more and more vile in themſelves whom this Scripture doeth not pleaſe : yet others ſhall be further conformed thereby unto righteouſneſſe, and true holineſſe. The care and reformation of theſe may not be neglected, becauſe of the voluntary and malicious offence of others.

[6] The ſecond place belonging unto the uſe of this booke, as I ſaid, verſe 10. Alſo (ſaith God by the Angel) though there ſhould be no uſe of this booke unto men: yet it ſhall be of this uſe unto me, that it is a witneſſe of my trueth unto my glory, who wil cōe ſhortly, to give and execute juſt judgement, in this verſe : who have taught that all theſe things have their being in me, in the 13 verſe, and have denounced bleſſedneſſe unto my ſervants in the Church, verſe 14. and reprobation unto the ungodly, verſe 15.

* Rom. 2.6.

* Chap. 1.8. and 21.6. Eſa. 41 44.& 44.6.

[7] The bleſſednes of the godly ſet down by their title and intereſt thereunto : and their fruit in the ſame.

[8] The ſecond place of confirmation (as I ſaid verſe 6.) is the ſpeech of Chriſt ratifying the vocation of S.Iohn, and the authority of his calling and teſtimonie, both from the condition of his own perſon, being God and man, in whom all the promiſes of God are Yea and Amen, 2 Cor.1.20. and alſo from the teſtification of other perſons, by the acclamation of the holy Ghoſt, who here is as it were an honorable aſſiſtant of the marriage of the Church as the ſpouſe ; and of every of the godly as members : and finally, from the thing preſent, that of their own knowledge and accord, they are called forth unto the participation of the good things of God, verſe 17.

* Eſai. 55.1.

[9] The obteſtation of S.Iohn (which is the third place of the confirmation, as was noted verſe 6.) joyned with a curſe of execration to preſerve the trueth of this booke entire and uncorrupted in two verſes.

[10] A divine confirmation or ſealing of the obteſtation, firſt from Chriſt avouching the ſame, and denouncing his comming againſt all thoſe that ſhall put their ſacrilegious hands hereunto : then from S.Iohn himſelf, who by a moſt holy prayer calleth Chriſt to take vengeance of them.

[11] The ſalutation Apoſtolicall, which is the other place of the concluſion, as I ſaid verſe 6. and is the end almoſt of every Epiſtle: which we wiſh unto the Church, and to all the holy and elect members thereof, in Chriſt Ieſus our Lord, until his comming to judgement. Come Lord Ieſus, and doe it. Amen, again Amen.

THE END.

A briefe Table of the interpretation of the proper names which are chiefly found in the Olde Teſtament, wherein the firſt number ſignifieth the Chapter, the ſecond the Verſe.

WHereas the wickedneſſe of time, and the blindenes of the former age hath been ſuch, that all things altogether have been abuſed and corrupted, ſo that the very right names of divers of the holy men named in the Scriptures have been forgotten, and now ſeem ſtrange unto us, and the names of infants that ſhould ever have ſome godly advertiſements in them, and ſhould be memorials and markes of the children of God received into his houſhold, have been heerby alſo changed and made the ſignes and badges of idolatrie and heatheniſh impietie: we have now ſet forth this Table of the names that be moſt uſed in the old Teſtament, with their interpretations, as the Hebrew importeth, partly to call back the godly from that abuſe, when they ſhall know the true names of the godly Fathers, and what they ſignifie, that their children now named after them, may have teſtimonies by their very names, that they are within that faithfull family, that in all their doings had ever God before their eyes, and that they are bound by theſe their names to ſerve God from their infancie, and have occaſion to praiſe him for his works wrought in them, and their fathers, but chiefly to reſtore the names to their integritie, whereby many places of the Scriptures and ſecret myſteries of the holy Ghoſt ſhall better be underſtood. We have medled rarely with the Greek names, becauſe their interpretation is uncertain, and many of them are corrupted from their originall, as we may alſo ſee theſe Hebrew names ſet in the margent of this Table, which have been corrupted by the Grecians. Now for the other Hebrew names that are not here interpreted, let not the diligent Reader be carefull: for he ſhall find them in places moſt convenient amongſt the Annotations: at leaſt ſo many as may ſeem to make for any edification, and underſtanding of the Scriptures.
